Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, have you any knowledge as to the manner—by "manner" I mean mechanics—of the work of the local Guild shopper in relation to your store? A. The only thing I would have would be more or less supposition on my part.

Q. More or less what? A. Supposition, as to what her duties might be.

Q. I do not mean as to what her duties might be. I mean as to how she actually operated when she went into 8025 your store. What did she do when she went into your store? A. I did not see the shopper shop our department, and could not come to any conclusion as to what brought her there, or what her duties were in going through our stock, what the motive was.

Q. You knew who she was, did you not? A. I had met her.

Q. You had met her? A. Yes.

Q. And when you met her, she introduced herself to you as the representative of the Guild, to shop the store? A. Yes.

Q. Did she inform you of the fact that she was going to come into the store and look over your stock, to look for copies? A. I don't recall.

Q. Would you say that she did not? A. That she did.

Q. That she did not tell you that. A. I can't say.

Q. But, as a matter of fact, you knew that is what she was going to do? A. Absolutely; that was the practice.

Q. And, of course, if you cannot tell us definitely as to what she actually did, it is obvious that none of your 8027 buyers made any complaints as to how she acted, did they? A. With the permission of the Court, I would like to clarify that, if I may have that permission.

Examiner Bennett: If you will answer the question, then, if you have any explanation to make you may go ahead. The question asked you is whether any of your buyers made complaint about the shopper.

The Witness: What I was going to say was this: That it happens that Ed. Schuster & Company have three stores in Milwaukee, and the shopper may have gone to any one of the three stores when the buyer was not present and selected such styles from either one of these three stores.

8028 By Mr. Albert.

Q. But what she did, she did openly, didn't she? A. That's right.

Q. That is, there was no concealment in what she attempted to do, was there? A. None whatsoever, to the best of my knowledge.

Q. You stated that there are three stores of Schuster & Company in Milwaukee? A. That is true.

Q. And all of the figures that you have been presenting are a compilation of the figures of the three stores combined, isn't that so? A. Correct.

Q. There is no breakdown of these figures for each store that you have presented, is there? A. There is none.

Q. Mr. Liberman, would you be good enough to tell us the price lines of the vendors of the dresses, as set forth in Commission's Exhibit 542? A. I cannot.

Q. Do you know the price lines of any of them? A. Trussel Dress Company, I believe, is a $4.75 wholesale resource. The Irving Frocks, to the best of my recollection, is a $6.75 resource. The Emporium Frocks, I believe, is both a $3.75 and a $4.75 resource. Outside of that, I cannot state. 8030

Q. Do I understand this exhibit correctly to be the total number of dresses returned in all three departments? A. In all three departments?

Q. In all three stores. A. Merchandise for all stores in which that style was in stock. In other words, there may have been one dress at one store, there may have been five in another.

Q. Yes. A. All that particular style was gathered together and returned.

Q. And the total, therefore, of all dresses returned in all departments in three stores was 101 dresses? A. 101 dresses.

Q. That is the figure you have here. A. As stated on that memorandum. 8031

Q. Can you give me an approximation of the total number of dresses handled in all three departments, in all three stores? I don't want it specifically, but as close an approximation as you can give. A. I haven't that information available.

Q. Would you say that it was 500,000 dresses? A. I don't know.

Q. Would you say it was 250,000 dresses? A. I don't know.

Q. Would you say it was 500 dresses? A. I don't know.

Mr. Albert: Have you Commission's Exhibit 552?

Mr. Haycraft: Here is a copy of it. I haven't the original.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, looking at Commission's Exhibit 552, does that refresh your recollection, and is that of 8033 assistance to you in approximating the number of dresses that were handled by Schuster & Company? A. In the price line qualifications mentioned on this sheet.

Q. Only? A. That's all.

Q. And you have no idea whatsoever of the amount of dresses handled in the other price lines? A. I have not.

Q. And you say that, despite your position in Schuster & Company, and the experience that you have had, and the figures that you have attempted to compile for presentation to the Commission, that you can make no estimate of the total number? A. I cannot.

Q. Looking at Commission's Exhibit 542, will you be good enough to tell me which of those returns were of "hot" numbers? A. I cannot answer.

Q. You don't know? A. I don't know. All such action
8034 was taken through the Guild representative and our buyer.

Q. But however hot the number might have been, the greatest number of dresses that you returned in any style, according to this exhibit, was 12, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Is this true, Mr. Liberman: That although you have listed, for example, Franken and Klein as having been returned twelve dresses, which is the greatest number of returns on this list that may actually represent, perhaps, two, three or four different styles, in so far as you know? You don't know that that twelve represents only one style, do you? A. That I could not say.

Q. How often, Mr. Liberman, do you check your figures with respect to the stock on hand? A. There is, in the regular course of business, and through channels already established, a weekly inventory compiled for my benefit.

Q. And those figures are presented to you? A. They are.

Q. And I presume that the last figures you saw were the last week's figures? A. I received them on Tuesday or Wednesday, and that is a record of stock on hand as of the Monday previous.

Q. So that the figures that you see represent the stock on hand of approximately four or five days before that time, is that correct? A. No.

Q. Roughly speaking? A. No. All inventories are compiled on Monday, all stock taking is completed on Monday. It takes a matter of a day or two to compile the figures and forward them to the merchandise office.

Q. I misunderstood you. I am sorry. Have you seen those figures each week that they were prepared? A. Unless I was away.

Q. Now, can you, drawing upon your knowledge of the figures presented to you from week to week, tell us approximately the stock carried by Schuster & Company during the period from September, 1935, to date? A. I cannot.

Q. What were the last figures that you saw?

Mr. Albert: Withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Can you obtain for us the total volume of dresses held by Schuster & Company during 1935, down to February, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

The Witness: I cannot.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any objection to giving us those figures?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Likert: I think I can answer that question for the witness. We prefer not to go through our records.

8039 Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, I am not asking the witness for a specific, accurate figure, even within a hundred, or even a thousand, of the number of dresses that he has. But it seems to me most unusual that a man in his position cannot give me an approximation of the number of dresses on stock in Schuster & Company during the period in question. They have presented these figures. There is no reason why they cannot present the other figures.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any such assumption that it is natural that if a man is a merchandiser he carries around things in his mind, such detail figures as that. The fact of the matter is, it would be very unusual. I have never seen a man yet who could do it. I don't think there is a man living that 8040 can do it.

Mr. Albert: It is nothing unusual for men in the position of Mr. Liberman to be able to approximate within 10,000, or even 25,000, of the number of dresses handled by Schuster & Company.

Mr. Likert: Is it going to be of any benefit to you, Mr. Albert, to know what the figure is, when the witness has testified he does not know what it is? The witness is unable to give the approximation. For you to get the accurate information is not going to assist you in determining whether he knows or not. And he does not know.

Mr. Albert: With all due respect, the figure presented may be, perhaps, of just as much benefit for my purpose when it is 50 per cent. of the actual amount as if I had the total actual amount.

Examiner Bennett: Will you go back and read the underlying question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: Your question was answered by the attorney for the witness and, so far as the Examiner is concerned, that disposes of it. That is, 8042 the Examiner has taken that position with respect to every witness. He has no objection to Schuster & Company giving them if they feel like it, but he does not think they are under obligation to give the figures as part of the cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Exception, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: I will ask you this question:

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, can you, or perhaps I should say, have you any objections to giving me an estimate, approximately, of the total number of dresses sold by Schuster & Company, on an average in its three stores 8043 daily? A. I cannot.

Q. Can you say, Mr. Liberman——

Mr. Albert: Withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you say, Mr. Liberman, the total number of dresses sold in the three stores of Schuster & Company average approximately in excess of 100 a day? A. I——

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment, please. Same objection to any further interrogation on this point. The witness has said he could not do it.

Mr. Albert: I have asked him a different question.

Mr. Haycraft: It all goes to the same point.

Examiner Bennett: The witness made some reply on that. Will you read what the witness said?

(Record read.)

By Mr. Albert.

8045 Q. Can you give that? A. I cannot.

Q. Would you say that it was in excess of an average of fifty per day?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection We do not seem to make any progress. Let us assume that the witness does not know, or cannot give it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any idea, Mr. Liberman, as to the relative position occupied by Schuster & Company in Milwaukee, in comparison with other department stores, in the sale of better dresses, as you have described, that is, above 8046 the $10.75 price line? A. I think we have a very favorable comparison.

Q. Would you say you were about fourth? A. I would not acknowledge that.

Q. You would not say you were the leading store in the sale of better dresses, would you? A. No.

Q. Now, how many dresses are purchased by Schuster & Company in the $16.95 price line, and above, for purposes of display?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness has already testified as to his knowledge.

Examiner Bennett: If he does not know, he does not have to state.

Mr. Haycraft: What is the use of filling the record with it, when he has already said it two or three times?

Examiner Bennett: I don't believe that question has been asked or answered. He may answer.

The Witness: Your Honor, it is a matter of record, of how many dresses at $16.95 we carry in stock.

Mr. Albert: Will you repeat the question? 8048

(Question read.)

The Witness: This record here, Exhibit 552, gives you the approximate amount of dresses we carry at $16.95 at each inventory period taken weekly, and which we feel is a representative number of dresses, and the number of styles for us to do business.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Liberman, that Schuster & Company purchases better dresses for purposes of display, in order to attract their patrons, without the expectation of being able to sell?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant 8049 and immaterial.

Mr. Martin: No foundation.

Examiner Bennett: I do not see how it is relevant. Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What did you mean, Mr. Liberman, when you stated, in answer to a question of Mr. Haycraft, that your inability to obtain Guild merchandise has retarded the display on dresses retailing at $16.95 and above? A. The term was used that, after all, you have got to have merchandise in stock before you can sell it.

Mr. Haycraft: What page is that, please?

Mr. Albert: 4455.

The Witness: In using that term, I meant stock for display and promotion.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you mean by that simply that if you did not have the dresses, you could not display them? A. That 8051 is right.

Q. And it had no other connotation? A. Well, I would like to get the answer that I gave to that question.

Q. Here is your answer, Mr. Liberman: "It has definitely retarded the display, the sales, and the ways and means of catering to Ed. Schuster & Company's clientele on dresses retailing at $16.95, and above." Now, when you answered that, did you mean that three separate——

Mr. Albert: Withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you mean by that that Ed. Schuster & Company was affected in three separate and distinct ways by your 8052 inability to obtain Guild merchandise? A. The three ways that we suffered, lost volume, are covered in that answer.

Q. Are they three separate, mutually exclusive ways in which you are affected? That is what I mean. A. I mean the net result is part of all three.

Q. So that what you meant by "display" is included in the ways and means of catering to Ed. Schuster & Company's clientele? A. I would like to refer to this, all of which is a part and parcel of promoting and selling and displaying of merchandise, and, in the activities of the dress departments, all three are embodied in catering to the clientele of Ed. Schuster & Company. We have a definite clientele for merchandise at the price line quoted.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that all three elements that you have mentioned there are interrelated, is that so? A. That is correct.

Mr. Albert: That's all I wanted to find out.

Mr. Haycraft: It speaks for itself. There is nothing ambiguous about it.

Mr. Albert: I will not give you any lessons in grammatical construction, Mr. Haycraft. It is too late. Will your Honor pardon me for just a moment?

Examiner Bennett: Very well.

(Short interruption.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, in answer to questions from Mr. Haycraft, you rererred to a certain type of dress.

Mr. Haycraft: What page?

Mr. Albert: 4458.

8055

Q. And you have characterized it as half-size resources. Can you give us a little better explanation of what you meant by that? A. It is a type of garment which is known in the trade as being built on half-size, whether it is a misses' half-size or women's half-size, and happens to fit a certain type of figure. There are recognized resources for such type dresses.

Q. Is there any other name by which those dresses are known, aside from the actual description of them as half-size resources? I mean, aren't they known as "little women's dresses," also; is that correct? A. Such a term is used.

Q. I mean, in relation to half-size resources, I want to know what you are referring to there. A. Yes, I believe there is such a term.

Q. Are you acquainted with Fairchild's Directory? A. I have seen them, yes.

Q. Fairchild's Directory contains lists of manufacturers in various classifications, does it not? A. I believe so,

8057 yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, I show you Respondents' Exhibit 21 for Identification, and I show you specifically the subdivision thereof headed "Little Women's Dresses." Is that the type of dress which you were referring to generally——

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) —when you referred to half-size resources? Is that the name also applied to that type of dress, "little women's dresses"? A. There is a heading here, "Little Women's Dresses." Not having used this directory, I cannot say whether that applies to the mer-8058 chandise in question or not.

Q. But when you said that the title "Little Women's Dresses" was also used to describe half-size resources, is that what you meant, that "little women's dresses" and half-size resources are somewhat synonymous in the industry to describe the type of resource you were referring to on page 4458? A. That may be; but not being a buyer, I had no occasion to use this directory.

Q. I am not asking you that. I am asking you if that is what you mean also by "little women's dresses," half-size resources?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. Counsel is seeking to get the witness to identify something, when the witness did not do so in his examination.

Examiner Bennett: If he knows whether they are synonymous terms, I would like to have him say so. If they are not synonymous terms, to him, I would like to have him say so.

The Witness: I made the statement that I had no occasion to use this directory. It is the function of the buyer to find resources for the merchandise for which he is scouring the market. 8060

Mr. Albert: May I ask the witness' answer be stricken? I think all your Honor wanted to know was whether the title "Little Women's Dresses" was synonymous with his use of the expression "half-size resources," and I believe the witness has already testified that, substantially, that is correct.

Examiner Bennett: I wanted to see whether it does or not.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Are the terms "little women's dresses" and "half-sizes" the same terms in the trade? A. They may be used as a similar classification. 8061

Q. They designate the same classification, do they? A. They do, yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, without taking the time, Mr. Liberman, to actually count them, will you accept my statement that in this listing in Fairchild's of manufacturers selling "little women's dresses," there are 105 manufacturers?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question with reference to the directory as an exhibit which is not in evidence. The witness says he never used it, he is not a buyer, he is not in a position to testify to it. I submit there is no foundation laid for such a question, and it is improper cross examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think that is a matter to show later. This witness does not seem to be acquainted with those re-

8063 sources. If you want to offer that document, I will entertain an offer.

Mr. Albert: Well, if your Honor please, we have been referring to it as Respondents' Exhibit 21. I believe that Fairchild's have been previously referred to by some of the Commission's witnesses.

Mr. Haycraft: Not that book.

Mr. Albert: And I certainly do not want to put the full directory into evidence, nor do I think it necessary to put in six or seven pages of this particular exhibit. I think there is no particular secret in what I want to do. I merely want to ask the witness this question.

Examiner Bennett: He does not seem to be informed, his information does not seem to be sufficient that it is worth while clearing up the record on that particular point.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you in any way checked up on your buyers with respect to the resources sought to be contacted by them? A. I have not.

Q. Do you in any way know what resources they contacted in attempting to replace, as you said, the Guild manufacturers? A. I do not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, when you state that your buyers reported to you, they could not replace Guild resources, have you any knowledge as to what they did in their attempts to replace Guild resources? A. They made the usual rounds, supplemented with the experience and knowledge of the New York market, by our—by the Cavendish representatives.

Q. But you do not know what manufacturers they visited, do you? A. I do not.

Q. And you cannot tell us? A. I cannot.

Q. Mr. Liberman, do you know whether or not Abbate-Swift make half-size dresses? A. I do. 8066

Q. Do you mean by that that they do make half-size dresses? A. Yes.

Q. Does Admiration Dress Company make half-size dresses? A. I do not know.

Q. Does Annetta Waist make half-size dresses? A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know whether or not Avion Dress makes half-size dresses? A. I am not familiar with the resources.

Q. Barish? A. I don't know it.

Q. Barham Dress? A. I don't know.

Q. Baron Dress? A. I don't know.

Q. Bass William? A. I don't know.

Q. Beau Monde? A. I don't know. 8067

Mr. Haycraft: I object further, Mr. Examiner, to reading from the exhibit not in evidence.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Ben-Wal?

Mr. Haycraft: —and to which I objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I do not believe it makes any difference, if they are resources—the source of his information as to half-size dresses.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Ben-Wal? A. I can't hear you.

Q. Ben-Wal Dress Company? A. I am not familiar with the resource.

Q. Berkley? A. I don't know it.

Q. Berman & Smith? A. I don't know them.

Q. Better Mode? A. I don't know.

Q. Bettini? A. I don't know.

Q. Black Wear? A. I don't know.

Mr. Haycraft: To save time, Mr. Examiner, I will stipulate in view of the witness' testimony, that he does not know anything about this matter—

8069 that he does not know any other names that were red carded.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: He obviously knows some of them. I want to find out what he knows.

Mr. Haycraft: He has already said he did not know. What is the object of further cross-examination on it?

Mr. Albert: I wish to state that we have taken opinions from witnesses on these matters. They have testified on direct examination, and I would like to find out what this man, who occupies the position that he does with Schuster & Company, knows about his business, if he can come here and 8070 give the opinions that he has——

Mr. Haycraft: That is not a part of his——

Mr. Albert: —he has given opinions——

Mr. Haycraft: That is not a part of his duties. He has already testified. This witness is not put on as a buyer in this case.

Mr. Albert: He is superior to the buyer.

Mr. Haycraft: I submit that when we submit a witness for the purpose of testifying as to one function, one type of business, that he should not be interrogated along lines with which he is not—for which he is not offered, and about which other witnesses who are familiar with the situation may be interrogated. It so happens in this particular case that the buyer for Schuster & Company is not with them any more, and we are unable to produce her at this time.

Mr. Albert: Then I ask, if it please the Court, that all of the testimony with respect to this particular line of examination be stricken from the record.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, now, I——

Mr. Albert: If we cannot cross-examine the buyer because the Federal Trade Commission does not seek to go after her, and they do not want to permit us to cross-examine this man to show that there is no foundation whatsoever for the opinion as registered, except the remarks of somebody who will never be presented to the Commission, and whom we cannot get——

Mr. Haycraft: The thing is this, this witness is an official of the organization and in charge of the department.

Mr. Albert: Then he should know what he is being cross-examined about.

Mr. Haycraft: Let me get through with my remarks. You have interrupted me twice now.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

Mr. Haycraft: In that capacity he has testified as to what has been told by his buyers, what reports have been made to him by his buyers, in the ordinary course of business. I submit he should not be cross-examined as to what his buyers might know or might not know, that is what this amounts to.

If he had testified, or if he did have intimate knowledge of the industry, I would have no objection to it, but I do not see that we are getting anywhere.

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Haycraft: As I say, I am willing to stipulate that he does not know the resources, outside of the resources he has contacted that happened to come under his own supervision.

Mr. Albert: Therefore, if it please the Court, I believe that his opinion, and his statement, that this merchandise cannot be replaced, should be 8075 stricken from the record as having no foundation, except the words of a woman who is not here, and who, for all we know, may have been discharged because of the fact that she did not contact these resources. There is nothing in the evidence with respect to it.

Mr. Haycraft: Ask him that, if you want to.

Examiner Bennett: Well, now, if you are through debating, I will make a decision.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Blau Dress Company?

Examiner Bennett: This witness seems to have been acquainted with some resources, and so testi-8076 fied. He has attempted to characterize them. I am going to let him be subjected to cross-examination as to what he knows about them.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: About the other resources to a reasonable extent.

Mr. Haycraft: Now, I am willing to stipulate that he does not know anything except those that come within his own supervision, in his own organization.

Mr. Bennett: I do not think you could do that, because his testimony has shown differently.

Mr. Haycraft: He has testified he did not; he has testified twice he did not.

Examiner Bennett: I know, but he did testify in specific cases, characterizing resources, and testifying as to having such resources—and let us not——

Mr. Haycraft: Well, Mr. Examiner, I submit that he does not know anything further, outside of his own organization. If by reason of the fact he is merchandise manager of Schuster & Company, he has become familiar with every resource that 8078
Schuster & Company has been buying from, it does not necessarily follow from that fact that he is familiar with resources from whom they do not buy.

Examiner Bennett: Maybe there are some of those resources from which he buys. I am going to let that examination go on. We are wasting time by repeated objections to it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Blau Dress Company? A. I don't know.

Q. Bleich Dress Company? A. Pardon?

Q. Bleich? A. Never heard of them.

Q. Blue Belle Frocks? A. Don't know them. 8079

Q. May I ask, when you say you don't know, Mr. Liberman, whether you also mean that you do not know the firm; or that you do not know what it is that they manufacture? A. I don't know the firm, or know the merchandise that they might manufacture.

Q. So that for those that you have answered "I don't know," you would put them in the same class as the Bleich Dress, to which you answered "never heard of them"? A. Correct.

Q. Thank you. Bosnjak Meyer? A. I don't know.

Q. Caron Brothers? A. I don't know.

Q. Cheerful Dress? A. I don't know.

Q. Cohen Brothers? A. Pardon?

Q. Cohen Brothers? A. I don't know them.

Q. Constantine Dress? A. Might I get a clarification of that? There may be—these houses that are mentioned in his directory, may be making half-size dresses and also larger sizes. Now, I think that my statement yesterday covered both lines. Now, some of these houses that you have mentioned may be making womens' dresses that we have bought, but I don't know whether they make half 8081 sizes, little womens or regulars.

Q. Would it be any information to tell you, Mr. Liberman, that the houses that I have just listed are contained in the same category as houses that you have mentioned on page 4458 of the minutes, are also listed in that category as being little women's dresses resources? A. Still does not clarify the question. I mean, that you have asked me if I know that they make a little women's dresses.

Q. Yes. A. I do not know, any such answers as I have given you are to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Very well. Fashion Wear Dress Company? A. I don't know.

Q. Form-Fit Dresses? A. I don't know.

Q. Harry Frank? A. I believe they make both womens and half sizes.

8082 Q. Geffen, M. L. Co., Inc.? A. I don't know.

Q. Joan Sportwear? A. I don't know.

Mr. Albert: I will just take a few more, your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Very well.

Mr. Albert: —to give us a cross section.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Pommy Dress Corporation? A. Pardon?

Q. Pommy Dress Corporation? A. Never heard of them.

Q. Radiant Dress? A. I believe they make both womens and half sizes.

Q. Bennie Schwartz & Company? A. Don't know.

Q. Simonetti, Inc.? A. I have heard of the firm, but I cannot qualify what type dress they make.

Q. Smart Woman Dresses, Inc? A. Don't know them.

Q. Max Wiesen & Sons? A. They make half sizes.

Q. Now, let us take the last one, Zuckerman & Rubin, Inc.? A. I don't know.

Mr. Albert: For the record, if it please the Court, I have merely taken at random certain names from a list.

Examiner Bennett: All right. 8084

Mr. Albert: That we believe to be these particular houses, and which we will bring out more specifically on direct.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike out all the testimony bearing on that point.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, you have testified that as long as you are red carded you cannot give your customers, and I am paraphrasing, the type of merchandise that they want, is that so? A. That's the way we feel about it, yes.

Q. Now, what do you mean by type of merchandise? A. We feel that Ed. Schuster & Company have a certain 8085 standard, certain quality, and a consciousness of fashion right merchandise as any of our competition, and unless we can get the merchandise that we feel will represent the kind of business that we have done in the past, and we hope to sustain for the future, we will not put in such merchandise that we cannot find that represents these qualifications.

Q. You obviously did not understand my question, Mr. Liberman. What is there about this type of merchandise that makes it so necessary for your store? A. From past experience and records and sales.

Q. Can you tell us what elements there are that comprise the type of merchandise that is manufactured by Guild manufacturers and which is what you are looking for? A. Primarily fashion——

Q. By fashion, do you mean style?

Mr. Haycraft: Wait a moment, he has not completed his answer.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

8087 The Witness (resumed): Speaking of fashion, speaking of material, speaking of fit, speaking of fabrics, and quality of workmanship, plus value.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you not say that material and fabric are the same? A. Yes—I am sorry if I repeated.

Q. And would not you say that substantially fit and workmanship were the same? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, what distinction do you make between fit and workmanship? I want to understand you thoroughly, Mr. Liberman. A. Fit is a matter of sizing, of cutting—certain resources that are known that have a standard of patterns.

Q. Yes, but is not that the result of the workmanship?

8088 A. Not necessarily.

Q. What are you referring to, then, in workmanship? A. Workmanship is the completed garment, the sewing of the garment and the finishing of it after it has been cut; they are in two different, entirely different classifications.

Q. Very well. I just wanted to know what you are referring to, that is all. Now, is there any one of those elements which is primarily important to Schuster & Company in the type of merchandise that it seeks? A. I think primarily what the customer seeks, along with fashion, is fit.

Q. Can you tell me which is of the greater relative importance as between the two, fashion and fit? A. It is a matter of judgment, and after all customers' paramount interest is in getting the kind of garment that she is satisfied with.

Q. Would not you say that no matter how well a garment would fit, the customer would primarily be interested in the fashion and the style that that garment was in? A. I presume so, yes.

Q. And that if she did not like the style, or the fashion 8090 of the garment, she would not even get to the position where she would be interested in seeing whether it would fit or not? A. That may be true.

Q. So that are we safe in saying, in so far as you are concerned, that the first thing that a customer—and of course, we are referring to women customers—looks at, is the influence of a garment, is the fashion and the style?

Mr. Haycraft: I object; he did not say that.

Mr. Albert: Well, I am asking him, if it please the Court——

Mr. Haycraft: Well now——

Mr. Albert: —if that is what he will agree to, or concede.

The Witness: I do not agree to it. 8091

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it your contention that your customers looks first to workmanship, to fit, and material——

Mr. Haycraft: Well——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —before she looks at the style of a dress?

Mr. Haycraft: I am going to object to that, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation laid for that question.

The Witness: I cannot qualify that. After all, I am not the buyer, nor am I directly responsible for the selection and sale of merchandise on the floor, and I am not here as a prophet to give an answer as to what the customer looks for when she 8093 comes to Ed. Schuster & Company.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, Mr. Liberman, is not what I am asking not alone a question of prophecy, as to the future, but dependent upon your knowledge of what has happened in the past? A. It may have happened.

Q. Well, from your experience in the dress industry, would you not say that the first thing that attracts a potential customer, a lady, to a dress, is the fashion and the style of that dress?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; he has already said it was not.

8094 Examiner Bennett: Overruled; he may answer. You may answer. If it is not the first, say so.

The Witness: I think that is part of the whole.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Liberman, how long have you been in the dress industry? A. Pardon?

Q. How long have you been in the dress industry? A. In the dress industry?

Q. Yes, connected with any phase of ready to wear women's dresses? A. Well, as far as the merchandising and retailing of dresses is concerned, it has only known a —or has only been an important factor for about twenty-five years.

Mr. Albert: May I have the answer read?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the answer be stricken? All I asked the witness was as to how long he has been connected with the dress industry.

The Witness: I have not been interested in the industry at all, only from the standpoint of merchandising and retailing. 8096

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And you say that your experience covers a period of twenty-five years? A. In the dresses, yes.

Q. During that time, have you ever been in supervision over the buying of dresses direct supervision over the buying of dresses? A. I have.

Q. And in that supervision have you assisted in the buying of dresses? A. It might be so termed.

Q. Well, when you say it might be so termed, what have you in mind as demonstrating that you have assisted in the buying of dresses? A. That I visited showrooms.

Q. That is, that you have gone out with your buyers and looked at dresses, and possibly discussed with them whether this dress should be bought, or that dress should be bought? A. Yes, that's right. 8097

Q. And in connection with those duties you have gone and visited the various markets, is that right? A. That's true.

Q. Have you ever yourself actually been what is technically known as a buyer? A. I have.

Q. For how long a period of time would you say that you were actually a buyer? A. I can't recall.

Q. Can you give us any rough estimate? A. Possibly eight or ten years.

Q. Now, what is there in the style of the dresses manufactured by Guild manufacturers that is desired by Schuster & Company? A. I don't get the question. Will you read it?

Q. (Last question read by the reporter.) A. Well, all I can say it may mean a type.

Q. A certain type or style? A. A certain type of dress.

Q. No, no, you have set forth three or four elements that are taken into consideration by the customer, in purchasing a dress, is that correct? A. That's right.

8099 Q. And you have also, I believe, or, shall I say, Mr. Haycraft has conceded, that perhaps the most important of those elements is style of a dress? A. That's right.

Q. Now, disregarding the other three elements, what is the important feature of the style that is manufactured by Guild manufacturers, which is necessary to Schuster & Company? A. Well, it may be a type, it may be a dress that has a certain eye appeal to-day that we feel that we need. Thirty days from now we may not want it. That is all a matter of time. If we feel that the time is opportune to have selected such merchandise in season, or before the season, or for a time to come.

Q. And would you say that in that timing the Guild manufacturers display, for the purpose of showing to you these styles, ahead of others? A. Not that, no preference 8100 to Ed. Schuster & Company.

Q. No, I did not mean that Schuster & Company was on any preferred list, or was sold in preference to anybody else. My question was directed at this: You stated that there is a timing element in getting the style, it may be necessary now, and not a month from now—correct? A. That is.

Q. Now, in that element of timing, would you say that Schuster & Company looks to Guild manufacturers to first present the styles that Schuster & Company thinks it needs? A. I do.

Q. What makes style? A. Makes style?

Q. Yes. A. I am not qualified to answer.

Q. After twenty-five years in the merchandise end of the ready-to-wear business, and after ten years as a buyer, you cannot give us any definition of what makes style, or how style is developed? A. Style is a matter of eye appeal, and what might—I would like to have the attention of counsel. It is no reflection on you, but I am addressing my remarks to the attorney here, and I cannot concentrate.

Mr. Post: I apologize.

Mr. Haycraft: Do you want the beginning of 8102 your answer?

The Witness: Yes, if I may have it, please.

Mr. Haycraft: Read it to him.

(Answer read by the reporter.)

A. (Continuing) —and what might be a fashion right garment for one person, would not have any bearing on another. It is the willingness to accept a garment or a fashion upon the customer that makes it. Also, in the number of such customers who are willing to accept it and buy it freely.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Wouldn't you say that a particular garment becomes 8103
the style by reason of its widespread acceptance by the public generally? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Isn't that what you mean when you say that a dress is in style? A. It may have elements, this garment, that is in fashion.

Q. Yes. Now, from your experience in the industry, can you tell us how style, how a fashion is developed?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Laying the foundation, may it please the Court, for subsequent questions.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

The Witness: Would you mind repeating the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: It may be an inspiration that is received from a mode, a historical event, a period of past fashion. It all depends on the ability of a designer or others to capitalize certain elements, 8105 certain factors, or for a popular trend to get the most out of them.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Where would you say that that, to use your word, inspiration, or adoption of a historical trend, or of a past style, first originates? A. In the mind of the designers.

Q. To bring you down more specifically, would you say that that originates in this country, or on the other side, generally speaking? A. You cannot geographically place any particular fashion.

Q. I agree with you on that. But where would you say most, perhaps, of the inspirations and the establishment of the trend of style developed? A. Would you mind re-8106 peating the question, please?

Mr. Albert: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: The public conception is that Paris originates most of the styles that are adopted and adapted in this country.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When you say the popular conception is that they are originated in Paris, do you mean to infer that styles are also originated in this country? A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean when you say that styles are originated in this country? A. There are certain style trends and developments that come from American designers.

Mr. Haycraft: I wish it understood, Mr. Examiner, that I have an objection to this entire line of questioning as irrelevant and immaterial, and not proper cross-examination. I did not go into it at all on direct. 8108

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, is it this type of style and the fashion as developed that Schuster & Company seeks from the members of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. That is one of the elements.

Q. That you look for when you purchase from them? A. That is right.

Q. From your experience as a merchandise manager, and as a buyer for ten years, do you acknowledge that there is such an evil in the industry as style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.
Examiner Bennett: He may answer. 8109

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Speaking for Schuster & Company, of course. A. I have heard of such practices.

Q. Do you also subscribe to the proposition that those practices are an evil in the industry?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

The Witness: Well, it is all a question of how you interpret the matter of policy, if you want to qualify it by also saying there may be adaptations or replicas of a fashion that may have appeared at some previous time or period.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Conceding, Mr. Liberman, for the sake of argument that all present-day fashions originally may have had their first forte hundreds of years ago, and that the present-day 8111 style of dresses is an adaptation of those styles to conform them to present-day practices and to the present-day silhouette of a woman, and to the present-day intelligence, would you say that the copying of those adaptations of the dresses that were originated hundreds of years ago, if you will, was an evil? A. Not necessarily, if the designer received inspiration or ideas from seeing photographs or sketches.

Q. What do you mean by a copy? What is it that is copied? A. A dress may be copied identically, from the standpoint of taking everything out of what we might term an original dress.

Q. Yes. A. That might be termed a copy.

Q. Yes. A. But, on the other hand, as I see this copy-
8112 ing evil, it is very seldom in my experience that we have ever had a direct copy in every detail. And when I speak of every detail, I speak of fashion, fabric, workmanship, findings or trimmings, that you had in the original dress.

Q. Have you had a copy sufficient to resemble, to use your term, the original dress from which it was copied? A. We may have.

Q. And to create confusion in the public mind? A. That has appeared, yes.

Q. Now, insofar as that definition of copy is concerned, isn't and wasn't that an evil in the industry? A. I believe it was an important factor.

Q. In the light of your testimony, Mr. Liberman, is not the program of the Fashion Originators Guild best suited to the elimination of that evil?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. No foundation laid. Irrelevant and immaterial. Improper cross-examination. Particularly in the light of the statement made by counsel for the Commission, as to the lack of an issue on this point.

Mr. Albert: I didn't quite get counsel's last statement. 8114

Mr. Haycraft: Read it to him.

(Record read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, I again ask if we cannot have a specific, definite statement from Mr. Haycraft, instead of equivocal language in an objection of lack of an issue of this matter, and I ask Mr. Haycraft now, in the light of his repeated remarks with respect to the lack of an issue, if the Commission is willing to concede that there is an evil in the industry, and that the program of the Guild is designed to meet that evil. We do not have to meet the same sort of argument in every city to which we go.

Mr. Haycraft: I repeat, I concede nothing. 8115

Mr. Albert: Then I ask him to stop his objections, unless he wishes to tell us why he is objecting.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer, if he has any opinion.

Mr. Haycraft: He has not shown that he knows what the program is.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Do you have any opinion upon that? A. I have not formed any opinion.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Schuster & Company seeks to obtain these styles from the Fashion Originators Guild, does it not? A. It seeks to do business with these firms.

Q. Yes. A. That's right.

Q. Because of the fact that it desires these styles, does it not? A. That is right.

8117 Q. And, of course, Schuster & Company is not the only retail department store, or retail store, that desires to purchase dresses from Fashion Originators Guild manufacturers, are they? There are others, are there not? A. I presume so, yes.

Q. Now, is not the program of the Guild designed for the purpose, in the light of your testimony, that an evil exists with respect to copying, of protecting and maintaining for all retailers the integrity of the merchandise of these manufacturers as well as for Schuster & Company?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. There is no foundation laid for the question. The witness is not a member of the Guild.

8118 Examiner Bennett: I shall sustain the objection to it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you ever seen the declaration of co-operation signed by Schuster & Company?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

The Witness: I have.

Mr. Haycraft: As irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: He has answered. Go ahead. Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: I don't think I got the answer, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: He said he had.

Mr. Likert: Don't answer, when an objection is made, until there is a ruling.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you discuss this with the officials of Schuster & Company? 8120

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Laying a foundation, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: I do not want to be left with the objection, if I jump into the middle of it, that no foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: I will see what it is. Go ahead.

The Witness: Pardon me?

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Have you discussed that particular thing? A. The matter of the letter of co-operation with the Guild was on file with the F.O.G.A.; at the time I went with Schuster & Company, we were following the rules and regulations and the declarations of the memorandum. 8121

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And you were in hearty accord with the principles of the Guild——

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) —were you?

Mr. Haycraft: Not proper cross-examination, irrelevant and immaterial, whether he was or was not.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Were you not?

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

8123

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Prior to your coming with Schuster & Company, Mr. Liberman, did you have any knowledge of the declaration of co-operation issued by the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, and not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. It may be a preliminary question.

The Witness: I remember such a memorandum.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, is it or is it not true that while you were with Stix, Baer & Fuller, you signed, on behalf 8124 of Stix, Baer & Fuller, the declaration of co-operation that was signed by them? Is that so, or is it not? I don't know, I am asking you.

Mr. Haycraft: Just a minute. Do not answer until I object. That is objected to, if your Honor please, as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: The only purpose of it, your Honor, is to demonstrate this witness' knowledge of the contents of the declaration of co-operation which he has said had already been signed when he went with Schuster & Company, and that, therefore, he had duplicate knowledge. I think the declaration of co-operation is the same, no matter where it is.

Examiner Bennett: I think he testified he had knowledge of the Schuster declaration.

Mr. Haycraft: As a matter of fact, the Schuster declaration is different from the others.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain that objection. I do not think the other firm is in this inquiry.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, what did you mean when you said that the good will of Schuster & Company had been hurt by your inability to obtain merchandise from Guild manufacturers? A. Do you mean—will you repeat the question, please?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: On what page is that?

Mr. Albert: 4458.

A. (Continued) In the course of business, we experienced in the spring season, we had customers of Ed. Schuster & Company, who could not find in our stocks 8127 the type of merchandise which we had been accustomed to carry, and from vendors, members of the Guild, with which we could not find similar types for replacement, and we definitely feel we have lost the good will of customers who came for this merchandise and were compelled to go elsewhere to get it. This foundation of fact is reflected in the loss of sales.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Since you have testified that the copying of original dresses was an evil, do you not admit that the manufacturer of such dresses has a good will to preserve in protecting it? A. I don't believe I get the question.

Mr. Haycraft: Just a minute. I object to that question, as assuming a statement of fact that is not in the record. The witness did not say that he considered it an evil.

Examiner Bennett: If you will revise your question so as to ask him directly whether he thinks the 8129 manufacturer has good will to protect, I will let him answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Liberman, let me ask you this question: From your experience as a merchandise manager, will you not say that the ability to produce dresses such as are demanded by and desired by Schuster & Company is an item of good will to the manufacturer of those dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: I want to get the interpretation of the question.

8130 Mr. Albert: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

A. I believe it is a matter of reciprocity between the vendor and the retailer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Just what do you mean by that? A. I mean there is good will on both sides that has to be maintained.

Q. But, in so far as the manufacturer is concerned, is not his ability to sell his dresses predicated upon the items which you say you demand, his good will?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection, irrelevant and immaterial to the issues involved in this case, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Go ahead and answer it, if you have any answer.

The Witness: I don't quite get the question. I think I answered previously to the questions asked, and, to the best of my knowledge, I covered it.

Mr. Albert: Let me put it this way:

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you not say that the desire of Schuster & Company and of other department stores to obtain as much Guild merchandise as possible, due to the factors that you have stated, constitutes the good will of that manufacturer towards his customers? A. Well, there is another factor that we seem to be getting away from, and that is the fact that Schuster & Company stores have to be on a competitive basis with other stores in our communities, and when you say department stores, you are leaving out what we consider the greatest menace to our business.

Q. I am merely speaking now in the abstract, from the manufacturer's point of view. Has not the manufacturer, in establishing and fostering a desire on the part of 8133
Schuster & Company for his style, set up a good will which is of value to him? A. I would not qualify that statement.

Q. Do you say you don't know? I didn't quite understand. A. I cannot qualify the statement or the question.

Q. I don't think I follow you, as to what you mean by that you cannot qualify it. A. I cannot answer the question.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 26, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned, to reconvene at 10 o'clock A. M., to-morrow, Thursday, August 27, 1936, at the same place.)

Room 1123, New Post Office Building,
433 West Van Buren Street,
Chicago, Illinois,
August 27, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M., E.S.T.

8135 Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

LOUIS LIBERMAN thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (resumed) by Mr. Albert.

8136 Q. Mr. Liberman, as merchandise manager, is it not one of your functions to watch the stock on hand in order to see to it that the stock on hand is kept in a proper proportion and ratio to the sales? A. May I have that question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: It is.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And is not the necessity for such observation on your part the attempt to combat the possibility that any department is purchasing more goods than it can sell? Because, if a department purchases more goods than it can sell, the surplus is lost by reason of mark-downs, isn't that so, generally speaking? A. Well, I would not qualify that. That is supposition.

Q. Is not that one of your functions at merchandise manager, to see to it that your stock on hand does not exceed by too much the possible market for your sales? A. As far as I am concerned, my answer to that is, that it is the buyer's responsibility in selecting and buying such merchandise that she feels she can dispose of.

Q. You mean by that, that you permit your buyer to consistently buy either too much goods or too little goods, 8138 without any correction on your part? A. May it please the Court, I do not see that there is any record here that shows that the buyer consistently overbought.

Q. I am asking you that. I mean, suppose you noticed that a buyer, over a period of time, is buying a great deal of merchandise for a particular department, and, at the end of your accounting period, be it a week or a month, of the department—I believe you said you get your statistics every week—you find she has a surplus in that department.

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to; no foundation of fact in the record; problematic and suppositional.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, if your Honor please, but I cannot quite see why Mr. Haycraft cannot 8139 distinguish what is a foundation question from what is not. It seems to me quite obvious that all of these questions are foundation questions themselves.

Mr. Haycraft: They are highly improper, if that is what they are intended to be. You do not base foundation questions on problems, suppositions, and so on.

Mr. Albert: That is all this witness has given us, is opinion based on supposition.

Mr. Haycraft: That is your opinion, not mine.

Examiner Bennett: I don't get just what you a trying to test.

Mr. Albert: I will be glad to tell your Honor the record.

Examiner Bennett: Well, that will be all rig I will be glad to have you do it.

(Thereupon a discussion was had off the record

Mr. Albert: What is the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Albert.

8141 Q. (Continuing) What is your action with respect that? I mean, don't you attempt to tell her, "Here, y are buying too much goods. Cut it down a bit"? A. We that is a matter of personal judgment. After all, we, our capacity as merchandise managers, try to counsel t buyers, and direct them not to overbuy, or to have surpl stocks, and whatever commitments are made are based past experience and plans for promotion of sales for t future.

Q. And that past experience of sales of stock is depen ent—question withdrawn. What you mean by past expe ence of sales to stock is what you might generally term the industry as your past experience with the turnove A. Past experience as it applies to the operation of t 8142 dress departments in Ed. Schuster & Company stores.

Q. We are not talking about any other store, are Mr. Liberman? A. What might apply to Milwaukee wou not apply to Cincinnati, St. Louis or points South.

Q. You haven't given us any opinions on St. Louis Cincinnati? A. No, but, after all, your are generalizi you have mentioned Ed. Schuster & Company, you generalizing on the general practices. I am confining testimony to what applies to Ed. Schuster & Company.

Q. All right. Now, confining yourself to your testimony on what applies to Ed. Schuster & Company, have you, as divisional or merchandise manager of Ed. Schuster & Company, fixed upon any formula of turnover for your dress departments? A. We take past experiences of the departments in the matter of turnover, or endeavor to reach a certain medium.

Q. What would you say is the medium or the goal which you seek to have your buyers realize? Is it to turn over their stock once a month, or once a week? A. I haven't the figures available.

Q. I am not asking you what the figures are. I am asking you whether or not you, as merchandise manager of 8144
Ed. Schuster & Company, do not know what the goal of Ed. Schuster & Company is with respect to the turnover of stock in these departments, aside from what the actual figures are? A. I don't recall.

Examiner Bennett: He has answered "I don't recall."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That does not vary from week to week, does it? A. That is a matter that is set up at the commencing of each year.

Q. When did you fix your goal for this year? A. In January, 1936.

Q. What was your goal? A. I don't know. 8145

Q. Mr. Liberman, do you mean to tell this Court that, as merchandise manager of Ed. Schuster & Company, on so broad a proposition as what the goal of Ed. Schuster & Company is as regards the turnover of stock in its dress departments you cannot tell us what that is now? A. I so repeat.

Q. Do you think you could get that information from Mr. Keuchenmeister?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Who is in the room at present, and who, I believe, is your comptroller?

Examiner Bennett: The same instruction from the Examiner obtains as was given yesterday. That is to say, you are not under obligation, but you may do it as an accommodation if you care to.

The Witness: I would like to ask counsel of Schuster & Company if that question is in order?

Mr. Likert: The question is in order, but you may reply through me, or I will answer for the company.

The Witness: That's right.

Mr. Likert: We do not have the figures available on what was the average turnover in the merchandise meeting of January, 1936, and we decline to present them.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Liberman, I believe you stated that you became merchandise manager of Schuster & Company in the summer of 1935? A. That is right.

Q. And the previous merchandise manager is no longer with Schuster & Company? A. That's right.

Q. Do you know why he was removed? A. I do not.

Q. Did you, upon taking over the position, investigate or compile any statistics with respect to the stock position of Ed. Schuster & Company at that time? A. I don't think the question is very clear. You mention "stock," but you don't say what stock.

Q. What stock would you think I was mentioning? A. I haven't any idea.

Q. It would not be men's clothing, would it? A. Possibly.

Q. How? A. Possibly.

Q. It would not be your nick-nacks department, would it? A. I don't think the question is very relevant.

Q. Now, suppose we stop this foolishness; and realize that I am referring only to the dress departments and that is all that has ever been under discussion here. A. It is perfectly all right with me, if you had mentioned the dress department I would have answered to the best of my knowledge.

Q. You knew very well that that was all I was referring to. Would you mind answering the question now? A. Would you mind repeating the question?

(Last question read by the reporter.) 8150

The Witness: I can't recall.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. At the close of the six months period, on January 1, 1936, or January 31, 1936, did you compile any statistics with respect to the turnover of your stock from the time that you took over the departments, until that time, until January 31, 1936? A. Some figures may be on file in the comptroller's office.

Q. You do not recall them? A. That I had personally compiled such figures?

Q. Yes. A. I do not.

Q. Were they submitted to you? A. They were.

Q. Did you examine them? A. I did examine them. 8151

Q. Did you come to any conclusions as a result of examining those figures?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; it is too indefinite; conclusions as to what

Mr. Albert: The man is a merchandise manager, has been for twenty-five years, looking at figures. I am asking him if he came to any conclusions with respect to the figures, and then I will find out what the conclusions are. When a man cannot tell me what his turnover is, I do not know whether he has come to any conclusions as a result of seeing figures.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; he may answer.

The Witness: I believe it was not at all necessary to make any comparison of the figures under my management for the fall of 1935 to a similar period of 1934.

8153 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, as a result of your examination of the figures in the period, the latter half of 1935, in which undoubtedly the influence of Mr. Greenblatt was still felt somewhat—is that unfair?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

The Witness: It is a fair question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I mean, you would say say that his influence was still felt in the department, as regards the purchases that had been made, and everything else, is that not so?

Mr. Haycraft: When?

8154 Mr. Albert: For that period.

The Witness: Well, it all depends on how—I am not familiar with how long Mr. Greenblatt remained, or what influence he had on early fall purchases.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When you came into the department, your departments were stocked, were they not, when you took over in July?

Mr. Haycraft: Stocked with what?

Mr. Albert: Stocked with dresses, d-r-e-s-s-e-s—is what we are talking about.

Mr. Haycraft: You mean stocked for fall?

The Witness: If I remember correctly that in the early fall—in placing purchases for fall of 1935 there was some labor unrest, and that there was strikes pending, to the best of my recollection; there was not only strikes in the industry, but also in the fabric, and dyeing mills.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When was that? A. I believe the end—the summer 8156 of 1935.

Q. Well, now, come back to the original question, Mr. Liberman, when you took over the departments in July of 1935, there were dresses in those departments were there not? A. There were.

Q. Whatever there were, they were purchased by Mr. Greenblatt, were they not—they had not been purchased under your supervision, had they? A. No.

Q. So that to that extent, the influence of Mr. Greenblatt was still felt in the department after you took over, is that not so? A. As far as the purchases that had been made?

Q. Yes. A. Previous.

Q. Of course, of course—but, of course, you adopted 8157 new policies new procedures, new methods and everything else, with respect to the department, is that not so? A. Naturally.

Q. Now, at the end of your fiscal year, January 31, 1935—is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: '36, you mean, do you not?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. 1936? A. 1936.

Q. Did you compute or compile any statistics for the purpose of determining what the turnover had been to the dress departments for that period, in order to formulate plans for the next six months which would be completely under your supervision, without any influence whatsoever from the previous merchandise manager insofar as the purchase of merchandise was concerned? A. I personally did not compile any such figures.

Q. Were they compiled for you? A. I do not know.

Q. You never saw such figures? A. I never saw such 8159 figures.

Q. Then you do not know what your turnover is for the previous six months? A. I do not.

Q. To February 1, 1936? A. The fall of 1935.

Q. Right, for that period? A. Right.

Q. Ending January 31, 1936? A. That's right.

Q. And you do not know, and never did know, the relationship between your stock on hand and your sales for that period? A. I do not.

Q. Because that would be what the turnover would be is that not correct? A. That's correct.

Mr. Albert: That is all, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: All right, any re-direct?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I have some.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You were asked a number of questions on cross-examination as to the designation "little women's dresses," and as to whether or not that designation was synonymous with half sizes in the trade. I will ask you whether or not the designation, or the term, "little women's dresses" would include only half sizes or would it include other sizes? A. It also included little women's, big women's—or large women's dresses, half sizes, in the same classification.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Haycraft: I am referring now to little women's.

The Witness: Well, there is a size range there that can best be identified by—some of the manufacturers use the twelve and a half to the twenty and a half, and then there is, I believe, another range that starts at twenty-two and a half to twenty-six and a half. Now, in that same category, 8162 you will find other manufacturers that will start at 34½, which is an irregular—that is away from the regular sizing, and fits a type of woman that is not normal figure, and then 34½ will run all the way up to 52, 54½.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In your opinion, would the term "little women's dresses" apply to a dress of size 54½?

Mr. Albert: Or is that for two women?

The Witness: You will find some manufacturers that will sell you anything from an infant's dress up to a 54½, short, long, broad or square, any way 8163 you want to put it.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. On page 4562, this question was asked you: "Now, in that element of timing, would you say that Schuster & Company looks to Guild manufacturers to first present the styles that Schuster & Company thinks it needs?" And your reply was: "I do." I will ask you now whether or not the Schuster & Company looks only to Guild manufacturers to first present the styles that Schuster & Company thinks it needs? A. I would like to confirm that statement that there are other factors, elements of factors that present merchandise at the start of the season.

Q. On page 4571 of the record you were asked this question: "Have you had a copy sufficient to resemble, to use your term, the original dress from which it was copied?" And you replied: "We may have." The next question was asked: "And to create confusion in the public mind? A. That has appeared, yes. Q. Now, in so far as that definition of copy is concerned, isn't and wasn't that an evil in the industry? A. I believe it was an important factor." 8165 Now, I will ask you to explain what you meant when you said you believed it was an important factor? A. That in the copying of higher-priced dresses, speaking specifically in $16.95, retail, and up, there is one—my reaction to the forming of the Guild was to endeavor to curb the copying of merchandise sold in the higher brackets.

Q. Well, have you heard the term "style piracy" used in the industry? A. I have.

Q. Do you understand what it means? A. As far as I am concerned?

Q. Yes. What is style piracy? A. As far as I am concerned, I do not recognize the term "style piracy."

Q. You do not recognize it? A. No.

Q. Why do you not recognize it? A. For the simple 8166 reason that there may be adaptations, or copies made of certain pertinent fashions that have developed in a season, and are brought into price levels that meet the needs, or the—of women and misses, at a point, or at a price line that they can buy dresses. I maintain that that is not a copy. Any trend that might develop, and that can be capitalized upon, measured by factors, redistributed by retailers, I do not consider as a copy.

Q. Well, do you consider that style piracy? A. I do not.

Q. Do you consider it an evil in the industry, those practices just referred to? A. There is all types of industries.

Q. Well, I will say——

Mr. Albert: (Interposing) Dress industry.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Resumed) —dress industry.

Mr. Albert: (Interposing) Mr. Liberman, d-r-e-s-s.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will refer first to the retail dealers, as to the retail 8168 end of the dress industry. A. There are certain price levels at which dresses are produced, that, in my estimation, does not conflict.

Q. Will you explain what you mean by that? A. I mean that a dress produced at $3.75 cost, has no relationship to a dress that costs $10.75 or $6.75.

Q. How about the higher brackets? A. The higher brackets, would, I feel, the same—that when you reproduce a dress, or reproduce certain fashions, fashions or trimmings or high-lights of a high style garment, that you take something out of it, when you try and reproduce it for less money.

Q. Do you recognize that as style piracy, that practice? A. I do not.

Mr. Haycraft: That's all.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Liberman, you have been in this business twenty-five years? A. As far as dresses are concerned, yes.

Q. You have testified that certain manufacturers make original dresses, better dresses? A. I don't know how original they are, but they make dresses we are anxious t get and sell.

Q. I believe you have also testified that there are som manufacturers who copy those better dresses, whatev that may be? A. That may be a practice in the industr yes.

Q. Is it or isn't it a practice in the industry, from yo twenty-five years of contact with it? Don't you kno whether it is or not?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the que tion, and the attitude, the menacing attitude of th cross-examiner. This is not a police court.

8171 Mr. Albert: I haven't picked up a chair yet, I am not menacing yet.

Mr. Haycraft: This is not a police court.

Mr. Albert: The witness is perfectly capable protecting himself.

Mr. Haycraft: He should not be required to.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

The Witness: I believe it has been so recognize

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Don't you recognize it as such, and haven't you co in contact with it? A. It all depends. I would like clarify this situation, as far as I am concerned.

Q. Go ahead, clarify it. A. I claim, and I have giv

8172 testimony here this morning, relative to what I consid is a copy, and the relationship to so-called style pira I don't think it is necessary to elaborate on that sta ment.

Q. Let me be the judge of it, and the Court, if you do mind. A. That is my own opinion. Of course, I can overruled.

Q. Now, from the $10.75 price line up, in your expe ence, isn't it a fact that whatever the original source m be, there are manufacturers who make a practice of copying the design of better dresses manufactured by the better manufacturers? Isn't that so? A. That is true.

Q. Do you subscribe to the honesty of such a practice? A. That is a matter of personal opinion.

Q. Do you think that is honest? A. It is all a question of what he steals out of that dress, as you term it.

Q. He steals the better dress in such a fashion as to affect the value of the better dress?

Mr. Haycraft: That is assuming a fact not in evidence.

By Mr. Albert. 8174

Q. Isn't that so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When a manufacturer copies a better dress, and attempts to sell that copy at a lower price, in what manner is the value of that better dress affected?

Mr. Haycraft: If any.

Examiner Bennett: There is no testimony from this witness that it is affected. I think his testimony is to the contrary.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question. 8175

Examiner Bennett: Unless you lay a foundation that it does affect it, whether in his opinion it does affect it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does it affect the value, Mr. Liberman, from your experience? A. It is all a matter of how the term so-called original—what it has in it. I have gone on record here in a number of cases the past two days, that when they take out certain fashion points of a dress, that they decrease the value of the original.

Q. All right. Will you agree with me that, to the extent that they copy this better dress, these manufacturers who do the copying are appropriating the work, the brain-child, the inspiration, or genius, anything you want to call it, of this better dress house? Isn't that so, generally speaking? A. May I have the question?

Mr. Albert: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

8177 The Witness: What information have I that this so-called brain-child of a manufacturer is an original?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Wherever the better dress manufacturer may have gotten the inspiration for his dress, will you admit that the copying manufacturer did not get the same inspiration, but merely copied what the better dress manufacturer had put into his dress?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: It is an assumption, Mr. Examiner. It is not in accordance with the record in 8178 this case.

Examiner Bennett: Well, the witness' answer will not agree with it, if that is so.

Mr. Haycraft: I don't think I got the answer.

Examiner Bennett: He has not answered yet.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Can you answer the question? A. May I hear the question again, please?

Q. (Question read by the reporter.) A. That would be a supposition on my part.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. From your twenty-five years' experience in the industry, you cannot give me a better answer than that, definitely, one way or the other? A. I still stand on my statement.

Q. Mr. Liberman, if you had a twenty-five dollar dress in your better dress department, and a copy of that dress was being sold at $10.75, in what way, if at all, would the value of that dress to you be affected?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. It is too indefinite as to what he means by "copy."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know what I mean by "copy"?

Mr. Haycraft: There are two or three different kinds of copies that have been mentioned here today and yesterday.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection, if you want to answer that question, if it is affected at all. If it is not affected, that is something else.

The Witness: I am still of the opinion, and maintain, that when you have a dress that cost $10.75—did you mention retail? 8181

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Selling at $25.00 retail in your store, and selling at $10.75 retail some place else, at dress is a copy, how does that affect the sale of your dress or the value of your dress to you? A. I still maintain that such a dress that may have the earmarks of being a copy of the original style is only worth what you pay for it, what the customer pays for it.

Q. But, as a matter of fact, when your customer buys that $25 dress in your store, and then goes out and sees the copy some place else for $10.75, can you, from your experience with Schuster & Company, tell us what that customer does? A. I cannot.

Q. You cannot tell it one way or the other? A. It would be only an opinion, and I am not here to try to read customers' minds.

Q. As a matter of fact, when such an event occurs, 8183 doesn't your customer come back to you and complain that she is sore, that the dress she purchased in your store for $25.00 she can purchase some place else for $10.75? A. I have heard of such cases.

Q. Doesn't that happen many times, whenever a copy is discernible by a customer? A. I have heard of such cases.

Q. As a result of that, don't you have to make some sort of an adjustment with that customer? A. Not necessarily.

Q. But, do you? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever make an adjustment with a customer as the result of such a statement by her? A. I believe it is the practice on the floor, whenever such instances are brought to the mind of the sales person or the floor walker, they are to explain the difference between a dress retail-8184 ing at $10.75 and a dress retailing at $25.

Q. What is the explanation that they give? A. I am not aware of that.

Q. Don't you know what your sales girls do? A. I have heard it stated that after all they explain the differences. You cannot qualify a dress retailing at $10.75, that it is going to be the same dress retailing at $25. It is inconsistent.

Q. But they at least attempt to explain to the customer "Yes, Mrs. So-and-So, this dress looks like ours, but here is a difference, and here is a difference." Is that what they do? A. I have never been present when such an adjustment was made.

Q. Have you made any investigation in your store, as to what is going on in that respect, in order to please your customers? A. We have a board of services for such purposes.

Q. And you have no duties in connection with that whatsoever? A. That is a matter of store policy.

Q. As a result of this customer complaint, did you ever have to mark down your better dress prices? A. Not to 8186 my knowledge.

Q. Never? A. Never. I would like to supplement that statement; never had to mark down that dress because there was a copy selling for $10.75.

Q. You had to mark it down because you could not sell it, is that it? A. In the course of time.

Q. Isn't that because of the fact the customers were seeing the copy some place else, and would not pay Schuster's $25 for something they could get somewhere else for $10.75? A. Not necessarily.

Q. You don't know? A. It is not a question of knowing or not. You can buy plenty of dresses retailing for $25.00 from Guild houses, too, the same as you can at a hundred.

Q. If you could not get rid of a dress at $25, and you 8187 knew that a copy of that dress was selling for $10.75 in the town, what would you think was the reason for failing to sell that $25 dress, based on your experience? A. I still maintain that the intrinsic value of that dress when originally purchased at $25 is good, it still has a $25 value to the customer who is willing to accept it.

Q. To the customer who is willing to accept it? A. Yes.

Q. But you do not have those customers, do you? Because if you did, you would not have the dress in your stock over that period of time, would you? A. That is entirely irrelevant, and supposition on the part of the respondents' attorney.

Q. After twenty-five years in the industry, that is the best answer you can give me as to why merchandise remains on hand when you know something cheaper is sold, that looks like your dress? A. That is your supposition.

Q. I am asking you, is that your answer? A. No, it is not.

Q. What is your answer, then? A. It is in the testi-8189 mony they have. Make the most of it.

Q. Then, the answer that you have given is the best answer, isn't it? A. I still let my testimony stand.

Q. As a matter of fact, from your knowledge of the industry, conceding that your $10.75 dress or your $25 dress is intrinsically of that value, and conceding that lower price copy is intrinsically worth no more than they are attempting to sell it for, isn't it a fact that, in so far as the customers are concerned, a customer will see the $25 dress in the window of your store, let us say, and also see that $10.75 copy in the window of another store in the town and she will come into your store and say, "I saw the two dresses together. Why is it that you sell yours for $25 and I can get it in the other store for $10.75?"

8190 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. How could she see the two dresses together?

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think you have gone into this matter to the full extent proper with this witness.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor, if you feel that way.

Examiner Bennett: It seems to me you have been going in circles now for some time.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor, if you feel that way about it, I will discontinue. That's all.

Mr. Haycraft: That's all.

(Witness excused.)

ALTER L. ROWSE was thereupon called as a witness for Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testi- as follows:

ct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Will you state your name? A. Walter L. Rowse.

What is your occupation, Mr. Rowse? A. Merchan- manager, divisional merchandise manager.

For what firm? A. The Boston Store, Milwaukee; robably Herzfeld-Phillipson & Company, which we are r.

Which you are what? A. A. Well, the Herzfeld- lipson Company, operating the Boston Store in Mil- kee.

You are now general merchandise manager, you say? lo, not now.

What is your position? A. I am divisional merchan- manager.

What does "style piracy" mean?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, no foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Do you know what it means?

The Witness: I really—have my opinion.

Examiner Bennett: All right, if you want to have his opinion.

Tightly Bound

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your understanding of the term "style piracy" as used in this letter?

(Counsel refers to Commission's Exhibit 557.)

Mr. Albert: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, no foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: Read the question, please.

(Last question read.)

8195 The Witness: As I understand, by style piracy, is when one manufacturer copies exactly a garment that was designed and created by another manufacturer.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, the next sentence in this first paragraph: "Believing the principles declared by your members to be proper for the protection of the public, the retailer and the manufacturer, we wish to go on record as stating our fixed business policy." Did you read that before you signed this letter?

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor pleases——

The Witness: Yes.

8196 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your understanding of "the protection to the public" that will grow out of the principles declared by the members of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Will you repeat that question please?

Q. (Last question read.) A. I don't know of any protection to the public.

Q. What was the protection to the retailer? A. The protection to the retailer was assumed that a garment would not be sold at a lower price in a competitive store and thereby causing a necessary mark-down in the store that had the original.

Q. Were you familiar with the manufacturers of womens' dresses that were members of the Guild at the time you signed this declaration? A. To a great extent.

Q. And what price lines did they manufacture? A. $16.75 cost and up.

Q. And approximately what price range were these dresses manufactured—cost price range—sold by retailers including your own store? A. I did not get the question. 8198

Q. At approximately what price range prices were the garments sold that cost from $16.75 up? A. The garments that cost $16.75 were sold usually at $25 and $29.75.

Q. And the next paragraph says: "We do not and will not buy for our ready-to-wear departments any copied or pirated dresses of garments created by members of your association." Do you understand the meaning of the words: "copied or pirated"—to be synonymous, or otherwise? A. I presume they were synonymous.

Q. Was the definition which you gave a moment ago of style piracy your understanding of what a copied or pirated dress was? A. That's right.

Q. The balance of the declaration reads as follows: "Furthermore, we will affix to all of our apparel orders the following clause:—'This order is placed upon the 8199 seller's warranty that the above garments are not copies of styles originated by the members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. The purchaser reserves the right to return any merchandise which is not as warranted.'" Do you recall whether or not the Boston Store followed the policy of placing that warranty on all orders? A. That was our practice and I don't know of any exceptions.

8200 Walter L. Rowse—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Do you know whether or not, as a matter of fact, the Boston Store did return to manufacturers garments because they were alleged to be copies or because they were declared to be copies?

Mr. Albert: May I make inquiry of counsel for the Commission as to whether or not he intends to offer in evidence the sheet of paper that he tore off Commission's Exhibit 557?

Mr. Haycraft: You can ask all the questions you want, but I do not intend to answer them.

Mr. Albert: Now, may I point out to the Court that in the presentation of Commission's Exhibit 8201 557 there was physically attached to that paper another sheet of paper, by reason of which both sheets of paper became one. I made no objection to its being torn off at that time, because I assumed in the ordinary course that the paper to which it was attached, which was offered, would either be referred to by Mr. Haycraft in some manner, or would be offered in evidence.

I now see that Mr. Haycraft is going on to another subject. He has not offered this other sheet in evidence, and in addition, is so discourteous as to not even wish to answer me as to what he did when he tore a sheet of paper off something that is now in evidence, and I ask the Commission, I 8202 ask the Court, in the exercise of its discretion to ask Mr. Haycraft what that sheet of paper was and what its connection is with a matter now in evidence from which it has been torn off.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not mind telling the Court anything, but I decline to discuss the matter with counsel for the respondent.

Examiner Bennett: What document do you refer to? Have you the number?

Mr. Albert: There was a sheet of paper physically attached to Commission's Exhibit 557, which is the declaration of co-operation which was signed. I very frankly state to the Court that I do not know what that paper was, but the fact remains that it was physically attached to a paper now in evidence, and by reason thereof constitutes the same exhibit, in general language, and I believe that the respondents and the Court should be informed of why Mr. Haycraft mutilated a paper which he subsequently put in evidence, before he put it in evidence. I believe we are entitled to see that.

Mr. Haycraft: The paper was not mutilated.

Examiner Bennett: As I understand it, that that one sheet alone was offered in evidence? I am not going into that controversy now.

Mr. Albert: I ask the attorneys for the Commission to produce and to mark for identification the sheet of paper that was attached to Commission's Exhibit 557, and if not, I ask that Commission's Exhibit 557 be stricken from evidence as a mutilated document which is not in the form that it was when it was in the Commission's possession.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Haycraft: At this time, in view of the statement made by counsel for the respondents, I demand the production of the original of this declaration of co-operation——

8205

Mr. Albert: That has nothing to do with it.

Mr. Haycraft: —to take the place of this copy.

Mr. Albert: He tore something off the exhibit which he put into evidence, and he has not even the courtesy to show the Commission what it was or why he tore it off. The fact that he wishes to conceal that makes me more insistent to know what it is he is concealing——

Mr. Haycraft: (Interposing) Mr. Examiner——

Mr. Albert: (Interposing) —It would be a very simple thing for him to say that it had nothing to do with it.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I told you I would be glad to show you the piece of paper.

Examiner Bennett: That is the end of this controversy. You may produce the original of this document. If you wish to show just what the document was that was signed. If you have any papers attached to it which modifies it, why, that is all right. The only thing that was offered here was that one sheet of paper. The only thing that was marked was that one sheet of paper. There is nothing else in controversy.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, may I point out, that in the very reasonable expectation that Mr. Haycraft was going to mark the paper which was attached to it I made no reference to it whatsoever.

Examiner Bennett: There are a thousand different ways in which papers can get attached to one another in a file, and I am not going into it I am not going into that sort of imagined suspicions.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I have no objection to the record remaining exactly as it is if Mr. Haycraft refuses to give an explanation of why he tore a paper off and offered only one in evidence. If that is his conception of his duties to the Court that is perfectly satisfactory to me.

Mr. Bennett: All right.

Mr. Haycraft: I think there was a question pending, but you may strike it out; I will start over again.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Directing your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 557, I will ask you to testify at this time as to the reasons that prompted you to sign that declaration as representing the Boston Store?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, at the present time, not within the issues of the Commission's complaint.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception. No foundation has been laid that this witness knows the reasons why it was signed, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness signed the paper, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: And Mr. Haycraft was very definitely attempting to prove that he did not even know what he was signing.

The Witness: Will you read me the question now?

(Last question read.)

8211

The Witness: My understanding was that unless we signed this declaration we would not be permitted to buy merchandise, and use the lines offered by the members of the Fashion Originators Guild, by the manufacturers who are members of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the answer be repeated, your Honor? I did not follow it.

(Answer read.)

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 558 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is this paper that I hand you now (indicating)? A. This is a report of the garments returned to manufacturers that were adjudged copies by the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Was that prepared under your direction, or under your supervision, in any way? A. It was prepared in our control office.

Q. And furnished by your control office to you? A. To 8213 me, yes.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the returning of the garments during the period of time that you were divisional merchandise manager of the ready-to-wear department? A. All returns made to the manufacturers were authorized—had to be authorized by myself, or whoever was representing me while I was out of the city.

Q. Have you checked this exhibit against the original orders to determine the correctness of the exhibit? A. Our office has done that.

Q. Yes, and you are satisfied it is correct? A. It is correct, as far as——

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this in evidence, Mr. Examiner, and wish to state at this time that I have

8214 the original orders upon which that is based, and if counsel for the respondent wishes to check it—I do not wish to encumber the record——

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I understand.

Mr. Haycraft: —with foundation documents.

Mr. Post: Mr. Haycraft, what is the original returns?

Mr. Haycraft: I should say "returns". The proper title of these documents that I have here, I understand, is the authority for return of merchandise.

Mr. Albert: May I see just one of them, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes (handing paper to counsel).

Mr. Albert: And that is a representation of all of them?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Albert: May I suggest that you put in evidence one of these charge-outs, in order that we can see the general form of them?

Mr. Haycraft: I have no objection.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's 8216 Exhibits 559-A and B for Identification.)

Mr. Albert: I have no objection to Commission's Exhibit 559 going in evidence as a form of charge-out used by the Boston Store with respect to the returns listed on Commission's Exhibit 558, but I object to Commission's Exhibit 558 upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid.

Mr. Haycraft: Then I withdraw the offer of Commission's Exhibit 559, if that is not a proper foundation. I did that to assist in the proper foundation. If there is an objection to Commission's Exhibit 558, I withdraw Commission's Exhibit 559.

Mr. Albert: What are you doing, bargaining with me? 8217

Examiner Bennett: Are you offering Commission's Exhibit 558?

Mr. Haycraft: I am offering Commission's Exhibit 558.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 558, was received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Rowse, what was the policy of the Boston Store with respect to the placing of warranty stamps on orders for merchandise, during the year, immediately after the signing of the declaration, and for some time up through the year of 1934 and beginning of 1935? A. As quickly as we received the stamp, the rubber stamp that was made 8219 for that purpose, we affixed that stamp to all of our orders.

Q. You mean that the orders for dresses in your departments? A. In our departments.

Q. The department over which you have supervision? A. That's right.

Q. Does the——

Mr. Albert: (Interposing) Now, if it please the Court——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Resumed) —Boston Store——

Mr. Albert (interposing): May I ask that the answer be stricken, and will you wait, Mr. Haycraft 8220 until I complete my objection before you put a new question? I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive to the question. The witness was asked as to what the policy of the Boston Store was and the answer was with respect to his department.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all right. What is wrong with that?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: What your wanted was the policy of the Boston Store in all the departments?

Mr. Haycraft: I know what I wanted.

Mr. Albert: And not his department.

Mr. Haycraft: I know what I want and know I get interrupted.

Mr. Albert: I place my objection.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Does the Boston Store have a basement store, or another department outside of those two which you have supervision over, in which dresses are sold, women's dresses? A. The only departments that I had supervision 8222 of were the upstairs departments.

Q. And of those that you have named and given description of in your earlier testimony, does that include all those or were some of those in the downstairs department? A. The departments I mentioned are all upstairs departments.

Q. How did you determine what garments were to be returned to the manufacturers?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as no proper foundation has been laid. There is no evidence before the Court that he did determine that garments should be returned.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 8223

The Witness: The garments to be returned to manufacturres were reported to our buyer by the Fashion Originators Guild shopper in our city.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know whom she was? A. They were different—there were three different ones that I can remember of.

Q. Do you have any knowledge as to the procedure followed by the shopper in your store in that respect? A. To my best knowledge, the only request we had to make returns would be when the shopper would receive a report from the New York Guild office, usually showing a sketch of a garment that was reported to be a copy, and she would inquire of our buyers if we had any of these garments in our stock, and our buyers would either know or look to see, and they would tell the shopper whether we had or not. If we had them, the shopper asked us to return them, and they were returned.

Q. Now, with respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 558
8225 were the returns made to the manufacturers named therein, the vendors named therein, pursuant to the arrangement that you have just described? A. I don't know.

Q. In other words, did you return any garments to these manufacturers, as described on this exhibit, which were not called to your attention by the Guild shopper? A. To the best of my knowledge, we never returned any garments to the manufacturers unless requested by the shopper.

Q. That is for the reason that they were copies of Guild dresses? A. That is right.

Q. Now, was there any change in the policy with respect to returns of copies of Guild merchandise during the time that you were in charge of the ready-to-wear division?

8226 Mr. Albert: That is objected to as incompetent and immaterial, not within the issues of the Commission's complaint.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

The Witness: There was no change in our policy regarding returns.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you issue any instructions to the buyers of your division, ready-to-wear division, with respect to the placing of orders for merchandise as to the purchasing of copies of Guild manufacturers' merchandise? A. Our instructions to our buyers were to place the Guild stamp on all orders.

Mr. Albert: I object to it, if the Examiner please, and ask the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to deny the motion.

8228

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you give any other instructions to your buyers?
A. Pertaining to what?

Q. Pertaining to the purchase of garments from manufacturers outside the Guild, as to the purchase of garments that were copies of Guild garments, garments manufactured by Guild manufacturers. A. There were no definite instructions given.

Q. Did you contact the officials of the Fashion Originators Guild, with respect to the policy of your store, or the policy of the Guild to be carried out through your store?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court. Commission's Exhibit 557 in evidence speaks for itself as to what the Boston Store is supposed to do and pledged itself to do. 8229

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer. A. Read the question.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: We did not contact the Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Directly or indirectly? A. The Guild representative called on us several times, but there was no specific discussion, except that he clarified some of the Guild regulations.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of H. O. Bergdahl? A. I do.

Q. Who is he? A. He is the merchandise manager of the ready-to-wear division of the Associated Merchandise Corporation.

Q. What is that organization? A. That is an association of retail stores.

8231 Q. Does the Boston Store belong to it? A. The Boston Store belongs to it.

Q. How long has it belonged to it? A. May I ask information of my comptroller?

Mr. Vogt: December, I would say December, 1933 or January, 1934. We got into the A.M.C. in December, 1933, but the membership might have become effective as of January 1, 1934.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you authorize Mr. Bergdahl or anyone in his organization to make contacts with the Guild on your behalf in determining the policies of the Guild and interpreting those policies?

8232

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, no foundation laid, no evidence presented thus far that Mr. Bergdahl contacted the Guild on behalf of this store or a manufacturer on behalf of this store.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

Mr. Albert: The question assumes a state of facts not in the evidence.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer. A. Will you read the question?

Q. (Question read by the reporter.) A. We authorized Mr. Bergdahl to represent us at discussions in connection with the group.

Q. You mean discussion with the Associated Merchandise Corporation or with the Guild? A. In discussions with the Guild.

Q. And did Mr. Bergdahl make reports to you of such contacts that he made? A. He did.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask that these documents be marked, respectively, for identification, Commission's Exhibits 560, 561, 562-A and B, 563-A and B, and 564. 8234

Examiner Bennett: Very well.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 560, 561, 562-A and B, 563-A and B, and 564, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know Mr. Vactor Chambers? A. I do.

Q. Who is he? A. Mr. Bergdahl's assistant.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask this be marked 565-A and B for Identification and that this document be marked Commission's Exhibit 566 for Identification; also, this one, Commission's Exhibits 567-A to E for Identification. 8235

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 565-A and B, 566, and 567-A to E, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 560 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that. A. I received this letter.

Q. Did you receive it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To whom is it addressed, and the date of it, and who signed it, or sent it to you? A. It is addressed to Mr. W. L. Rowse, Boston Store, April 10, 1935, signed by H. O. Bergdahl.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 561 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that in any way? A. I can.

8237 Q. What is it? A. It is a letter addressed to W. L. Rowse, dated April 15, signed by H. O. Bergdahl.

Q. Did you receive that? A. I received it.

Mr. Albert: What year?

Mr. Haycraft: 1935.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, may I ask if Mr. Haycraft is going to offer these in evidence, in order to facilitate matters, that they be offered one at a time, rather than seven or eight or a dozen at one time?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 562-A and B for Identification and ask you if you can identify that?

8238

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I have a ruling upon my request?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am not going to instruct him. At least, it would take a great deal more time.

The Witness: This letter was addressed to me and I received this letter.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who is it from? A. H. O. Bergdahl.

Q. The date of it? A. It is dated May 13, 1935.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 563-A and B for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. I received this letter, addressed to me, dated July 3rd, signed by H. O. Bergdahl.

Q. What year? A. 1935.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 564 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter addressed to Mr. N. B. Goldstein, dated October 4, signed by Mr. H. O. Bergdahl; and this letter was forwarded to me by Mr. Goldstein. 8240

Q. Give the date of it. A. The date is October 4, 1935.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 565-A and B for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. I received this copy of the letter.

Q. From whom? A. It is a copy of a letter addressed to Mr. Vactor Chambers, dated November 19th, 1935, signed by Albert M. Post.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 566 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can identify this letter. It is addressed to me, dated November 25, 1935, signed by H. O. Bergdahl.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 567-A to E and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can identify this letter. It is addressed to me. It is dated November 27th, 1935, signed by the initials of H. O. Bergdahl. 8241

Q. You received it, did you? A. I received it.

Q. To what subject matter, generally, do these letters relate?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if your Honor please.

Mr. Haycraft: It is a matter of identification, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: It is not identification, telling us what the substance is. He has identified what they are and that he received them.

Mr. Haycraft: I did not ask him for the substance. I asked him for the subject matter referred to in these letters.

Mr. Albert: I would like to know what the difference is between the substance and the subject matter.

Mr. Haycraft: Go to school, and learn the English language and you will know.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

8243 The Witness: These letters are with reference to Guild matters, Fashion Originators Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were they received in the ordinary course of your business relations? A. They were received in the ordinary course of business.

Q. Did you take any action, in your official position with the Boston Store, upon receipt of these letters? A. If action was required, it was taken.

Q. Were these letters taken into consideration in determining the policy of the Boston Store?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial, if your Honor please, referring to something not in 8244 evidence.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. If you are going to offer them, offer them; if not we had better have an end to the whole business.

Mr. Haycraft: Very well. I will offer them in evidence at this time.

Mr. Albert: I am glad the Commission has finally disclosed that the A.M.C. had something to do with this case.

Mr. Haycraft: I move that that statement be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Haycraft: At this time, Mr. Examiner, I suggest that we take a recess until 2 o'clock.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Haycraft: I shall be glad to allow counsel for the respondent to have access to these exhibits during the noon hour, if he wishes.

Mr. Albert: That is very, very kind and considerate of Mr. Haycraft, but I prefer to have lunch during the noon hour.

Mr. Haycraft: Very well. Then I withdraw the offer. 8246

Examiner Bennett: We will remain in session, then, seven or eight minutes.

(Short interruption.)

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess until 2.00 o'clock.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to the Court that I have handed back to Mr. Haycraft the exhibits, all of the exhibits?

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., August 27, 1936, recess was taken until 2.00 o'clock P. M., of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the respondent has no objection to Commission's Exhibits 560, 562-A and B, 563-A and B, 564, 565-A and B, 566, and 567-A to E, going into evidence as communications between the Boston Store and the Associated

Merchandising Corporation, without conceding in any way the truth of statements therein contained, but merely as an evidence of transactions between the A.M.C. and the Boston Store. As regard Commission's Exhibit 561, I believe it is obvious that from a reading of Commission's Exhibit 560, and a reading of Commission's Exhibit 561, that there is a letter, or should be a letter from the Boston Store to the A.M.C., in answer to the A.M.C.'s letter of April 10th, because I believe that it appears from a reading of Commission's Exhibit 561, dated April 15th, that is a reply to a letter from the 8249 Boston Store, and I respectfully object to the admission into evidence of Commission's Exhibit 561, unless the letter to which it is a reply is also offered. Commission's Exhibits 560 and 561 are the two top letters.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I will receive the documents to which there is no objection, that is, Commission's Exhibits 560, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566 and 567, as Commission's Exhibits of the same numbers in evidence. I do not get the same impression that the attorney who objects does, as to Commission's Exhibit 561.

Mr. Albert: It is quite true, your Honor, he does not mention that, but I think that the tenor of the letter shows that it is a reply to a query 8250 put as a result of Commission's Exhibit 560.

Examiner Bennett: Well, Commission's Exhibit 560 is in evidence. I will overrule the objection, and receive it. (Referring to Commission's Exhibit 561.)

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 560, 561, 562-A and B, 563-A and B, 564, 565-A and B, 566 and 567-A to E, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

(Thereupon papers were marked Commission's Exhibits 568, 569-A and B, 570 and 571-A and B for Identification.)

WALTER L. ROWSE thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows: 8252

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft (continued).

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 568 and ask you if you can identify that in any way, Mr. Rowse? A. I can identify this letter.

Q. Did you receive it? A. I received it.

Q. Will you describe who it is from, and to? A. It is addressed to the Boston Store, Herzfeld Phillipson, Milwaukee, dated January 6th, from the Fashion Originators Guild of America, signed by Jack Goldston.

Examiner Bennett: That is 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: 1936. 8253

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibits No. 569-A and B, and ask you if you can identify that? A. This letter was sent to me.

Q. Did you receive it? A. I received it. It was addressed to Mr. Nathan Goldstein of the Boston Stores and signed by Albert M. Post. It is dated July 1, 1935.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 578-A to D for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. There are two letters here.

Q. Are there two letters there? A. Yes, about different things entirely.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to change the numbering on 570. I would like to change 570-D to the next number, 572, because it is a separate document.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 570-D, was changed to Commission's Exhibit 572 for Identification.)

8255

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 570-A to C and ask you if you can identify that? A. I received this letter.

Q. Did you receive it? A. Yes.

Q. From whom, to whom? A. Addressed to Mr. Nathan Goldstein, dated February 15, 1935, signed by J. M. Golby.

Q. Of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. I show you now Commission's Exhibit 572 and ask you if you can identify that? A. I received this letter from the Fashion Originators Guild. It is addressed to me, dated June 17, 1935 and signed by J. M. Golby, executive secretary.

8256

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 571-A and B and ask you if you can identify that? A. I received this telegram.

Q. From whom? A. It is addressed to the Boston Store and it is dated February 16, 1936, signed by the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification, Commission's Exhibits 568 and 572, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Rowse, did the Boston Store ever contribute to the Guild to underwrite the expenses of a shopper in Milwaukee? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you attend any meeting where that matter was discussed? A. No.

Q. Calling your attention to the last paragraph of Commission's Exhibit 540-B, which is a postscript: "In the matter of violation of trade practices, we propose to 8258 establish a board of appeals, before whom any controversial matter may be brought. We have consulted retailers and requested the establishment of a retail panel, so that any decision, not satisfactory to the retailer, may be submitted to a committee consisting of two retailers and two manufacturers. Such an arrangement would assure ample protection to all parties." I ask you whether, to your knowledge, such a board of appeals was established by the Guild?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, no foundation laid as to the source of the witness' knowledge with respect to that. It is purely a Guild matter.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 8259

The Witness: You ask if I know if such a board was established?

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. If you have any knowledge of it. A. I knew there was such a board.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you ever receive an invitation to appear before such board? A. No.

Q. Calling your attention to Respondents' Exhibits 38-A and B, I will ask you if you ever made a reply to that telegram? A. I did not make a reply.

Q. Did the Boston Store, to your knowledge? A. I handed this telegram over to another executive.

Q. To whom did you hand it? A. To Mr. Street.

Q. To your knowledge, was any reply made to it? A. Not to my knowledge, there was no reply made to it.

Q. Subsequent to the date of this telegram, do you know 8261 whether or not you were able to get merchandise from Guild manufacturers? A. You mean after this telegram?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know.

Q. How is that? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. Who had charge of the ready-to-wear division at that time? A. Mr. Dillon.

Q. Mr. F. C. Dillon? A. Mr. F. C. Dillon.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask that this be marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 573-A and B.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 573-A and B for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

8262

Q. Showing you Commission's Exhibits 573-A and B, I ask you if you can identify it? A. I can identify this list.

Q. What is it? A. It is a list of members of the Fashion Originators Guild from whom we made purchases during the period February 1, 1935 to July 1, 1936.

Q. Do you know who prepared it? A. Our control office.

Q. Do you know from what source it was prepared or what sources? A. From our purchase records.

Q. Under whose general supervision was it prepared? A. Under Mr. Richard Vogt's.

Q. What position does he hold? A. Controller.

Q. Do you know what the source of the list of the Guild manufacturers was that was used in the preparation of that document? A. I don't quite get the question.

Q. I say, do you know where Mr. Vogt got the list of Guild manufacturers that was used in the preparation of that? A. No, I do not.

Q. You don't know? A. No. 8264

(Witness temporarily withdrawn.)

R. E. VOGT was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you state your name? A. R. E. Vogt.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Vogt? A. Milwaukee.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Comptroller of the Boston Store, Milwaukee.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 573-A and B for 8265
Identification and ask you if you know anything about it? A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. What do you know about it? A. The list was prepared under my direction.

Q. Where did you get the information there as to the names of the Guild manufacturers? A. We used a letter which we received from the Guild at that time, January 13, 1936, showing the names of members, on the back of that letter.

8266 R. E. Vogt—For Commission—Direct.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask that this be marked f identification Commission's Exhibit 574.

(The document referred to was marked Comm sion's Exhibit 574 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 574 and ask you that is the paper you have in mind? A. It is.

Q. Where did you get it? A. It was received from t Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. What use did you make of the names on that e hibit? A. We used this list as a basis or a key or a li 8267 of houses who were members of the Guild, as of this tim

Q. As of January, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Then, what did you do? A. We checked this li against our purchase records for the dress departments determine from whom we made purchases.

Q. Commission's Exhibits 573-A and B was prepar in that way? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you know whether it is correct or not? A. know it is correct.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Let me understand this.

By Mr. Albert.

8268 Q. Is this list, Commission's Exhibit 573-A, a list manufacturers with whom you did business from Febr ary 1st, 1935 to July 31, 1936, who were members of t Guild on January 13, 1936? A. That is correct.

Q. And there is no intention that this list contained Commission's Exhibit 573-A represents manufacture who are presently all members of the Guild, is that tru A. That is true. We had no way of knowing that.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it plea the Court, upon the ground that no proper found tion has been laid. The list is entirely immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. It is received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 573-A and B, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: That's all, Mr. Vogt.

8270

WALTER L. ROWSE thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft (continued).

Q. Calling your attention to Commission's Exhibits 573-A and B, I will ask you to testify as to the names of the Guild members on this exhibit from whom you purchased the merchandise in substantial quantities, to your knowledge, that is, from your own recollection.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as being purely a matter of conjecture, as being not sufficiently definite or specific to be of any value whatsoever to the Commission, being a conclusion of the witness, and no proper foundation having been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Rowse. A. We purchased merchandise from Doloes Dresses, B. G. Garment Company, International Dress, C. H. and D. Robbins, Lipman and Snyder, Cecele Dance Frocks, Lyttle Brothers, Abbott & Swift, Bender-Hamburger, Feigenbaum and Adelson, Radiant Dress, Dresden Dress, Rosen Brothers.

Q. I probably should have included in my question, whether the purchases you are referring to now were made during the year preceding the time that you left that department, during 1935? A. They were made preceding February, 1936.

Q. Yes. At some time during the year, 1935, would that be true? A. That is right.

Q. Did you mention the name of Louise Mulligan? A. No. I mentioned B. G. Garment Company.

8273 Q. Is that Louise Mulligan? A. Louise Mulligan is a separate company, but we always think of it as the same firm.

Q. Did you look on the second page of this exhibit, in giving your testimony? A. I see some more names here. Gracette Dress, Patricia Dress Corporation, Topaz Frocks, Lipman Brothers.

Q. Are you familiar with Louise Mulligan as a resource for the Boston Store during 1935? A. I am.

Q. Will you testify at this time as to the relationship between the Boston Store and Louise Mulligan, with respect to promoting the merchandise sold by that concern?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please, as entirely irrelevant and immaterial. I do 8274 not quite see the function of bringing in the connection between the Boston Store and Louise Mulligan, in a complaint against the F.O.G.A.

Mr. Haycraft: It is a foundation question.

Mr. Albert: I know; but there are some foundation questions that are so broad you cannot make them specific. I do not think that can be made specific in any manner.

Examiner Bennett: Let us see what the answer is. I will entertain a motion to strike.

The Witness: What did you ask me?

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Can you testify, is all you have been asked. A. I can.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you do so? A. We made arrangements with the Louise Mulligan Company to have exclusive sale of the dresses designed by Louise Mulligan in Milwaukee. We agreed that we would give them publicity, we would give 8276 them prominent space in our department, we would try to develop that line as the feature line of our junior department. We started the sale of these dresses in the fall, I don't exactly recall the date and sold them continually through the time that I was there.

Q. Did you make any special effort in the way of promotion during that time? A. In the fall, we ran quite a lot of newspaper advertising. We had Louise Mulligan come to Milwaukee, we gave a luncheon, at which time we had fashion writers of the local papers, and prominent women in Milwaukee at luncheon to meet her. We had a style show. We gave prominent window displays.

Q. What success did you meet in the promotion of that line? A. We were very well pleased with it, the manufac- 8277 turer expressed himself as being well pleased with the result.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask that these photostats be marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 575 to 586, both inclusive.

(The photostats referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 575 to 586, both inclusive, for Identification.)

8278 Walter L. Rowse—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 575 to 586, inclusive and ask you if you can identify them? A. I can identify these as being photostatic copies of our newspaper advertising.

Q. Featuring what? A. This group features Louise Mulligan dresses.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the authorization of that advertising? A. I had the jurisdiction of it at that time.

Q. And where were they advertised, according to these exhibits, in what periodicals or newspapers? A. The 8279 "Milwaukee Journal," the "Milwaukee Journal," the "Milwaukee Sentinel," the "Journal," the "Sentinel," the "Milwaukee Sentinel," "Milwaukee Journal," "Milwaukee Journal," "Milwaukee Sentinel," "Milwaukee Journal."

Mr. Haycraft: I offer these photostatic copies in evidence.

The Witness: Just a second. This copy is not Louise Mulligan (indicating).

Mr. Haycraft: Commission's Exhibit 586 does not refer to Louise Mulligan?

Examiner Bennett: Do you withdraw it?

By Mr. Haycraft.

8280 Q. I ask you to look at it again. A. This 586 is Louise Mulligan.

Q. But it is not illustrated? A. No.

Q. The illustration is Irma Kirby. Who is she? A. She is a designer.

Q. Do you know what firm she is with? A. With Mr. Fried.

Q. Is he a member of the Guild? A. I think he is.

Q. What was the purpose of inserting these advertisements?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as being wholly irrelevant and immaterial, not binding on the respondents herein. I think, before we have a dozen of these exhibits put in, we ought to have a statement from Mr. Haycraft as to what he hopes to prove by this particular line of testimony, as far as relevancy is concerned. I don't think the record should be cluttered up, if eventually there is a possibility that all the testimony is going to be stricken out.

Mr. Haycraft: That was the purpose of the question.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer. 8282

The Witness: What was the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: To create customer acceptance for the garments designed by these designers, purchased at our store.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer these exhibits in evidence.

Mr. Albert: These are objected to, may it please the Court, as being wholly immaterial and irrelevant to the issues presented by the case of the Federal Trade Commission, as representing, if anything at all, merely the private arrangement between a single manufacturer and this particular store; in no way connected with or binding upon, or that can be connected with or made to be binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild. 8283

Examiner Bennett: Up to the present time, that is true. If the Commission's attorney intends to connect it up, he may say so.

Mr. Haycraft: I do intend to.

Examiner Bennett: That is, by showing that these resources were cut off, by another witness?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, by another witness.

Examiner Bennett: And that the benefit of this promotion was not received?

Mr. Haycraft: Correct.

Examiner Bennett: I will receive them over objection, on the statement that that will be shown.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 575 to 586, both inclusive, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the policy of the Boston Store with respect
8285 to its better dress lines—or its dress lines, I will put it that way—in the departments over which you had supervision in 1935?

Mr. Albert: With respect to what, may I ask? The question is certainly too indefinite.

Mr. Haycraft: With respect to the improvement or lack of improvement in that department.

Mr. Albert: The question is objected to as still being too indefinite—what was their policy with respect to the improvements of their departments. The witness can answer anything to that. I would like to be able to have a question that I could object to, if it is objectionable.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

8286 (Last question read.)

Mr. Albert: I do not know, it may be a policy of not having any dresses, it may be a policy of improving the electric light system. I can get any kind of an answer from a witness on that, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, see what he answers. You may answer.

The Witness: For the fall season of 1935 we created a new department for the sale of better dresses; to make room for this department we went into a very extensive remodelling plan, putting in new fixtures, air conditioning, new equipment throughout to facilitate the sale of better type merchandise.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you make any changes in the personnel in that respect? A. In the continuation of our policy, in February, 1936, we secured the services of an experienced apparel man to take charge of those departments.

Q. Who is he? A. Mr. Dillon. In addition to that, we added to our departments the services of a fashion co- 8288 ordinator or stylist.

Q. What is the name of these—or is that one person? A. It is one person.

Q. What is her name? A. Miss Drew's.

Q. What would be her duties? A. Her duties were to see that proper displays were made, that in our displays the proper accessories were shown, and to lend her assistance in creating a better style atmosphere.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all that I have to ask.

Mr. Martin: Your witness.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Was that new department, Department 335, Mr. 8289
Rowse? A. 335, yes.

Mr. Albert: May we have our usual recess now, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Would you rather have it now?

Mr. Albert: I prefer it, if there is no objection.

Examiner Bennett: It is all right.

Mr. Albert: It may be a little early.

Examiner Bennett: Take a recess of ten minutes.
Mr. Albert: Thank you.
(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)
Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Rowse, as the result of your experiences, with the information that you have from the A.M.C., and of your general interest in this entire proceeding, do you not know, or are you not aware, of the fact that if the Boston Store signified its intention to protect the designs of the members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, 8291 that the members of the Fashion Originators Guild would be very happy to sell you their merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, Mr. Examiner. I do not believe that a question of this kind is entirely proper. It calls for a statement of this witness which might incriminate him and his firm in a conspiracy, and I think he should certainly consult counsel before he answers that question.

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Albert: I do not quite see how there can be anything incriminating in his statement; but if he knows what we would do if they were willing to——

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, but——

Mr. Albert: —and it certainly is quite an anom-
8292 alous situation that on our way from New York to Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, we now for the first time have counsel for the Commission informing witnesses of their constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, and I do not think there is anything self-incriminating in it whatsoever. I think the question can very readily be answered. The question has been put numerous times before and has been answered.

Examiner Bennett: Counsel is here for the witness; unless he objects, I will ask the witness to answer.

Mr. Whyte: Will you read me that question?

(Last question read.)

Mr. Whyte: I do not think I have any particular objection to that. You are asking whether they would be happy to sell him——

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may answer.

The Witness: I don't know.

Mr. Whyte: —if the Boston Store complied with the rules.

The Witness: I do not know. 8294

Examiner Bennett: It is answered.

Mr. Whyte: He is asking whether they would be willing to do it. That is all.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Rowse, that other stores who are memers of the A.M.C., who withdrew their co-operation and subsequently signified their intention of protecting designs, have been sold merchandise by members of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection to that. 8295

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Has the Boston Store made any inquiry, to your knowledge, to determine whether or not members of the Fashion Originators Guild will sell them merchandise if the Boston Store signifies its intention of protecting designs in accordance with the program of the members of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: I have no direct knowledge.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know whether or not any other executives of the stores have any knowledge thereof? A. I don't know whether they do or not.

8297 Q. Can you obtain that information?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: The witness seems to be interrogated about a situation that has not been developed on direct examination. I do not see what advantage you are gaining from it, so far as this record is concerned. The record does not show that this firm has been cut off from any source.

Mr. Albert: No further questions, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all, Mr. Rowse. Thank you very much.

Examiner Bennett: Much obliged, Mr. Rowse.

(Witness excused.)

8298

FLOYD C. DILLON was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. State your full name, Mr. Dillon? A. Floyd C. Dillon.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Dillon? A. Peewaukee.

Q. What State? A. Wisconsin.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I am divisional merchandise manager of ready-to-wear at the Boston Store.

Q. How long have you occupied that position? A. Since February 12th of this year.

Q. February what? A. February 12th, this year.

Q. Before that, what was your occupation? A. I was the manager of the dress departments for the Emporium in San Francisco—buyer, officially titled.

Q. Buyer? A. Buyer, yes.

Q. How long were you buyer for the Emporium? A. Well, for about three years, I would say. 8300

Q. What did you do before that? A. I was a divisional manager of their basement apparel.

Q. How long did you occupy that position? A. About a year.

Q. What did you do before that? A. I was with Bullock's in Los Angeles.

Q. Bullock's? A. Yes.

Q. What were you doing in Bullock's? A. I was a group manager of their basement ready-to-wear.

Q. How long were you in that position? A. Well, I was with Bullock's from 1925, I believe, until 1929, went in there as assistant buyer, and gradually acquired the group manager job. I don't know just how long I did occupy that.

Q. How many years, would you say, that you were experienced in the buying of women's dresses in department stores? A. Oh, about ten years. 8301

Mr. Albert: Was that two or ten, Mr. Dillon?

The Witness: Ten.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In your duties as buyer, assistant buyer, of department stores, before you came with the Boston Store, in Milwaukee, would you contact manufacturers of dresses in different parts of the country? A. Yes.

Q. In what markets? A. Well, in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, New York City, Philadelphia.

Q. Boston—were you ever in Boston? A. Not buying dresses, no.

Q. Now, when you assumed your position, your present position, with the Boston Store in Milwaukee, did you familiarize yourself with the resources of that organization in the departments over which you had supervision, and by resources I use that as a trade name meaning the manufacturers who manufacture the merchandise sold 8303 through those departments? A. Yes.

Q. Were they resources with which you were familiar before that time? A. Yes.

Q. Can you testify as to the names of those resources from memory? Do you have independent recollection sufficient to do so? A. Referring to any particular kind of merchandise?

Q. Well, taking the Departments 334 and 354. I believe those departments are under your supervision, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. Who were the principal resources at the time you went with the Boston Store, for those departments?

Mr. Albert: May I ask whether the question is directed at whether or not this witness knew of 8304 those resources prior to the time that he joined them, or is it directed at a reiteration of what those resources were at that time? If the latter, I think it is merely cumulative. We have an exhibit in evidence that tells us what those are, with the previous witness.

Mr. Haycraft: I am trying to qualify the witness and wish to further complete the examination, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: I do not understand the question.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Mr. Albert: That is objected to. Commission's Exhibit No. 573 for Identification speaks for itself.

Mr. Haycraft: We are all agreed on that, but that has not anything to do with the question I am propounding.

Examiner Bennett: I understand you are trying to qualify the witness in an endeavor to find out whether he knows who are the resources. Is that the idea? 8306

Mr. Haycraft: Exactly.

Mr. Albert: That is not the question. The question was "Who were the principal resources?" not whether he knew them at that time. That is why I asked Mr. Haycraft to make it clear—and the witness did not know what Mr. Haycraft meant by that. I was trying to save time, but, of course, Mr. Haycraft, with his usual obstinacy, refuses to permit anything he has once said to be—

Mr. Martin: I move that be stricken from the record.

Mr. Haycraft: I insist it stay in.

Examiner Bennett: All right. It is overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: May I have the question again?

(Last question read.)

The Witness: Well, Departments 334—we did business with Bennett-Swift, at the lower end; Bettina——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the last name? A. Bettina, Philadelphia.

Q. How do you spell that? A. B-e-t-t-i-n-a, I believe.

Little Brothers.

Q. What price range was Bettina? A. $10.75, whole sale.

Q. Bennett & Swift, what was their range? A. Seven and eights.

Q. Would you mind giving the price line, if you can A. All right. Rosen Brothers women's dresses at $10.7 principally. I have mentioned Little Brothers.

Q. Yes. You said what they were, but you did no give— A. Little Brothers, also in women's sizes, $10.7 and I think a little higher they had, in the misses' and The 354 Department, the number of our resources woul be Aywon, International—both of those are tens and som 8309 are higher. C. H. D. Robbins, tens, eleven and twelv Daytime Dress—did I mention International?

Q. Yes. What price range did that carry? A. Ten chiefly, those are a sample of some of them. There wer quite a good many resources used.

Q. Now, in the Department 335, which, as I understand was a new department at that time, what were your prin cipal resources in that department? A. Well, as to prin cipal resources, I do not believe I am qualified to answe that. I don't remember that. I know who we probabl would be doing business with now, but at the time of re carding I don't know.

Q. Anyway, you can refresh your recollection on tha A. Well, we have a list of better houses that we did bus ness with.

8310 Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No 573-A and B—see if you can refresh your recollectio from that list. A. Well, Milton Altmark, Bender Hamburger, Dorres Dress, Feigenbaum & Adelson an firms that I am sure we did—were important firms to us they cover the misses' and the women's there. In evenin dresses—Kallman & Morris was probably the most use

Q. Now, about Department 374. A. Well, our mos featured and talked about line there was our Louis

Mulligan line, more or less the personality of the department, and we did business with Harris Dress, and Rosenthal & Kalman and Debutante. I would say they would be our biggest volume houses.

Q. Now, Departments 338 and 358, do you have those under your supervision? A. Yes.

Q. Those are the cheaper— A. Yes, those are mainly at cost.

Q. Were there any Guild houses included in your resources? Do you recall, in those departments? A. In 33—

Q. 338? A. Yes, at the time of our red carding, or at least at the time of our last letter from the Guild, it gave 8312 us a membership list, there were some $6.75 houses listed as Guild members. As I recall it, Gladdy, Tru-Size, was one of them, that we had been doing business with. I don't just recall the others offhand. I could, if I saw a list.

Q. Look on the second page of the exhibit you have in front of you (indicating). A. Yes, Lipman Brothers, Topaz—I would say those would be the main ones in that department. The others are sevens, apparently.

Q. Now, you mentioned the red carding. When did that take place, as far as the Boston Store is concerned?

Mr. Feldman: If you know.

The Witness: I believe it was the 18th day of February, this year. 8313

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you recall how you first learned of it? A. Well, I believe we learned about it—the action that was taken in the women's wear—we were not aware of the fact that we had been red carded, I don't believe, we had no communication from the Guild that we were red carded.

Q. Now, did you make any attempts to obtain merch dise from the manufacturers that you knew to be resour that were Guild manufacturers, after the red cardi
A. Yes.

Q. What did you do in that respect? A. Well, we some merchandise on order which we wanted to ship, naturally we were interested in keeping our supply com and attempted to buy dresses, both—mainly, however, attempts to—and tried to place orders—was by our buy in New York, Miss Ogle, Miss Maggy and Miss Hawk

Q. Well, what success did you meet with in that spect? A. We were not allowed to buy any of the 8315 chandise.

Q. Were you able to get the orders that were pendi the pending orders filled? A. They were all filled.

Mr. Albert: You say they were all filled?

The Witness: All filled.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you attempt to place any new orders? A.

Q. With what success? A. We didn't get them.

Q. Did you have any demand for merchandise at manufacturers, at the Guild manufacturers, from w you had been buying? A. Well, we had, and still h repeated requests for one brand name that we using; and could not supply that at all.

8316 Q. What brand name was that? A. Louise Mullig

Q. What attempts did you make to satisfy your t
when you found you could not get Guild merchan
A. Well, we done our best to find substitute lines a some certain items we have been able to take care of selves. Also, the resignation or withdrawing from Guild of a lot of the lower-priced people, who we business with, naturally opened up that market to u

Q. When did that take place, do you recall? A. Which?

Q. When did the resignation you referred to take place? A. Well, I am not sure as to dates. It was, I think, right after this red carding got to be an issue, in the market, probably the third week in February, in March, or along in there. There were quite a few lower-priced lines, I remember, that became available to us again.

Q. Will you indicate which ones those were? A. Well, I am not thoroughly familiar with just when and what on them, but now we can buy—we can now buy from Bennett & Swift, Elvira, I believe, M. & S. Extract, Gladdy, Gracette, Lipman Brothers, Patricia, Rosenthal and Kalman, Tiljane, Topaz. I believe those are all 8318 people that we can now buy from.

Q. Well, how about the higher brackets, higher-priced lines? A. Well, the higher the price line the more trouble we have—it seems just about the same ratio.

Q. Can you testify as to the names of any particular resource that you have not been able to replace with another line of merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. Will you do so, please? A. Yes, we have not been able to replace Dolces Dress, C. H. D. Robbins, Louise Mulligan. Those are distinct types of houses that we obviously have not been able to replace—at least that—there are others.

Q. Will you name some others? A. Well, we have not been able to replace Altmark for a certain kind of clothes, or William Bass, or Feignnbaum & Adelson, or A. 8319
Goodman, or Joe Halpert, Junior Guild in Chicago, Aywon Dress, Daytime, International, Witlin Schneider, Capri, Casino, Dresden Dress, Little Brothers. That is the main.

Q. Those are the principal ones? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Dillon, do you have an opinion as to the effect upon the business of the Boston Store that is under your supervision, as the result of the red carding of the Boston Store by the Guild and your inability to replace the resources you have named here?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, immaterial and no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Last question read.)

The Witness: May I refer to a few notes I have?

8321 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. It is all right with me. First I will ask you—that question may be answered yes or no. A. I can.

Q. Have you an opinion? A. I have an opinion that we definitely have been hurt, yes.

Q. Will you state in what way you have been hurt? A. I would like to refresh my memory a little, if I could.

Q. All right. A. (Witness refers to paper.) Well, first of all, I feel that we have been cut off from our regular sources of supply. I feel that we have lost good will which we have built up through advertising. I feel that we have been weakened in our competitive standing in the city. I feel that we are hampered now in our fall planning, our fall promotional program. The figures that 8322 I have seen as to our gross margin indicate that we are taking more mark-downs than we did previously. A check up on our lists of our customer returns shows that we are getting a higher percentage of returns from our customers than we did previously, and our unit sales records, by price lines, show that there have been a very definite shift towards the lower-price lines. And I also feel that we are barred from the co-operative promotions which are offered us frequently by such magazines in the fashion field as "Harper's Bazaar," "Vogue," "Ladies' Home Journal," "Good Housekeeping." I feel all of those have been detrimental to our business.

Q. Now, will you explain how it affected the good will of your store? A. Well, we advertised Louise Mulligan dresses. We purchased the line, I understand, at the time that it was first brought out, and consistently purchased the line, ran "ads" on them, putting in windows on them, having fashion shows on them, trying to build the name up—and we cannot buy them any more.

Q. Have you tried to do that recently? A. Yes.

Q. With what success? A. They would not sell us.

Q. Did you try to place an order? A. I did not tender 8324 them an order, I don't know their styles, I can't even see them.

Q. Cannot even see them? A. No.

Q. Did you have any communication from that firm with respect to them? A. We have had telephone calls, and we have had some correspondence. Not long ago I wrote Mr. Gisnet and asked him—who is the buyer there—asked him what his plans were for Milwaukee, for this fall, and he answered my letter, he told me that he was going to sell it to someone else. He already had sold it to a competitor.

Q. What competitor is handling it? A. He did not state the competitor in his letter, but I was over there yesterday and talked with him, and I understand that T. A. Chapman's are going to have the line. 8325

Q. Do you have any other illustration of the effect on your good will? A. Well, it is certain that—in my mind, that people are coming to us, daily, in considerable numbers, expecting to find in our store the best merchandise in the market, and we, in my opinion, don't have it. I think that that goes on every day.

Q. Well, what did you have in mind—will you explain what you meant when you said it weakened your competitive standing? A. Well, our competition with all the other stores in the city, with the exception of Schuster's, have available to them the entire market, no houses are barred to them, as far as I know; whereas we are barred from what we consider to be a considerable number of resources, which we call our best resources.

Q. What did you have in mind when you testified with respect to the effect on your fall promotional program? A. Well——

Q. You have been hampered, I believe you said? A. Well, we have just opened our little shop, which is a department devoted to merchandise in the better end, 8327 $22.75 up, and we feel that people are coming to us, or would come to us in increasing numbers for that class of merchandise. We are not able to get the lines which, in my opinion, would aid us in making a good impression with a new department.

We have also enlarged considerably our collegian department, which is junior sizes, and there, too, we cannot advertise Louise Mulligan dresses, which were the backbone of our publicity in that section. It was a feature of our spring—fall—or spring fashion campaign, in March.

Also, we are not able to take advantage, right at this particular time, of a tie-up, in a publicity way, or dramatizing way, of this Mary of Scotland motion picture, in fashions which have been brought out; I understand, 8328 from the mailing matter that I see from C. H. D. Robbins, that they are exclusive—have the exclusive rights to the promotion of these fashions for Mary of Scotland, and I see other stores tying up with it, in other cities, and I feel that it has a wide appeal if the picture is considered to be good, and I feel that we would have at least taken a window, or an "ad," and tied up in some manner with the theatre on this picture, and on our fashions.

Q. What is the situation with respect to the co-operative promotional offer by "Harper's Bazaar," "Vogue" and other magazines, from which you are barred? A. I do not understand that.

Q. (Last question read.) A. Well, the situation is this: That from time to time the fashion editors of these magazines send us advance proofs of their fashions, which they are going to put over to their public as being the smart things of the month, or the season, and they offer us a list of the resources from which this merchandise is available, and offer co-operative aids in helping us to dramatize and promote these particular clothes.

"Vogue" allows us to quote, when we tie up with them, "By 'Vogue' so and so, and look on page so and so; we have it."

Or, if it is "Harper's Bazaar," much the same, or "Ladies' Home Journal," much the same sort of a thing, and we find—we did from the start in February, March, that we just can't get in with it at all, because in looking at the list of resources they are overwhelming Guild. There is just practically no one in that magazine. For instance, a certain issue of "Vogue," or a certain issue of "Harper's," or "Ladies' Home Journal"—that there is hardly anybody in there that is not Guild. It would be very—we just couldn't co-operate with them.

Q. Do you have any figures showing the comparison of the sales of merchandise in your department, for the first five months of 1935 compared with the five months in 1936? A. Yes, I have some figures here. They are figures that were taken from our unit control, which show the percentage increase or decrease of three best selling price lines in Departments 334, 335 and 354 this year, as compared with last year, for six months this year. We also have a similar list of three price lines for the Junior Department, 374, by percentage.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who prepared that for you? A. These figures were from our regular figures we get every day and are supplied me every month in recap form. This particular list here was made by our controller.

Q. Mr. Vogt? A. Mr. Vogt.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask that these documents be marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 587 and 588.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 587 and 588 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. These figures on these two exhibits are the ones you had in mind when you testified a few moments ago as to the effect upon your price line? A. In part, yes, it indicates something on that.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask Mr. Dillon to step down, and I will ask Mr. Vogt to reassume the stand.

(Witness temporarily withdrawn.)

8334 R. E. Vogt thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having been previously sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 587 and 588 for Identification, Mr. Vogt, and ask you if you know anything about them? A. Yes, I do.

Q. What do you know about them? A. These exhibits show percentages, which compare the number of units sold of various price lines by months, February through July of this year, against the same period last year.

Q. Did you prepare it? A. I prepared this percentage compilation, yes, sir.

Q. From the original records of the Boston Store? A. From the original records of the unit sold by the store, yes.

Q. What price lines are listed there? A. In Departments 334, 335 and 354, price line $16.95, $19.95 and $29.75.

Q. What exhibit is that? A. Exhibit 587. 8336

Q. That is the retail price? A. Yes.

Q. And on Exhibit 588, what price line do you have there? A. On Exhibit 588, $12.95, $16.95, $19.95.

Q. Are those exhibits correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have checked them, have you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: That's all. I offer them in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I will ask you this:

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is the percentage of decrease in Department 374, in the $12.95 price line for March? A. I have not attempted to memorize all the figures.

Q. You did not prepare this particular set of figures, 8337 did you? A. It is my handwriting, yes.

Q. I thought this was Mr. Dillon's handwriting?

Mr. Haycraft: Counsel has been asleep, I guess.

Mr. Albert: Not quite. It is merely that Mr. Haycraft did not bring it out.

Mr. Haycraft: You had better read the record.

Mr. Martin: What do you want? A picture of it?

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, we have here an exhibit being offered in evidence by the Commission as the figures of this store, written in pencil, on the back of stationery of the Palmer House, Chicago.

I do not see any reason whatsoever, why, if figures are being presented, we cannot at least have an exhibit presented that looks as if it were carefully done in the store.

I would like to know whether these have been prepared in the Palmer House during lunch time, or dinner, or some other time.

We are now going to the lowest point, I think, we have ever reached in the Commission's presentation of figures, without telling us how they were arrived at, or where they came from.

I object to these, upon the ground there is no proper foundation laid, and, personally, I think it is an insult to the Commission to put figures like that in evidence.

Mr. Martin: If you had paid attention, you would have known where they came from, and where they were derived from.

Mr. Albert: Personally, from looking at them, I would say they were written out at the Palmer House, at lunch time, or dinner time.

Mr. Haycraft: Does that affect their admissibility?

Mr. Albert: Certainly, if that is the way they were done.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness is here. You can cross-examine him.

Mr. Albert: If this goes in, I am afraid the Commission might present a tablecloth from some hotel.

Mr. Haycraft: I might try that.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 587 and 588, respectively, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: That's all, Mr. Vogt.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask Mr. Dillon to reassume 8342
the stand.

F. C. DILLON thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, referring to Commission's Exhibit 587, I notice that the price line $16.95, retail price line $16.95, is in the first column. What is the usual cost of that? A. $10.75.

Q. I observe that it shows varying percentages of decrease during the months of February, March, April and May, and an increase in June of 150 per cent., and in July of 1 per cent. I will ask you whether you have an explanation for that trend or change of sale? A. We apparently haven't got the right dresses at those prices. 8343

Q. What about June, where you show the increase? A. I cannot recall what caused that. We have from time to time found an item, a style or two, or a type of fabric or type of styling which gave us a lift and got us business.

Q. In the second column, there is a $19.95 retail price line. What is the cost price of that? A. It would vary from ten to eleven to $12.75.

Q. Then, in the third column, $29.75. What is the cost price of that? A. $16.75 to $18.75.

Q. I notice that in the $19.95 column you show a 25 per cent. decrease in February, and then substantial increases in the months of March, April and May, less substantial in June and July, with an average at the end of the period of approximately 177 per cent. increase; while, in the third column, in the $29.75 line, there are varying decreases: February, 28 per cent., March, 63 per cent., April, 67 per 8345 cent., May, 53 per cent., June, 20 per cent., July, 40 per cent., with an average for the period of 55 per cent. decline in sales. I will ask you whether you have any explanation of the increase in the sales in your $19.95 retail line and your decrease in sales in the $29.75 line? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. We found an item shortly after our red carding which was "hot;" and we kept riding it, we increased our assortments in that item, and increased our color range, increased the number of styles carried, and we were able to get a good volume, compared with last season, on that price line because we found a good item.

Q. How about the $29.75 line? A. We did not have that good fortune there. We have not been able to find the right source of supply.

8346 Q. Was there any shifting in these lines in that department that you referred to in your other testimony? A. What do you mean by "shifting"?

Q. From the higher price to the lower price. A. What items does that cover? What departments does that cover?

Q. 334, 335 and 355. A. Yes; in that department, in the 334 and 355 departments, we have sevens up through eleven, and a few $12.75 cost, and our $7.75 cost price line made very substantial increases.

Q. As to Commission's Exhibit 588, which refers to Department 374, I call your attention to the fact that with respect to your $12.95 price line, there was a substantial decrease, February, March and April, but an increase in May, and then another decrease in June and July, with a total for the period of approximately 45 per cent. decrease. Do you have any explanation of that?

Mr. Albert: Is that a weighted average, Mr. Haycraft?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any explanation of that change there in that column? A. You are referring to the $12.95 retail? 8348

Q. $12.95, yes. A. I think at the first part here, February and March, we were probably harmed there particularly due to Rosenthal & Kalman being in the Guild, but I understand they are out now, and we are doing business with them, some. I cannot really say anything more about it.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the witness' answer to the last question be stricken, as not responsive, and a pure conjecture merely from a reading of the exhibit itself, and not predicated upon even the witness' belief that he has any certain knowledge of the matter.

Examiner Bennett: Let me have the question and answer. 8349

(Question and answer read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: I think I will grant the motion to strike that.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I call your attention to the percentage figures in the $16.95 column, the second column in this same exhibit, showing a decrease in the months of March, April, May and June, but an increase in the month of July, and ask you if you have any explanation of the situation in that price list? A. Well, simply that we are not getting the right junior $10.75 dresses.

Q. I notice, for the month of July, you show an increase in your sales over 1935. How do you account for that? A. How much is the increase?

Q. Fifty per cent. A. You mean the specific items? I am trying to recall what lines we have gotten there, that we have done that.

Q. Were you able to replace any resources during that 8351 month, merchandise? A. We must have been.

Q. What type of merchandise did you sell in your store in that department in July, as compared to previous months? A. $16.95. I cannot recall what the item was.

Q. Mr. Dillon, do you have with you any literature from "Vogue," "Harper's Bazaar," or any of those magazines, illustrating your testimony? A. I believe we have some here, yes. I think these things here bear out what I said. We just received this one last week from "Vogue," which is an advance list on their Paris openings, "First Judgment on Paris Openings," which is going to be in the September 1st issue, and I had our stylist go down this list covering every garment here, and in doing that she compared Guild or non-Guild, according to the last letter we 8352 received from the Guild.

It might have some error in it, due to changes in membership that we are not aware of, but there are 1, 2, 3—this is a hand-knitted jacket, which is not a dress; 3, 4, 5, 6—here is a hat, that is not a dress, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14. Every garment on this page is a Guild house, from a Guild house.

And on this other page, apparently every one is down here. This is a hat (indicating). Everything else is Guild

On this page, Frankie, Inc., an evening dress, is not Guild; another evening dress is not Guild. The balance of the dresses and goods seem to be Guild.

This is a shoe (indicating). On this page is a shoe, a shoe, a shoe, a shoe, and shoes. Dress, Nettie Rosenstein, Guild; shoes, shoes, and bags.

Here are hats, ornaments, Charles Nudelman. Apparently it is almost, say, over 90 per cent, at least, Guild merchandise.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as being entirely immaterial and irrelevant to this proceeding. If Mr. Haycraft wants a 8354 concession that by reason of purchase of Guild merchandise at times a store gets some free advertising, which can be withdrawn at any time by the manufacturers, as they see fit, I will concede that perhaps this store lost the benefit of some free advertising. I think that is the whole point involved. There is no necessity for cluttering up the record with all these exhibits.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is that all there is to it, Mr. Dillon? A. I don't know what he calls "advertising." Such magazines as "Vogue," "Harper's," "Ladies' Home Journal," "Good 8355 Housekeeping," are looked upon by women, in looking at the editorial matter, as speaking about the right styles; they are regarded as knowing their fashions; and to me, it offers a store which is evidently trading up, as we are, it offers an opportunity to capitalize on the authenticity of the clothes, and to give us a chance to glorify them a little, and sort of dramatize the fashions that we have, and I think it is a definite hindrance to us, I am sure that we would co-operate on a number of these during the course of the year.

8356 F. C. Dillon—For Commission—Recalled—Direct.

Mr. Albert: I will take Mr. Dillon's recapitulation of that exhibit, your Honor, without the necessity of copying four or five pages here, typewritten matter, into the record.

Mr. Haycraft: I am not asking that it be copied into the record. That is the reason I ask that it be put in as an exhibit.

Mr. Albert: It is going to have to be printed eventually. I can see no purpose in it.

Mr. Haycraft: No, it doesn't have to be printed 8357 eventually.

Examiner Bennett: It seems to me that the evidence given by Mr. Dillon as to this particular record is quite too indefinite to serve us in following just what is meant by the exhibit, and I think I will sustain the objection to that exhibit.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: The general trend of the testimony as a whole is in.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you ever, in your experience, co-operated with the "Vogue" magazine in such a scheme as is indicated in this exhibit? A. I haven't had the opportunity.

8358 Q. Have you ever done it with any other magazine? A. No.

Q. In your opinion, based upon your experience with this type of merchandise, I will ask you whether or not it would be of any assistance to the Boston Store to have the opportunity of co-operating in such an advertising scheme?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as purely conjectural, as to the effect of such an advertisement, who sees it, and when it is seen, and how often it is seen. I don't think it can serve much of a useful purpose to have this witness' opinion on it.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: It would be of assistance, yes.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. And, by such an advertising scheme, you refer to advertising with "Vogue" and "Harper's Bazaar," and that sort of magazine? A. This is editorial matter. The 8360 fashion editor of "Vogue," or whichever magazine might be in question, pick styles from the market that they consider to be fashionable and style-right, and they present them in an editorial way to their readers as their pick of the market, and they apparently pay them from Guild houses—or pick them from Guild houses, and it would be not in advertising in the sense of a paid ad, or anything paid between anyone. It is simply an editorial presentation on their part, and our putting some drama around it, and glorifying our clothes on that basis.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. That is, as being mentioned in "Vogue," is that what you mean? A. Yes, "Vogue," "Harper's." 8361

Mr. Haycraft: I renew my offer, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: I think the discussion on that is so indefinite as to be misleading, and I do not see how anybody is going to follow it. I will exclude that offer.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 27, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned, to reconvene at 10 o'clock A. M. to-morrow, Friday, August 28, 1936, at the same place.)

Room 1123, New Post Office Building,
433 West Van Buren Street,
Chicago, Illinois,

8363 Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M. E.S.T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. This is a reconvening of hearing from Thursday, August 27th, 1936. You may resume the stand, Mr. Dillon.

FLOYD C. DILLON thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

8364 (Thereupon papers were marked Commission's Exhibits Nos. 589 and 590 for Identification.)

Direct examination (resumed) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 589, Mr. Dillon, and ask you if you can identify that? A. It is a copy of letter I sent to Mr. Gisnet of Louise Mulligan Company, Chicago.

Q. Under what date? A. August 14th, this year.

Q. Was the original of that letter mailed to Mr. Gisnet?
A. I sent it to Mr. Gisnet, yes, sir.
Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 590 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. It is a letter that I received in answer to my letter; I received this from Mr. Gisnet on—the letter is dated August 15th.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the two in evidence, Commission's Exhibits No. 589 and 590 for Identification.

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial and irrelevant, as regards the particular matter between this store and the particular 8366 manufacturer; no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Mr. Haycraft: Is it denied that Louise Mulligan is a member of the Guild?

Examiner Bennett: Objection overruled; received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 589 and 590, were received in evidence.)

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit No. 591 for Identification.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is all I have to ask Mr. 8367
Dillon.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Referring to the third paragraph of Commission's Exhibit 590, Mr. Witness, in which it is stated that the manufacturer practically lost the greater half of the spring and summer season because of not selling dresses to you, do you know whether that is correct? A. We bought his spring line just about one day before the red carding which was February 11th; and, through information which we received from New York, I wired Mr. Post to have this released to us, and he conceded to that, so he did receive shipment in March on the Mulligan dresses. We could not re-order them, but he did not lose, I would not say, the full spring season.

Q. During the time you were unable to obtain Louise Mulligan dresses during the spring and summer season, did anyone else in Milwaukee sell those dresses? A. No. We were exclusive agents.

8369 Q. So, in so far as the manufacturer was concerned, he was unable to sell any dresses in Milwaukee, or did not sell any dresses in Milwaukee of the Louise Mulligan type during that period of time? A. He did not, no, sir.

Q. What did you mean when you said that, through information received from Mr. Post, the dresses were delivered to you which you had ordered prior to the red carding? A. Have we those figures here? I received some communications in the course of business. Here is a wire from Colonel Reilly to Stanley Stone, our store president, which reads: "Have been informed by F.O.G.A. that on the individual requests from red carded stores they probably would instruct Guild members to ship merchandise on orders accepted before present controversy arose."

8370 Q. Have you any objection to showing me that telegram? A. No, sir (handing document to Mr. Albert).

Mr. Albert: I will ask that these be marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 53, 54, 55, 56 and 57.

(The documents referred to were marked Respondents' Exhibits 53, 54, 55, 56 and 57, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Reilly with respect to the substance of Respondents' Exhibit 53, his telegram? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any other merchandise outstanding which was delivered to you, which had been ordered prior to the red carding? A. There was.

Q. And was that merchandise all delivered to you pursuant to this understanding referred to in Mr. Reilly's telegram, Respondents' Exhibit 53 for Identification? A. I don't know as to whether that had any bearing on it or not. We only asked for release on that one line. It was advertised in our schedule, and we felt we needed it 8372 very keenly.

Q. But, in so far as the Boston Store was concerned, all merchandise that had been on order prior to the red carding was delivered to it? A. Every piece.

Q. And the Boston Store did not in any way discriminate in the orders that it wanted filled? A. No.

Q. I mean, you asked that all orders be filled, and all orders were filled? A. I did discriminate in asking for Louise Mulligan's.

Q. You mean by that, that you particularly wanted that? A. Yes.

Q. But, let us say, if you had ten orders which had been placed prior to the red carding, you did not say you wanted nine, and you would not take the tenth? A. No. 8373

Q. You said, "Send us the ten," is that correct? I am now merely giving you an assumption. A. We had no worries at all about any other than the Mulligan, and they all came in, and there was no feeling of not getting them at all, they all were delivered, we had no worries about them.

Mr. Albert: I offer into evidence, may it please the Court, Respondents' Exhibits 53, 54, 55, 56 and

57. I believe you had these, Mr. Haycraft. Do you want to look at them again?

Examiner Bennett: Any objection?

Mr. Haycraft: No objection to their admission. I didn't think there was any relevancy, or I would have offered them myself. There was no claim, or testimony, that he didn't get any orders.

Examiner Bennett: They are received.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 53, 54, 55, 56 and 57, respectively, were received in evidence.)

8375 Mr. Albert: May I have the Reilly telegram, Mr. Haycraft? I don't think it is in here. It did not go into evidence; the F.O.G.A. telegram to the Boston, incorporating the Reilly telegram.

Mr. Haycraft: The one I had marked for identification?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Here it is (handing paper to Mr. Albert).

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 38-A and B, Mr. Dillon, and ask you if you saw that, or received that?

8376 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, not proper cross-examination, irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: That matter was offered and waived.

Mr. Haycraft: Offered by the other witness.

Examiner Bennett: What is that?

Mr. Haycraft: By Mr. Rowse. Mr. Rowse was the man that identified that exhibit. I did not ask this witness anything about it.

Mr. Albert: It is from the Boston Store, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, as to whether he saw it. It may be a foundation for something else.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What was the answer, Mr. Dillon? A. I have not answered. I want to be sure. I have seen this, yes, I know what this is.

Q. Do you know whether or not any answer was made to that telegram? A. We did not answer.

8378 Mr. Albert: I believe, Mr. Haycraft, I have just been informed that there is some doubt in our minds as to whether or not this was actually received in evidence, or merely identified, so I suggest, in order to keep the record straight, that it be offered in evidence now. I know we told you it had been offered.

Mr. Haycraft: I think we withdrew it, in view of the fact that it was already in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I know. But I say, Mr. Keller now tells me he thinks it was only offered for identification and not offered into evidence. I will offer it now, on this identification, that it was received and no answer given to it.

8379 Mr. Haycraft: He doesn't know. He wasn't there.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, are you testifying, or is the witness testifying? He just testified he saw it, and that there was no answer to it.

Examiner Bennett: Has that been numbered as a Commission's exhibit?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, 571.

Examiner Bennett: If there is any doubt about it, and you want it in the record, let us put it in.

Mr. Haycraft: I offered it in evidence on page 4656—rather, it was identified on page 4656, and offered in evidence on the same page, and then it was withdrawn on page 4657, because it was admitted to be a copy of Respondents' Exhibit 38-A and B, which was in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Well, in view of the fact there is doubt as to whether it is in evidence, it is received now in evidence.

(The document referred to, marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 571-A and B, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. This telegram says: "Please advise by wire Monday afternoon if your store is among eighteen mentioned above." Was there any wire sent in response to this telegram? A. None that I know of; no, sir.

Q. When the Boston Store did not in any way answer this telegram, wasn't that an indication on the part of the Boston Store of its desire to withdraw its declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. This witness is not qualified to answer that question. I submit there is no foundation laid.

8382

Mr. Albert: There is no indication by the witness that he is not qualified to do so.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness cannot determine whether it is or not. I am saying so.

Mr. Albert: That is just the point. I object to Mr. Haycraft saying it.

Mr. Haycraft: That is the basis of my objection, if the Examiner please. This calls for a conclusion on the part of some executive of the Boston Store who is in a position to say so, pass upon it.

We had Mr. Rowse on the stand, when he was here yesterday, and he was interrogated about that at that time. Now, this witness, as I say, is not president or vice-president or in any position to say what the interpretation is.

Mr. Albert: He is not exactly an elevator operator in the store. He is divisional merchandise manager, with his departments precisely affected.

Mr. Haycraft: That is the basis of my objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Upon receipt of this telegram, was any discussion had amongst the executives of the Boston Store with regard to it? 8384

Mr. Haycraft: What is that question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I was in some discussions, yes, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Who was present at those discussions? A. Mr. Street, the general merchandise manager. This is all after the receipt of the wire, he just didn't answer it.

Q. At that conference, was it decided not to answer it? A. No. I think that had been decided by the general management. 8385

Q. Prior to that? A. Prior to that, yes, sir.

Q. As divisional merchandise manager of the Boston Store, and from your discussions with the executives, from your discussion with Mr. Street, the general merchandise manager, can you tell us whether or not the Boston Store, in not answering this telegram, signified its intention of withdrawing its declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question on the same grounds. It is the same question.

Mr. Albert: I am asking him for his knowledge as the result of his discussion with the executives and as a result of his discussion with Mr. Street.

Mr. Haycraft has stated I heretofore cross-examined Mr. Rowse about it, but now we learn that Mr. Street was the general merchandise manager at that time, put in by a man who is no more of an executive in the store than Mr. Dillon is, and, inasmuch as neither one is here in a personal capacity, but is testifying as a representative of the 8387 Boston Store, it seems to me that any man that represents the Boston Store is qualified to give information with regard to the matter, if he knows.

Mr. Haycraft: I submit, Mr. Examiner, that this is a matter that calls for the conclusion of the witness, a conclusion on the knowedge of the policy and the knowledge of a decision on the part of the store.

It is a conclusion upon a conclusion that he is calling for. And, furthermore, I do not see the relevancy or materiality of the question.

Mr. Albert: The materiality of it is very plain, your Honor. The progress of this hearing has demonstrated that the Commission is seeking to 8388 prove that the first knowledge of any of these stores, the first knowledge any of these stores had of the fact they had been red carded, was when they saw it in "Women's Wear," it sounds very dramatic, and very nice, but the fact that every one of them knew before they ever saw it in "Women's Wear" that their declaration of co-operation had been withdrawn by their own personal action.

It may be they saw it in "Women's Wear" for the first time, but they were fully aware of it long before that; and while I concede that the point is not a very important one, inasmuch as it has been brought out by the Commission in its particular story, I feel it is my duty to again demonstrate the fallacy behind the Commission's proof with respect to the matter.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

y Mr. Albert.

Q. Was Mr. Reilly authorized to send the telegram re-rred to in Commission's Exhibit 571-A? A. I don't now that. 8390

Q. You have given us very glowing accounts of the ex-llence of the merchandise manufactured by members of e Guild. Would you be good enough to explain a little ore fully just what i is that is so different about Guild erchandise as distinguished from other manufacturers? I haven't in any way intended to imply that all Guild anufacturers, or all non-Guild, are in a certain class. have said that certain manufacturers, whom I men-oned, make a certain kind of goods, or a certain type of oods, or quality of goods, that we have not been able to place, that we find desirable.

Q. What is there about that quality, or dress, which u cannot replace? A. Any particular resource?

Q. Well, what is there that you cannot replace about 8391 ouise Mulligan dresses? A. First of all, it is a branded em, they control the name completely. We had it, ex-usively in this city. We spent money advertising it, win-ws. It is a certain type of goods, a very youthful dis-ctive type of clothes, have a very definite flare to them, at is recognizable; they lend themselves to youthful tractive promotion, and we could not replace them. hat's part of the reasons.

Q. What are the elements that you look for in a dress, Mr. Dillon, when you go out to buy merchandise? A. Well, I take in the element of style. I take in the element of apparent intrinsic value; I look at it from type standpoint to see if it fits the needs of our stocks.

Q. What elements do you consider in purchasing a dress, that you think it is necessary that a dress should have in order to have customer acceptance?

The Witness: Will you repeat that again?

(Last question read.)

The Witness: Well, first of all, it has got to fit when we get it; it has got to have lines suitable 8393 to the likes of the customer; colors have got to be the kind that are needed at the time. We try and buy fabrics that we feel will give suitable service, on stretch or pick-up.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that all, Mr. Dillon? A. I wouldn't say that is all; those are some.

Q. Well, now, I will read back to you what you stated in general words—you stated that the dress must have fit, lines, be of appropriate colors and be serviceable. Now, is there anything else you would like to add to that? A. Of course, the element of price is always ever present.

Q. Is that all? A. That's the main reasons, I would 8394 say.

Q. Do you include in the five elements that you have listed, or is a combination of any of them, that the dress should be in fashion? A. I said lines.

Q. Was that what you meant by style? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Dillon, is not the color of a dress rather a negligible item, as being dependent upon the buyer's selection of the colors—I mean, that is something that she will look for, yes, but something that is not important because colors are something that can very easily be obtained in a dress, it is not the dominating element, is it?

Mr. Haycraft: I object, that is a triple question, Mr. Examiner, and argumentative. He asked three questions.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: Four questions.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will ask you to break up your question, please.

By Mr. Albert. 8396

Q. Is not color, Mr. Dillon, a question of the buyer's selection? A. They have got to have the color to be able to ship it.

Mr. Post: What was that answer, please?

(Last answer read.)

The Witness: If I might explain what I mean by that—we had in June a call for browns, and we had a very difficult time buying them. It is a peculiar thing, but we did.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, was not that due to the fact that there was a shortage in piece goods, it was brown, and not particularly due to the manufacturers' abilities in any way? A. I don't know, they just—they seemed to take the opinion that it was a—you might say—a buyer's judgment against their judgment, and they decided not to buy piece goods, to back up brown in their "cutting tickets." 8397

Q. What do you mean by fit, Mr. Dillon? A. Well, I think that's an adjective, too. The garment is built in proper proportion to the customer, who we are trying to fit.

8398 Q. Is not the quality of the fit, the quality of the workmanship on the dress, in a great measure dependent upon the price that is paid for the dress? A. Well, that's accepted in the industry, different price lines, pay more for labor or less.

Q. And that is something that a manufacturer can very easily either improve or, shall I say, lessen, in his dress, depending upon how much he sells it for? A. Well, I don't understand.

Q. If he gets a good price for it? A. That's the way it works; that way, in the market.

Q. Isn't that so? A. No, I don't understand it that 8399 way. I understand in the big volume price lines that the manufacturer is working with his labor, on a certain basis, and he cannot lower his price lines or raise his price lines at his discretion; he has a certain standard of labor.

Q. It is fixed by the union, you mean? A. That is the way I understand it; there are some arrangements there.

Q. So that all manufacturers manufacturing dresses in a specific price line must use the same type of labor, is that not so, from the union? A. Not that I know of, no. I think they pay about the same in each market.

Q. Now, Mr. Dillon, with respect to the various elements that you have referred to, which, in your experience in the dress industry, would you say was the most important from a customer viewpoint? By customer I mean customers of your store.

8400 Mr. Haycraft: If there is any difference. I object to the form of the question. I think there is no foundation laid for it. The witness has not testified there was any.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Gentlemen, if you want to confer, I wish you would confer somewhere else.

It is impossible to carry on this examination and a conversation at the other end of this small table. You may answer. Overruled.

The Witness: May I have the question read?

(Last question re-read.)

The Witness: Well, if it doesn't fit, in the final analysis, it doesn't sell. If it is not attractive on a hanger, they generally won't try it on. It is also——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, isn't the first thing that——

Mr. Haycraft: I object. 8402

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Resumed) —that the customer always looks to see a store, is to try on a dress——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the witness being interrupted.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment; finish your answer.

The Witness: It also seems like your question takes an average customer attitude, and we don't deal with people "averagely," we deal with them one at a time, and I can't answer the question, one thing being the thing. It is an element, of a lot of things to make a customer part with her money for a garment. 8403

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Dillon, the Boston Store endeavors to satisfy its customers and in an attempt to formulate policies to do you take into consideration, do you not, what the general average demand is of your customers, is that not so? A. If you would make it read demands, I think we would say we do.

Q. Demands. A. Yes.

Q. Very well. Well, now, what is it, in plain language, Mr. Dillon, that a woman looks for first in a dress when she comes into your store to buy it? A. Well, she looks for something that will make her look more attractive.

Q. And is not that first thing that makes her look more attractive the style of the dress? A. If it doesn't fit, it don't mean anything.

Q. I am not saying after she is acquainted and likes the 8405 style, Mr. Dillon.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question, Mr. Examiner. The witness has answered, and it is argumentative. He just does not like the answer, and does not agree with it. I do not think he should be allowed to argue with the witness.

Examiner Bennett: There is not a question pending, is there?

Mr. Haycraft: I assume that is a question.

Examiner Bennett: Read it.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Yes, well, that is not a question.

Mr. Haycraft: I move it be stricken.

8406 Examiner Bennett: Yes, it may be stricken.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. The fit of the dress comes after she has been attracted to it by its style, is that not so? A. It would depend upon the garment. We have a section in our better end that all the merchandise is concealed, the customer is in the fitting room; she says she wants a certain type of clothes; the sales person goes and picks them out and puts them on her.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Dillon: In all your experience in the dress industry have you ever come across a woman who purchased a dress that fit her, and which she liked the material, but who was absolutely dissatisfied with the style of the dress? A. Yes.

Q. You have come across such a woman? A. Yes.

Q. How many such women have you come across?

Mr. Haycraft: Well——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you being perfectly honest with us when you say that, Mr. Dillon? And I do not mean to be unkind in asking that question. 8408

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question, Mr. Examiner. This witness has not indicated anything but fra kness and openness in his testimony. I object to the form of the last question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Go ahead.

The Witness: May I have the question read?

(Last question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled, you may answer.

The Witness: I can't answer that, I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

8409

Q. Is there any explanation that you want to give of what you mean when you say you have come across such women? A. What was that? Did I say I came across it, do you mean?

Q. Yes. A. I don't remember that I said that.

Q. Well, let me then reframe that question and ask you another. Have you come across any women, in your experience in the dress industry, who bought a dress because it fit, but who at the time when they purchased the dress did not like the style or were dissatisfied with the style? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Can you recall the circumstances of the purchase? A. Yes, I think—in the average bridal party, for instance.

Q. Oh, oh, oh!

Mr. Haycraft: Ha, ha!

The Witness: They all wear the same dress, and some of them don't like them, and some of them do, but there are quite a——

By Mr. Albert.

8411 Q. Well, aside from these bridal dresses, which is more or less of a uniform—or maternity dresses, or, shall I say, mourning clothes, is there any woman that ever purchases a dress because it fits her when she does not like the style? A. Yes.

Q. You still say there are? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, what—can you give me an example of such a dress? A. Yes, I think that such dresses are sold during the course of a year in stores which are, you might say, hurry-up dresses. A girl gets a call on the telephone at 5 o'clock, and she has a date for 6.30 or 7. She comes dashing in for a new dress, and she has just got to have a new dress, and maybe she don't like it, the certain one she has picked out, but it fits her, and does something 8412 for her, and she might ordinarily pass it up, and come back in a week, but she buys it.

Q. By that you mean she is dissatisfied with a few of the little things that may be in that dress, is that what you mean? A. Well, you said dissatisfied with the style?

Q. Yes. A. Didn't particularly care for it?

Q. Yes. A. That's what I mean.

Q. As a matter of fact, when a woman cannot find exactly what she wants, she still picks that particular dress that she doesn't like from among a number of other styles is that not so? A. Yes.

That she likes a good deal less, is that not so? A.

And that she would not be seen wearing at a dog if she could help it, is that not so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Albert: I was not trying to characterize the dresses that he was selling, Mr. Haycraft; the witness understands me. We are talking about feminine psychology, pure and simple.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of that question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Keller: That is a deep subject. 8414

Mr. Albert: I do not qualify as an expert.

The Witness: What is the question?

(Last question read.)

The Witness: I don't see——

Mr. Albert: I did not say dog race.

r. Albert.

Now, Mr. Dillon, let us tie this up and get down to Aside from wedding dresses, maternity dresses, ing clothes, and the occasions when a woman comes l says she must have a dress in the next fifteen or minutes, and she will take anything that looks half-resentable, was there ever a time when a woman purchase a dress when she is out shopping and 8415 g for dresses, and in no particular hurry, merely e it fits her, or because it is good material, and in of the fact that she does not like the style? A. I there are lots of cases; they do, yes.

Well, can you give me any other examples? A. Yes, k that a number of women like to come into the and pick out two or three dresses. They may like The sales person may like one on her, and her friend with her may like one on her, and she will leave our store, say, and go to another store, and pick out two or three dresses. She is buying these dresses, but she don't intend to keep only one of them, and she goes by opinions of other people, and her family, and if she picks out a dress—a sort of committee meeting in lots of homes after they get home.

Q. Yes. It may not be her decision entirely.

Q. But, as a matter of fact, when she finally makes up her mind with respect to it, no matter what influences have been brought to bear on it, she is satisfied with the style, is that not so? A. I wouldn't say so. I have heard younger girls say that their mother made them buy that 8417 green dress, and that she cannot wear it, it makes her ill.

Q. But when they bought it, they thought it was pretty good? A. No, the mother may have thought so.

Q. How did the mother select the dress? A. I couldn't say.

Q. The mother thought it was a pretty good dress, did she not? A. Yes.

Q. And she picked it out of all the other styles, did she not? A. Probably so.

Q. Now, taking into consideration all of the things that you see, all of the types of merchandise, and instances, and occasions, wherein a woman may perhaps buy a dress, the style of which she does not like, and granted, for the sake of argument, that your enumeration of instances demonstrates that women do not like the style at the time she 8418 bought the dress—what percentage, would you say, of your entire sales of dresses would that take in? A. I can't say.

Q. Can you give me any estimate? A. No.

Q. Would it be a very small percentage? A. I haven't any idea.

Q. Do those occasions happen very often? A. Apparently, or I couldn't have recalled a number of instances right along the row.

Q. I mean, after all, aren't you drawing upon your vast experience in the industry to know that those things do happen, and that we all know that they happen, but that they do not happen very often?

Mr. Haycraft: Is that a question? If it is, I object to it. I objected to one statement a while ago, and we found out afterwards it was a question, and I object to it. If it is a question, I object to it.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection.

By Mr. Albert. 8420

Q. Well, now, Mr. Dillon, is it then your contention, and do you want the Commission to believe, that insofar as woman, in the general sense, that insofar as woman is concerned, when woman comes into a store to buy a dress the most important thing that she looks for first is the style of that dress?

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question. It is too general, not definite enough, and does not summarize his testimony.

Mr. Albert: I am asking him if that is what he wants us to understand. 8421

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the last objection. I think it is not a summary of the testimony. His testimony has a trend the other way, it seems to me.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Dillon, that the most important thing to a woman in a dress, when she comes in, before she will even attempt to try it on, or see whether there is any good fit to it, or see whether it is serviceable, is the style of that dress?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; he may answer.

The Witness: I think my knowledge of woman psychology is not boundless, but I think the average woman—or woman, as you term her, looking at garments—looks at them in the eyes only of how they will look on her, what they will do for her figure and her attractiveness, the style of them; she may like certain styles, but she knows from her feminine 8423 knowledge that that particular thing won't be good for her. She may think that is a fine style all right, but she looks at a dress only through her own eyes, as to what it will do for her, make her more attractive.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then, is it your contention that, that the design of a dress is not its most important selling factor? A. I do not know that.

Mr. Albert: May I have the answer to the previous question read?

(Previous answer read as follows: "I think my 8424 knowledge of woman psychology is not boundless, but I think the average woman—or woman, as you term her, looking at garments—looks at them in the eyes only of how they will look on her, what they will do for her figure and her attractiveness, the style of them; she may like certain styles, but she knows from her feminine knowledge that that particular thing won't be good for her. She may think that is a fine style all right, but she looks at a dress only through her own eyes, as to what it will do for her, make her more attractive.")

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it your contention then, Mr. Dillon, that if a style s believed by the potential customer not to be suited to ier, that she would wear to-day a knee-length style because t did look well on her? A. I have no contention at all long those lines.

Q. Do I understand by your last answer, Mr. Dillon, hat a woman will not buy a dress which is in the fashion rend because she does not believe it will look good on her? A. I don't understand that at all. 8426

Q. Well, let us say that to-day long dresses are in style. A. Long dresses?

Q. Long dresses are in style. A. Yes.

Q. And, for some particular reason, long dresses do not ook good on a woman. Is it your contention that she will wear knee-length dresses to-day? A. Yes, sir. We all know Queen Mary's hats; we have had the same hat ever since they have taken pictures.

Q. But there is only one Queen Mary, isn't that so? A. All right. You said "woman."

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Dillon, what we are referring to, is it not, is a cross-section of your customers? A. We do not cater to cross-section. We take them one at a time. 8427

Q. You cater to the wants and the needs of each individual woman? A. We endeavor to yes, sir.

Q. And you carry styles and dresses for each individual woman? A. That is our aim, yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Dillon, isn't it a fact, from your experience, that the vast majority of individual women will only buy a dress if it is in the last word of style? A. Well, my definition of style is a fashion that is worn by a lot of people, so I would have to answer that with that in mind. That is what style is; if it is worn, it becomes a style.

Q. You are acquainted with the type of dress that is worn by the women in India, aren't you, Mr. Dillon, roughly speaking? A. No.

Q. These loose, flowing garments? A. No.

Q. Haven't you ever been to the movies? A. Yes.

Q. Haven't you see these loose, flowing garments that the women wear in India? A. I don't know whether they are from India, or Hollywood.

Q. I mean, they wear them in India, don't they? A. I 8429 don't know.

Q. Haven't you any conception of what is worn in India by the women? A. Nothing definite, no.

Q. Have you any conception of the type of garment that is worn by Chinese women? A. I have seen them wear clothes in San Francisco. I don't know what they wear in China.

Q. Have you any conception of the clothes that are worn by women in Bali-Bali? A. I have seen some paintings.

Q. Or, I should say, perception of the lack of clothes worn by the women in Bali-Bali? A. I have no knowledge of it, no.

Q. You have knowledge only of the clothes that are worn by women in this country, and Queen Mary? A. I 8430 do not have any first-hand knowledge, no.

Q. Were you ever in England? A. No.

Q. You saw Queen Mary's clothes in the movies—the hat? A. It was the cause of editorial comment in "Harper's Bazaar"; I think there were quite a series of pictures, for a period of years.

Q. Have you no conception that you could give us of the loose, flowing gowns that are worn by women in India? You seriously want to tell us that?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

Examiner Bennett: I do not see what it means to our inquiry right now. It may be relevant; I don't know.

Mr. Albert: It is very quickly tied up, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead—he may answer.

The Witness: I don't know anything about what they wear in India.

By Mr. Albert,

Q. Would you say that millions of women in India wear these loose, flowing garments? A. I don't know what they wear. 8432

Q. They are unlike any dress that is worn in this country? A. I don't know what they wear in India at all.

Q. And is the rest of your testimony just as frank as that, Mr. Dillon?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

Mr. Haycraft: It is manifestly improper.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. Mr. Dillon, you know, is not selling dresses in India, or helping to sell them.

Mr. Albert: But he has testified, if it please the Court, that fashion is set by the fact that many women wear dresses. The very simple question I would like to put to him is if that would be the style in this country. 8433

Examiner Bennett: Isn't that pretty near quibbling?

Mr. Albert: Not quite, your Honor. I have got to quibble with a witness who quibbles.

Mr. Haycraft: Don't quibble with this witness, then. This witness has done no quibbling.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it your contention, Mr. Dillon, that insofar as you need styles for the dresses that are sold in your store, you can obtain those styles, for the most part, only from Guild manufacturers? A. May I have that question?

(Question read.)

The Witness: May I have it again, please?

(Question re-read by the reporter.)

8435 The Witness: I have not attempted to state any relative proportion of our need of Guild merchandise. I don't know what they are making now. I only know from the type of house, and I do know that we need certain things that we do not now have, and I would very much like to have the opportunity to have my buyers and myself go into those houses that we are barred from, and see what they have got, be able to buy them.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In other words, it is just an intellectual curiosity on your part to see what the Guild manufacturers are selling, not predicated upon any knowledge of their past ability 8436 to manufacture merchandise? Is that what you are complaining about?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. That is not what he said.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Dillon, on page 4687 of the record— A. Pardon me. May I have a drink of water?

Examiner Bennett: You may have a recess to get a drink of water, if you wish.

Mr. Albert: May we have a general recess now?

Examiner Bennett: Very well.

(A short recess was thereupon taken.)

Examiner Bennett: You may continue, Mr. Albert.

Mr. Albert: What was my last question?

(Last question read, as follows: "Q. Now, Mr. Dillon, on page 4687 of the record——")

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) —you testified that you have not been 8438
able to replace the dresses that you had formerly obtained from the Dolces Dresses, C. H. D. Robbins and Louise Mulligan, and you stated those are distinct types of houses. You also testified on page 4690 of the record that your customers come to you daily in considerable numbers, "expecting to find in our store the best merchandise on the market, but we, in my opinion, do not have it."

On page 4699 of the record, you testified, "We apparently haven't got the right dresses at those prices."

On page 4705 of the record, in referring to advertisements appearing in "Vogue" and similar publications, and your inability to join in those advertisements, you said that it offers an opportunity to capitalize on the authenticity of the clothes. 8439

Were not all those references to your necessity to obtain merchandise from Guild sources, referring more to the style of the dresses furnished by Guild sources than to any other element? A. No.

Q. Is it your contention that non-Guild members cannot get as good material as Guild manufacturers for their dresses? A. I do not make any contentions at all on the thing.

Q. Is it your contention that non-Guild members cannot obtain as good labor to turn out a dress in the same needled fashion as Guild members? A. I do not make any contention along those lines at all.

Q. You have given various reasons for the fluctuation, or perhaps I should say the decrease, in the sales volume in Departments 334, 335, 354 and 374 for the period February, 1936, to July, 1936, in which period you first took over those departments, in comparison with the period February, 1935, to July, 1935, during which time you were not in charge of those departments. Would you not add as an element in the percentage of decrease in the sale 8441 volume the reflection in those departments, in their sales, of your opinion that style is not the most important element in the purchase of a dress to a woman?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: I think it is a perfectly fair question.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: I just want to reduce this whole line of testimony, now.

Examiner Bennett: All right. If he has an answer, he may give it.

The Witness: May I have the question, please?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I cannot understand that at all.

Mr. Albert: All right. I will reframe it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have given us figures which generally show that from February, 1936, to July, 1936, four of your departments, for the most part, had a decrease in total sales volume, is that correct? I am referring to the exhibits that you put in evidence. A. Let me see the exhibit, will you, please?

Q. Commission's Exhibits 587 and 588. A. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Over the comparative period in 1935? A. This refers to three price lines only, in each instance.

Q. Yes. A. The figures I am talking about here, this is a true picture. It is not a statement of the entire departmental operations.

Q. Well, insofar as it concerns those three departments, it shows generally that in those departments there was a 8444 decrease in sales volume over the similar period of last year, isn't that so?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. It is contrary to the witness' testimony. He has restricted his testimony to three price lines.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Three price lines in those departments? A. Yes.

Q. And you have offered those as being indicative of the departments, have you not, or is it testimony or is it the intention of the Boston Store that the decrease was only in those three price lines in those departments? A. In looking at this department here, I consider these the ele- 8445 ments of where we live more or less in them, they are the heart price lines.

Q. Yes. A. And in getting a picture of the trend of a department, I try to keep to the fundamentals. Those are the three main price lines, the ten cost, ten, eleven, twelve, in there; that is quite a market; and the fifteen to eighteen dollar cost, that is another big market, twenty-nine dollar retail.

Q. Then you offer these figures as a cross-section of the department? A. They are the price lines of these three departments.

Q. In those three price lines there was a decrease in the total sales volume in 1936, from February to July, over the same period in 1935, isn't that so? A. No. In 1935 we showed a big increase.

Q. You complain, do you not, that in Department 374, for the period February 1st to July 31st, 1936, in your $12.95, $16.95 and $19.95 price lines, there was a decrease of 45 per cent.; 40 per cent. and 55 per cent., respectively, over the same period in 1935, do you not? A. If it is what 8447 is on the paper, I do.

Q. Those are the figures, yes. You also complain, do you not, that in Departments 334, 335 and 354, in the $16.95 and $29.75 price lines, there was a decrease over the same period in 1935 of 4 per cent. and of 55 per cent., respectively, is that not so? A. If that is on the paper, I do.

Q. You did not take over these departments until February of 1936, isn't that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was another gentleman in charge of those departments in 1935, isn't that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have given us various opinions as to the reasons for this decrease over the similar period in 1935, is that not so? A. I don't understand that.

8448 Q. In explaining these figures, you have set forth as your opinion various reasons as to why there was a decrease in these departments, haven't you?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; there is no such testimony. The figures were submitted and identified to support his opinion of what the effect of the red carding was. He did not do what counsel said he did. He referred to these as confirming what he had already testified to.

Examiner Bennett: I think he went into some detail. He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Will you read the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: My whole feeling about these figures is t at this reflects the merchandise that is available at these price lines last year and this year. I read from these figures that apparently we did not have the right merchandise this year, compared to last year.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And that is why there was a decrease? A. Yes, sir. 8450

Q. Now, would you add as an element to be considered, as a reason to be considered for that decrease, the fact that since you have taken over the departments, and under your aegis, the conception under you is that style is not the most important element to be considered in furnishing dresses to women customers?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. There is nothing to show that it was any different before, or at the present time. There is no probative value to that question. It is irrelevant and immaterial, no foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: It is speculative, but I will let him speculate. Go ahead.

Mr. Albert: That is all we have had this morning, your Honor, is speculation. 8451

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, and move it be strick n.

Mr. Albert: There has been a lot of short selling this morning.

Mr. Haycraft: You asked for it, and got it.

Mr. Albert: I am perfectly satisfied, Mr. Haycraft, perfectly satisfied the way it stands.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead with the answer.

The Witness: May I have it again?

Examiner Bennett: It is very interesting, this conversation between you and Mr. Haycraft, but it is not getting us very far.

(Question read by the reporter.)

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Can you answer that question? A. I can answer it.

By Mr. Albert.

8453 Q. If you say you would rather not answer it, Mr. Dillon, I will withdraw the question. A. I would rather not.

Q. You would rather not? A. I would rather not answer it. I don't understand what you are driving at.

Mr. Albert: I will withdraw it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Dillon, what is it that is printed in "Vogue," in "Harper's Bazaar," and these various magazines that you have testified to as setting forth the trend of the fashions? A. What is there that is printed?

Q. Yes. A. Well, we have them here, if you would like to refer to them.

Q. I would like your description of them. A. They are 8454 editorials, fashion editorials of magazines.

Q. I mean, as regards the fashion; I don't mean what the editorials are, puffing, and everything else. A. The editorials are the heart of the magazine, in those instances.

Q. I am sorry. My statement may reflect the fact I do not read "Vogue." Tell us what there is in it. A. The custom is to have the fashion editor of "Ladies' Home Journal," for instance, go around the market, the manufacturers' showrooms, see what is going on, even do a little constructive suggesting sometimes in lines, and they select various clothes which they consider to be very much in the mode, or which are about to become the mode in their judgment, and they present them to their readers, who pay the price to buy these magazines for that information, and they present this information to them on what is what in clothes.

Q. Is it true, and I am now asking you for information, that the only thing that a woman can see in "Vogue," when a dress is set forth in "Vogue," is the style of that dress? A. I still come back to my statement, whenever they look or think about fashions, they only think of it put on themselves; it can be done in color, showing a lot of 8456 accessories, and how they can use it; it can be done in just as many inventive ways as the magazine can to make it appeal to her.

Q. Then, is it your contention that the Guild manufacturers are more successful than any other manufacturers in getting up styles which will appeal to women from day to day, time in and time out? A. I don't like the word "styles." I think they get a better garment, which involves more than what I think you call style.

Q. What is a "hot" number, Mr. Dillon? A. Oh, I don't know whether you mean——

Q. What? A. What usage do you make of that? What do you mean by that, yourself?

Q. Well, referring to dresses. A. Yes.

Q. Now, in a dress, what constitutes a "hot" number? 8457
A. With me?

Q. A "hot" number is a term used in the industry, is it not, in reference to dresses? A. There are all kinds of different ideas in the market; if you want my idea of what a "hot" number is, I will tell you. I don't know what.

Q. Is your conception of what is a "hot" number different from the industry conception of a "hot" number? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, let us have your definition of a "hot" number. A. A number that sells very rapidly, and allows us to reorder.

Q. What is the most important element in a dress that makes it a "hot" number? A. The whole dress, everything.

Q. Would you say that a Mother Hubbard, of excellent material, excellent workmanship and excellent needlework, was a "hot" number, or would it become a "hot" number? A. For the Mother Hubbard department, it might be.

Q. Aside from that, it would not be any "hot" number, 8459 would it? A. I don't know.

Q. And then, as I take it, in so far as you are concerned, Mr. Dillon, you cannot say that the style of a dress is the most important thing to a woman? A. I would not say that, no.

Q. Very well. How many dresses would you say are sold a day in the Boston Store?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. There is in evidence Commission's Exhibit 558, Mr. Dillon, demonstrating that from the period September 10, 8460 1935, until February 11, 1936, the Boston Store returned eighty-four dresses as having been adjudged copies of other dresses. Would you say that the Boston Store sells more or less than eighty-four dresses a day?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: May I ask, why it is not proper cross-examination, in the light of this?

Mr. Haycraft: May I just be allowed to talk to you and make my objection, without being interrupted?

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead, make your objection.

Mr. Haycraft: This exhibit was not identified by this witness, he knew nothing about it, it was before his time. It was identified by a previous witness on the stand, who was cross-examined with respect to it. I object to it as not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: I respectfully urge, if it please the Court, that the previous witness was put on as a 8462 representative of the Boston Store, not as Mr. Rowse. We are not interested in Mr. Rowse, and, with all due respect to the gentleman on the stand now, he is put on as a representative of the Boston Store, and not as Mr. Dillon personally, and that any cross-examination with respect to this particular store, which is a particular niche in this hearing, can be had of any witness representing this store.

Mr. Haycraft: That is about the weirdest interpretation of the law of evidence in a trial, and of cross-examination——

Mr. Albert (interposing): I cannot help it if Mr. Haycraft is having nightmares.

Mr. Haycraft: —that I have heard of in a long 8463 time.

Examiner Bennett: Well, of course, a man hardly has knowledge of things that he has not testified about.

Mr. Albert (interposing): That does not mean that he has not the knowedge of it, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection. There is no use of talking further upon it.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may have an exception.

Mr. Haycraft: I wish to point out at this time, Mr. Examiner, that pursuant to a statement made by counsel yesterday, we have obtained other witnesses and have them waiting to testify.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, well, I do not see that —I say there is nothing to be done except go ahead and make your objections as the points come up.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

Examiner Bennett: Anything further?

8465 Mr. Haycraft: No redirect.

Mr. Albert: Nothing else; I suggest that all the testimony be stricken out, your Honor.

(Witness excused.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you desire to call another witness?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I have another witness. Just a moment, there is one witness that I would like to call for just one exhibit. Mr. Vogt, come back to the stand for just a moment.

R. E. VOGT thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having previously been sworn,

8466 testified further as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Vogt, I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 591 for Identification, and ask you if you know anything about that paper (indicating)? A. I do.

Q. What is it? A. It is a statement of sales, Louise Mulligan dresses, made between August, 1935, and March, 1936, in six price lines.

Q. Did you prepare it? A. It was prepared under my direction.

Q. Have you checked it against the record? A. Yes.

Q. And you know it is correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Is that all?

Mr. Haycraft: He may want to ask him some questions regarding it.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Thereupon the paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 591, was received in evidence.)

8468

(Witness excused.)

MRS. FRANCES MALSH was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

The Witness: I just want to say that my hearing is not keen, and I would like to hear everything.

Examiner Bennett: I see.

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

8469

Q. State your full name. A. Mrs. Frances Malsh.

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, where do you live? A. 5120 Harper Avenue.

Q. Chicago? A. Yes, Chicago.

Q. What business are you in? A. Well, in the ladies' apparel—that is, I was.

Q. Where is your place of business? A. At the same address, 5120 Harper Avenue.

Q. Is that a store, or a residence? A. No, it is a residential, it is an apartment, high-class apartment building.

Q. Now, just what do you sell, just what do you include in your apparel line? A. Well, ladies' outer-wear and silk garments, and also knit-wear.

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, did you ever hear of an organization known as the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, I did.

Q. When did you first hear of that organization? A. Well, when I went to New York, two years ago.

Q. How long have you been in business? A. Very close to fifteen years.

8171 Q. Have you always conducted the same type of business? A. No, no, I had a floor shop, a very large floor shop, downstairs shop, street shop.

Q. When was that? A. Well, that was when I first started.

Q. And when did you move your business to where you are now? A. Well, I had a very unfortunate occurrence.

Q. How long have you been in your present location? A. Well, I have been in the present location four years, almost four years, and I have been conducting an upstairs shop for approximately nine years, five years I was downstairs on the floor.

By Mr. Martin.

8172 Q. Mrs. Malsh, have you ever heard of the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago? A. Well, I did after I received a letter for me to call on Mr. Fletcher.

Q. Do you recall when that was? A. Well, right after I returned from that trip to New York.

Q. Which trip? A. When I first heard of the Originators Guild.

Q. When you first heard of the F.O.G.A.? A. Yes. I signed an agreement there that I would join, of course not knowing that—asked me to, as a matter of fact, sir, and then after refusing me they asked me to call on Mr. Fletcher.

Mr. Albert: Now, I ask that the answer of the witness be stricken; it is not responsive to the question.

Mr. Martin: I think it was responsive, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: It may stand.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

8474

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 225 for Identification, and ask you can you identify that (indicating)? A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is it? A. That is my signature.

Q. Well, what is it, your signature to what? A. Well, it is an application to the Guild.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, may I ask in referring to Guilds, distinguish as to what she is referring to. There has now been reference to the Michigan Avenue Guild and to the Fashion Originators Guild.

Mr. Martin: All right, just a moment.

By Mr. Martin.

8475

Q. Read it, Mrs. Malsh, and tell us what Guild you refer to. A. "I do hereby apply for membership"—do you want me to read it out loud or to myself?

Mr. Albert: No.

Mr. Martin: No, just read it to yourself.

The Witness: Well, I suppose that meant, the general Guild, I don't know whether this means—it is the Guild in New York, I suppose.

Mr. Albert: I object.

The Witness: The real Guild, and this is a part of it.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object and ask that it be stricken. We are not interested in what she supposes it refers to. The question was what Guild does it refer to.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Read it and see what name is mentioned in there.
A. Michigan Avenue Guild.

8477 Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence (referring to Commission's Exhibit 225).

(Whereupon, at 2.15 o'clock P. M., August 28, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adojurned, to reconvene on Monday, August 31, 1936, at Minneapolis, Minnesota, in Room 307, Old Federal Building, at 10 o'clock A. M., Central Standard Time.)

Room 307, Federal Building,
Minneapolis, Minnesota,
August 31st, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M., C.S.T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

E. F. HAYCRAFT, Esq., and R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission. 8480

M. A. ALBERT, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., and HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq., appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.

HAROLD G. CANT, of Kingman, Cross, Morley, Cant & Taylor, 1010 Security Building, appearing for The Dayton Company, Minneapolis, Minn.

SAMUEL H. MOSLON, of Brill & Moslon, 500 Builders Exchange Building, appearing for Roy H. Bjorkman and Roy H. Bjorkman, Inc., and Minneapolis Fashion Guild, Minneapolis, Minn.

PROCEEDINGS. 8481

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I would like to have fifteen minutes.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want some more time?

Mr. Haycraft: Give me until——

Examiner Bennett: All right, sir.

(A short recess was taken.)

8482 Proceedings.
Roy H. Bjorkman—For Commission—Direct.

Examiner Bennett: Are you ready?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Bjorkman, will you come over, please? You will be sworn.

ROY H. BJORKMAN thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified 8483 as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you state your full name? A. Roy H. Bjorkman.

Q. Address? Where do you live? A. Home address or the business address?

Q. Give us both. A. 4509 Moreland. 931 Nicolett Street, business address.

Q. What business are you engaged in? A. Ladies' ready-to-wear.

Q. At the address you have last given? A. 931 Nicolett, yes.

Q. How long have you been in that business, Mr. Bjork-8484 man? A. In this business?

Q. Yes. A. Twenty-seven years.

Q. Not all at that address, though? A. Thirteen.

Q. Do you specialize in any particular type of ladies' ready-to-wear? A. Well, medium and the high grade.

Q. What price range do you sell at retail? A. We sell sport things from $10 and up, silk dresses from $15 and up, coats from $19.95 and up, furs from $100 and up. During the summer period we naturally have the less expensive cotton things from $5.95 and up.

Q. Who would you say were the principal competitors that you have in that particular line of merchandise? A. Well, unfortunately, we think everybody on Nicolett Avenue, ha, ha, ha!

Q. Name some of your principal competitors? A. Principal? Well, Raleighs, Jackson-Graves, Young and Quinlan.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind going a little slower? Jackson-Graves?

The Witness: Jackson-Graves, John W. Thomas, Harolds, Dayton Company, Powers. Those are our principal—and the Jenny Lee, Dubois, Donaldson.

8486

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And have they been your principal competitors, say, during the past ten or twelve years? A. Yes.

Q. Are some of them in and out? Have some of them come in and gone out? A. No, they have been all here except Harolds. Harolds was organized about two years ago. The Atkinson store had been in the picture. They have consolidated with Thomas.

Q. When did that consolidation take place? A. In the last year.

Q. Now, these stores that you have named, are they engaged in the sale of ladies' ready-to-wear in the same price range that you have indicated in your reply or do they include the wider price ranges in their business? A. 8487
Naturally a little bit wider, because they go into the very cheap—I mean in the basement ranges which we do not carry.

Q. Without imposing on your modesty, I would like to ask whether your store is considered one of the best stores in Minneapolis? A. Yes, we are considered probably the most exclusive specialty store in Minneapolis, because we got about $135,000 in walnut fixtures which I think gives it a good front.

Q. I will give you a chance to do some advertising. A. We don't know whether that is good advertising or not any more.

Q. Have you been active at all in trade association work among the retail dealers in ladies' ready-to-wear in Minneapolis?

Mr. Moslon: Just a moment. Just a moment. Objected to as irrelevant and incompetent, purely intrastate transaction.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question and the objection.

(The record was read.)

8489 Mr. Haycraft: Foundation.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I am going to hear what you want to bring out.

Mr. Moslon: Please note an exception.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I am going to hear what is going to be brought out.

The Witness: Yes, I have been—I have been active ever since I have been in Minneapolis as far as our own Ready-to-Wear Group, which has always met—always met periodically here in the discussion of sale periods and all that.

Q. Have you had a formal organization during the past ten years?

8490 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

Mr. Moslon: May we note the same objection to this question, please?

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Overruled.

Mr. Moslon: Exception noted, please.

Mr. Albert: Objected to on the part of the respondent F.O.G.A. as calling for a conclusion of the witness, no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I have already ruled on it. Go ahead.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

The Witness: May I have that again? Did you say "have"?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Well, it all depends on what you mean here by a formal. We have never had a formal organization, no.

8492

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated? A. Very much, sir.

Q. When did you first hear of that organization? A. Well, that is going back quite a ways. I think it was about the fall of 1932, I believe.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this for identification.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 592 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 592 for Identification and ask if you can identify it? A. Yes, sir, I can identify that. 8493

Q. What is that? A. Why, it was the meeting we had——

Q. Just a minute. I am not asking you what the subject matter of it is. I am just asking you what the paper is. A. I am trying to explain it, if you will be patient a moment.

Examiner Bennett: Just the date and the par ties.

The Witness: Oh.

Examiner Bennett: Give the date.

Mr. Haycraft: They won't allow you to tell wha is in it.

The Witness: December 28th, 1932.

Examiner Bennett: Letter from whom to whom

The Witness: Letter from Mr. Bjorkman to Mr Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild of America

By Mr. Haycraft.

8495 Q. Did you write the original of that letter? A. Yes sir.

Q. This is a carbon copy? A. That is right.

Examiner Bennett: Was it sent——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And the original was sent to Mr. Golby, was it? A That is right.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence.

(The paper referred to was handed to Mr. Al bert.)

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please th Court, upon the ground no proper foundation ha

8496 been laid, not binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A and not within the issues of the complaint in so fa as the matter—concerns matters purely intrastat and without the jurisdiction of the Commission.

Examiner Bennett: Will you let me see the docu ment?

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. Counsel is read ing it.

(Commission's Exhibit 592 for Identification was handed to the Examiner.)

Examiner Bennett: Have you the letter to which this was an answer?

The Witness: I don't think that there was an answer to that letter.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it was written evidently in answer to another letter, "replying to your letter of the 24th," and so on.

Mr. Haycraft: I couldn't find it.

The Witness: Isn't it there? I don't know.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: That is all my secretary could find. 8498

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection and receive it.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 592, was received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: I understand that there is no point made of the paper being a copy? The Commission can demand the original.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor that in keeping with the policy of the respondent F.O.G.A. and not contesting the fact that originals are not presented——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: In that sense I have no objection to the letter except that we have no copy of the original and haven't it in our files, and I have asked Mr. Post as to whether or not he recalls having received such a letter and he says that he does not.

Mr. Haycraft: Does Mr. Post have the letter?

Examiner Bennett: I don't care about the question, I just wanted to be sure that it was not raised.

Mr. Albert: No, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to inquire of the respondents if they have the letter of December 24th, from Mr. Golby to the witness?

Mr. Post: December 24th?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. 1932.

Mr. Albert: No.

The Witness: I can elucidate a little bit further on that if you would like to have me.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. If you can explain——

8501

Examiner Bennett: Give the whole story.

Mr. Haycraft: I will get at it in a moment. You will have it in just a moment. I want to see if this other letter is here, that is all.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Haycraft: Did you find it, Mr. Post?

Mr. Post: No.

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, then, I will ask the witness. In this first paragraph it says: "Replying to your favor of the 24th, we have already called a meeting of the outstanding merchants which will be held at the Athletic Club Friday afternoon, December 30th."

8502

The second paragraph says: "I will endeavor to form an organization that will co-operate and affiliate with the parent organization in New York. I will keep you posted on the outcome."

Now, I ask you, Mr. Bjorkman, what preceded this letter to which you referred to?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as incompetent, immaterial, outside of the scope of the investigation by the Federal Trade Commission, and in no way binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A. We are back in 1932 now.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. You may answer.

Examiner Bennett: I shall overrule the objection. He may answer.

The Witness: I was very much interested in the Fashion Originators Guild. I have been in this business twenty-seven years and I was very enthusiastic about it. We discussed it naturally with a few of the outstanding manufacturers, including Mr. Rentner and Mr. Golby. That was before Mr. 8504
Post was with the organization. We had lunch together in New York. I was heartily in accord with their ideals and their purposes and I naturally said, "Okay. I will go home and see if I can get this crowd together as a local Fashion Group." That was all——

Mr. Maslon: You have answered the question.

Mr. Martin: I object. Let the witness answer the question without interruption by counsel.

Mr. Maslon: He has answered.

Mr. Martin: I object to any interruption.

The Witness: In fact, I was practically through. I called the meeting and we sold them all on it and they were all in favor without a dissenting vote, 8505 with one or two exceptions, but they all saw the ideal possibilities, so they were all in favor of giving it a trial.

Mr. Haycraft: I will join with counsel for respondent and ask the witness to try to confine his answers to my questions. I do not want you to volunteer anything.

The Witness: You asked me what occurred, and that was the inspiration of the letter.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Had there been a meeting prior to this of the Minneapolis group? Had you been to New York? A. On the part of the Guild?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Had you been to New York on the part of the Guild? A. No.

Q. You were in New York on other business? A. No.

Q. Do you have a brother in New York buying dresses in New York? A. No, I don't know of any.

Q. You don't know of any? A. No.

Q. Were you ever engaged in that business? A. No.

8507 Q. As I understand your testimony, while you were in New York on your business trip, you discussed this matter of the Guild? A. Well, as a matter of fact, we discussed it in a casual manner, their aspirations.

Q. Did they say anything to you about getting the Minneapolis group to co-operate? A. No, no. In fact, I really volunteered.

Q. You volunteered? A. Yes.

Q. Then what did you do after you got home? A. We just called a meeting at the Athletic Club and discussed it, that was all. Nothing formal was done.

Q. Let us take it up step by step.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 593 for Identification.)

8508 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. First I will ask you if you recall the context of the letter of December 24th from Mr. Golby? A. I am sorry, I don't, only that it was just a short letter, thanking me and of appreciation for my intended support and asking me if I had called the group of ladies' ready-to-wear merchants together. That was all.

Q. Now, I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 593, and see if you can tell me what that is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you send the original of that letter to Mr. Golby? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This is a carbon copy? A. That is right.

Q. What is the date of it and who signed the original? A. December 30th, and I signed the original.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the paper in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

Mr. Haycraft: We have two counsels here, Mr. Examiner, who want to look at the paper.

Examiner Bennett: I want to tell you there is very much of an echo derived from where you are sitting, so speak rather plainly. Do you want me 8510 to look at it? That is the one you are offering?

Mr. Haycraft: That is the one.

Examiner Bennett: It will be received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit 593 for Identification, was received in evidence.)

(Thereupon papers were marked Commission's Exhibits 594 and 595 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Bjorkman, do you remember the personnel that you appointed, as indicated in your letter of December 30th, 1932? 8511

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please, as immaterial and irrelevant, not binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A., outside of the issues of the complaint.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: I honestly don't believe I can.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was Donovan, of Dayton Company? A. I think Mr. Larson of Dayton was, if my memory is correct. I really would hate to say, but if my memory is correct, Mr. Larson of Dayton and Mr. Laihff and Mr. Young, Quinlan and myself.

Mr. Maslon: Will you just answer the question, and don't guess, please?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 594 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, sir.

8513

Q. Did you receive it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom to whom? A. Mr. Golby to myself.

Q. Dated? A. January 3rd, 1933.

Mr. Haycraft: Offer this in evidence.

Mr. Albert: It is objected to, if it please the Court, as outside of the scope of the complaint and not within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Haycraft: May I ask a question in respect to that last objection, Mr. Examiner?

Examiner Bennett: What?

Mr. Haycraft: Before you rule I would like to ask the witness a question, before you rule on the objection.

8514

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is this letter in reply to your letter of December 30th, 1932, or does it relate to the same subject-matter? A. Let me see that letter, please. (After examining letter) This was not in reply to any letter. This was just a volunteered letter;

Q. This letter here (indicating)? A. That is right.

Q. That is right? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 594, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, it says in this letter from Mr. Golby, dated January 3rd, 1933, Commission's Exhibit No. 594, "We are anxiously awaiting the report of your Committee is drafting and trust that it will be favorable. If you desire copies of minutes of the various Retail Guilds that are now functioning for the benefit of the ready-to-wear business, please do not hesitate to call upon us and we will forward to you such copies as we have on hand." Do you recall whether or not you asked for such copies? 8516

Mr. Albert: Objected to; immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

The Witness: I don't recall asking for it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I asked you if you recall asking for them? A. I don't recall.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 595 for Identification and ask you if you can identify it? A. Evidently I did. 8517

Q. Do you identify this as a copy of the telegram? A. Yes.

Q. Who sent it? A. I did.

Q. To whom? A. James Golby.

Q. What date? A. January 7th.

Q. What year? A. 1933.

Mr. Haycraft: Offer it in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: 595?

Mr. Albert: It is objected to, if the Court please, outside of the scope of the Commission's investigation.

Examiner Bennett: May I see the telegram, please?

(Telegram handed to the Examiner.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled, and received.

(The telegram referred to, heretofore marked for 8519 identification Commission's Exhibit 595, was received in evidence.)

(Thereupon papers were marked Commission's Exhibits 596-A, B and C for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 595 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that?

Examiner Bennett: That is three sheets.

Mr. Haycraft: Three pages.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

8520 Q. Did you receive that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom? A. Maurice Rentner.

Q. Who was he at the time? A. Chairman of the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Q. Under what date? A. December 6th, 1932.

Mr. Haycraft: It is offered in evidence.

Mr. Albert: This is in four or five times.

Mr. Haycraft: Can you give me the number of it?

Mr. Feldman: At least once.

(Discussion had off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: Have you offered it? They said it was in evidence already.

Mr. Haycraft: I have offered it. I say I am waiting now to see if we can find the number, and then I will withdraw it. I will withdraw the offer for the time being, if I will be allowed to refer to it.

Mr. Albert: Yes, certainly.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 597 for Identification.)

8522

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 597 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that one? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom? A. Mr. Golby, December 24th, 1932.

Q. Calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit 592, I will ask you if this was the letter you referred to in your letter of December 28th to Mr. Golby? A. Yes, that is it.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 596-A to C for Identification, and ask you if that is the letter referred to in Commission's Exhibit No. 597, the first paragraph? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer Commission's Exhibit No. 597 in evidence.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 597, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: I renew my objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; received.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I now call your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 595, and ask you whether or not you recall receiving from the Guild, from Mr. Golby, copies of the minutes of their retail Guilds?

Mr. Albert: Objected to as immaterial, if the Court please.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibits 598-A to H for Identification.)

8525

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 598-A to H, and ask you if you received this from Mr. Golby? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: Offered in evidence.

Commission's Exhibit No. 598-A is an original letter from Mr. Golby dated January 7th, 1933, addressed to Mr. Bjorkman.

I haven't heard whether there is any objection to it or not.

Examiner Bennett: Received. Are you making an objection to Exhibit No. 598?

Mr. Albert: Oh, yes.

Examiner Bennett: All right, sir. We will take up the objection, first.

Mr. Albert: Respondent F.O.G.A. objects to Commission's Exhibit No. 598-A—I withdraw that.

Respondent objects to Commission's Exhibit No. 598-B through to H, on the ground that the minutes refer to matters which are not binding in any manner whatsoever upon the F.O.G.A., contains minutes of certain hearings of an organization upon whom at the present time we do not believe any hearings are going to be held, and refers to matters that have long since antedated the complaint, with respect to which the Federal Trade Commission is investigating; refers to matters of procedure that have long since been superseded by other matters and procedure since the taking of these minutes, and contain matter which, if gotten in this manner through this witness, is impossible for the Fashion Originators Guild to cross-examine upon them.

Now, if the Commission wishes to show that the 8528
Minneapolis Guild in drafting its program sought assistance by using the programs of other Guilds as models, I think that a simple statement of that kind is sufficient without putting into the record the minutes of the uptown retail Guild, which are in no manner or means binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, and as to which we cannot examine this witness who knows nothing about them.

In addition, if it please the Court, I wish to specifically point out that the uptown retail Guild is not a named respondent in this proceeding, so that the context and substance of what occurred at its particular meetings has no relevancy or bearing whatsoever upon this proceeding. I have not objected to Commission's Exhibit No. 598-A by rea- 8529
son of the fact that I state that I can see no relevancy to the fact that the Commission wants to bring out the point that the Minneapolis Guild sought assistance in formulating its program by attempting to be guided by the programs of others, but if the Commission permits such testimony to go into evidence, I don't think it will be of very great importance.

8530 Roy H. Bjorkman—For Commission—Direct.

However, to permit these minutes to go in, I believe it is very vital as against the Fashion Originators Guild, since it is impossible for us to cross-examine upon it, and certainly by reason of the fact that these matters have all been superseded since that time and they long antedate the period about which the Federal Trade Commission complains.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The papers referred to, herefore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 598-A to H, were received in evidence.)

8531

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, do you recall now who attended your meeting held in January, 1933? A. You mean January or December?

Q. December, 1933? A. Yes, I can. You mean the stores or individuals?

Q. Stores or individuals, either one. A. Yes. There was Young and Quinlan, Raleigh's Jackson-Graves, Thomas, Atkinson, Dayton's Powers' Bjorkman's, Mary Jones, Donaldson.

Q. The representatives of those various organizations were the merchandise managers? Were they buyers or what? A. Heads of the store and the merchandising men.

8532 They were all executives.

Q. Now, at that meeting what took place with reference to the formation—with respect to the co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, if you recall?

Mr. Maslon: Just a moment. I object as calling for a conclusion of this witness.

Examiner Bennett: You were present at these meetings?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: All right. What took place?

Mr. Albert: May I ask whether there were any minutes taken of that meeting?

The Witness: No, no.

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer. A. Well, we organized, or we met r lunch and discussed the possibilities and the feasibility this organization—of this organization's aspirations New York, and also for the possible improvement of r own retail conditions here on Nicolette Avenue.

Q. Did you agree to do anything about it? A. Well, ere was no action taken at all. 8534

Q. All right. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 9-A and B; do you recall receiving that letter? A. Yes,

Q. I would like to have you refresh your recollection to the first paragraph of the letter, as to what action as taken at that meeting. A. Well, I will explain why is——

Q. First answer: I am asking you whether or not this freshes your recollection? A. Yes, sure.

Q. Of what took place at the meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Having refreshed your recollection, now will you tify as to whether or not there was any agreement or tion taken at that first meeting? A. There was no ac-n. That is what I said. There was no action taken and 8535 minutes or anything. We just discussed the possi-ities of it.

Q. Was there any agreement as to further procedure?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, as to whether or not there was any agreement, as calling for a conclusion of the witness.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: May I have that question?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Well, there were a few of these merchandise men that didn't feel that they could act for the institution, like Mr. Snyder of Powers, who is the merchandise man. So they went home to discuss it with the heads of the institution.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: The question is, is there an agreement or not. I think the question can be answered "Yes" or "No."

8537

Examiner Bennett: Denied. Go ahead.

The Witness: I have answered.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was there any agreement or understanding that these individual stores would write letters to the Guild, the Fashion Originators Guild of America, setting forth their ideas?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for the conclusion of the witness as to whether or not there was an agreement. I think that what the Commission wants is a statement from this witness as to what was said and the Court can deem for itself whether or not that constituted an agreement.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I don't expect the witness to tell in detail what each man at that lunch party had said. If he can tell the substance, he is doing very well.

Mr. Haycraft: You may answer.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

(The question was read.)

The Witness: I didn't think that there was—that this letter—rather——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, I think you can just stop right there. A. No, no.

Q. Let me ask you this question: Was there any understanding or agreement that you as charmain of the group would write such a letter to the Guild? A. No.

Q. Was there any plan made for future action by your group? A. Yes. We were going to meet again later to discuss it further. 8540

Q. Did you ask the members that were present at that meeting to submit at a later meeting their reactions to the plan of the Guild? A. You mean the various merchants?

Q. Yes. A. We were going to have another meeting.

Q. What was the idea of the further meeting? A. Well, of course, there were a few of these individuals that couldn't act for the institutions. They didn't have the authority. This is one of them. I think this is the only letter that we received, I believe, out of the twelve or fourteen members that met.

Q. This that you refer to is a letter— A. Mr. Snyder of Powers——

Q. To yourself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Under what date? A. January 17th, 1933. 8541

Q. Did the Powers Mercantile Company later affiliate itself with the Guild? A. Very much so.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I haven't been able to hear that last question and the answer. There seems to be a little private colloquy between Mr. Haycraft and the witness. May I ask that it be repeated?

(The record was read.)

Mr. Maslon: What Guild are you talking about?

The Witness: Minneapolis Retailers Guild.

Mr. Maslon: I object to that as immaterial, not within the scope of this proceeding, confined to purely intrastate transaction.

Examiner Bennett: What was that statement?

(The record was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, Commission's Exhibit No. 599-A and B, is a letter from one——

Examiner Bennett: I don't know just the status of that. It seems to have been more or less identified. I don't know that it has been offered.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I have offered it, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: You have? All right.

Mr. Albert: It is a letter from the Powers Mercantile Company, whoever that may be, to Mr. Bjorkman containing certain ideas and theories of the Powers Mercantile Company in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, in no way binding upon the Minneapolis Guild, in no way germane to the proceedings here, dated January 17th, 1933; and in addition, if it please the Court, I object to it upon the ground that no proper proof whatsoever has been presented with respect to the letter in question. It is a letter from a fourth party to a third party, the relevancy of which as regards the Fashion Originators Guild has not been brought out.

(The letter referred to was handed to the Examiner.)

Mr. Albert: I think in line with your Honor's previous rulings with respect thereto, it should be excluded. Certainly the Fashion Originators Guild is utterly cut off from any cross-examination with respect to this particular letter. Insofar as our ability to probe into it is concerned with respect to the Powers Company, we are cut off.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Were you at this time or afterwards co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? Had you signed the articles of co-operation? A. No.

Q. You never did? A. As an individual? No.

Q. I mean as a firm? A. Yes. Well, no. We all signed.

Q. Do you understand what I am asking? A. We 8546 signed as the group, you know. I mean, as an association.

Q. I am asking you individually whether you had signed a document agreeing to co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I really don't recall.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 4, Mr. Bjorkman and then see if you can answer the Judge's question?

Examiner Bennett: I wanted to see the status——

Mr. Albert: There is no testimony here whatsoever, your Honor, as to the Powers Company, as to who they are, or what they are, and that letter ob- 8547 viously refers to a period of time even antedating the formation of the Minneapolis Guild.

Mr. Haycraft: I will have to reply to that, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment, please. I wish you gentlemen would keep your peace until I get through with this man.

Mr. Haycraft: All right, then. I just want to——

Examiner Bennett: You have had your obje tion at great length.

The Witness: We hadn't signed anything that time.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

The Witness: I say we hadn't signed anythi at that time.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. But you did later? A. As the group. I don't thi —not as an individual firm.

Q. I am asking you as a concern? A. Yes.

8549 Q. You know what I mean; don't you? A. Yes, I u derstand.

Q. Yes. I see. And you have testified that the oth parties to this letter co-operated also? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. That is all wanted to find out.

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

The Witness: Ultimately they became one the best boosters of the organization.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: That is, the store did.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to have the witne speak so that I can hear it.

The Witness: Sorry.

8550 Examiner Bennett: I guess he won't corru the Court.

Mr. Haycraft: I am not fearful of that, yo Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(Thereupon the papers referred to, heretofo marked for identification Commission's Exhib 599-A and B, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: May I at this time inquire of Mr. Haycraft as to whether or not anybody from the Powers Company or Mr. Snyder are going to be put on the stand whom we can question with respect to the contents of that letter that is now going into evidence through this witness, who doesn't know anything whatsoever about the policies of the Powers Company?

Examiner Bennett: I think it has been identified.

Mr. Haycraft: I don't think it is necessary to argue that, Mr. Examiner. If Mr. Snyder is available I will be more than glad to have him testify. 8552

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is Mr. Snyder here? A. He is available.

Mr. Albert: Unless Mr. Haycraft states that he is going to call Mr. Snyder, I move that be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: Will you let me see the document again?

(The document referred to was handed to the Examiner.)

Examiner Bennett: The letter has been identified. I don't know what you are talking about.

By Mr. Haycraft. 8553

Q. Did you hold another meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you have any recollection of when this second meeting was held? A. No, I don't. We held lots of them at various times.

Q. Would you say it was shortly after January 17th, 1934? A. Yes, it was shortly after.

Q. '33? A. Yes. I just mentioned to the Judge that while that letter was sent by Mr. Snyder, Mr. Snyder became one of the biggest acting forces in our local organization, even after that letter, and is one of the officials today.

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, did you as—strike that out. I call your attention to this paragraph on page two of Mr. Snyder's letter: "It would be our suggestion that we write the Fashion Originators Guild and tell them that we are in accord in Minneapolis with their efforts to eliminate the abuses of unfair competition, unethical style piracy, and price cutting; and that while we cannot subscribe to the extent of signing their agreement, because of certain things contained there, yet we will strive to eliminate 8555 whatever we can of these abuses through our retailers co-operative group, and also further solicit their co-operation in aiding us in eliminating the sale of certain styles or fashions." Do you recall whether or not any draft of such letter was prepared?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing) By yourself or a committee appointed by you?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as wholly immaterial, I don't think the 8556 Commission is interested in drafts with respect to something, if it is only a draft and which was never accomplished or carried to fruition in any way. I mean, if this type of testimony keeps up I think we will be in Minneapolis until Christmas.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you recall? A. No.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you representing the group submitted to the Fashion Originators Guild, Incorporated, a letter embodying the ideas of—a letter or memorandum embodying the ideas of the Minneapolis group? A. Yes, but that was about a year or two after, I believe. You see, this is over a period of about three or four years.

Q. This was in January, 1933? A. Yes, well, but I mean that there was nothing formed or drafted for a couple or three years, I believe.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 600 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 600 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a copy of a declaration of an organization or of a formal organization which was organized in December of 1935, because we had met more or less as a loosely formed body and we hadn't had any rules, regulations, constitution at all, so that is what this is.

Q. Who prepared it? A. Well, there was a committee, Mr. Donovan, Mr. Hyman and Mr. Bjorkman.

Q. Mr. Donovan representing whom? A. The Dayton Company.

Q. Mr. Hyman representing whom? A. B. A. Atkinson.

Q. And you represented your own firm? A. That is right.

Q. Was this paper discussed at the meeting—at any meeting of your organization? A. Plenty of them.

Q. What, if anything, was done with it other than discussion? A. Well, in fact, this was signed and was sent in to the Fashion Originators Guild. It was accepted unanimously by the group.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this exhibit in evidence. You mean the original was sent to the Fashion Originators Guild?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: May we have the date of Commission's Exhibit No. 600 for Identification?

8561 The Witness: We can give you the exact date. It was in the summer of 1935, around June and July, I think.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to Commission's Exhibit No. 600, as having long since charged into the valley of death.

The Witness: Ha, ha.

Mr. Albert: Having been superseded by a subsequent agreement which is in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: What was Mr. Albert's statement?

(The statement referred to was read.)

Mr. Albert: No proper foundation has been laid with respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 600.

8562 Examiner Bennett: I would like to see that document, please.

Mr. Albert: No proper foundation of any kind has been laid with respect to that.

The Witness: We had been functioning as an organization, but we hadn't had——

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 600, was received in evidence.)

(Thereupon papers were marked Commission's Exhibits 601-A and B, 602 and 603 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A and B and ask you if you can identify that, in any way? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is the first attempt of the Minneapolis Fashion Retailers Guild, that is, for a declaration of co-operation in anti-piracy policy, with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, and after considerable discussion, a long time co-operation within ourselves, we organized this and we sent it into the Fashion Originators Guild. 8564

Q. Do you know when that happened? A. Yes. It was in June, I believe, in 1935.

Q. That is, you sent the original of this in? A. Yes, that is right.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Bjorkman, is Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A—has that exhibit ever been signed?

Mr. Haycraft: The original.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Or is this merely a draft of something? 8565

The Witness: No.

Mr. Albert: Of something that was proposed?

The Witness: This was signed. This is just an extra copy of it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating paper to the witness.)

Mr. Albert: Do you know whether or not this was accepted by the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to at this time.

The Witness: It was rejected.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. Mr. Examiner, I move that the answer be stricken. May my objection be ruled on?

Examiner Bennett: Why——

Mr. Haycraft: I will let the answer stand. I withdraw my objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

The Witness: May I have that question again?

8567 Mr. Haycraft: No, it is all over. There is no question pending.

Mr. Albert: Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A and B, if it please the Court, is objected to upon the ground that it is entirely immaterial and irrelevant by reason of the fact that it is practically solely a draft of something that the Minneapolis Guild wanted to do, and is not binding in any way upon the Fashion Originators Guild and never having been accepted by the Fashion Originators Guild, and no proof of acceptance offered by Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: The fact that it was not accepted is a very important factor in this, so that is one of the reasons I am offering it.

8568 Mr. Albert: If it is an important factor why didn't you bring that out that it wasn't accepted?

Mr. Haycraft: I will let you do that.

Examiner Bennett: Can you fix the time of this document?

The Witness: Yes, sir. June, I think, of 1935, the original is dated.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like at this time to call for the original if the respondent has it.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to the Court that there is an agreement that has been placed in evidence, which I believe is Commission's Exhibit No. 42.

Mr. Haycraft: Not of this paper.

Mr. Albert: Between the Fashion Originators Guild and the Minneapolis Guild which merges all previous conferences, agreements, or understandings, of any kind, nature and description, and Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A and B, by virtue thereof is entirely immaterial.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to have the record show that I have requested respondent to produce 8570 the original of this paper, 601-A and B.

(A discussion ensued between the witness and Mr. Maslon out of the hearing of the court reporter and the Examiner.)

Mr. Albert: I further object to the introduction of Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A and B, upon the ground that there is insufficient foundation with respect to the fact that the F.O.G.A. ever got that proposed draft which was never accepted; upon the ground that the substance thereof is in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is overruled. It may be received as Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A and B.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 8571

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 601-A and B, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, do you recall whether or not Mr. Post and Mr. Golby were in Minneapolis at a meeting of the Minneapolis Guild on or about May 13th, 1935? A. Yes, sir.

8572 Roy H. Bjorkman—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Where was that meeting held? A. Raddison Hotel.

Q. Do you recall who attended? A. Well, I think every ready-to-wear merchant in Twin Cities was there. We invited the St. Paul merchants also. About thirty-five or forty attended.

Q. Who addressed the meeting? A. Well, Mr. Post was introduced. He was introduced, he was quizzed, and answered.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. Post said on that occasion? A. Not in totality. He was there to answer the objections 8573 of a few members of the Guild or local merchants here.

Q. What were those objections?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as outside of the scope of the complaint of the Commission, referring to matters not complained of by the Commission and also referring to matters which had the sanction of the law at the time they were discussed or proposed or acted upon.

The Witness: Probably I should change that.

Examiner Bennett: Do you remember what objections he acted on?

The Witness: They were not objections. It was lack of understanding or misinformation. It was 8574 more of an educational talk as there were a lot of misunderstandings to be cleared up.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, what were the objections or misunderstandings? A. Well, the only objection that was of any size here was of the question of the price ranges that were to be involved.

Q. Involved in what? A. Well, I believe when the Guild first started, they started with a price line $16.75 and up wholesale and then there was a less expensive group at $10.75. They were anxious and ambitious to join the group, and then after they were—and then there were some objections by a few merchants over the country, I understand. There were one or two in our group here, I understand that did not know whether they wanted them or not, and Mr. Post, as I recall it, he was here on that subject more than anything else.

Q. What did he say about that? A. Well, I can just speak of it here in general matters. After he left, that was in—— 8576

Q. The 13th of May? A. That was in May, last year. We had various meetings after that time.

Q. Let us find out what Mr. Post said at that meeting? A. He was trying simply to sell the organization on the fact that they did not ask the $10.75 group to come in. They asked to join the organization, and they were perfectly willing to have them——

Q. We have too many "those," Mr. Bjorkman. A. Yes.

Q. Who did not ask the $10.75? A. The Fashion Originators Guild did not ask the $10.75 group in, neither did the retailers, I understand. They wished to join the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. You mean the $10.75 manufacturers? A. Yes. There were one or two organizations, I don't know what they call themselves, but the $10.75 manufacturers wished 8577 to join the F.O.G.A. It was perfectly satisfactory with the F.O.G.A. if it was satisfactory with the majority of merchants over the country who had signed cards or were in the various organizations. And then I believe it devolved that even the $6.75 manufacturers wanted to join the Guild. Well——

Q. Was that discussed at that meeting? Or later? A. No, that was discussed at that meeting.

Q. All right. A. If I recall. There was a question, I believe, of the possibility and of the advisability of the less expensive groups to be admitted, if they wished to be admitted. However, there was no time, there was no decision reached at all on the less expensive lines.

Q. What did Mr. Post say about that? A. Well, that was all left to the future. I mean, it was perfectly all right, I believe, from the Fashion Originators Guild standpoint if the merchants were agreeable, the majority of the merchants.

Q. Did any of the Minneapolis merchants express themselves during that meeting on that point? A. Yes. One, 8579 possibly two, quite emphatically.

Q. What about? A. Well, they did not—oh, no, that is wrong on the $10.75 there was no exception. It was agreeable down to the $10 price range, but there were one or two that I believe were interested, or I believe were not in favor they were going to go into the less expensive range.

Q. Do you remember who they were? A. I think the Dayton Company was one and at that time I believe Powers were one.

Q. Do you recall were there many others?

The Witness: Were there others, Dane?

A Voice: I do not recall.

The Witness: You were at that meeting, weren't 8580 you? No, I guess you were not. Mr. Larson was there. I recall there were two.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. There might have been others that you do not recall? A. There might have been others, yes.

Q. At that meeting or subsequent to it, was there anything said by Mr. Post with respect to a new contract or agreement between the Minneapolis Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, there is nothing in evidence as yet as to any agreement or contract between the Minneapolis Fashion Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild.

Mr. Haycraft: We have already got a couple in evidence this morning.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: The Fashion Originators Guild were not pleased with the agreement or with the declaration of anti-piracy in co-operation that we had worded so there was nothing said at that meeting, no, but there was at a subsequent time. 8582

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When subsequent, how long afterward? A. Just a ew weeks subsequent, I think it was, around June or uly.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 663— A. Well, ou have the material there.

Q. —for Identification, and ask you if that will refresh our recollection as to when it began to be a subject of iscussion between you and the Fashion Originators uild? A. Well, these contracts, as you have them there n your material, they were copies of contracts from the arious other Guilds that they had at that time. However, 8583 e did not like them, so we composed our own.

Q. You mean Mr. Golby sent you some copies? A. That right, of the others.

Q. Of Chicago and Baltimore? A. I don't know what hey are. They were Chicago and Baltimore, those two, nd possibly the New York Uptown Guild.

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, so that there will be no ques- ion as far as the record is concerned and particularly for he benefit of counsel for the respondent, I will ask you at this time to give us the various steps that were taken by the Minneapolis Guild to enter into an agreement with the F.O.G.A., Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. calling attention first to Commission's Exhibit 601-A, and ask you to testify as to the circumstances surrounding the execution of that document and what was done with it and so on.

Examiner Bennett: I will ask him to go ahead and make a full explanation, regardless of what is in the record.

Mr. Haycraft: Just forget what is in the record and make a full explanation.

8585 Mr. Albert: I think it would be the best.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I am directing your attention first to 601-A and B that is the first agreement.

Examiner Bennett: Give us the whole history. You can use the documents.

The Witness: Well, we, naturally, in an organization of this kind, where we have got humans to contend with, some of them are a little more selfish than others.

Examiner Bennett: Well, make it as short as you can.

8586 The Witness: We tried to make up an agreement that that would be satisfactory to the Guild and still would protect our province as retailers and that was why we made a few of these exceptions.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Which one of the documents are you referring to? A. This first here.

Examiner Bennett: That appeared in 601?

The Witness: 601-A and B. The exceptions were the price lines. That was really the only exceptions in the agreement that was submitted.

Examiner Bennett: That was submitted to the Guild?

The Witness: That was submitted to the Guild and rejected.

Mr. Albert: At what time, Mr. Bjorkman?

The Witness: Oh, June, or, no, about the first of July, 1935, so then we immediately drew up another. This was rejected, too.

Examiner Bennett: And that is what number? 8588
That is illustrating what number?

The Witness: 672-A.

Examiner Bennett: And that was submitted and rejected?

The Witness: No, that was rejected also.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. A to D? A. A, B, C, D, that was rejected also.

Examiner Bennett: Then what did you do?

The Witness: Then we did proceed to——

Mr. Haycraft: Let us get the date of this last one. When was that submitted and when was it rejected?

Mr. Feldman: Approximately? 8589

The Witness: This was in July, 1935, and then in late August. This is the 26th day of August, we drew up an agreement which was satisfactory to the F.O.G.A., and this was the agreement.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. 695? A. That is right.

Q. Now, between July, when 672 A, B, C, D, was submitted to the Guild, and August 26, 1935, when 695-A to E were submitted to the Guild, what was going on with respect to 672-A to D? A. Well, that was accepted temporarily, I believe here, was it not?

Q. That is what the correspondence shows. A. That was my recollection.

Examiner Bennett: Just testify.

The Witness: That was accepted, but with reservations and exceptions.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. And that is the whole story as you know it? A. Yes.

8591 Q. I want you to answer one question. Was this first document drawn, that is, I am referring to 671-A and B, was this the first document drawn relating to co-operation with the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Co-operation by the Minneapolis— A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when was it first drawn? A. May; late in May or June, 1935.

Q. And during all the time from 1932 to that time when you were in constant communication with the Guild, according to the record here, you had no formal agreement? A. No.

Examiner Bennett: I see; all right.

Mr. Haycraft: That concludes the direct examination of Mr. Bjorkman.

8592 Examiner Bennett: Do you want to go ahead with cross-examination?

Mr. Albert: No further questions, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Mr. Albert: Is the Commission going to put in letters of that kind without attempting to explain them in any way? Your Honor, we have over an hundred and possibly 200, willy-nilly.

Examiner Bennett: The Commission has stated it has rested with this witness and it is the end of its examination. You can go ahead and cross-examine.

Mr. Haycraft: It is the contention, Mr. Examiner, that the documentary evidence that has gone in——

Examiner Bennett: You can do as you think best, but there is no need for filling the record up with a lecture.

Mr. Haycraft: I simply wish to say, Mr. Examiner, it is the contention of counsel for the Commission that the documents that have gone into evidence speak for themselves and all explanations necessary to their contents that are necessary have been made. 8594

Examiner Bennett: It is not necessary to go into any controversy here. Let each one handle his own side of the case and if he does not handle it right, it is too bad for him.

Mr. Albert: May I ask, in the light of the fact it is 4.29, that we adjourn?

Examiner Bennett: That is perfectly all right. You may adjourn until to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 31st, 1936, an adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock A. M., September 1st, 1936.)

8596 Roy H. Bjorkman—For Commission—Direct.

Room 307, Federal Building,
Minneapolis, Minnesota,
September 1st, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 o'clock, A. M., C.S.T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearance.)

PROCEEDINGS.

8597 Examiner Bennett: Be in order, gentlemen, please. This is a reconvening of the hearing from Monday, August 31st, 1936.

ROY H. BJORKMAN thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Mr. Haycraft: Before Mr. Bjorkman is examined, I should like to have him identify some exhibits that are already in the record, put in in New York City. It won't take but about five minutes.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, if it please the Court, we have here a record of some 300 pages without the exhibits, 200 pages of which are questions by Mr.
8598 Haycraft. "Did you receive this?" "Did you mail this?" and questions of that kind.

Now, I object to our having to pay or being by force of circumstances forced to pay for a record which we understood from Mr. Haycraft's opening statement here has been gone into in New York. I do not see any necessity of piling up the costs of this proceeding in question. They have gone thus far. If they are in in New York, they are in.

Mr. Haycraft: Of course, some exhibits were identified by Mr. Post in New York City as having been sent or received by him. 8599

Examiner Bennett: Is there any further necessity for identification? If they were received before, they were received.

Mr. Haycraft: Some of them were sent by him and I want to show that this witness received them.

Mr. Keller: He admitted sending them.

Examiner Bennett: Did Mr. Post say he sent them?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. Very well, I simply wanted to make sure. I do not want to be met with the objection later on, or the contention later on that these exhibits were not received. 8600

Examiner Bennett: I think they are sufficiently offered in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: Very well.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, owing to the difficulties which the stenographic staff met in trying to keep up with all of these exhibits, that went in yesterday, the respondent was not furnished as customary with a copy of the record containing copies of these exhibits and it was impossible to see them last night, and I ask the indulgence of the Court for a few moments while I compare three or four exhibits now that we could not get last night, which are of vital importance. 8601

Examiner Bennett: Very well, a short recess.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Mr. Albert: We are ready to proceed up to a point.

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A, and ask you when that was sent to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. You asked if it was sent?

Q. When it was sent? A. I cannot recall exactly. We did not keep——

Q. Approximately? A. Approximately, I think it was in May, 1935, just a year ago.

Q. Now, was that first declaration of co-operation or agreement, whichever word you wish to use, that the Minneapolis merchants sent to the Fashion Originators 8603 Guild? A. It is my recollection it was.

Q. Now, I show you a letter dated February 1st, 1933, on the stationery of Roy H. Bjorkman, and ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to which was the first declaration that was sent? A. Yes, sir, I recall this now.

Examiner Bennett: That is in the record?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: What is the number of the exhibit?

Mr. Albert: 602.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that, Mr. Bjorkman, when, in response to the gentle leading of Mr. Haycraft, you stated that Commis-
8604 sion's Exhibit No. 601-A was the first agreement that had been sent, you overlooked Commission's Exhibit No. 602?

Mr. Haycraft: Don't answer that question. Ask that it be stricken as not in conformance with the record. There was no leading by Mr. Haycraft, gentle or otherwise.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, you have testified that Commission's Exhibit No. 601-A and B was a draft of the proposed agreement which had not been accepted by the Fashion Originators Guild, is that so? A. Yes.

Q. And you also testified that Commission's Exhibit No. 672-A to whatever it is, was also sent to the Fashion Originators Guild and was temporarily accepted by the Guild pending the redrafting of that agreement, is that not so? A. Yes, sir.

(Thereupon papers were marked Respondents' Exhibits 58-A to D for Identification.)

Examiner Bennett: The next Respondents' number is what?

The Reporter: 58-A to D. 8606

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit No. 58-A, 58-B, 58-C and 58-D and ask you if this refreshes your recollection as to the chronological order of the instruments that were prepared. Please answer "Yes" or "No"? A. May I have that question again? You say "chronological order." Do you mean this was—what number this was?

Q. No. Yes, with relation to the others? A. All right.

Q. Will you just answer "Yes" or "No," please? A. How can I answer "Yes" or "No" when you ask for chronological order?

Q. No, no. I say, does it refresh your recollection as to the chronological order? A. Yes, yes. 8607

Q. Now, isn't it so that Commission's Exhibit 601-A was first prepared, that thereafter Respondents' Exhibit No. 58-A to D was prepared and temporarily accepted?. A. That is right.

Q. That thereafter Commission's Exhibit No. 672-A was prepared and completely rejected? A. That is right.

Q. And thereafter Commission's Exhibit No. 695 was finally agreed upon between the parties? A. That is right.

Q. So that——

Examiner Bennett: It was finally rejected?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: In the meantime, while 672 was being submitted and considered——

Mr. Albert: Yes. If your Honor will read this. It is purely a style piracy co-operation.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I see.

Mr. Albert: And 635 which is the agreement that was finally signed?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Is perhaps more inclusive with respect to the agreement between the parties.

8609 Examiner Bennett: I see, but this remained in force until its rejection.

Mr. Albert: Temporarily. In answer to your Honor's question, a further explanation of Respondents' Exhibit No. 58 was——

Mr. Haycraft: Just a minute. I object to referring to that unless it is in evidence. I want to know something about it.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence Respondents' Exhibit No. 58-A and 58-B, C and D.

Mr. Haycraft: Would you mind handing it to me?

Mr. Albert: No. I am sorry.

(The paper writings referred were handed to Mr. Haycraft.)

8610 Mr. Haycraft: I would like to ask the witness a question.

Examiner Bennett: All right. As a basis for an objection?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is it your testimony that Respondents' Exhibit No. 58——

Mr. Haycraft: By the way, Mr. Examiner, I think we ought to have separate exhibit numbers on these. I see they have got "A, B, C, on three different documents.

Mr. Albert: They all refer to the same documents, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: I know, but they are all three different documents. They ought to be 58, 59 and 60. Two of the documents are letters and one document is an agreement.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, we will fix that. I think we will have them separately numbered.

(The paper writings heretofore marked as Respondents' Exhibits 58-A, B, C and D and received in evidence were renumbered as Respondents' Exhibits 58, 59 and 60-A and 60-B.) 8612

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is it your testimony that Respondents' Exhibit No. 60-A and B was signed by members of the Minneapolis Guild and submitted to the Fashion Originators Guild prior to the submitting of Commission's Exhibit No. 672-A, B, C and D? A. No, sir, no.

Q. What is your testimony in that respect? A. I was confused yesterday, Mr. Haycraft, because I forgot the first agreement we signed, which was—I have refreshed my memory this morning. February 1st, 1933, which was really a declaration of co-operation. I mean, there was no agreement, you see? So that would be the first (indicating). 8613

Q. 601-A? A. The second rejected. This proposed. This is third (indicating).

Q. 672-A to C? A. That is right.

Q. Rejected? A. Rejected.

Q. All right. A. And this was accepted temporarily.

Q. 60-A and B? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: Then with that explanation of the witness I have no objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, just a moment. Mr. Haycraft has again succeeded in disturbing the order or changing the order of these documents.

Mr. Haycraft. May I show you something off the record here?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

(Thereupon a discussion was had off the record.)

8615 Examiner Bennett: We will resume therefore, then.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, regardless of the chronological order of Commission's Exhibits 601, 672 and Respondents' Exhibit No. 59 and Respondents' Exhibits 60-A and B, is the agreement or declaration which was temporarily accepted pending the drafting of Commission's Exhibit No. 695? A. I really can't be sure of either of those two, Mr. Albert. Just as I have said here, there has been such a mass of confusion here that I think from the correspondence here in the letter that it was. I mean, that this letter here, which I sent here, because I do recall that Mr. Gerner was out of the city and this was sent down with Abe 8616 Shapiro. Then I believe that was one that was temporarily accepted due to the fact that they had wired us that we couldn't see the lines and all of that unless this was in, so we did rush the thing through. That was the reason, I believe, that Mr. Hyman and his committee did draw this up in the short manner here so we were able to buy goods.

Q. In order that there would be on record some declaration of co-operation by the Minneapolis Guild, pending a final agreement?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question as not being a summary of the witness' testimony.

Mr. Albert: I am asking him the question, your Honor, I am not summarizing.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the question. No foundation has been laid for it. He can't speak for the Guild.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if he can.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Question was read.)

The Witness: Of course, it seems to me that letter of this here showed our spirit of co-operation. 8618
We tried to get together with them. To my best knowledge at the present time that is the record now that was temporarily accepted.

Mr. Albert: Indicating Respondents' Exhibit No. 60. May we go off the record for a moment?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

(Thereupon a discussion was had off the record.)

Mr. Albert: You have no objection to photostatic copies of this going into evidence and being handed back the originals?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Bjorkman, perhaps it might help us if you can 8619 ell us who drafted these documents; do you know? A. Well, there were various—there were various committees. The first committee in this Exhibit No. 601-A was Mr. Dayn Donovan, Mr. Hyman and myself. Now, wait a minute. Just excuse me. Will you please strike that from the record? The first committee was Mr. Larson and Mr. Perry Snyder and myself, that drafted the short—or this 601-A.

Q. You mean by that that you dictated it? A. Oh, no.

Q. Who dictated it? A. Well, that was all worked out together in the committee meetings between Mr. Larson, Mr. Snyder and I.

Q. Yes. The substance of it? A. Mr. Larson's office. It was all brought at that time. In fact, I think that Mr. Larson dictated it to his secretary and then it was approved by the meeting of the Guild.

Q. What about 672-A? A. 672-A, to my recollection, was drafted by a committee of Mr. Donovan, Mr. Hyman —now, wait a minute. That is wrong. By Mr. Snyder, Mr. Donovan, Mr. Hyman and myself.

8621 Q. That is in regards to substance? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember who it was that actually prepared and dictated it? A. I think Mr. Hyman.

Q. Dictated it? A. I am not certain, but I believe so.

Q. Who was the committee on Commission's Exhibit No. 695, which is the final draft? A. Well, I think this was accepted. This is your regulation form of contract here, this one.

Q. You just copied that off from the form of contract; is that it? A. I think so, yes.

Q. All right. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 602. I call your attention to the following language: "The following members of the Minneapolis Ready-to-Wear Retailers' Association are sure that they are in sympathy with the manufacturers' difficulties and problems especially pertaining to the piracy of designs. Would you mind explaining what those difficulties and problems were at that time? A. Well, I think I can explain that most simply. It is expensive for a manufacturer that makes a line or collection of dresses retailing, we will say, from $55 to $200; that pays considerable money sending a staff of designers to Europe, purchasing expensive materials, trimmings and so on. After they are designed, they will then be copied for one-half one-third, or one-quarter of the price, and be absolutely reproduced as far as detail is concerned and the color or scheme. That was really, I think, their main idea.

Q. When you say that they were being reproduced or copied, what do you mean by that? A. Just that. You have a very nice suit on this morning, Mr. Albert. In fact, we can take the same thing over here to a tailor and probably have it reproduced as far as the coloring, the style and design, but it wouldn't have the workmanship of that, the fabric. To all intents and purposes it will be the same suit until it was worn a little while.

Q. What is it that you were referring to in that letter by using the general term "style piracy"? A. Just that. The 8624 stealing of ideas.

Q. Do you mean that these manufacturers had original ideas in the design of their dresses? A. Originally in this respect? In my philosophy there is nothing original.

Q. Yes. A. I mean, that we take an idea here, take an idea there, and we take our own creative ability and we put our own personality into it, and that is ours. But, however, the same ideas have been elsewhere through the pages of history. These manufacturers go to Europe and they will buy models. They will get an idea from a color. They get an idea from a cuff, a belt, or a skirt, or a color, a trimming. And that will be incorporated into their own ingenuity, and a new gown is born; and while it is his own personality and idea, there are a lot of other fellows' ideas involved in it. But to all intents and purposes it is that 8625 man's creation because it is different until some other man sees it and then he will say, "I will build the same thing exactly only that I will make it cheaper."

Q. Do you mean that the creative genius, if you will, of the designers of these better manufacturers evolve creations which are a combination perhaps of old ideas, but which in the combination are entirely new?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. I object to the use of the language "creative ideas."

Mr. Albert: That is a fine objection, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I also object to it as not being within the issues of the case.

Mr. Albert: If it is not within the issues of the case I ask that all of the letters that have been put in through this witness be stricken from the record, and we won't have anything to ask this wit-8627 ness about.

Mr. Haycraft: I have no objection, Mr. Examiner, to this witness testifying as to his understanding of the terms as they were used in these exhibits, but I object to going farther than that and getting this witness to testify as to what the manufacturers themselves may do, and so on.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, this witness has been tendered an exhibit, and letters upon letters have been tendered as to official pronouncements and the official opinions and the official actions of the Minneapolis Retail Guild, and as a result of the whole thing, the foundation has been laid by Mr. Haycraft in putting in these letters. I certainly believe that I can go at least so 8628 far as to show the background of what Mr. Haycraft was referring to in putting these letters in evidence.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Mr. Bjorkman, have you ever manufactured dresses? A. Yes. We have a dressmaking shop; we have a tailor shop; and we have a fur shop.

Q. Yes. A. But not in the manufacturing end. I mean, it isn't—it is a retail establishment.

Q. Have you ever made what you call original designs? A. Well, they have been—we will say that they have been different.

Q. What? A. We will say that they have been different.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. Well, here is a dress. You like the top of it, we will say, and you like the skirt of another; you like the fabric of another gown.

Q. Yes. A. You like the color of another gown.

Q. Have you ever been in the business commercially as a manufacturer? A. No. No. 8630

Q. Making—. A. No.

Q. —dresses? A. No.

Q. In large quantities? A. No.

Q. And studying them in volume? A. No. I haven't.

Examiner Bennett: I don't believe that this witness is qualified to discuss the manufacturers' problems. He can discuss the retailers' problems to a fair-the-well, and I will hear him on consumers' problems, but I think that you have very much better sources of evidence as to manufacturers' problems, and I wish that you would get that information from the manufacturers, not from retailers. I will therefore sustain the objection, if that question is just as I remember it. You might read 8631 the question.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I think I will sustain an objection to going into that from a manufacturers' standpoint. I am perfectly willing to let him go into it from a retail standpoint.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, at the time in question, was style piracy a problem that necessitated action by retailers? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. I object to that question as not being proper cross-examination, because the exhibit refers to manufacturers' problems.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him go into that. I think if we can get any light on that, it is all right.

8633 Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What was that problem, Mr. Bjorkman? A. Well, too—it is my opinion that the entire field of womanhood was losing all confidence in the ladies' ready-to-wear business.

Q. Would you mind elaborating on that? A. Well, a design would be brought over from Europe that was an exact original design by some French couturiere, and it would be purchased in every price line from $6.75 up to, well, we will say Hattie Carnegie, so that same design and color as the original would be shown all the way from $10 retail to $195 retail; and so, frankly, women were commencing to lose confidence in the business. People she 8634 will run into—she would buy a dress for $100, and she will see it is $75, $60, $25, $10 and down. And to me it was the end of the industry from a profitable standpoint both from the retail and the wholesale standpoint.

Q. Specifically, Mr. Bjorkman, from your experience, what was the actual result in a store of its having on hand an original design or a new interpretation of the fashion selling at let us say $50 and a copy of that interpretation being sold by a competitor for $15 or less.

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. I object to that question, Mr. Examiner. It is not a proper question.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

Mr. Haycraft: Irrelevant.

The Witness: Well, it means nothing but losses and mark-downs, that is all.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is, you couldn't keep on selling your dress for that price; could you? A. That is right.

Q. And you had to bring down the price of your dress 8636 with resultant losses; isn't that right? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And as a matter of fact that practice precluded you from reording that dress; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. So that you lost the sale value of the dress in being unable to reorder it, and the manufacturer lost the value of his creation in being unable to sell you any further dresses at that price; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. Now, with the customer angle, Mr. Bjorkman, what was the reaction of your customers? Can you give us more specifically than the mere fact that womanhood was losing faith in American dressmakers?

Mr. Haycraft: The same objection. It has nothing to do with the issues in this case and it is not 8637 proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

The Witness: Well, are you a married man?

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, I am not. My worry is in combating Mr. Haycraft.

The Witness: Ha, ha. Any man that is a married man, that has had a wife gone out and buy a gown, I don't care whether it has been $10 or a hundred dollars, when she comes home and she has seen it over across the street for less, or she is going out to a party and she has run on to three or four of them, I think he will know just exactly how women feel in that regard. Every woman would love to feel that she is an individual personality and she doesn't care to see anybody else in a gown like she has. I mean, fundamentally——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You refer to style? A. Style and individuality. It must be different. Now, with a man it is different. We 8639 all look more alike as far as our suits and clothes are concerned, but when a woman goes out to a party here, if you want to ruin her day for her, you just want to have two or three in the same party in the identical dress.

Q. Have you any knowledge specifically as to the reactions of a woman when she has purchased, let us say, an original design from your store and then sees a copy of it at a lower price in another store? A. Well, it means that if she has already purchased the gown, most of the time we have to refund the difference, or we have to refund the whole thing. That has happened many, many times.

Q. Many, many times? A. Many times, yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Bjorkman, I notice here the signatures of a number of concerns of Minneapolis. I am referring to 8640 Commission's Exhibit No. 602. Were representatives of all of these firms at a meeting prior to signing Commission's Exhibit No. 602? A. That is right.

Q. Who was there from B. A. Atkinson, do you recall? A. I believe it was Mr. Hyman.

Q. May I presume that you were there on behalf of— A. Mr. Hyman and Mr. Weingarten, I believe, were both there.

Q. Were you there on behalf of Bjorkman? A. That is right.

Q. Who was there on behalf of the Dayton Company? A. Mr. Larson and Mr. Donovan, I believe.

Q. Who was there on behalf of Donaldson Company? A. I am sorry. I can't recall.

Q. Do you recall who was there on behalf of Powers? A. Mr. Snyder.

Q. Mr. Snyder. So everybody had a representative there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the matter was completely thrashed out; was it? A. Yes.

Q. And was the consensus of opinion, or did everybody unanimously agree that style piracy was an evil and that they would like to do something to eliminate it? A. Yes. 8642

Mr. Haycraft: Object.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was there any dissent of any kind of the signing of Commission's Exhibit No. 602? A. Not of the phraseology involved therein.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 653-A and B and ask you whether or not the signatories to that letter agreed to this paragraph in the letter: "We shall be very happy indeed to co-operate with the efforts of the Fashion Originators Guild in every way to further the elimination of evils of the entire industry and to raise the industry to 8643 a much higher level of ethics with a decided improvement in profits."

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The exhibit speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: What?

The Witness: What is the question?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Whether or not everybody agreed to that statement? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. I have an objection pending. All the signatures are attached to it. I assume that they agreed to it, why go into it?

Examiner Bennett: The signatures of the people who signed it are indicated there, aren't they?

Mr. Albert: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: The document speaks for itself.

8645 Mr. Albert: It is merely this, your Honor. The exhibit was signed by Mr. Bjorkman. There was merely an attached statement as to who was present at the meeting.

Mr. Haycraft: He testified. He explained the matter fully.

Examiner Bennett: I don't see that we are getting anywhere by questioning whether those people were sincere in putting their signatures on the paper. Unless you have something else in mind——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was the consensus or the unanimous opinion of 8646 those present, Mr. Bjorkman, that copying of interpretations of original designs was an unethical practice in the industry?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: I don't get your Honor's ruling.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think you are asking him too much. I don't know how any man could conscientiously answer that kind of a question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Annexed to Commission's Exhibit No. 653-A and B, Mr. Bjorkman, is Commission's Exhibit No. 653-C, in which you list certain retailers in Minneapolis as being present at the meeting. Did any of them, do you know or can recall, dissent from the proposition that the copying of styles was an unethical practice in the industry?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant, immaterial. The document speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 8648

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Bjorkman, I believe you testified that a certain questionnaire had been sent out by the Fashion Originators Guild in respect to the price lines to be included in the Guild program? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive such a questionnaire? A. We received a questionnaire which was——

Q. I believe you have it in your file; have you not? A. Yes, we have.

Q. May I ask you to produce it, please? A. I don't know whether I took it back yesterday or whether it was here this morning or not.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 623-A and B for Identification and ask you if that is the questionnaire that is referred to? A. Yes, sir. 8649

Mr. Albert: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it as irrelevant and immaterial, no probative value in this case.

Examiner Bennett: Let's see what it is.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has testified on direct examination that this was something that he made up himself, something which was not sent to the respondent. It has no bearing on the issues in the case.

Examiner Bennett: Just what was done with it?

The Witness: Pardon?

Examiner Bennett. Just what was done with this paper?

The Witness: That was sent out to all the retailers.

Examiner Bennett: By whom?

The Witness: By the Fashion Originators

8651 Guild.

Examiner Bennett: That is of America?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Sent out to you?

The Witness: Yes, personally and they were after it for the feelings we had in regard to those questions in point. We underlined them but we just neglected to send it in. That was all.

Examiner Bennett: You never did respond to it?

The Witness: No; we filled it out, but we didn't send it in. Those were our personal papers.

Examiner Bennett: What is your purpose in offering it. It doesn't contradict anything that is in the record.

Mr. Albert: It is an endeavor to show——

Examiner Bennett: It isn't binding even on this body of people who for some reason didn't send it in. Is it your object to get that matter in the record as binding or showing the sentiment of those people? I think that it doesn't do it.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, this particular questionnaire was sent out to all retailers. I believe it was also the subject of a conference which was addressed by Mr. Post and the subject matter of this was taken up at that meeting.

Mr. Haycraft: Oh, no. I object. There is no foundation for that statement.

Mr. Albert: I said, "I believe."

Mr. Haycraft: I know. I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I will sustain an objection at this stage of the game. I don't think it is qualified.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know whether or not, Mr. Bjorkman, the Minneapolis Guild as such sent it in signed? A. We did not. 8654

Q. The questionnaire? A. We did not.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Bjorkman, whether or not at the first meeting that was addressed by Mr. Post, at which Mr. Golby, I think, was present, these questions were not read by Mr. Post? A. They were.

Q. They were read? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall whether or not a discussion was had with respect to them? A. Beg your pardon?

Q. Do you recall whether or not a discussion was had with respect to them?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any further examination. It is not a proper examination. This exhibit that he is talking about is not the—— 8655

Mr. Albert: He has testified to it, if it please your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: I know, but that doesn't make any difference. That doesn't lay a foundation for this line of inquiry.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead, you may answer.

The Witness: This was laying a foundation for this first agreement here on price lines. That was the main reason for Mr. Post being here. And these were the questions we as a group decided we didn't care to answer those questions as a group, but we have shown our sentiments in this agreement here, which is as far as the price lines are concerned.

Mr. Haycraft: By agreement, you mean Commission's Exhibit No. 601, 672?

The Witness: Well, the first was 601-A.

Mr. Haycraft: And 672?

Mr. Feldman: It was that proposed agreement.

8657 The Witness: Yes, that is right.

CHARLES J. LARSON was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examiner Bennett: What is the name?

The Witness: Charles J. Larson.

Examiner Bennett: Thank you.

The Witness: L-a-r-s-o-n.

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You have stated your full name, Mr. Larson? A.

8658 Yes.

Q. Where do you live? A. At 4831 Penn Avenue, south.

Q. Minneapolis? A. Minneapolis.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Retail merchant—merchandising.

Q. With what firm are you associated? A. With the Dayton Company.

Q. Do you occupy an official position with the Dayton Company? A. Yes, sir; I am the general merchandise manager.

Q. Are you also a director? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As general merchandise manager what are your duties? A. Well, I am responsible for all of the merchandise activities in our business. I supervise the work of the divisional merchandise managers, who report directly to me.

Q. And under you do you have a divisional merchandise manager over at the ladies' ready-to-wear department? A. Yes, we have one for the upstairs division, and one for the basement division.

Q. Who are they? A. Mr. Dayne Donovan is a divisional manager in the upstairs store.

Mr. Albert: Sorry, I didn't get that name. 8660

The Witness: Dayne Donovan, D-a-y-n. And Mr. F. J. Tupa is the divisional merchandise manager in charge of apparel in the basement store.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How long have you occupied your present position, Mr. Larson? A. Ten years.

Q. How long has Mr. Dayn Donovan occupied his present position, approximately? A. About eight years.

Q. And Mr. Tupa? A. I would say about five years. I couldn't say exactly, offhand.

Q. Before you were general merchandise manager, what did you do? A. I was the general manager of the basement store. 8661

Q. For how long a period of time? A. Seven years.

Q. What was your previous experience? A. Before that I was—I had charge of the physical plant.

Q. At Dayton's? A. Yes. All of this pertains to my employment there. It is covering a period of thirty-two years.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Well, I have heard of them, naturally.

8662 Charles J. Larson—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Do you recall when you first heard of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. To the best of my recollection, late in the fall of 1932.

Q. How did they come to your attention, at that time? Just how did the Guild come to your attention at that time? A. I—this is a long time ago. I would say the first time that it came to my notice was when a meeting was called, to the best of my recollection. Mr. Bjorkman telephoned and asked us to have a representative at a meeting to discuss co-operation with the F.O.G.A.

Q. That was in the fall of 1932, you say? A. Well, I would say it was late in the winter of 1932.

8663 Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 592, and ask if that will refresh your recollection as to the time of that meeting, also Commission's Exhibit No. 593? A. Yes.

Q. Having had your recollection refreshed, would you say the meeting was—when would you say the meeting was that you had? A. I would say it was late in December, 1932.

Q. Now, do you recall what transpired at that meeting? A. Yes, in a general way.

Q. Can you testify as to what took place? A. Well, the question of the F.O.G.A. came up; it was discussed, its aims and how it would work out in our business.

Q. Who brought the matter to your attention? A. Mr. Roy Bjorkman.

8664 Q. What did he say about it? A. Well, my recollection is that Mr. Bjorkman felt that it was something that might be of help to the people in the retailing of garments.

Q. What did he say were the aims? A. Well, frankly, I don't remember that they particularly discussed the aims. The question of their work in eliminating copying of fine garments in the lower-price lines, that was—that subject was discussed.

Q. Was the term "style piracy" used? A. Frankly, I don't remember.

Q. Are you familiar with the term "style piracy"? A. I have heard a great deal of it in the last two or three years.

Q. Have you heard of it— A. I had never heard the expression used before.

Q. Before when? A. Before—well, I would say before the summer of 1933—the spring season, rather, of 1933, I had never heard the expression used before.

Q. Had you heard the expression "pirating of designs"? A. I had never heard it; that is, to the best of my recollection, I never heard of such a thing.

Q. Well, in what way did Mr. Bjorkman present the plan of the Guild? A. I wouldn't say that Mr. Bjorkman particularly presented it. They were there. We were there as representatives from the different stores to discuss it, and I don't remember that Mr. Bjorkman particularly presented it.

Q. In calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 593, does it refresh your recollection as to what was discussed?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I at this time note my objection to counsel for the Commission attempting to obtain from this witness what Mr. Bjorkman said at this conference, when Mr. Bjorkman himself was on the witness stand and was perfectly capable of testifying as to what he said and what everybody else said.

8667

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you refreshed your recollection? Does this refresh your recollection? A. No, frankly, I don't remember.

Q. Was there any other meeting of the Minneapolis retailers at which this matter was discussed? A. Yes, there were several meetings. I couldn't say how many.

Q. At about what time? A. Why, to the best of my memory there were meetings called, several, between, we will say, Christmas time and the latter part of June in 1933.

Mr. Albert: 1934 you mean. No, it is 1933. That is right.

The Witness: 1933.

Mr. Albert: That is right. I am sorry.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits No. 604 and 605 and ask you if you can identify them? A. Yes; I remember the letters.

8669

Q. Did you prepare either or both of them? A. I dictated both of them.

Q. What did you do with them after you dictated them? A. We sent a copy of this to Mr. Bjorkman.

Q. Commission's Exhibit No. 605? A. Yes.

Q. Commission's Exhibit No. 605? A. That is 605 (indicating), and I enclosed Commission's Exhibit No. 604 as an explanatory letter to Mr. Bjorkman.

Q. What was the occasion of preparing these exhibits?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial. The exhibit is in evidence and speaks for itself.

Mr. Bennett: Well, overruled.

8670

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: May I have that question again, please?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: The Fashion Originators Guild through their secretary, I believe at that time it was Mr. Golby, had communicated with Mr. Bjorkman as chairman of the Minneapolis group, saying that the group of manufacturers who at that time were members of the Guild wanted a statement from the Minneapolis group and from its individual members as to their agreement or sympathy with what they were trying to do and the penalty for not filing such an agreement would be that they could not or would not be allowed to view their fall lines.

Q. This was in January, 1933, Mr. Larson? Was that in January, 1933? A. That was in January, 1933.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 602, and ask if you can identify that? A. Yes, I remember this form.

Q. Did you sign the original or did you authorize Mr. 8672
Bjorkman to sign the original for you? A. My recollection is that the earlier forms of that agreement were sent in to Mr. Golby to see whether or not such a statement would be satisfactory to them. To the best of my recollection, the earlier statements were not signed.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I ask that the answer of the witness be stricken as not responsive. He was asked whether or not he authorized that letter to be signed, not what is happening with other letters or whether or not they had first been sent to New York for approval. I also object to the question in its entirety upon the ground that Mr. Bjorkman, who has previously testified that Mr. Larson saw the letter and that Mr. 8673 Bjorkman was authorized by Mr. Larson to send the letter in.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: May I have a ruling on my motion to strike the answer as not responsive?

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled on it. Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit number.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 696 for Identification.)

Examiner Bennett: Are these additional exhibits?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 696——

Mr. Haycraft: Mark those.

(The papers referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 697, 698-A and B, 699-A and B and 8675 700 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit Nos. 696 to 700, inclusive, and ask you if you can identify those papers.

Mr. Albert: What is that number?

The Witness: Yes, sir, I remember that communication.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you receive it? Did it come to your desk? A. It came to my desk. It was addressed to Mr. Dayton.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the exhibits in evidence
8676 I might say, Mr. Examiner, this exhibit dated June 21, 1933, Commission's Exhibit No. 696, is signed by J. M. Riley of the A.M.C., Associated Merchandising Corporation. I think I probably had better describe it a little better.

Mr. Albert: Wait a minute. I will give it to you in a moment. Mr. Haycraft, Commission's Exhibit No. 698-A and B, and 699-A and B, and Exhibit No. 700 are already in evidence as Commission's Exhibits what—?

Mr. Keller: 99, and also Commission's Exhibits Nos. 3-A, B, C, D and E.

Mr. Albert: Do you wish to refer to them by those numbers? I don't see the point in putting in these documents again. I have no objection to the admission in evidence of Commission's Exhibits Nos. 696 and 697.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, with the understanding, Mr. Examiner, that Commission's Exhibit No. 698-A and B, and 699-A and B are in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 99, and Commission's 8678
Exhibit No. 700 is in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 3——

Mr. Keller: No, Commission's Exhibit—yes, 3-A.

Mr. Haycraft: —3-A, I will not pass the offer of those exhibits, but will——

Mr. Albert: No objection——

Mr. Haycraft: I understand that there is no objection to Exhibits Nos. 696 and 697. I assume that those will be received.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibits Nos. 696 and 697, and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft. 8679

Q. Mr. Larson, did you attend any of the meetings of the merchandise managers referred to in Commission's Exhibit No. 696 and the meeting referred to in Commission's Exhibit No. 696, in the first paragraph? A. No; I did not.

Q. Did you attend any meeting of merchandise managers of retail stores when this matter was considered, the subject matter of this letter? A. To the best of my recollection, the F.O.G.A. was never discussed at any meeting of the general merchandise managers.

Q. That you attended? A. That I attended.

Q. Who is Mr. P. J. Riley that signed Commission's Exhibit No. 696? A. He is a director of Retail Research Association and the Associated Merchandising Corporation.

Q. What was your affiliation with the organization? A. We are one of the member stores.

Q. Did you attend the meeting of the Executive Committee mentioned in the last paragraph of Commission's 8681 Exhibit No. 696? A. I did not.

Q. Are you a member of that committee? A. All store principals are ex-officio members of the Executive Committee.

Q. Of the American Merchandising Corporation? A. Of the Associated Merchandising Corporation.

Q. Of the Associated Merchandising Corporation. Well, upon the receipt of this letter, Commission's Exhibit No. 696, with the other documents attached, which have been described as 698 to 700, but which are in evidence as Commission's Exhibit Nos. 99 and 3-A, I will ask you what you did with respect to the subject matter.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may an-8682 swer.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. May I have that question again, please?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Well, we recognized the fact that it would be necessary for us to have an agreement with the Fashion Originators Guild in order to have access to their showrooms; that is, the shpwrooms of the members.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When you say "us" you refer to whom? A. The Dayton Company.

Q. Yes. Now, go ahead with your answer. A. That is all.

Q. What did you do about it? Did you sign Commission's Exhibit No. 700 for Identification or Commission's Exhibit No. 3-A and return it to the Guild? A. We did not.

Q. Why not? 8684

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial, calling for a conclusion of the witness, and no foundation has been laid whatsoever with respect thereto; in addition, calling for matters outside of the scope of the complaint of the Federal Trade Commission.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

The Witness: We did not sign that agreement during our entire business career. We have had an unwritten law, under no conditions, if we can possibly avoid it, sign any agreements to buy merchandise from anyone. That was the reason that we did not sign their form agreement. Furthermore, we object to signing anybody else's agreement. 8685

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 701 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 701, and ask if you can identify that? A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a statement of our frame of mind and our indication of co-operation with the manufacturers, that we drew up and signed and sent to the F.O.G.A.

Q. Is this a carbon copy of it? A. This is a carbon copy of it.

Q. I will ask—I am sorry I asked you that question. I will ask you to examine it again before you answer. Is it a carbon copy? A. Well, in all probability this is the 8687 original and the copy went to them. Usually when we draw contracts we keep the original ourselves and send the copy to the other party.

Q. At any rate, the copy or the original of this contract was sent to the Guild? A. Right.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence.

(The paper referred to was handed to Mr. Albert.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In whose handwriting is the pencil notation on there "File Important"? A. It is mine. It is mine.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

8688 Examiner Bennett: Received. I would like to see it, if I may.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 701, and was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you receive any reply to that statement that has just been identified as Exhibit No. 701? A. I don't remember ever having received a reply to it.

Q. Did you continue to buy merchandise from the members of the Guild after that was forwarded? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit:

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 702 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 702 for Identification, 702-A and B, and ask if you can identify that in any way? A. Yes, I recognize the letter. It was turned over to me.

Q. By whom? A. Mr. Phillips. 8690

Q. A. A. Phillips? A. And this is a letter from J. M. Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild as to A. A. Phillips.

Q. The pencil notation in the upper right-hand corner, do you recognize that? A. Positively.

Q. Who wrote it? A. Mr. Allen Phillips.

Q. Can you read it? I don't know as I can. Can you make it out? A. Well, yes.

Q. You can make it out?

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the exhibit in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Haycraft, the offer that you made of Commission's 702-A and B, is already in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 12-D. May I suggest that you merely incorporate into the record 8691 the written notation of Mr. Phillips that shall apply to Commission's Exhibit No. 12-D instead of having to retype that.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to have this one go in just as it is, Mr. Examiner, this time.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to have this go in as it is on account of the pencil notations contained thereon.

Examiner Bennett: You want the pencil notations? You are not offering the pencil notations?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I am offering the whole thing.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to the exhibit going in except in the condition in which it was received.

Mr. Haycraft: This is in the condition it was received by the witness.

Mr. Albert: So that if nine people write on that before the witness gets it, I suppose that it is Mr. Haycraft's contention that it is competent? The letter itself, your Honor, is already in as Respond-

8693 ents' Exhibit No. 12-D.

Examiner Bennett: I will receive the letter without the notations.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Mr. Haycraft: Exception noted as to that, Mr. Examiner.

(The paper referred to heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibits 702-A and B was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 653-A to C and ask if you saw the original of that or are familiar 8694 with it in any way?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to the question as being entirely immaterial in addition, being an attempt to contradict the testimony of the previous witness, Mr. Bjorkman, who testified that the Dayton Company and his representatives were fully apprised of the contents of that letter and knew that it was being sent and subscribed to the substance of the letter.

Mr. Haycraft: The question might be eliciting information which would be corroborative.

Mr. Albert: If it is merely corroborative, then it certainly would be immaterial.

Mr. Haycraft: Oh, no.

Mr. Albert: I don't think Mr. Haycraft needs corroboration of his own witnesses.

Mr. Haycraft: It is very kind of you. The Commission might not think so.

The Witness: I did not see the letter.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

8696

Q. Are you familiar with its contents? A. Yes.

Q. Did you authorize the sending of it, Mr. Larson?

Mr. Albert: May I have that question? I didn't hear it.

(Question was read.)

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, Mr. Bjorkman has already testified that he was authorized to send it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, we will get information from any source we can. The fact that Mr. Bjorkman so testified does not preclude the Commission.

Mr. Haycraft: I am not positive that he did. I am assuming that he did. 8697

Examiner Bennett: Well, whether he did or not.

The Witness: I would like to call attention to the fact that I did not attend at this meeting.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did Mr. Donovan call it to your attention? A. I don't remember his having called it to my attention. I heard the matter discussed at a later meeting.

Q. Now, the letter to which I directed your attention is dated March 21, 1935. Did you attend meetings of the Minneapolis Guild subsequent to that date during the year 1935, when the question of making an agreement with the Fashion Originators Guild, Inc., was discussed? A. May I—did you say 1935 or——

Q. 1935. A. Or 1933?

Q. 1935. Dated March 21, 1935. My question was whether you attended meetings. A. 1935——

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Witness: Yes, I did.

8699 Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next one.

(Thereupon the paper referred to was marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 703-A and B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 703-A and B, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes; I am familiar with that.

Q. What is it? A. It was a form of agreement drawn up by the Minneapolis Guild and submitted to the Fashion Originators Guild of New York.

Q. Who drew this memorandum, this agreement? A. I think I personally dictated the final—this draft. There 8700 were different meetings of committees.

Q. Were you on the committee? A. Yes, I was. I was on one of the committees.

Q. Can you fix the date when this draft of agreement was prepared by you? A. Not any more than—I have a clear recollection that it was during the summer, or early summer of 1935.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting in the upper right-hand corner in pencil? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Whose is it? A. J. M. Thomson, who was at that time—was assistant to Mr. Donovan.

Q. Does that date refresh your recollection (indicating)? A. Yes, it confirms it. It was in the summer of—early summer of 1935.

Q. Would you say it was June 12, 1935? A. Yes, that would be approximately correct.

Q. What did you do with this paper which you have identified? A. Copy of this was sent to the F.O.G.A. by Mr. Bjorkman as chairman of the Minneapolis Guild.

Q. That is, you turned it over to Mr. Bjorkman for that purpose? A. Well, that is what it was for. It was a form of agreement—agreement to the Minneapolis Guild.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 601-A and B, and ask you if you can identify that in any way? A. My recollection is that this was undoubt—was one of the various forms that were submitted at our several meetings. To the best of my recollection, that would be one of the earlier forms that we discussed.

Mr. Albert: Referring to 601?

Mr. Feldman: A. and B, yes.

The Witness: That would be 601.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would you say it was discussed and used in formulating Commission's Exhibit 703-A and B? A. Yes; I would say so.

8703

Mr. Haycraft: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit 703-A and B.

Mr. Albert: This agreement was never sent to the F.O.G.A., was it, Mr. Larson?

The Witness: Not to my knowledge.

Mr. Albert: Commission's Exhibit 703-A?

Mr. Haycraft: Better let him see what you are talking about. Show it to him.

The Witness: I want to see it before I answer it.

(Paper writing handed to the witness.)

The Witness: In my opinion this is the draft—this particular form was sent to the F.O.G.A.

Mr. Albert: Upon what do you predicate your opinion?

The Witness: Because it was turned down.

Mr. Albert: Did you receive any letter turning it down?

The Witness: The Minneapolis Guild did.

Mr. Albert: Have you ever seen such a letter?

The Witness: I beg your pardon.

8705 Mr. Albert: Have you ever seen such a letter?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Mr. Haycraft: I think I should be allowed to proceed in my own way to examine this witness without being interrupted.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

Mr. Haycraft: To obviate it further, I withdraw the offer of the exhibit at this time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the occasion of preparing this Commission's Exhibit No. 703-A and B, Mr. Larson?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the 8706 Court, as being entirely immaterial. The witness has been—or, rather, the offer has been withdrawn, I assume as a result of a decision of Mr. Haycraft not to offer it in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: I am going to offer it in evidence later on.

Mr. Albert: This is a further attempt.

Mr. Haycraft: I am laying a further foundation for it. I will proceed in my own way.

Mr. Albert: I want to object to it, if it please the Court. It is an attempt to contradict a previous witness, Mr. Bjorkman, who testified fully with respect to the various drafts that were presented, and he is the proper and appropriate man to testify what drafts were presented, and if Mr. Haycraft—which had been prepared. If Mr. Haycraft wanted to examine about it he should have put it in through Mr. Bjorkman who would be able to testify definitely as to whether or not it was sent to the Fashion Guild, and with all due respect to the witness, he doesn't know of his own knowledge whether it was sent.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, will——

Mr. Albert: I don't quite understand this business of leaving things out with Mr. Bjorkman who knows fully of them, and trying to put them in through this witness, who is merely a subordinate in the man's guild.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I have already passed upon that. I don't understand that the fact that some witness who is called by any party to a transaction and testified, that that precludes the party calling him from proving any other fact that may be at variance from it. It is not in any way an impeachment as is abundantly shown, recollections of a man engaged in the transactions are rather feeble on this situation. At least, they are not entirely clear, and I wish—I think we should get light from any source we can get it.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: I understand that the testimony of this witness up to this time is that the document was prepared and submitted to Mr. Bjorkman by a committee to be transmitted to the Fashion Originators Guild, and it was his understanding that it was so transmitted. Now, that is his testimony as to that particular document, and it seems to qualify it as an exhibit in the case.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Haycraft: Then I will reoffer it at this time, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibits Nos. 703-A and B, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

8711 Q. I will ask you, Mr. Larson, what was the occasion of preparing this Commission's Exhibit No. 703-A and B?

The Witness: May I have the question again?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the occasion? How did you come to do it? A. Well, we did it upon the demand of the Fashion Originators Guild that we must have an agreement of some sort in order that our buyers might have access to their lines.

Q. Who made that demand upon you? A. Well, it was made by the Fashion Originators Guild, and also by some of their representatives through letters that came, through the statements of the members, through our own buyers 8712 that without an agreement they would not have access to their shown rooms after, I believe it was, the fifth of July, to the best of my recollection.

Q. Was that matter discussed at the meetings of the Minneapolis Guild? A. Repeatedly.

Q. And who appointed you on the committee to draw up this agreement? A. Why, to the best of my recollection the chairman, Mr. Bjorkman. The meetings were rather informal.

Q. Had any of these meetings been attended by Mr. Post, the executive director of the Guild? A. I believe one.

Q. Did you attend that meeting? A. I did.

Q. Do you have any recollection of what he said at that time? A. Why I have a recollection of the substance of his statement.

Q. What was it? A. The substance of Mr. Post's statement was that they must have an agreement signed as a group but signed by the individual stores and it must conform in substance at least, if not in exact verbiage to the standard agreement upon his statement that every agreement that they had signed were identical and that they 8714 were identical with the one that they were submitting to us.

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until two o'clock for luncheon.

(Thereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., the hearing in the above entitled matter was adjourned until two o'clock P. M., Tuesday, September 1st, 1936.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Haycraft: What was the previous question and answer? 8715

(Previous question and answer read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: Will you bring out the time on that, as to when it was?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you fix the time approximately, please, when Mr. Post addressed the local group that you referred to in your last answer? A. I could not fix the exact date. I would say to the best of my recollection it would be in June of 1935.

8716 Charles J. Larson—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Was the Dayton Company at that time willing to take the action recommended by Mr. Post?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to if it please the Court. The exhibit is in evidence and speaks for itself. Calls for a conclusion of the witness and no proper foundation has been laid. Also object to the question as leading.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that. I think we better arrive at the fact of the 8717 matter as to whether they did take any action, or took that action.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I believe you said this morning that Commission's Exhibit No. 703-A and B, which you identified, which was received in evidence, was not acceptable to the Guild, that is the Fashion Originators Guild? A. That was my understanding.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 666-A and B and ask you if you have ever seen that before? A. I could not state that I ever saw the telegram. Some of those were read over the telephone to the various stores and some of them were brought up and read at our meetings 8718 I do not recall ever having seen that identical telegram.

Q. Do you recall of receiving any notification from Mr. Bjorkman of the contents of this telegram? A. Well, I remember its being discussed. We were informed that the draft that we had submitted was not satisfactory.

Q. Did you have a meeting of the local guild at or about that time? A. Twenty-seventh. My recollection is that toward the end there were so many communications passing back and forth and the time is drawing so close that I believe some of those things were transacted over the telephone.

Q. Well, what do you mean "the time was drawing so close"? A. You see those lines opened July 5th and it was practically at the time the buyers from the various stores were going to market, the dead-line was drawing pretty close.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 168 and ask you whether that will refresh your recollection as to whether there was a meeting at or about that time of the Minneapolis Guild or the committee of that Guild? A. Well, I should judge that would indicate the meetings was called. 8720

Q. Do you remember attending any meetings at that time? A. To the best of my recollection, I attended all of the meetings during the thirty or sixty days before the agreement was signed.

Q. Now, I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 60-A and B and ask you to identify that?

Mr. Albert: 60-A and B, did you say?

Mr. Haycraft: Respondents' Exhibit 60-A and B.

The Witness: Yes, I saw this.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is that your signature? A. Yes, sir.

Q. C. J. Larson? A. Yes. 8721

Q. On Respondents' Exhibit No. 60-B to the Dayton Company? A. That is my signature.

Q. Do you recall the circumstances under which you signed that? A. Yes.

Q. What were they?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial, the document speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: Answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: Well, frankly, we felt they were not willing to concede any of the conditions which we thought were fair and reasonable. The Guild practically delivered an ultimatum that we must agree to that in toto or not have access to their lines, and we signed it.

8723 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, what happened after you signed it? Were you given access to their lines? A. Yes.

Q. Was this agreement fully and wholly satisfactory to them? A. To the Guild?

Q. To the Guild. A. As far as I know. I never heard anything to the contrary.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 695-A to E and ask you if you recognize that? A. Will you repeat that question again?

Q. (Previous question read by the reporter.) A. I have no recollection of having gone over or read this statement, or I mean this contract, approved it. I have no recollection.

8724 Q. Do you recall signing a contract of that nature?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial. The contract is in evidence as having been authorized by the Dayton Company, assuming the testimony of Mr. Bjorkman——

Examiner Bennett: He may answer if he has a recollection of signing it.

The Witness: I have no recollection of having signed a second agreement. I remember, of course, very definitely of signing our own form. I have no recollection of having signed this one. If they have a signed copy, I presume I did.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any recollection of being told by Mr. Bjorkman that the Guild was not satisfied with the form that you submitted on or about the first of July, and which you identified a few moments ago as Exhibit No. 60-A and B?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as being immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

The Witness: I don't remember being told that by Mr. Bjorkman.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 674-A and B, 677, 678-A and B and ask you if they refresh your recollection in that respect? I also call your attention to 676, for the same purpose. Here is the other one (indicating). A. Will you state that again?

Q. Do they refresh your recollection? A. No, they do not. I have no recollection of our having had any discussions with the chairman or meetings regarding the change of the wording in the agreement. So far as we were concerned, we felt that when we signed the agreement, which they accepted as, particularly accepted as an indication of our co-operation that insofar as we were concerned, the wording would not be particularly relevant to us. We had agreed, as we understood, agreed to do what they asked us to do. I have no recollection of—any clear recollection of a discussion following that.

Q. Did the matter of the co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild come to your attention at any time after July, 1935? A. So far as I know, there was never any question or any friction in our dealings with any of the F.O.G.A. members after the contract was signed.

Q. At least, it never came to your attention? A. Not that I ever heard of.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 704-A and B and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, I read this telegram when it came in.

Q. Did you receive it? A. I did not. It came to Mr. Dayton. At least, he showed it to me.

Q. From whom is it? A. Fashion Originators Guild signed it.

8729 Q. To whom? A. To the Dayton Company.

Q. Under what date? A. February 16th, it was received in Minneapolis, or 17th. It is a night letter, I believe.

Mr. Haycraft: Offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: The respondent, F.O.G.A. will concede Commission's Exhibit 704-A and B, now offered in evidence has been previously offered and is in evidence as——

Mr. Keller: As 571-A.

(Discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you know anything about the controversy indi-
8730 cated in this telegram? A. Yes, I knew of it, naturally. I knew there was a controversy on.

Q. What did you know about that? A. Very little except what was reported in the trade papers.

Q. Had you had any notice from the Fashion Originators Guild prior to the receipt of this telegram with respect to— A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. —with respect to the subject-matter in the telegram? A. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. Haycraft: Your witness.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Did the Dayton Company, Mr. Larson, make any answer to that telegram? A. My recollection is that we did not reply to it at all.

Q. When you received that telegram, what did it mean to you? A. Will you state that question again, please?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Of course, I can only say what 8732 our interpretation of it was.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, let us have your interpretation. A. Our interpretation was that they were delivering an ultimatum to us that we would either have to back down from the stand taken by the Associated Merchants Corporation or else, of course, be barred from seeing the lines of the Guild houses.

Q. And the only thing that you knew about the standing of the Associated Merchandising Corporation was what you read in the trade papers? A. (No response.)

Q. Do you want to change your previous testimony that 8733
all you knew about what was in that telegram was what you read in the trade papers or do you want to make some explanation? A. Pardon me, I did not say that.

Q. I am asking you if you want to make some explanation of what you meant? A. I did not say the only thing we knew was what we saw in the trade papers.

Q. What was more important, what you knew about that telegram from the A.M.C., or what you learned from the trade papers? A. Well——

Q. Did you get any information from the A.M.C.? A. We had some correspondence from A.M.C.

Q. In response to Mr. Haycraft's question you did not tell us that, did you? A. He did not ask me that.

Mr. Albert: May I have read back what Mr. Haycraft's question was, please?

Examiner Bennett: You may.

(Thereupon the record was read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: That is all.

By Mr. Albert.

8735 Q. Did you know more about what you heard from the A.M.C. than what you read in the trade papers? A. Did I know more about what——

Q. You knew of the contents of this telegram from what you had learned from the A.M.C., or what you had learned from the trade papers? A. I learned the contents of that telegram from reading the telegram.

Q. You know what the matter referred to, do you not? You know it referred to a controversy of some sort, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. With respect to that controversy, where did you get most of your information from, the A.M.C. or from the trade papers? A. I do not know that I can say, or care to say which was the most and which was the least.

8736 Q. It is immaterial what you care to say. I would like to know what you know about this thing which, as I understand it, is what the Dayton Company is complaining about. Is that how little you know about the business? A. We have not made any complaint.

Q. This telegram refers to a letter signed by Mr. Riley. was Mr. Riley authorized to sign the letter which was incorporated in that telegram? A. In so far as I know yes, he is authorized by the executive committee.

Q. Did you know prior to the time that he sent that letter that he was going to send it? A. I did not.

Q. Did your store know anything about it? A. If I did? Mr. Dayton may have known. If he did, he did not say anything to me about it.

Q. Wouldn't he, in the ordinary course of his business in the line of conferring with you as your executive position in the store, mention such an important thing to you? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Did anyone else in the store know anything about it? A. I do not think so.

Q. Well, if Mr. Dayton mentioned it at all, he would mention it to you? A. I would think so.

Q. And if anybody else knew anything about it, then Mr. Dayton is the only one who knew anything about 8738 that? A. If he received such a letter, I do not know that he received such a letter.

Q. When did you first see this telegram? A. The day it came into the store.

Q. You saw it immediately upon its receipt or very soon afterwards? A. Well, I presume reasonably soon.

Q. Did you discuss it at all? A. Yes, there was some discussion of it.

Q. Well, did you not ask Mr. Dayton whether or not he had seen that letter before you went out under Mr. Riley's signature, as being authorized by the Dayton Company? A. No, I did not ask Mr. Dayton that.

Q. Did you inquire as to whether or not Mr. Riley had authority to write that letter or had obtained proper 8739 authority prior to writing it? A. I did not have any occasion to inquire.

Q. In other words, so far as you were concerned and the Dayton Store was concerned, if Mr. Riley had not specifically requested the Dayton Company's authority to send this letter, you would ratify his action in sending the letter on behalf of the Dayton Company? A. Will you state that complicated question again, please?

Q. Very simple question, Mr. Larson. If Mr. Riley did not ask for authority from the Dayton Company to send the letter which he did send, then the Dayton Company was ratifying his action in sending the letter? A. If he did not ask it and we granted it, that would ratify it. I would say that under those circumstances we had ratified it, yes.

Q. Do you know what prompted the sending of this letter by Mr. Riley? A. Do I know what prompted sending the letter?

Q. Yes. A. Do I of my own personal knowledge know what prompted it?

8741 Q. I am not asking you to put yourself in Mr. Riley's shoes. I am asking you, do you know why the letter was sent, in plain language? A. It is quite obvious.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the question. I object to the form of the question.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it has been answered. He said he knew. He said it was quite obvious.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What was the reason it was sent? A. Part of the controversy.

Q. What controversy? A. Between the F.O.G.A. and the A.M.C. stores and the other stores that were engaged in the controversy at that time.

8742 Q. What was the controversy? In other words, what was all the shooting about, do you know? A. I have my own opinion of what it was about. You are asking me if I know, that is a different matter.

Q. Well, let us have your opinion as to the controversy in hand and predicated upon which you ratified Mr. Riley's letter. A. Our understanding of the controversy was that the A.M. C. felt that the original agreement that the A.M.C. made and several of the A.M.C. stores only included or bound them on price lines at $10.75 and above.

Q. You accented the fact? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. I say, you accented your statement with respect to the A.M.C. agreement? A. Right.

Q. Was that in conflict with your agreement? A. We had no such agreement. Obviously, it is a matter of record. We had an agreement covering down to these price lines.

Q. And, despite that signed agreement, which was the definite commitment of the Dayton Store, you felt that you were perfectly satisfied to have your declaration of co-operation sent back in order to stand in line with Mr. 8744
Riley's letter and the other A.M.C. stores, is that correct? A. We would have been satisfied to have it sent back, which was not done. It was not sent back.

Mr. Albert: May I have that last question and answer?

(Question and answer read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, if we were to substitute the words "deem withdrawn" for the words "sent back," would your answer be the same?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to that.

The Witness: You say, would we have been satisfied? 8745

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I believe that your answer was that you felt satisfied to have the Guild take the action that it did, except that it did not send back the declaration of co-operation. You are referring to the phyical fact that the declaration of co-operation was not physically mailed back, were you not? A. We were not concerned whether they mailed it back, or not.

Q. Is it a fair statement, then, to say, Mr. Larson, that, except for the fact that Mr. Riley sent a letter, as set forth in Commission's Exhibit 704-A and B for Identification, and the desire of the Dayton's Store to follow with the other A.M.C. stores and ratified by Mr. Riley's letter, the Dayton Store would to-day still be co-operating?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Will you state that again? These are very involved questions you ask.

8747 (Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is too ambiguous, it seems to me.

The Witness: No one can answer that question.

Examiner Bennett: Can you answer it?

The Witness: I cannot answer such a question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You understand the question, do you not, Mr. Larson? A. Do I understand the question?

Q. Yes. A. I think as much as anyone could understand such an involved thing. There is a print question of authority involved there. I do not know that I am either authorized or qualified to state whether or not it 8748 would be satisfactory to the Dayton Company.

Mr. Albert: May I have 602, 601, 602, 695, 673?

(Paper writings were handed to counsel.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 601-A, Mr. Larson, and ask you if you ever saw that before? A. I could not positively state that I saw this identical—this form. My recollection is that these were drawn either by the chairman or possibly a committee, and the contents were then discussed and my recollection is that a revised agreement was then drawn or copied, was sent in. That is my best recollection.

Q. Can you give us in chronological order Commission's Exhibit 703-A with respect to 601? A. Yes, I think 601 was the first draft. And what is the number of this?

Q. 703. A. 601 and 703. My belief is that 601 was the first draft and 703 was the second draft.

Q. Immediately following 601? A. Well, I cannot say it was immediately following.

Q. Well, were there any other drafts between 601 and 8750
703? A. Not to my knowledge, not to my knowledge.

Q. Now, can you tell us the chronological order of Respondents' Exhibit 60-A with respect to the two previous exhibits, 601 and— A. You are asking now the order in which 703-A and 60-A?

Q. Right? A. Well, it would be my recollection that 60-A was the latter draft.

Q. That would be after 601 and— A. After 601 and 703.

Q. And 703? A. That would be my recollection.

Q. Can you tell us the order of Commission's Exhibit 672-A?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness was not interrogated about that. I say, I did not 8751 ask him about that exhibit.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Haycraft: I did not ask him about the exhibit which has been handed to him.

Mr. Albert: No; all Mr. Haycraft did was put in a draft of another agreement, which has upset the whole line that we so patiently worked on this morning.

Mr. Haycraft: I move that be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: I move the statement of counsel be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken as to the personal statement.

The Witness: Now, may I have the question, please?

(Question read.)

A. Well, this one (indicating), there is no number on this one Here it is, 672-A. I cannot tell you the order on that.

8753

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 695, and ask whether or not, regardless of the order of the previous drafts which you have been shown, this was the final agreement, which was entered into? A. I—well, I testified before that I have no recollection of signing the second agreement. Now, I do not recall it.

Q. Do you question at all that your signature is affixed to the instrument, or do you mean you just do not recall having signed it? A. I do not recall having signed it.

Q. There is no doubt in your mind that you did sign it? A. I would not question if they have a signed agreement.

Mr. Haycraft: Right at this time, I call for the signed agreement.

Examiner Bennett: The original?

Mr. Haycraft: The original.

Examiner Bennett: All right. The original will be produced if there is any question as to authenticity.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to the Court Commission's Exhibit 695-A is in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 4, that the copy was supplied to Mr. Seidman, the Commission's investigator, to check and recheck as to the accuracy thereof, and as a result of the Commission's having put this document into evidence as Commission's Exhibit 4, we haven't the original copy, and it has been put into evidence by the Commission without any question whatsoever as to the authenticity of the questions thereon.

I do not understand the purpose of Mr. Haycraft's question. Is he now challenging the fact 8756 that this was signed?

Mr. Haycraft: I am just wondering. You are challenging the witness. I think the best thing, today, if you are going to ask this witness, is to produce the agreement where his signature can be seen.

Mr. Albert: The witness has testified he does not doubt it was signed, but he does not recall having signed it.

Mr. Haycraft: He said he did not doubt, if you ·d the signature, he signed it.

Mr. Albert: Will you wire to New York for that?

Examiner Bennett: Well, it is within the power of the respondents to clear up this matter.

Mr. Albert: I have asked Mr. Post to wire to 8757
New York for the original.

Mr. Feldman: The only question is as to how long it will take to get here, but we will wire.

Examiner Bennett: It is not a matter of emergency.

Mr. Albert: We will be here for a couple of days.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Larson, when was the first time that the Dayton Company announced its intention of supporting the Guild program with respect to style piracy? A. You mean in regard to any communications to the Guild?

Q. Yes. A. Well, I would say somewhere in the last part of June or first of July in 1933.

Q. Not before then? A. No.

Q. You are positive of that? A. Yes. You mean that we indicated to them?

Q. Yes. A. Well, I have no recollection of any communication to them that either agreed or disagreed with 8759 their program.

Q. Did you authorize anyone to indicate to the Fashion Originators Guild the fact that you supported their program? A. Did we authorize anyone to? You mean a written authorization?

Q. Either written or oral. A. I don't know. We may have stated during our meetings that we were sympathetic toward the movement. As a matter of fact, we probably did during their discussions.

Q. Prior to the receipt of Commission's Exhibit 696, had you at all taken up the question of co-operating with the Guild program? A. Pardon me? I couldn't hear that.

(Question read.)

8760 The Witness: Taken up with the F.O.G.A.?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Taken up with anyone. A. I have no recollection of taking it up with—I don't believe we took it up with anyone else except the Guild.

Q. Had you had any discussion prior to that exhibit with respect to the policy of the Guild as to whether or not you— A. Yes, I had heard and taken part in some discussions.

Q. With whom? A. During our meetings that were called by the Minneapolis group to discuss this movement. 8761

Q. But aside from this discussion with the Minneapolis group, you had not in any way taken it up with anybody directly in the F.O.G.A.? A. Not to my recollection.

Q. As a result of the discussion that you had with the Minneapolis group, had you made any inquiry of the F.O.G.A. prior to the receipt of Commission's Exhibit 696 with respect to its support? A. I have no recollection of any correspondence with the Guild about the movement. We thought—we understood, at least in a general way, what the movement was in its object.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 602 and ask you whether or not you or Mr. Dayton or Mr. Donovan or anybody else connected with the Dayton Store authorized the listing of the Dayton Store as a co-operating store at that time? 8762

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness testified with respect to that on direct examination; a mere repetition of it.

Examiner Bennett: Overrule the objection. He may answer, if he knows.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

The Witness: I remember this (indicating). I remember this letter. It—at least, we would construe it to say that we agreed to their program. This is a result of one of the early meetings, discussing it, we would construe it to mean that we subscribed to all of it. 8763

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Isn't that the only thing that existed between the Dayton Company and the F.O.G.A. with respect to its acknowledgment of the programs of the F.O.G.A. down to 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: 1935? That is objected to, contrary to the witness' testimony.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Witness: No, it is not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, do I take it, then, that the affixing of the name of the Dayton Company to Commission's Exhibit 602 was authorized? A. It was agreed to.

Q. What was Dayton's conception of the evils, abuses and handicaps of the industry that it intended to support 8765 when it permitted its name to be affixed to that exhibit, Commission's Exhibit 602?

The Witness: Will you read the question, please?

(Question read.)

The Witness: First, I would like to submit that this does not agree to any program to remedy the evils. We have never admitted, nor did we recognize that they were evils. We merely stated in there that we were sympathetic toward it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, what were you in sympathy with? A. The movement and the claims that they would be helpful to the industry.

8766 Q. What was meant by this phrase or sentence, Commission's Exhibit 602, to which you have permitted the name of the Dayton Company to be affixed: "It will be their intentions to support only such manufacturers that are ethical, and have high ideals and standards and to endeavor to use every reasonable safeguard to prevent the plagiarism, pirating and copying of style"? A. I don't know what it meant. You had the man who wrote it here this morning. Ask him.

Q. Do you mean to tell this Commission that the Dayton Company permitted itself to be listed as a store supporting the principles laid down in Commission's Exhibit 602 without knowing what it meant? Is that what you want this Commission to believe? Is it the policy of the Dayton Store? A. Are you asking me a question?

Q. Yes. A. We did not subscribe to that. We merely said we were sympathetic toward that movement. That is all it states in your letter.

Q. The letter states: "The following members of the Minneapolis Ready-to-Wear Retailers Association," and you are listed as being a member, is that correct? A. We attended that meeting. 8768

Q. Were you a member? A. Of the Retail Dealers Association?

Q. Minneapolis Ready-to-Wear Retailers Association? A. At that particular time, there was no organization. There was merely a meeting of a group.

Q. Did you wish to be accepted in that group? A. We considered ourselves in it.

Q. When you permitted yourself to be listed in this letter, you meant to be included in that Minneapolis group, isn't that so? A. We assumed that we were included.

Q. Aside from whether you assumed that you were included, or not, did you intend to make a representation in that letter that was not so as to your being a member of that group? A. I would like to call your attention to the fact, if you please—— 8769

Q. Certainly, call attention. A. There was no agreement there. We signed no letter. The chairman of that drew it up, quoting the stores that were present and quoting the sentiment of the meeting, that they were sympathetic to this movement.

Q. You were present? A. My recollection is I was present at that particular meeting.

Q. You did not dissent in any way from this letter going out? A. I have no recollection even that a letter was authorized to be sent. That was the sentiment expressed at the meeting.

Q. If Mr. Bjorkman testified that this letter was authorized and consented to by every representative of every one of the stores listed there, was he wrong in his testimony about it? A. We did not dissent to it, I can tell you that.

Q. You were present when the letter was discussed and the contents declared? A. When the letter was prepared?

Q. Yes. A. I could not testify to that. That letter was 8771 not prepared at the meeting to the best of my recollection.

Q. Didn't you know the substance of this letter before it went out? A. If you mean by that did I read the letter, no.

Q. Was it read to you over the telephone? A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Was the substance of it discussed by you and told to you by Mr. Bjorkman or anybody else? A. Not after the letter was drafted.

Q. Did you assist in the drafting of the letter? A. I did not.

Q. Did you know what was going to be sent? A. No. I didn't know the exact statement.

Q. Despite the fact that you did not know what was sent and you did not know whether there was any au-

8772 thorization to send it, you did not know what the contents of it was at the time it was sent; you want this Commission to believe that the Dayton Company permitted its name to be affixed to this document without knowing what was going out? A. We expressed out attitude at the meeting that we were sympathetic toward the movement.

Q. Did you also express your attitude to be: "In fairness to the manufacturers' aims, purposes and objectives, to eliminate the evils, abuses, and handicaps of the industry, naturally, it will be their intentions to support only such manufacturers that are ethical, and have high ideals and standards, and to endeavor to use every reasonable safeguard to prevent the plagiarism, pirating and copying of style"? Did you also subscribe to that? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Well, what were you in sympathy with, if you were not in sympathy with that? A. We were in sympathy with the general movement to, as far as possible and practicable, to discourage copying.

Q. What do you mean by "copying"? A. Reproducing one manufacturer's style by another manufacturer.

Q. And do you agree that that practice is an unethical 8774 practice? A. Why, I have no particular opinion on it one way or the other, no strong opinion on it.

Q. In other words, copying is cheating, isn't it? A. I don't know; I cannot say as to that.

Q. Let's all go back to our old school days. We liked to call it copying, but the teacher called it cheating, didn't she?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Mr. Albert: I think I ought to be allowed a little latitude with this witness, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: What was the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that. 8775

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know what plagiarism is, Mr. Larson? A. I could not define it positively.

Q. Do you know what the pirating of a style is? A. No, I do not. I never heard the expression until recent years.

Q. What is your conception of the meaning of the expression to-day? A. Well, I presume, at least it is my opinion that they mean by it the copying of a style that someone else has had the designer produce for them. That is only my conception of what it means.

Examiner Bennett: If you have any opinion on that, you may answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, let us turn to Commission's Exhibit No. 605, which I believe you testified you dictated. A. Pardon me? Is this a draft that I testified to my recollection I dictated?

8777 Q. Yes (handing document to witness). A. Well, that is not one and the same thing.

Q. Of course not. A. Well, this is the accompanying letter.

Q. Right. Now, you dictated Commission's Exhibit No. 605, did you not? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Are you in the habit of using words, the meaning of which you do not know? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, now, from your dictation, will you be good enough to explain to us what you mean by "Naturally, it will be their intention to support only those manufacturers who are ethical and have high standards, and they will endeavor to use every reaonable safeguard to prevent plagiarism, pirating and copying of designs"? Now, what do you mean by your language in that instance? A. You 8778 ask what we mean when we say this?

Q. Yes. A. To the best of our ability, I would say that meant what we stated.

Q. Do you know the meaning of the word "ethical" in the letter?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let you answer, if you can.

The Witness: I cannot define "ethical."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How many years have you been with the Dayton Company, Mr. Larson? A. A long time, thirty years or more.

Q. Do you mean to tell me that for the thirty years you have been with the Dayton Company, have reached the position that you occupy, and you cannot tell me what is ethical and unethical conduct? A. You asked me to define it.

Q. What did you mean by the use of the word "ethical" in your dictated statement in Commission's Exhibit No. 605? A. I can tell you our conception of ethical is fair dealing, if that satisfies you. 8780

Q. In what respect were you using the term "fair dealing," in which you dictated? A. We said here that we would support manufacturers who were ethical. Most of these manufacturers are people who we have been doing business with for years, many of them; we were satisfied that they were responsible, fair dealing houses, and we continued to do business with them.

Q. What conduct did you have in mind when you were distinguishing this conduct as being ethical from some other conduct that was unethical? What was the unethical conduct that you had in mind? A. I don't know that we had any particular definition of unethical conduct in mind.

Q. What did you mean by "unfair dealing," that you would not deal with others that were unfair? A. I don't know that we had any particular group in mind. If they were a group of houses that were committed to practices which are generally conceded to be unfair, we would have no disposition to support them. 8781

Q. I do not wish to know, Mr. Larson, out of fairness to you, which houses you considered as using unfair conduct, but I would like you to tell me what it is that you have reference to, what conduct it was you believed was unfair and had reference to in that statement. Forget any specific house you might be thinking of. I just want an understanding of what you thought was unfair.

Mr. Haycraft: Object to that. There is nothing in the exhibit to indicate anything about unfairness.

Mr. Albert: The witness is attempting to enlighten us as to what he meant by the term "unethical."

Examiner Bennett: I will let you answer, if you have an answer.

8783 Mr. Albert: Thank you.

The Witness: Read that question again. It is a very involved question.

(Question read.)

The Witness: Well, that is an extremely difficult question, I would say, to answer. I could possibly cite if that were a house or houses which the Guild would call attention to as people that this association we were writing to resorted to practices that were unreasonable or unfair or what they termed "unethical," if it was called to our attention, I think we would instruct our people not to patronize them.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the answer be read?

8784 Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, the answer being repeated. It is not the witness' fault that counsel does not listen to it.

Mr. Albert: I throw myself on the mercy of Mr. Haycraft, and ask permission that the stenographer read the answer to me.

Mr. Haycraft: I think, Mr. Albert, when counsel asks the witness questions, the witness is entitled to the courtesy of having counsel listen to his reply.

Mr. Albert: I could not follow the answer.

Examiner Bennett: Read the answer.

(Answer read.)

Mr. Albert: Now, I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive. I did not ask him what he would do. I asked him what it was and what conduct deemed to be unfair in accordance with his statement in Commission's Exhibit No. 605. I would like to get a statement of what the practice is of those who co-operate with the Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert. 8786

Q. What unfair or unreasonable practices are there you stated you would not support in your last answer?

Examiner Bennett: What was that question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. I think we have gone far enough into that.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is the unfair, unethical or unreasonable conduct to which you have reference to copying by some manufacturers of original styles produced by other manufacturers? 8787

(Question was read.)

The Witness: My answer would be in there unless possibly under particularly—particular circumstances the mere copying would not necessarily constitute unethical conduct.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. But you are referring to a general situation. Perhaps there were specific cases, but we are talking now about something that is prevalent in the industry. That is all I am talking about.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Previous question read.)

The Witness: That was just answered.

Mr. Haycraft: He has answered.

Mr. Albert: That is satisfactory, your Honor.

The Examiner: Yes, it is answered.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 701 and ask if any transmittal letter was sent with that? A. I didn't hear 8789 that.

Q. Was any transmittal letter sent with Commission's Exhibit 701? A. Not to my recollection. This is a letter. This is a letter.

Q. Yes, but was any explanatory letter of any kind sent along with it? A. Not to my recollection.

Q. That was sent in exactly as is to the Guild, is that so? A. That is correct, to the best of my recollection. This is three years ago.

Q. And I believe at the time this was identified by you, you stated that that illustrated your frame of mind, isn't that the phrase that you used? A. Yes.

Q. What was your frame of mind with respect to style piracy when you sent this Commission's Exhibit 701 in to 8790 the Guild? A. Well, I think I testified before that the term "style piracy"—I never heard of it before, never knew that we had—never considered nor found it an evil. They apparently felt that it was a very serious evil, that these efforts were being organized to reduce at least vicious copying. They simply termed it "style piracy." I never heard the term used before.

Q. That is, up to that time, what had previously been referred to in the industry as the copying of styles was labelled "style piracy"; is that what you mean? A. Apparently they elected that term.

Q. But prior to that time, copying of styles was known to you; was it not? I mean, are you distinguishing now the fact that commencing on or about that period the practice in the industry of copying styles began to be known as "style piracy," but prior to that time had not been so designated? A. Why, I don't assume that that was the truth. They called it copying instead of "style piracy."

Mr. Albert: I think it is about time for our usual adjournment.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will take a 8792 short recess of about ten minutes.

(A short recess was had.)

Examiner Bennett: You may resume.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I believe you testified, Mr. Larson, that you dictated Commission's Exhibit 703-A? A. To the best of my recollection, I dictated this particular draft.

Q. Did you also dictate the following: "And believing these principles to be fair and necessary for the proper protection of the public, the retailer, and the manufacturer"?

Mr. Haycraft: Is that all? 8793

Q. (Continuing) "We wish to go on record as intending to co-operate toward attaining that protection subject to the rules and regulations adopted by the Minneapolis Fashion Guild." Did you dictate that? A. I dictated it.

Q. Did you also dictate the following: "The Fashion Originator members will not sell their product to anyone within the City of Minneapolis not a member in good standing of the Minneapolis Fashion Retailers Guild"? A. Did I believe that they would do it?

Q. Did you dictate that? A. I dictated it, yes.

Q. Was that dictated at your instigation? A. No.

Q. Was that suggested as a result of a desire on the part of the Dayton Company to have that clause included in the agreement? A. No, not at all.

Q. The Dayton Company was not in favor of having that clause in the agreement; is that what you mean? A. We would have preferred that it hadn't been in.

Q. In other words, you were not in favor of that clause being in there? A. No.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

8795 Examiner Bennett: Anything more?

Mr. Haycraft: Nothing more.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: Am I excused?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Haycraft: I will have Mr. Snyder come forward at this time.

PERRY W. SNYDER was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

8796 Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I believe a great number of times thus far the respondent has requested that witnesses or persons intended to be called as witnesses be excluded from the hearing. We had that same matter come up this morning. I believe this gentleman has been here present while I was cross-examining Mr. La son, and while it is quite true that I don't protest his being present, because I was busy cross-examining Mr. Larson, I wish to protest the fact that I was not informed by the Commission that anybody was present whom they intended to call as witnesses. I think it has been sufficiently manifested by the respondent that we do not care to have people present, especially during cross-examination, who are intended to be called as a witness.

Examiner Bennett: The matter is not one of vital importance. It is a matter of discretion.

Mr. Haycraft: I can't hear you, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: I say the matter is not a 8798 vital matter. It is one of discretion and I am not going into that. I will ask, however, that the Commission not have witnesses who are to cover the same ground in the room while other witnesses are testifying.

Mr. Haycraft: That has been observed, Mr. Examiner, from the beginning.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Haycraft: I say that policy has been observed from the very beginning at your request.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I don't think Mr. Haycraft should assume the responsibility that testimony given by a witness will not be covered by any other witness. I am quite willing to believe 8799 that as far as Mr. Haycraft's intentions are concerned that he doesn't believe that one witness will testify to the same thing as another witness will testify to. But we don't know what is going to happen on examination.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I would like to call the attention of the Court that this witness only came into the court room after the recent recess, and I think he was only here while Mr. Albert asked probably three questions, during which time he was reading some papers here.

Examiner Bennett: Well, that was my observation. I was not sure about that, but at any rate we are not going into that.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You have been sworn? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: What is the name?
The Witness: Snyder, S-n-y-d-e-r.

8801 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. State your first name for the record. A. Perry W. Snyder.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Snyder? A. Minneapolis.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Merchandise manager, Powers Mercantile Company.

Q. What business is that concern engaged in? A. Department store.

Q. What do you have under your supervision as merchandise manager? A. What is generally known as the apparel division.

Q. Does that include ladies' ready-to-wear? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been divisional merchandise manager of Powers Mercantile Company? A. Ten years.

8802 Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 599-A and B, and ask if you can identify that in any way? A. Yes, sir. A letter written to Mr. Roy Bjorkman, January 17, 1933.

Q. Written by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall the occasion of sending this letter to Mr. Bjorkman? A. I do not.

Q. There isn't any question in your mind but what you sent it? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recognize your signature? A. Yes, sir.

8803

Q. Do you have any independent recollection of the meetings of the ready-to-wear men in Minneapolis at the Athletic Club where the matter of the program of the Fashion Originators Guild of America was discussed? A. Only a faint recollection that at about that time the plan of the Guild program was outlined to us and being an important thing in the ready-to-wear business we discussed it.

Q. Do you recall now who outlined it to you? A. I think Mr. Bjorkman acted as chairman at that meeting.

Q. Did he explain what the program was of the Guild? A. I don't recall it well enough. I believe that we read some—whatever correspondence we had at that time regarding it.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 454-A to M, and ask you to examine it and see whether or not you are familiar with the correspondence included among those exhibits. Have you examined the papers I have handed you? A. Yes.

Q. Have you seen the originals of those photostats or anything similar to them? A. I don't know whether I have seen the originals of these or not.

Q. You have observed the dates on them? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not the subject-matter of those exhibits was discussed at the meetings you attended in January, 1933, as shown by Commission's Exhibits 599-A and B?

8805

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I would like to warn the witness to look at the date on the exhibit that he has there and to look at the date on the exhibit that is supposed—allegedly is the letter, and I would like to point out to the Commission that the letter in the hands of the witness at the present time is dated some time in June. The letter which he wrote is dated some time in January. I don't see how that letter can refresh his recollection with respect to the contents of his letter in January. I object to the materiality of the question.

Mr. Haycraft: I move that the statement of counsel for the respondent be stricken as surplusage, and improper, and indiscreet, and discourteous.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the date on the exhibits that you have in your hand? A. December 16, 1932.

8807 Q. What is the date of the letter that I showed you, Commission's Exhibits 599-A and B? A. January 17, 1933.

Q. Now I will ask you my question again.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, I want to apologize to Mr. Haycraft. I thought that the letter that the witness had was the other Rentner letter of some time in June.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

A. I can't recall that far back distinctly enough to tell you.

8808

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you recall whether any correspondence with the Guild was read in the meeting by Mr. Bjorkman? A. No; I don't recall that there was any direct correspondence read.

Q. Do you recall whether or not he read to you or allowed you to examine his so-called declaration of cooperation of the Guild at that time? A. I do not recall that we did. I can only assume that we did from my own letter.

Q. And you refer to Commission's Exhibit 599-A and B? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. In this letter you have stated: "It is our belief at Powers that the Program and contract as outlined by Fashion Originators Guild of America is not wholly practical and not one to which we can subscribe to the extent of signing it." Will you tell me whether you have any recollection as to what you had in mind when you made that statement? A. We were beginning—we were just at the beginning of the discussions of the Guild program at 8810 that time, and I presume that was our feeling at that particular time, when we were not fully acquainted with the plan and program.

Q. Do you recall now what there was in the plan that you did not consider practical at that time? A. No, I do not. I think it was things we did not fully understand at the time.

Q. Did you ever sign a declaration of co-operation? A. No. By that I take it that you mean——

Q. By your own firm? A. The Fashion Guild form.

Q. Yes. I mean by that, did the Power Mercantile Company ever sign a formal form of co-operation in anti-piracy between it and the Fashion Guild of America? A. Independently, no.

Q. Referring to the first, second, third and fourth numbered paragraphs of this letter—and I will not read it 8811 into the record—I will ask you whether or not there were questions in your mind or they comprised questions in your mind at the time you wrote that letter?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. The exhibit is in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(The question was read.)

A. The letter states that there were questions in our mind at that time.

Q. What I am trying to find is whether or not you now subscribe to the statements that you made in your letter at that time, that is all. Not entirely, no.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you please read the question?

(The question was read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. By that you mean some other points were cleared up since that time?

8813

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, leading the witness.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. Well, that is a big question. I would say that many of points have been cleared up since that time.

Q. Would you say that all of them had (handing paper to witness)? A. Yes, in a degree.

Q. Will you explain that answer? A. Well, the first question is: What is a copy and what is an adaptation? I think it has been proven since then that is doesn't make any difference.

Q. That they are one and the same thing, you mean? A. No; not necessarily the same thing, but at that time there must have been some reason in our minds to—as to the use of the term "copy" and "adaptation."

8814

Q. What is the distinction between the two? A. It is a very difficult thing to answer, and I think that the time has proven that it doesn't make any difference.

Q. What do you mean "it doesn't make any difference"? A. Because we have been, so far as the Guild is concerned, dealing entirely in whether the merchandise were copies or not.

Q. Not dealing with whether they were adaptations? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. In your judgment and opinion what is the difference between a copy and an adaptation? A. A copy in my personal opinion is where a direct copy of it is made, as far as the style is concerned; and adaptation is taking certain general ideas from the original and making it into another number, making it into another item.

Q. In your opinion, is there apt to be any confusion between the two? A. Somewhat, yes.

Q. That is what you had in mind when writing that paragraph in the letter? A. That is right.

Q. What about the second point? Has that been cleared up? A. Yes. 8816

Q. How has that been cleared up? A. In that we have not had the trouble with the getting satisfactory merchandise in the lower price lines that we anticipated at that particular time.

Q. By that you mean——

Mr. Keller: Will you speak louder, please?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What about the next point? A. Yes; I think that has been answered in our experience since.

Q. In what way? A. The fact that we have been able to get merchandise which eliminated this thing which seemed like a problem at that particular time. 8817

Q. What was the problem at that time? A. The foregoing plan preventing a particular style from being sold at any price except the one at which it was originally brought out.

Q. And what is your answer to that? A. I say that time has proven, experience since that time has proven that the problem which we anticipated here has not developed. In other words, similar merchandise is available which answers the purpose for an original style.

Q. What about the next one? A. Our experience has answered that question also.

Q. What is the answer? A. It has been satisfactorily answered in that we have been able to obtain—let me change that answer. I have gotten it incorrect. I would say in this that there are some cases where exact copies are not available to stores handling Guild merchandise but that we have found that similar merchandise is available satisfactory to take the place.

Q. By "satisfactory to take the place," you mean it will sell equally as well as so-called hot numbers of non-Guild manufacturers?

8819 Mr. Albert: That are copies of Guild manufacturers, I think is what the witness said.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where do you get the garments? Do you get those garments from Guild manufacturers? A. You mean copies of other Guild merchandise?

Q. You said something could be used in place of the copies of the Guild manufacturers which you said sold just as well? A. Not from Guild.

Q. Where do you get those? A. Where do we get them? We get them from other dress manufacturers. They may be Guild and they may not.

8820 Q. Then, I take it, from your testimony that your competitors who are not co-operating with the Guild, have no advantage over you in the sale of low-priced merchandise in the Minneapolis market; is that correct? A. Very little, if any.

Q. Would you say that is true of Lerner's?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, no foundation.

The Witness: I don't know whether I can answer that question. What is the question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Can you answer that?

The Witness: I said I don't believe I can answer that question.

Examiner Bennett: I see. In other words, you don't know whether it is true or not?

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I take it, then, you are 100 per cent. sold on the Guild program at the present time and are an active member of the local Minneapolis Guild? 8822

Mr. Albert: If the witness can answer that question 100 per cent., your Honor.

The Witness: It contains two questions.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you sold on the Guild program, Fashion Originators Guild, 100 per cent. at the present time? A. I don't think that it is possible to say 100 per cent.

Q. Are you a member of the Minneapolis local Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have been since it was organized? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Now, in this second numbered paragraph: "Can we afford to shut ourselves off from that broad section of the market which now, particularly on the lower-priced lines that are so important, get most of its style inspiration from the creation of the higher-priced manufacturers"—Was it true at the time that you wrote this letter that there was a broad section of the market that got most of its style creation from the higher-priced manufacturers? 8823

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. The exhibit speaks for itself. We are now going back on direct examination of the witness as to what he has already testified to. It has been rather difficult to determine whether Mr. Haycraft is questioning on direct or whether he is cross-examining, but I think this is patent cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: The witness, as I understood it, said that is his conception, or was his conception at the time of the situation.

Mr. Haycraft: I think that is true.

8825 Examiner Bennett: Well, I presume it is true in all particulars if it is true. I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, then, I will ask the witness whether or not there is at the present time a broad section of the market that gets most of its inspiration from the creations of higher-priced manufacturers.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to. It has been previously testified to by the witness.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

8826 A. I think that probably is a little true.

Q. Is that still true? A. Yes.

Q. And when you say your question had been answered, you did not mean that the market had changed, but you referred to your ability to get other garments; is that it? A. I think the market has changed somewhat, perhaps, but I think the thing which seemed to be a big problem at that time has not been proven to be as much of a problem as we expected it to be.

Q. But it still is a problem? A. If it were not, there would be no occasion for the Guild's efforts.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that the answer be stricken.

Mr. Albert: If Mr. Haycraft leads with his chin, I don't think we should be blamed if he is hit.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that the witness be instructed to give a responsive answer.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken. Please answer. Read the question.

(The record was read.)

By Mr. Bennett. 8828

Q. Just answer whether it is or not, whether at the present time it is still a problem. A. Yes, it is still a problem.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. That is all.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. At the time you wrote this letter of January 17, 1933, Mr. Snyder, you stated: "While we are in accord with the principles in respect to style piracy, we cannot sign this agreement." What were the abuses of style piracy, to which you have reference?

Mr. Feldman (indicating paper writing): Third paragraph. 8829

A. The copying of—the copying of styles of merchandise, styles of dresses at lower prices.

Q. Woud you say that that abuse has been somewhat eliminated as a result of the Guild program?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Albert: That comes into the question, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. Yes, we believe that some improvement has been made.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

8831 DAYNE DONOVAN was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. State your name. A. Dayne Donovan.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Donovan? A. 2212 Newton, South.

Q. Minneapolis? A. Minneapolis.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I am a division merchandise manager with the Dayton Company.

Q. How long have you occupied that position? A. I was merchandise manager for the Dayton Company since 1923.

8832 Q. Have you been manager during that entire time? A. Yes; I have, in various departments, not always the same.

Q. How long have you occupied your present position? A. Three years.

Q. Before that what position did you occupy? A. Well, I had a similar position but a fewer number of departments.

Q. What departments do you have under your supervision now? A. You would like them by number or by description?

Q. Both. A. Department 300, women's and misses' suits department; Department 310, women's coats.

Q. Would you mind giving the price range, if you can, on these? A. All right. Suits——

Q. Women's and misses' suits? A. Misses' suits, all ranges, from, well, roughly, $7.95 to $195. And, of course, includes summer items, linens, and things like that.

Mr. Albert: Retail price?

The Witness: I am giving you the retails right through. Women's coats, the same is true.

By Mr. Haycraft.

8834

Q. 310? A. 310. That is 310, $7.95 to $195, $250, perhaps. Misses' coats, 320, the same range as women's coats. 312, larger-sized coats, the same ranges as the other departments. 332, larger-sized dresses running from $8.95 to $100. 333, women's model shop dresses from $39.50 to $200. 353, misses' model shop dresses, the same price ranges as the women's. 334, women's Barbara Lee dresses.

Mr. Albert: Women's what?

The Witness: We call them Barbara Lee. They are medium priced dresses ranging from $17.95 in the summer to $35. And 354, misses' medium priced Barbara Lee dresses, the same price range. 338, women's budget dresses ranging from $5.95 retail to $19.95, to $22.95. And 358, misses' budget dresses, the same price ranges as the women's. 371, junior or sub-deb coats, suits, dresses, and sports wear, ranging from all prices; starts at a dollar in sports items, and up. And the next is Department 380 on sports wear. Again price ranges vary with the article carried from $1.95 up to $200.

8835

Q. May I interrupt just a moment? Is this Department 371—you say it has coats, suits, dresses, and what else? A. Sports wear, junior sports wear in junior sizes.

Q. Well, the dresses and suits, where do they begin? A. Dresses and suits the same as the other suit departments, from $7.95 up to $69.50 or $59.50, as the occasion requires.

Q. How about the 380? A. 380 is the sports wear department, and we carry a large variety of items in the sport department, some of them like slacks and shorts from $1.95 up to $8 or $10 and so on. It is hard to give you a complete range there, but we carry good ranges in 8837 all departments. And I have one more. Department 390. Blouses and sweaters starting at a dollar on occasion and as high as $18.75. That should be blouses, sweaters and skirts. Pardon me. Are there fourteen departments there, Mr. Haycraft?

Q. Yes. What are your duties in connection with these particular departments you have just enumerated? A. I supervise the selection of the merchandise that goes into those departments. I work with the buyers on occasion in the market, although not regularly. I help the departments in the preparation of advertising plans and the preparation of selling budgets for the season or for the month. I assist in the watching to see that we carry profitable selling lines, that we carry representative assortments at all times and that our merchandise stand-8838 ards are sufficient as the Dayton Company wishes us to have it, in quality and price range. Our selling force is aggressive in doing its job, and I presume fifty other minor things, which are in the regular course of supervision.

Q. Does each one of these departments have a buyer? A. Not each one. Some buyers handle two departments.

Q. When was it that you became merchandise manager in charge of these fourteen departments? A. It was in October, 1933. You understand that I had some of these prior to that time.

Q. What did you have prior to then? A. Prior to that time I had Departments 333, 353, 334, 354, 400 and 371.

Q. What was your title at that time? A. It was divisional merchandise manager, as well.

Q. Who had charge of the other departments, or were they in existence? A. They were in existence. Mr. Allen Phillips has charge of the ones that I have not mentioned.

Q. Will you testify as to who the buyers are at the present time for these various departments and indicate, if you can, their approximate length of service? A. Length of time we have had them in our employ?

Q. Yes. And length of time in the position of buyer in these departments. A. All right. Department 300, 8840 suits. Mrs. Lucille Welch is buyer. She has had the title of buyer for eight months. She assisted in the department and I took direct charge of the purchasing before that time in addition to my duties as divisional merchandise man.

Q. All right. A. Mrs. Nellie Johnstone is in charge of our model frocks shop, is in charge of our four departments, 333, 353, 334 and 343.

Q. That is 333, 343, 353 and 354? A. That is right. Those are generally our better dresses. We comprise what we call the model shop and the Barbara Lee section, and their price range runs from $17.95 although $25 is the regular price line on up to $195 or higher. Mrs. Johnstone came with us, I believe, in August or September, 8841
1933. I wouldn't like to be held too closely on that. I know it has been several years.

Mr. Albert: That is close enough.

The Witness: Now, Mr. Thomson has been buying our inexpensive or budget dresses since last February 1st.

Q. That is 338 and 358? A. 358.

Q. Is he your assistant? A. Prior to that time, he was my assistant in the merchandise office. Then we dispensed with Mrs. Chase, who had been buying the lower-priced dresses, or budget dresses, on the 1st of February, and Mr. Thomson replaced her.

Q. This year? A. This year, possibly '36.

Q. Miss Myrtle Pender has been buying for Departments 312 and 332, the larger-sized departments, I believe, since 1931, considerable length of time in any case. Mrs. Helen Hoefield has been buying Department 371 or the junior or sub-deb apparel, as we call it, since about 8843 1932. Mrs. Florence McKenny has been buying sports wear, Department 380, since February 1st, 1936. And Mrs. Saul, Elizabeth Saul, has been buying the blouses and sweaters since about 1931.

Now, from 1931 to 1936, to February 1st, 1936, Miss Saul also bought sports wear, at which time they divided both of these departments and put Mrs. McKenny in charge of sports wear and Mrs. Saul in charge of the blouses, sweaters and skirts.

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

DAYNE DONOVAN thereupon resumed the stand for the Commission, and, having been previously sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At the last session, Mr. Donovan, you were listing the buyers of the various departments in Dayton's, I think, all except for Departments 310 and 320. A. The buyer there is Mrs. Estelle Baker, and she joined us in June, 1930, as buyer.

Mr. Albert: Is that for both?

The Witness: 310 and 320 both, yes. Am I too far away for you?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What are the functions of the buyers for these various departments? A. Well, the buyers are responsible for the accomplishment of the sales plan which we lay out in two six-month seasons. They are responsible for the gross profits, for the net profits, for the character of merchandise which is shown, for their advertising. In fact, I have heard Mr. Dayton state that he cannot think of anything for which the buyer is not responsible, which pertains to the conduct of their department.

Q. Do they work on a budget for their various departments? A. What sort?

Q. Either buying or selling? A. You mean a stop budget?

Q. Yes. A. They have plan stop budgets figures, and they are planned or presumed to be relatively close to them.

Q. To what extent do they report to you? A. They 8849 report to me, well, I can only say in a general way. I do not hold them for whether or not they stock this line or that line particularly or not—I do expect them to keep fashionable merchandise and keep abreast or probably ahead of our competitors. They consult on advertising plans, on our stock figures from week to week, and on their sales plans and figures, and report to me at the end of each trip as to what they have accomplished.

Q. What are the seasons in Minneapolis observed by Dayton's, buying or selling seasons? A. We start—there is no buying season especially. We start our selling season, on what we call spring lines, February 1st, and it ends the first of August. The fall season starts, of course, on the 1st of August and ends on the 1st of February.

8850 Q. Take the spring lines that you sell from the 1st of February to the 1st of August; when do you buy the garments sold during that time? A. We buy a few of them probably in latter December, a portion in January, another portion in February, and we continue to buy them until I would say July 4th or 6th. We go down on July 5th and we clean up what lines we need.

Q. Do your buyers make more than one trip to market during the season? A. Yes, they make anywhere from two to eight trips or nine trips, depending on the department.

Q. What are the principal markets for women's and misses' dresses, suits, coats, for the spring season? A. Well, New York, that is, of course, the principal market for all of those things that you have mentioned, coats, suits and dresses.

Q. What are the minor markets? A. We use Chicago, some Boston, a little, a trifle perhaps in Philadelphia, not very much, use St. Louis a little, again not very much, and we have been using Los Angeles some, San Francisco a little, and we have a local market where we buy a few things in Minneapolis and St. Paul. The major market, 8852 of course, is New York.

Q. Now, with respect to the fall season, what is your buying practice for garments that you sell in the fall season? Where do you buy them? A. When?

Q. Where and when? A. We start buying fall garments June 15th. We get into it heavily right after the Fourth and we continue very strongly in August and September, October, and a lesser amount in December, a still lesser amount, but still a little in January. Then we are through with fall purchasing.

Q. Do you have the same market for your fall merchandise that you have for your spring? A. Yes, roughly the same. They might vary a per cent. or so, depending on—

Q. Is there any difference between the type of merchandise you purchase for your fall selling season and your 8853 spring selling season? A. Oh, yes, there is a great deal of difference.

Q. Will you describe that? A. Well, the character of the garments is entirely different.

Q. Will you explain? A. Well, a winter coat is quite a different proposition than a spring coat. We sell a great deal more higher-priced winter coats because of the furs, which make them high-priced, because the value in these is more than the average value in the spring coat and they have to be heavier and, as a rule, interlined for us.

In our territory, at least, the price range is quite different in the spring and fall. We seem, in this country, to sell lower-priced merchandise in the spring, although not as large a quantity. Our fall season is the largest and considerably the higher-priced season of the two. The reason is we have about eight months of winter in this country and the women are willing to spend on winter wardrobes, apparently, and less to spend on summer wardrobes. The summer wardrobes are wardrobes which fill in for occasional demand, hot weather, although we 8855 sell some high-priced things in the spring.

Q. Is there any difference in the type or character of dresses or suits sold to women and misses in the fall and spring? A. The same is true. The fabrics that are used in the fall are higher-priced, better fabrics. We sell many more higher-priced dresses in the fall than in the spring by quite a margin. The margin there is very marked.

Q. Are they silk or other fabrics? A. You mean in the fall?

Q. Fall and spring; make a comparison. A. We sell silks in the fall, we sell wool, we also sell a few in the spring, but not many. We sell quite a few synthetic in the fall, sell what we call costumes in our better dress department, which are of better fabrics, higher priced, and usually fur trimmed.

8856 Q. What means do you employ in attracting the trade to your store to buy your merchandise, referring now to the departments under your supervision? A. Well, we have a number of mediums. We use the newspapers. We have a publication of our own, which goes out four times a year, called the "Datonian." We participate in certain magazine promotions which are—which have other stores along with them as well as our own. We use windows and occasionally use mail. I think those are the chief mediums by which we sell our merchandise.

Q. What would you say is relatively the standing of the Dayton Company in the Minneapolis territory as to the volume of women's dresses and suits and coats sold?

Mr. Albert: Objected to as irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: I assume you mean generally, or do you mean the three lines you mentioned?

By Mr. Haycraft. 8858

Q. The garments which are sold in the departments over which you have supervision? A. I believe we sell more in total than any other store.

Q. Now, in addition to the departments which you have described, under your supervision, do Dayton Company have a basement store where garments of this nature are sold? A. Yes, they do.

Q. In your departments, will you testify as to the type of clientele that you cater to? A. I think I could best describe that by saying we cater to the medium and better trade. That is, the person of moderate means on up to the very well-to-do woman. We carry, of course, a good substrata of goods for the distinctly lower-priced women, but our main efforts are directed towards the medium and 8859 better clientele.

Q. How are the garments displayed in the various departments for the public to make their selection? What is the practice in Dayton's as to that? A. Well, the better garments, the higher-priced garments are, as a rule, displayed very sparingly. There may be two or three out to indicate the character of the merchandise we are carrying, and as you work into the lower-priced departments, we have a larger proportion of our garments on the floor, so that the customer can see and select from them.

Q. Now, you say your better garments; what department would you include in that? A. I would call our better dresses, the dresses from Departments 333, 334, 353 and 354. In the other departments we have no separate subdivision between better and lower-priced garments, although I will give you my idea of the price ranges, if you wish.

Q. Will you do it, please? A. Pardon me?

Q. Yes. A. We consider better coats in the fall season from $79.50 up. We carry them in a separate division in our stock and sell them in a separate place. 8861 We carry better suits in with the cheaper suits, but we consider suits as suits retailing from $69.50 up, in the fall season. Our sports wear is not divided. We consider better sports wear as dresses selling from $22.95 up.

Q. Yes. A. Does that cover enough for you?

Q. Yes, that is satisfactory. A. I am referring to the fall season.

Q. Was there any difference in the spring? A. Yes.

Q. What would be the difference? A. In the spring I would call better suits, suits selling from $39.50 up. Better dresses are the same as I have indicated for the fall. Better coats in the spring are coats retailing for $49.50 up.

8862 Mr. Albert: $49?

The Witness: $49.50 up.

A. (Continuing) —and better sports wear would be dresses retailing from $17.95 up. I am leaving knits out of consideration. If you wish me to give them, I will.

Q. Now, your Department 371, known as the junior sub-deb department, I believe, that includes not only coats, suits—not only suits and dresses, but also coats; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And it sells sweaters and such things as that? A. And sweaters, skirts, blouses and knitted apparel in junior sizes.

Q. What portion would you say of that department is given over to the sale of suits and dresses? Would you testify as to that? A. I will endeavor to break them down by sections, if you wish.

Q. All right. A. I would say that 60 per cent. of that department's business is dresses. By that I mean silk and wool daytime and evening dresses. I would say 15 per cent. comes from the sale of coats. I would say another 15 per cent.—I will change that. Ten per cent. from the sale of suits, and the balance—what have I got? 8864
Ninety per cent.? The balance, whatever it may be, is misses' sports wear, knitted apparel, skirts, blouses, a few belts, and things of that kind.

Q. What is the situation in Department 380 in that respect, 380 and 390? A. The percentage?

Q. Yes. A. As to the break-down?

Q. Break them down. A. There I would state again about 60 per cent. of our business comes from the knitted dresses. About 20 per cent. comes from silk and wool and synthetic sports dresses. The balance from such articles as slacks, shorts, Cullottes, knitted sports capes, riding apparel, and one or two very small items. We do not carry bathing suits in that department. Blouses and sweaters, Mr. Haycraft, is a separate section.

Q. In your opinion what reputation does the Dayton 8865
Company bear in this community as a place to obtain women's garments? A. I believe it bears a good reputation. I don't mean to imply that it bears the very best. I think there are a few stores in the country that bear a slightly better reputation for garments, but I think ours is distinctly good.

Q. I am referring, of course, to this community served by Dayton's—and, by the way, how large a territory would you say is served by Dayton's Department Store? From where do your customers come? A. Yes, I understand. Our customers come from over the State of Minnesota, from Montana, the Dakotas, the western part of Wisconsin, the northern part of Iowa, in the main. We get a few requests for certain lines and things from various parts of the country.

Q. In your opinion is there any department store in this area that you have described that has a higher reputation than Dayton's for the character of merchandise that you have to sell in your department? A. I believe that there is no store in this territory that has as high a reputation, as good a reputation.

Q. What factors, in your opinion, are responsible for the reputation that Dayton's has, that the Dayton store has that you have just referred to? A. I believe that reputation is due to careful and conscientious endeavor on the part of the ready-to-wear division to carry the merchandise that the people of the Northwest want, to obtain it no matter what the difficulty for them, if it is at all possible to obtain it, price it fairly, very reasonable in the matter of returns, very truthful in their advertising and manner of presentation of their merchandise.

Q. Does the character or the type of source of supply of garments sold in your department have anything to do with the factors as you have just enumerated them? A. It is a very important part of building and maintaining a reputation.

Q. Will you explain that? A. I mean simply that the kind of merchandise offered as to quality, up-to-dateness in style and a range of assortments by size, by color, and by style selections is a very important factor in maintaining a good reputation in the garment business.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated? A. As a retailer I am fairly well familiar with it.

Q. When did you first learn of its existence? A. In the latter part of 1932 or the early part of 1933.

Q. How did it come to your attention? A. I believe I was informed that Mr. Larson had attended a meeting of Minneapolis retailers at which the Fashion Guild proposition to curb copying was broached to them.

Q. Did Mr. Larson discuss it with you at that time? A. I don't believe I could call it a discussion. He mentioned that there had been such a meeting. I do not know how much importance he attached to it at the time. He recognized, I presume, that there would be a discussion later.

Q. Did you hear any more about it later? A. Yes, late 8870 in the spring of '33.

Q. What occurred? A. I believe that our store was somewhat hesitant as to whether or not the plan proposed was practicable or not, but the Guild informed us that we could not visit the good lines or see the good lines unless we co-operated. I know that there was some form of declaration or some document sent which signified that we would co-operate with them.

Q. Of what importance to a retail dealer such as Dayton's is the opportunity to use lines of display, to see them on the part of the manufacturers? A. Well, we feel that it is of importance, of paramount importance.

Q. Why? A. Because we feel obliged to offer our clientele the best that can be obtained in the market, and 8871 we have to have access to the whole market in order to judge what is best and make selections which we believe will please our customers.

Q. What is the custom of the garment manufacturers with respect to the display of their merchandise at the time they offer it for sale to the retailer? A. Well, custom in what respect, Mr. Haycraft?

Q. How do they display it so that you can see it? What is the custom? What do your buyers do when they go to buy merchandise? A. Well, we see most of the merchan dise, naturally, in the showrooms, displayed on a model living model in the case of the better manufacturers; in th case of cheaper manufacturers, it is shown on a hanger or in the hand, as they say. We also see a good deal o merchandise which is brought to us in our office in New York for our inspection, and occasionally lines are brough to us out of Minneapolis. I believe that covers the chie ways in which we see our merchandise.

Q. What was the program of the Guild that was brough to your attention in the summer of 1933?

Mr. Albert: I think the witness said in th
8873 spring of 1933, your Honor.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, the spring of 1933, if that is correct. I meant— A. I don't know. There may have been more to the orig inal declaration which they asked us to sign than I no recollect. The intention and the main purpose of it, as I understand it, was to eliminate copying as low as $16.7 or $16.50. I believe those were the price lines used the

Q. Cost price? A. Cost price.

Q. What would be the usual retail price for a garmen costing $16.50 in your store? A. The usual retail pric would be $29.75. We do mark them occasionally less; don't think ever more.

8874 Q. What was the method employed to protect copying as you understand it, in the Guild program?

Mr. Albert: What period of time, may I as your Honor?

Mr. Haycraft: In 1933.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When you first learned of it?

Mr. Albert: Approximately what month?

Mr. Haycraft: I haven't got the month. If the witness has it in his mind he will give it to you.

The Witness: This original declaration of the intention, or declaration which was signed, which the Guild did accept, I believe was sent in in July, either June or July of last year. It is barely possible it was August but it was about the middle of 1933. And they asked us not to buy copies down as low as $16.50, and not to give out garments to copy, and I believe they asked us to stamp our orders so that copies might be returned if we inadvertently bought them within the prescribed ranges.

By Mr. Haycraft. 8876

Q. Did you continue through that year to get merchandise from the Guild manufacturers in 1933? A. All of '33 we bought Guild merchandise as much as we wished.

Q. How about '34? A. Yes. We got all the merchandise we desired in the Guild—from the Guild people in 1934.

Q. Beginning in the year 1935 was there any further development of the Guild program that came to your attention? A. Yes; I believe that they talked about taking in the Dress Creators League. In other words, extending the program so that we would not be permitted to buy copies as low as $10.75.

Q. How did you learn that? A. I believe that I learned of it through our New York office, Mr. Bergdahl. 8877

Q. Connected with the American Merchandising Corporation? A. That is right.

Q. Did you meet anyone from the Guild during the early part of 1935 with whom such program was discussed? A. I recall that in, I believe it was May or early June Mr. Goldston, I believe, visited us from the Guild with a view of getting our co-operation on extending the program of protection as low as $10.75.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit.

(The paper referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 705-A, B and C.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you now Commission's Exhibit Nos. 705-A B and C, and ask you if you can identify that? A. I could identify the letter.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from Mr. Albert M Post of the Fashion Originators Guild of America to Mr D. Donovan of the Dayton Company, dated May 3rd, 1935

8879 Q. Does this refresh your recollection? As to when Mr Goldston called upon you? A. I would say it is prior t May 3rd, 1935.

Q. That is, his visit was prior to that time? A. I be lieve so.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 706 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you reply to this letter from Mr. Post? A. I re member that I did reply to it, or I believe I did reply to it

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 706 and as if that is a carbon copy of your reply? A. That is th 8880 reply.

Q. Did you send the original of this to Mr. Post? A. did.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence, 705-A, and C, and 706.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 705-A, B and C, and 706, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I call your attention to the last paragraph on page 2, which says: "I have a letter of April 29th, from our Mrs. McDonald. Apparently the returns that you made were not accepted, and certainly without the use of the warranty clause their position is both legally correct and essentially fair." Who was Mrs. McDonald? A. Mrs. McDonald was the person who was known as the Guild shopper. She worked under the direction of the Guild, and 8882 they, indirectly at least, paid her a salary.

Q. What did she do as Guild shopper in Minneapolis? A. Well, all that I know of that she did was to hunt for copies of merchandise which was presumed or known to have been originated by the Fashion Originators Guild and report those copies both to the stores who were signatories of the agreement and to the Guild.

Q. Did she visit Dayton's? Had she been doing it at that time, in May, 1935? A. I believe she had visited our store once or twice.

Q. Had you met her on previous occasions? A. I had known Mrs. McDonald by sight for a long time. I do not know as there was any formal introduction. I knew that is what she was. She told me there was no attempt 8883 to hide the fact.

Q. What did she say to Dayton's or any employee of Dayton's with respect to the garments that she found that she said were copies of Guild garments? A. Yes.

Q. That is, copies of garments manufactured by members of the Guild? A. She asked me to return those copies, since we were members of the Guild.

Q. Had you been doing it prior to May, 1935? A. I believe we had returned them in every instance. I have no recollection of any time we failed to return a copy.

Q. I notice in your reply to Mr. Post, dated May 8, 1935, Commission's Exhibit 706, you state in the second paragraph: "You know, of course, that we have two inexpensive dress departments on our second floor and several basement dress departments, all of which compete with the chain stores and mail order houses, which, by the nature of their business, have no need of the F.O.G.A. and no conditions with them. It is possible that this fact really need not concern us, but, at least, it has been one reason for our hesitation." Now, I will ask you what you meant by "our hesitation"? A. Well, I believe we had proposed a new contract, going as low as $10.75, and re-8885 quired definitely all orders to be stamped with the so-called warranty clause, and we had indicated to the Guild that we would continue to co-operate on the basis of the old agreement or to co-operate on the basis that we had been co-operating with the Guild, and that we hesitated on that account for fear that it might be difficult for us to do the business we had felt we were entitled to do if we carried out the Guild program in full.

Q. Who were the chain stores that you had in mind at that time? A. Well, Lerner's was one. There is another store, which I believe is a part of a chain, called Morrison's. I do not think at that time they were members of the Guild. There is a little shop called Avon, which I believe is part of a chain, and I do not believe they were at that time Guild signatories. I frankly do not know 8886 whether Sally's was a participant in the Guild program or not. They were in competition at any rate.

Q. What price range did they sell at? A. Lerner's sold principally up to and under $10 or $12. Sally's up to $25, I believe, retail, and the other stores varied somewhere between $6.98 and $18 or $20.

Q. How would those stores affect Dayton's? What did you have in mind in writing this letter? A. Well, if they had access to merchandise, copied—not copied, which was salable, and which would attract business away from us, and if a part of the market was close to us and not close to them, it naturally gave them an advantage over us, and we questioned whether that was good business for us to go into an agreement which permitted that.

Q. Now, in this third paragraph of your letter to Mr. Post, you state: "We cannot quite agree with you, however, that we are the only store not using the warranty clause, as we are quite sure a number of other Twin Cities stores are also not using this clause." What had you done to inform yourself with respect to that statement? A. I asked Mr. Thomson, who was assisting me in the office at that time, to telephone some of the other stores—there are 8888 four or five whom we consider important handlers of merchandise—and asked whether or not they were using the warranty clause.

Q. What did you find out?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as the extremest kind of hearsay that the Commission has yet attempted to put in.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were these stores co-operating with the Guild at that time?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court; no foundation has been laid. What would this witness know about what other stores were 8889 doing? I don't think he knows it personally anyhow.

Examiner Bennett: Well, find out what he knows. Make a foundation.

The Witness: What is the question? I am sorry.

Examiner Bennett: Just make a foundation.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know anything about whether or not the stores Mr. Thomson called up were co-operating with the Guild? A. I know that most of them felt they were co-operating with the Guild.

Mr. Albert: I ask the answer be stricken as not responsive to the question. I believe the Court's instruction to Mr. Haycraft was to lay a foundation and find out the source of this witness' knowledge, whatever it may be.

Mr. Haycraft: Let me have Commission's Exhibit 602.

8891

Mr. Albert: Do you mean Respondents' 60-A?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 602 and ask you whether or not you called upon any of the names of retail dealers attached to that exhibit for the information which you gave to Mr. Post with respect to the warranty clause? A. I called on Mr. Hyman of Atkinson's, or Mr. Thomson did at my direction.

Q. What did you find out there?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, purest hearsay. This witness does not know anything else except what Mr. Thomson told him, somebody else told him. We are in Minneapolis, if the Commission wants that information, they certainly can call these stores.

8892

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection and hear it for what it is worth.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: It is information secured in the regular and usual course of business, is it not?

The Witness: It was.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: Mr. Thomson called Mr. Hyman of Atkinson's and noted on a slip of paper that Mr. Hyman said they were not using the stamp. He called either Mr. Newton or Mr. Dunfy at Donaldson's and obtained information from them. He called Powers Mercantile Company and obtained information from them. He called John W. Thomas Company and obtained information. He called one or two others, I am not certain as to which.

By Mr. Haycraft.

8894

Q. Will this refresh your recollection (handing paper writing to the witness)? A. That is the notation Mr. Thomson left on my desk after calling these stores here enumerated. That indicates whether they were or whether they were not using the F.O.G.A. stamp on May 6, 1935.

Q. What was the information furnished you by Mr. Thomson with respect to the names of retail dealers?

Mr. Albert: Same objection.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing) On Commission's Exhibit 602, as to whether or not they were using a stamp in May, 1935?

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

8895

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: Young-Quinlan's answered that they were not using the stamp, various ones that they were not using the stamp. Jackson-Graves answered that they were using the stamp. Harold's answered that they were not using the stamp. Donaldson's answered that they were not using the stamp. Raleigh's answered that they were not using the stamp. John W. Thomas answered that they had been using the stamp for two months and were using it at the moment. Jackson's answered that they were not using the stamp, emphatically. We received no answer from Maurice L. Rothschild's.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was the information, which you just now have related, the basis of your statement in the third paragraph of Commission's Exhibit 706 to Mr. Post? A. What is it?

Q. Which I read to you a moment ago? "We cannot quite agree with you that we are the only concern not 8897 using the warranty clause." A. That is the basis for that paragraph.

Q. Did you meet Mr. Post when he came to Minneapolis following this letter? A. No, I did not.

Q. Where were you at the time Mr. Post was in Minneapolis, May 13, 1935? A. I was either in New York or in California.

(Thereupon a document was marked Commission's Exhibit 707 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Post was in Minneapolis on May 13, 1935. I will ask you whether or not Commission's Exhibit 707 for Identification will refresh your recollection as to where 8898 you were?

Mr. Albert: Careful, there are 3,000 miles difference, Mr. Donovan.

Mr. Haycraft: Move that be stricken.

The Witness: I was in New York when I sent this wire.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the date of the wire? A. May 13, 1935.

Q. While you were in New York did you attend a meeting of the ready-to-wear department managers of stores that were members or co-operating with the Associated Mercantile Corporation? A. I cannot say positively; I believe I did.

Q. Will this telegram refresh your recollection on that (handing telegram to the witness)? A. No. This does not refresh my recollection on that particular point.

Mr. Albert: May we have that telegram marked for identification, your Honor? 8900

Mr. Martin: It is in.

Mr. Haycraft: Where have you been, Mr. Counsel?

Mr. Albert: I do not know, New York or California. Definitely in this country, though.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When did you return from this trip that you were on, return to Minneapolis? A. I do not know definitely; approximately May. 18th.

Q. Well, subsequent to your return, what were the developments with respect to the Guild program in Minneapolis, as you recall them? A. The Guild?

Mr. Albert: May we have this specifically noted, your Honor, whether we are speaking now about the F.O.G. A. or Minneapolis Guild? 8901

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Very well. Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated. A. The question was, what were the developments subsequent to my return from this particular trip?

Q. That is right. A. Following from May 18, 1935, on?

Q. Yes. A. The Guild requested us to sign a new program with them, including the stamping of all orders and including protection of dresses, I believe in all price ranges, and stated that our previous arrangement was now unsatisfactory and urged us to do so either through a Guild action or through an individual store action, that is, local Guild action or through individual store action, and urged us to do it in a hurry if we wished to see fall lines. We, as a Guild, feeling that there was some doubt as to the practicability and as to the advisability of stamping all price ranges of dresses and as to the practicability 8903 and advisability of allowing the retailers or the style and so-called Piracy Committee in New York to judge whether or not our dresses were copies, drew up a declaration proposing that dresses at $6.75 and below not be considered as copies and that we be the judges of whether or not a dress was a copied style, or not, in other respects agreeing with the Guild program.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 703-A and B and ask if that was the agreement you have in mind (handing paper writing to the witness)? A. This is the proposed agreement which we drew up at that time.

Mr. Albert: The Dayton Company drew up at that time, you mean?

The Witness: No, the Minneapolis Fashion

8904 Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was done with that agreement to your recollection? A. It was offered to the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Q. Did they accept it? A. For approval.

Q. Did they accept it? A. They did not.

Q. Well, then, what was the next step? What happened next? A. After they had wired us that the proposed agreement that we drew up was unacceptable to them and outined the reasons, I believe that, at our suggestion, drew up another one, which was based upon an agreement in use by Fashion Guilds at other cities, and which had been and was acceptable to the Guild. However, the two exceptions we requested were, of course, eliminated in this new agreement that was drawn up and sent in by our Minneapolis Guild.

Q. You are referring now to the final one? A. No, it is my recollection that was just the second one. It was not the final one. I think there were three before we got one that would stick.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 672-A to D, and 8906 ask you if you can identify that? A. That, I believe, is a copy of the second agreement which we sent in.

Q. Was that accepted? A. No, not in total. I believe the wording of the wire was that it was accepted temporarily as a declaration of intention but that there would have to be certain alterations made in parts of it before it could be finally accepted.

Q. I now show you Respondents' Exhibit 69-A and B, and ask you if you are familiar with that document? A. Well, I think that is the final one that was sent in.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 695-A to E, and ask you if you are familiar with that one?

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, in order that we do not have the same confusion, I suggest that 8907 in the exercise of your discretion you ask Mr. Haycraft to show the witness the five or six or seven drafts which were drawn before the final one. He obviously does not know now what it is all about. I do not want to waste time on this all over again.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think he has them all now, except——

The Witness: Except this one.

Mr. Albert: No, he missed one, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: What?

Mr. Albert: He missed one. He missed Exhibit 601, I think.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to be allowed to conduct this as I see fit without being lectured and hampered.

Mr. Albert: I am not lecturing. I am trying to save time.

Mr. Haycraft: By counsel for the respondent.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: That is a novel condition for you.

8909 The Witness: I am amending my previous answer.

Mr. Albert: You mean amend or change?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the statement of counsel.

The Witness: I am now inclined to think that this was the last; it was one of the two, I think. There is no date on it that I can see.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you notice the date? A. No, I have not. There is no date on it that I can see.

Mr. Albert: As yet.

8910 The Witness: About the 26th of August. Oh, yes, this is the final one because I recollect that it was the latter part of August before we finally got one that was acceptable.

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

The Witness: Unless that one is more recent. I do not think it is.

Mr. Albert: What was that addition to the answer?

(Previous answer read.)

(Mr. Haycraft handed a paper writing to the witness.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. There was a letter of transmittal, I might inform you, on this, which was marked for identification, dated July, 1933. A. Then that is the final one.

Q. That is Commission's Exhibit 695-A to D is the final one? A. That is the final one.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, were you consulted with respect to the position to be taken by Dayton's with relation to the Fashion Originators Guild, Incorporated, program in Minneapolis? 8912

Mr. Albert: At what time, may we ask?

Mr. Haycraft: In the summer of 1933, after you had returned from your trip?

The Witness: Yes, I attended several meetings of the local Guild, and the matter was discussed at times in our store.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, at the meetings of the local Guild, who attended besides yourself? A. I did not attend all of them, because, of course, I am absent part of the time, but the ones I did attend, they were usually attended by all of the prominent dealers of ready-to-wear here in the city, the specific ones, I presume you have a record of. They were nearly all represented. 8913

Q. Did you attend any meeting of the local Guild on or about June 12, 1935? A. If there was a meeting at that time, I did attend it.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibits 703-A and 703-B, will ask you whether or not you have any recollection of the meeting at which that agreement was framed? A. I remember having seen this agreement and agreeing to it after it was drawn up. I have no definite recollection of attending that meeting at which it was drawn up.

Q. Does this agreement 703-A and B represent Dayton's position with respect to the Fashion Originators Guild program at that time?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the witness can be excused for calling a draft an agreement, but I object strenuously to Mr. Haycraft calling a draft an agreement.

Examiner Bennett: What was the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Let us not quarrel about 8915 the word "agreement"; let us make it document.

The Witness: That document did represent the feelings of the Dayton Company at that time.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Has there been any change in the position of the Dayton Company since that document was prepared? A. I do not think that there has been any substantial change in their feelings.

Mr. Albert: May I have the last answer?

(Answer read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

8916 Q. Did you make any recommendations to the officials of the Dayton Company with respect to the policy of the Dayton Company in their relations with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, the program of that Guild? A. I urged that we sign up with the Guild on whatever basis they would take us.

Q. For what reason? A. Because I felt the conduct of our business required that we have merchandise such as Guild manufacturers make.

Q. During the year 1935, did or did not Dayton Company co-operate with its program in Minneapolis? I mean by "Guild," "Fashion Originators Guild, Incorporated." A. I would say we co-operated fully during 1935 and Mrs. MacDonald, I believe, stated to Mr. Larson that we had given as good as or the best co-operation of any store in town.

Q. Did you continue that co-operation during the year 1936? A. We did not.

Q. When did you discontinue the co-operation? A. We discontinued it some time following the red carding boycott which was imposed on it.

Q. Do you recall when that was? A. February, 1936. 8918

Q. Can you give us a more definite date than that? A. Well, the first I heard of it was February 25th, although I have knowledge of the fact it was started on February 17th.

Q. Where were you on February 17th? A. I was taking a week's vacation. I was on the island of Bermuda.

Q. You learned it on your return? A. Yes. The boat was due back on the 25th and I learned it on the 26th.

Q. Where were you when you learned of it? A. In our New York office.

Q. Well, now, at the time that you learned of the boycott of Dayton's by Fashion Originators Guild, Incorporated, what did you do about it? A. Will you repeat the question, Mr. Haycraft? 8919

Examiner Bennett: Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

The Witness: To the best of my recollection, nothing at that immediate time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well— A. It seemed to have been an accomplished fact; there was not much to do.

Q. Did you make any attempt to buy any merchandise from Guild manufacturers subsequent to that date? A. We have, at various intervals, attempted to buy from Guild manufacturers.

Q. With what success? A. No success.

Q. Now, at the time that— A. May I amend that, Mr. Haycraft? It might come up later. I would say with very little success.

Mr. Albert: Are you beginning to lay foundations, Mr. Donovan?

The Witness: I do not know. I am just answering the best I can.

8921

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you in a position to testify as to the extent to which the Dayton Company was purchasing merchandise from the members of the Guild prior to the red carding, say during the latter part of 1935?

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, since we seem to be going into figures, I would suggest this is a fairly good time to take our usual recess, if Mr. Haycraft has no objection. It is about twenty-five after eleven.

Examiner Bennett: That is all right. Do you care to have a recess?

8922

Mr. Haycraft: No, I am not asking for it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, is this a good stopping time?

Mr. Haycraft: Not any better than any other.

Mr. Albert: Well, if it is not any worse, your Honor, I would like to have the recess now.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Haycraft: Have you the last question?

The Reporter: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: You may resume.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the last question.

The Reporter: "Q. Are you in a position to testify as to the extent the Dayton Company was purchasing merchandise from members of the Guild prior to the red carding, say, during the latter part of 1935? A. Yes, I am."

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you please do so, and in your answer indicate, 8924 if you can, the type of merchandise and the price line or department where it was used.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, no proper foundation has been laid as to the sources of the witness' knowledge.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: I may answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: May I refer to some memos I have in my pocket?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. They will be subject 8925 to inspection if you refer to them.

The Witness: This memo refers to the Guild manufacturers whom we were using in the fall of 1935 and the per cent. of purchases from all Guild manufacturers by departments, in the fall of 1935.

Mr. Albert: Can you fix the months, Mr. Donovan?

The Witness: No, I cannot. This is for the entire season.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What department number is that? A. In the suit department, Department 300.

Q. Go ahead. A. We used 3.4 per cent. of merchandise from Guild houses. Our chief sources of supply being Mangone and Carmel.

Q. How do you spell Mangone? A. M-a-n-g-o-n-e. Phillip Mangone & Company.

And Departments 310 and 320 in the fall of 1935, Mangone and Carmel were again our chief sources of supply and we used between 3 and 4 per cent. of Guild merchandise there also.

8927 In Department 332, which is larger-sized dresses, we used 7 per cent., or, to be accurate, 6.9 per cent. of our merchandise from Guild's houses, and our chief resource there was J. L. Friedman Company.

In Department 333, which is one of our women's better dress divisions, the one handling the bulk of our higher prices merchandise, we used 82.5 per cent. Guild manufacturers' merchandise, the chief of whom was A. Traina Company, Mathews-Cadetsky, Edgarette, Joseph and Ben Barnett, Jennie Moscovitz, Jackson-Beinard and Herman Biespel.

In Department 373, which is the corresponding division in misses' sizes of our—of the top of our better dress business, we used 91.4 per cent. of Guild merchandise.

8928 Our chief resources there were Maurice Rentner, William Bass, Isenberg Sons & Company, J. J. Rothenberg, Herman Biespel, Strauss-Miller and Rudolph.

Mr. Albert: What was that last?

The Witness: Rudolph.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. Let me ask you a question there. Did you mention Louise Barnes Gallagher, Incorporated? A. We used

Louise Barnes Gallagher, yes, also. I didn't mention it before. I have a somewhat longer list than what I am giving you. I am picking out the ones that seemed to me to be very important.

Q. How about Milgrim's? A. Yes, also Milgrim's.

Q. How about Charles Lang? A. Lang. We used Rose Barrach & Lahm.

Q. Spectators Sports, Incorporated? A. We used Spectators Sports. There is a much wider list than I am giving you. I am just giving you the high lights of people we bought from.

Q. What about Milton Altmark? A. Well, Milton Altmark was used in this department but used more in the 8930 next price range below under what I would classify as 354 department.

Q. All right, proceed. A. In Department 334, which I might say are medium priced dresses——

Mr. Albert: What price range do you mean by that?

The Witness: I mean that they start at $25 and run to thirty-nine seventy-five retail. We used 66.7 per cent.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is that 334 now? A. 334, Guild merchants. Our chief resources there were Baron Dress, Dolces, Henry Gans, Grossman-Greenberg and Joseph Greenberg. There 8931 were a number of others.

Department 354, medium priced dresses retailing from twenty-five to thirty-nine dollars and seventy-five cents, used in the fall of 1935 76.8 per cent. merchandise from Guild houses. Our chief resources were first Milton Altmark, William Bass, Casino Dresses, Charles Lahm, J. M. Silverman, Jack Hertzog, Star-Friedlander, and numerous other small accounts with the Guild.

Q. Ma I ask you whether or not you bought any from Capri Frocks? A. Yes.

Q. Bender & Hamburger? A. Yes, indeed.

Q. You mentioned Eisenberg? A. I did not, but we also bought some.

Q. Fiegenbaum & Adelson? A. Yes.

Q. Mary Lee Dance Frocks? A. Mary Lee, yes.

Q. Did you mention Frank Starr-Friedlander? A. I believe I mentioned Starr-Friedlander.

Q. Proceed. A. Department 338, women's budget dresses, selling from $7.96 to $22.95 retail, we used 24.1 per cent. merchandise from Guild sources, the chief of 8933 which were Rosen Bros., C. H. D. Robbins and Lyttle, I believe it is Lyttle Bros.

Q. Did you also buy from Bob Burns? A. We did.

Q. E. N. Marcus? A. We did.

Q. And Bernard Ginsberg and Adelson? A. Yes, we did.

Q. Proceed. A. Department 358, which is the misses' sports division, corresponding to 338, dresses retailing at $7.95 to $22.95; I have no figures on them through an oversight on my own part, as to the percentage of merchandise bought from Guild resources. I can secure that if you wish it. I just plain forgot to put it down. Our chief resources there were Witlin Schneider, Aywon dresses, Daytime Dresses and International Dresses. We used, in addition, a large number of other Guild resources 8934 Q. Now, you have given the principal resources in the principal departments that you mentioned? A. I did not.

Q. Proceed. A. In Department 371, Junior Dresses suits and sports wear, we used, in the fall season of 1935 28.1 per cent. of Guild merchandise, that is, merchandise from Guild houses. Our chief resources there were Mulligan Dresses, Incorporated, Ben Ginsberg, Junior Guild Junior League, Bon Ray, Will Steinman Junior Dresses and Lang-Cohen.

Q. Did you mention International Junior Dresses? A. We bought from them. I did not mention them.

Q. Proceed. A. In Department 380, sports wear, for the fall season, our purchases from Guild manufacturers amounted to 4.8, 4.8 per cent, the department total. Our chief resources there being Sam Steinberg, Star Maid, Incorporated.

I might call your attention to the fact that I am referring only to silk and wool sports dresses, excluding knitted dresses and knitted suits, concerning which I testified that more than half of our department's business comes from——

Q. Well, what about 371, did you include anything about the dresses in that in your testimony there? 8936
A. Yes, I included Ben Ginsberg, the most important coat and suit house to us.

Q. I see. A. Formerly.

Q. Does that complete your testimony with respect to Guild resources in the fall of 1935 or do you have others? A. That completes the list of the major purchases, and the percentages we bought from Guild houses with the exception of Department 358, where I haven't the percentage available. The resources I have named, I would classify as major resources, but we used other Guild resources at times for certain articles which they were making, as we needed them, and some of them were in the process of development and would have been very large resources this fall. 8937

Q. I will ask you to obtain that percentage at the noon recess, Mr. Donovan. A. I will.

Q. What were your principal resources beginning in the spring season before you were red carded in those same departments? A. All right, Department 300 had none that I would classify as main resources for spring garments, in the spring of 1935.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the answer be repeated
(Answer read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You are giving spring garments for the spring
1935? A. Is that what you asked me for, Mr. Haycraft
A. All right. A. The coat departments, Department 310 and 320 bought 6.5 per cent. of their merchandise i the spring of 1935 from Guild manufacturers, of whom Grossman-Spiegel was the chief. We bought a few thing from Philip Mangone and perhaps Eisman Bernstein, pe haps one or two others. Department 332, larger-size 8939 dresses, bought 10 per cent. of this merchandise from Guild houses in the spring of 1932 and there Friedma was our main account.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You mean the spring of 1935, don't you? A. Pa don me, I am sorry.
Q. You said 1932. A. I am sorry, I mean 1935. I Department 333, the top of our better dress busines bought 75 per cent. of its resources from Guild resource in the spring of 1935, chief of whom were Andy A Trainor, Ed Gerrick, Matthews Kadetsky, Joseph Green berg, Herman Beispiel and Gardner & Schwartz. There were also other Guild resources used. Department 35 8940 the top of our misses' better dresses, used 77.4 per cen of its merchandise in the spring of 1935 from Guild re sources.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was that percentage again? A. 77.4 per cen
Our chief resources in that period were Maurice Rentne
Straus Miller, William Bass, Bender-Hamburger, Herma

Beispiel, Eisenberg Sons & Company, Mary Lee, Rudolph, Nettie Rosenstein. There were many others also used for——

Q. Among the others would you mention Civite? A. I used Civite.

Q. Capri Frocks? A. We used Capri.

Q. Joseph Halpert? A. We used Joseph Halpert.

Q. You mentioned Bender-Hamburger? A. We used Bender-Hamburger.

Q. Did you mention Rudolph Gowns? A. I mentioned it, I called it Rudolph, but it is the same; Rudolph Gowns.

Q. Did you mention Straus Miller? A. Yes, I mentioned Straus Miller. 8942

Q. Did you mention Milton Altmark? A. No, I did not mention him. Again, he is a more important resource in the next lower-priced division.

Q. But you did buy from him? A. I bought some from him.

Q. All right, A. Department 334, which is our middle grade dresses, in women's sizes, used in the spring of 1935, 44.8 per cent. of its purchases from Guild resources. Our leading resources, there were Dolces Dress, Joseph Ginsberg, Grossman-Ginsberg, and we also used a number of other resources.

Q. Among those others were Henry Gans, Incorporated? A. Yes.

Q. La Rue Dresses, Incorporated? A. Right.

Q. Frank-Starr Friedlander? A. Yes. 8943

Q. A. Goodman, Incorporated? A. Yes.

Q. All right. A. Department 354, which is our medium grade dresses, retailing from $25 to $29.75, misses' sizes, used in the spring of 1935, 60.2 per cent. of Guild manufactured merchandise. $25 is the more readily got price but we considered $29.50.

Q. What is the department number and the per cent.? A. Department 354, and the per cent. of Guild merchandise used was 60.2.

Mr. Albert: 60?

Mr. Haycraft: 60.

The Witness: 60.2. Our chief resources there were Milton Altmark, Milton Bass, Bender-Hamburger, Capri, Casino, Fiegenbaum & Adelson, A. Goodman.

Q. A. Goodman, did you say? A. A. Goodman, Mary Lee, Starr-Friedlander, but we also used other Guild houses.

Q. Included in your other Guild houses were Eisenberg & Sons? A. Right.

8945 Q. Joseph Halpert? A. Yes.

Q. Kane-Weill? A. Yes.

Q. J. M. Silverman-Levy? A. Yes.

Q. Paul Parnes? A. Paul Parnes.

Q. That is all; proceed. A. In Department 338, budget dresses retailing from 7.95 to 22.95 in women's sizes, we used 13.5 per cent. Guild merchandise in our spring merchandise purchases.

Mr. Albert: That is Department 338?

The Witness: 338, 13.5 per cent. Our chief resources were Rosen Brothers, Barnett-Ginsburg-Adelson, but we bought from other Guild houses as well.

8946 Q. Did you include in the other Guild houses the International Dress? A. I presume we bought a few things in women's sizes. I do not recollect. They are considered to be mostly a misses' and junior line.

Q. Little Brothers, Incorporated? A. Yes.

Q. C. H. D. Robbins & Company? A. Yes, substantially.

Q. That is all. You may proceed. A. In Department 358, in the spring of 1935, 358 being the misses' budget dress division, selling dresses $7.95 to $22.95, I regret that I have again omitted the percentage of purchases from Guild houses, which I will obtain at noon. Our chief resources there were Whitman-Snyder, Aywon Dress, Daytime Dresses and International Dress, but we bought many dresses from other Guild houses as well.

Q. Of the four that you have named, which would you say was the principal one? A. Whitman-Snyder.

Q. Did you buy from B. and G. Garment Company? A. Yes.

Q. Fed Dress? A. Yes.

Q. Gilbert Dress Company? A. Yes.

Q. C. H. D. Robbins? A. I do not recollect. It is possible that is so. In that department. He again is 8948 generally considered to be a women's resource.

Q. All right. Proceed. A. Department 371, Junior Coats, Suits, Dresses and Sports Wear, bought in the spring season of 1935, 14.8 per cent. of Guild merchandise from Guild resources, and the chief resources there were Bonray, Ben Ginsberg, Joan Junior, Will Steinman, David Westheim, Junior Guild and Mulligan. Mulligan started—they got going under the name of Mulligan, Incorporated, late in the spring, and some purchases came in June and July——

Q. That is Louise Mulligan? A. That is the same Louise Mulligan that was such a large resource in the fall of '35.

Mr. Albert: Did you mention them in the fall 8949 of 1935 or were you going to say that is the same resource that was mentioned in Chicago?

Mr. Haycraft: He mentioned it.

The Witness: I think I mentioned it, Mr. Albert.

Mr. Albert: I wasn't sure, Mr. Donovan. I just wanted to know.

The Witness: It is the same concern. Department 380——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Just a moment. I want to ask you a question about 371. A. Yes.

Q. Did you buy from any other Guild resources than those you have named? A. Yes, we did.

Q. Did you buy any from Arkkay Junior Frocks? A. Yes, we did.

Q. Ashley Frocks? A. Ashley?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Gilbert Dresses, Incorporated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. International? A. Yes.

Q. Junior League? A. Yes.

8951 Q. Nathanson and Beck? A. Yes.

Q. That is all. A. Department 380, handling sport dresses, again I have no figure as to the actual amount bought of Guild resources. It is not particularly large, however. Our chief resources were Star-Maid——

Mr. Albert: You mean that you omitted to put down the figures or that it is so insignificant that you didn't put it down?

The Witness: No. I omitted to put it down. I have no notation of any kind. I put this down rather hastily and I apparently forgot one of two departments. We bought from other resources aside from these two, however.

8952 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you buy any from David Crystal? A. We bought from Crystal, yes.

Q. William Bass? A. Pardon me. I did not get the name.

Q. William Bass? A. Yes.

Q. David Goodstein? A. Yes.

Q. Campus Modes? A. Yes.

Q. Kane-Weil? A. Yes.

Q. Townley Frocks? A. Townley?

Q. Townley. A. Townley? Yes.

Q. Yes. Rubinger Sportswear? A. Rubinger?

Q. Yes. A. We bought from them. I am not—however, that is knitted apparel. Rubycraft.

Q. Knitted apparel? A. I believe it is. I know we bought from Rubycraft.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, may I ask that the list from which Mr. Donovan has been reading and the list from which Mr. Haycraft has been prompting the witness be marked for identification? 8954

Examiner Bennett: Mr. Donovan's list——

Mr. Haycraft: That is a rather peculiar request, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Mr. Donovan's list will be available for cross-examination, and the list that the attorney is using, I have nothing to do with. They are his notes, his private notes, and I am not going to pay any attention to that request.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you completed your testimony, Mr. Donovan? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Now, included in your resources of Guild houses, in the year 1935, were there any what is known as confined 8955 lines; that is, lines that were confined to the Dayton Store in this territory? A. There were some. Did you ask in the spring or fall, or does it make any difference?

Q. Either one. A. There were some. I can think of three offhand that were confined to us in this territory.

Q. What ones were they? A. Louise Mulligan confined his or her products to the Dayton Company in Minneapolis. Grace Ashley of St. Louis confined the particular dress which she was making to us in Minneapolis, and Star-Maid confined a sports dress which they were making to us in Minneapolis.

Q. Were there any trade names used by these manufacturers that were featured by the Dayton Company? A. Well, the Mulligan dresses were featurel as "Mulligan Dresses" and sold under that name, promoted and advertised under that name. And we are having numerous requests to-day under that name.

Q. What about Grace Ashley? A. I am not so certain whether they were promoted as "Grace Ashley" dresses in the newspapers. I am trying to think whether the 8957 dress bore the label "Ashley Dress." I am not clear. We promoted them as "Grace Ashley Sports Dresses," sold them as such.

Q. What about the Star-Maid? A. Star-Maid had a line using the name of a famous English shirt maker, "Kay Wragge," W-r-a-g-g-e, which name they confined to us, and by which we referred to these dresses in our advertising and in our promotion.

Q. Now, was there any other manufacturer, member of the Guild, resource of the Dayton Company, that sold a line of dresses that were featured or promoted by the Dayton Company as such? A. Well, Maurice Rentner confined to us the promotion and the dresses covered by his booklet, "Quality Street," which we issued or mailed out through our own store and which I believe falls in the 8958 classification you are inquiring about.

Q. Was the sale of "Quality Street" confined to Dayton's in this territory? A. In the fall, yes, it was.

Q. In the fall? A. "Quality Street" dresses in the booklet, and the booklet itself was given to us for our use and confined to us.

Q. Were there any others?

Mr. Albert: May I interrupt just a moment, your Honor, and ask the witness to bring that booklet this afternoon?

Mr. Haycraft: Will you do that?

The Witness: Very well. Yes, I will.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were there any others that you can recall now? A. I believe that there were one or two more, but I frankly can't recall them. I think they probably were of lesser importance than these. For instance, Kane-Weil had a "Dress of the Month" promotion in which I believe we participated. I think those dresses were confined to us. I think there were one or two other instances like that.

Q. Did any of the members of the Guild who were resources of the Dayton Company engage in advertising in 8960 ladies' fashion magazines or other magazines read by women featuring their lines of dresses, where the Dayton Company was mentioned as a place where the dresses might be found? A. Well, we participated in some of those propositions. There are a number of them. We, for instance, participated in a promotion organized by the fashion editor of "Good Housekeeping" magazine, in which merchandise was selected by their fashion editor and by a group of stores in various—from various manufacturers.

Q. Do you recall the names of manufacturers that were featured in this advertising? A. Well, Grosman-Spiegel, I think was one.

Q. When was that? A. Well, it was toward either December of last year or March of 1936. As I recall it, they 8961 came out at about three-month intervals.

Q. Any others? A. Ben Ginsberg was in one, at least; and Junior League, I am sure was in one; and there were others. Occasionally they were not Guild but for the most part they were Guild.

Q. See if this will refresh your recollection as to the Guild houses who co-operated with the "Good Housekeeping" magazine and the Dayton Store (indicating a copy of "Good Housekeeping" magazine). A. Yes, it does.

Q. When was that? A. This is in the March, 1936, "Good Housekeeping" magazine.

Q. What Guild resources? A. The Guild resources used here were Grosman-Spiegel, Junior Moderns, Ben Ginsberg, Rentner, Miller, Joan Junior. That is all. Ben Ginsberg has two garments in here.

Q. Was there any advantage to such co-operative promotional advertising to the Dayton Company? A. Yes. We believe it was an advantage in the ones which we went into.

8963 Q. In what way? A. We believe it promotes sales, principally, promotes prestige, helps our reputation.

Q. Did you enter into any co-operative promotional advertising with any other magazines other than "Good Housekeeping" from 1935 or in early 1936? A. Yes. We have at times gone in on other of these group propositions. I believe we have been in one or two "Harper's Bazaar" promotions. I believe we would have gone into one this spring had we had access to Guild lines, and we would have gone into one this fall had we had access to Guild lines.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark these.

(The papers referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 708, 709, 710, 711 and 712 for Identification.)

8964

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 708, 709, 710, 711 and 712, and ask if you can identify those? A. Well, these cover—they are communications addressed by various Guild houses to a member of our organization in which they indicate that the cause of Guild restrictions—

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I ask that the substance of those documents be not described until they are offered in evidence?

Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you describe each of those exhibits as to who ey are from and to and the date? A. Commission's hibit No. 708——

Q. For Identification. A. Is from Maurice Rentner, ted February 21, 1936, to The Dayton Company. Is at all?

Q. Take the next one. A. The communication from ace Ashley of St. Louis, dated August 29, 1936, to Mrs. 8966 McKenney of The Dayton Company.

Q. That is Exhibit No. 712 that he just read.

Examiner Bennett: Seven hundred what?

The Witness: 712.

Mr. Haycraft: Strike that out.

Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Let's take it up in order, if you don't mind. Take 9 next. A. 709, a letter from Milton Altmark, dated bruary 18, 1936, to The Dayton Company.

Q. 710? A. 710, a letter from our New York office to dated February 18, 1936, to Miss Johnston of The Day- n Company.

Q. 711? A. 711, a letter from Fred A. Block, dated 8967 gust 27th, 1936, to The Dayton Company, Minneapolis, nnesota.

Q. 712? A. I did identify—oh, excuse me. 712, a let- from Grace Ashley of St. Louis, dated August 29th, 36, to Miss F. McKinney.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 710 again. ho is R. E. Friedland? A. He is an employee in our ess Division at our New York office.

Q. All right.

Mr. Albert: By "your New York office" do you mean the A.M.C. office?

The Witness: The A.M.C. office.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. To what Guild manufacturers does this letter refer? A. It refers to Mary Lee.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer these letters in evidence.

(The paper writings referred to were handed to Mr. Albert.)

8969 Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, the hour of 12.30 is approaching. I have a luncheon engagement. I would appreciate it very much if we could take a recess at this time.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will take an adjournment until 2 o'clock.

(Whereupon at 12.25 o'clock P. M. the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

8970 Examiner Bennett: There was an offer pending of several exhibits, 708 to 712, inclusive.

Mr. Albert: That is right.

Examiner Bennett: And they were being read by the respondent's attorney.

Mr. Albert: With respect to Commission's offer of Commission's Exhibits 708, 709, 710, 711 and 712, the offer into evidence of these exhibits is objected to on the ground that they are in no manner binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A., no proper foundation or proof has been laid of the authority of the signers of these letters to so sign them on behalf of the companies allegedly having mailed the letter, and no proper proof or explanation has been made of the substance thereof to make them at all intelligible.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is overruled, and the documents are received as Commission's Exhibits 708 to 712, inclusive.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(Thereupon the documents heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 708, 709, 710, 711 and 712 were received in evidence.) 8972

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At the time Dayton's were red carded, which you say was about February 17th, 1936, did they have any orders outstanding with any of the manufacturers that you have mentioned here as resources? A. Yes.

Q. Can you testify as to the names of the resources with whom Dayton's had outstanding orders at the time of the red carding? A. I can testify accurately if I have a list, I can testify accurately, or I can testify from memory if that serves, but a good many of them.

Q. Testify from memory, if you will. A. We had outstanding orders with Philip Mangone, Mary Lee, Milton 8973
Alfmark, Maurice Rentner——

Q. Wait a minute now. A. The Star Maid, Louise Mulligan, with Herman Beispiel, Kondazian Pappas. Those come particularly to my mind. I know there were a good many more, more than that.

Q. Can you refresh your recollection from this paper (handing paper writing to the witness)? A. Yes, those were the resources.

Q. Will you testify, having refreshed your recollection as to what resources you had orders with at the time of the red carding? A. Yes, Philip Mangone——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, if the witness is going to read that exhibit, I ask it be offered in evidence, and a proper foundation laid for it. He is not refreshing his memory; he is reading it.

Examiner Bennett: Did you have anything to do with the preparation of that document?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Examiner Bennett.

8975 Q. You had it prepared for you? A. No, I prepared this myself.

Q. You prepared it yourself? A. Yes.

Q. Does this refresh your recollection? A. It does.

Examiner Bennett: All right, go ahead and read from it.

8976

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Do you know that to be a correct list? A. The names I have down here positively are correct because I prepared them from orders which were outstanding, but there may be one or two that are not down here.

Q. That is correct so far as it goes? A. It is correct so far as it goes and it goes at least 98 per cent. of the way.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were those orders filled? A. Most of those orders were filled.

Q. Was any attempt made to re-order from the manufacturers you have named? A. Yes, there were one or two attempts made.

Q. With what success? A. The re-orders were not filled.

Q. Did your buyers make any attempt since February, 1936, to obtain merchandise from these manufacturers? 8978 A. Yes, we made some definite attempts to obtain merchandise from some of these manufacturers and we have frequently visited showrooms, hoping that they would offer to sell us, which they did not, and we have gone so far as to write at times to make sure that they still would not sell us, having heard in a few cases they might have dropped out of the Guild, and we have kept generally in rather constant touch with these men.

Q. Have you ever been able, since February, 1936, to place an order with any of the members of the Guild with whom you had been dealing? A. We have succeeded in obtaining a very little merchandise.

Q. What percentage of your usual requirements of 8979 Guild merchandise have you been able to get since February, 1936?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please. I do not think there is any.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if you have any knowledge of that situation. Have you any knowledge of that situation?

The Witness: May I ask if I understand the question correctly? Since we were red carded on new orders, what percentage of our requirements have we been able to get from Guild houses?

Mr. Haycraft: That you had been formerly getting from Guild houses, your Guild requirements.

The Witness: That is on new orders, since the red card boycott.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes. A. 3 per cent., at a guess.

Mr. Feldman: Is that a guess?

The Witness: Yes, I believe it is a guess. I have made no study at all of it.

8981

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, do you have an opinion as to the effect of the inability of the Dayton Company to obtain merchandise from Guild houses that you had been purchasing from before you were red carded upon the business of the Dayton Company, that is under your supervision?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial and irrelevant, no foundation has been laid for the source of his knowledge.

Examiner Bennett: You are answering the question: "Have you an opinion?" You may answer. Overruled.

8982

The Witness: I have an opinion.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you state what your opinion is?

Mr. Albert: I press my previous objection, if it please the Court, no foundation has been made as to the basis of the opinion upon which it is predicated.

Examiner Bennett: The foundation has been laid in the description of his job with the Dayton Company, I imagine. I will overrule the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Will you give your opinion, whatever it may be?

The Witness: My opinion is that the failure to obtain merchandise from Guild houses during the spring season has had a very adverse effect on our business since the date of the red card boycott, and that that effect will be even more marked this fall.

Mr. Albert: I ask the latter part of the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the question. The question is: "What effect did it have?" 8984

Examiner Bennett: I will let it stand.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In what way, Mr. Donovan, has it had an adverse effect upon the business of the Dayton Company under your supervision as to the spring period? A. We lost volume. By that, I mean sales, and the consequent gross profit on those sales. It has had a damaging effect on our reputation in the city of Minneapolis and has made us less competitive. We have been forced to disappoint many customers for special orders, special merchandise, which we had been in the habit of carrying and that they could no longer find in our stock. We have been to extra expense in the matter of trying to locate new resources, both expenses in actual traveling time and by our salaries. We have taken extra losses on markdowns, due to experimenting with totally new lines and endeavoring to replace, unsuccessfully for the most part, some of the Guild lines. Those come to my mind immediately. 8985

Q. In your opinion has it had any effect on the investment you had in consigned branded lines? A. I am sorry, I did not understand that.

Examiner Bennett: Give us the question.

Q. (Question read.) A. Yes, it has.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, taking up the first item that you mentioned, will you explain to us in what way and to what extent your inability to obtain merchandise from Guild resources has affected your volume of sales and gross profit? A.
8987 We bought many kinds of merchandise from Guild manufacturers, which we have not been able to replace and hence, naturally, we lost the amount of the sales that those Guild houses would represent to us, and we have been forced to turn away customers who asked for specific items, which we could no longer have, and that represented loss of volume and gross profit.

Q. Have you any figures in mind which show the extent of those losses? A. The only figures I could give you is that of our showing on the spring season, particularly in certain departments, where the Guild effect was so very disappointing, and since we have been making good showings before that time, and since other departments not affected made good showings, I am quite sure that the 8988 supposition would be that we lost because we could not have these lines.

Q. What departments do you have in mind? A. In our women's departments, women's better dresses.

Q. What number? A. 333 and 338. The loss there was, I believe, unnecessary or would be unnecessary had we had access to the Guild lines, the loss in the junior department would be unnecessary had we had Guild lines.

Q. Junior department, what is the number of it? A. 371.

Q. Is that the sub-deb department? A. That is right.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 713 and ask you to identify that. A. Yes; that is a table that I prepared.

Q. What does it refer to? A. It represents units sold in junior dresses at 12.95 up to 22.95 for the spring of 1935 and spring of 1936.

Q. What months did you include? A. March, April, May and June.

Q. Did you break down the price lines? A. I did.

Q. What price lines have you shown here? A. 12.95 and 13.95 in one price list, and 14 and $15 in one price list, 17.95, 19.95 and 22.95.

Q. What was the source of information used by you in 8990 the preparation of this exhibit? A. Records which we keep in my office of sales by units.

Q. Is this a correct statement of those records or taken from those records? A. It is as correct as records can be, yet there might be an occasional error of one, possibly, perhaps. They are our ordinary records that we use for our information right along.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this exhibit in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Let me see——

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, on the ground no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Let us see the document, please.

(Thereupon paper writing was handed to the 8991 Examiner.)

Examiner Bennett: Is this compilation from records which are kept in the ordinary course of your business and relied upon as correct in your business?

The Witness: Yes, sir, they are.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. The document is received as Commission's Exhibit 713.

(Thereupon the document referred to, heretofo marked Commission's Exhibit 713 for Iden fication, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you made any such comparison of any oth department beside this? A. No, I have not.

Q. Have you made any study of any departments that you can testify as to the comparison of the sales the spring season of 1935 as compared to 1936? A. Y I have made a study.

Q. What departments have you made such a study 8993 A. In the women's budget dresses.

Mr. Albert: What number is that?

The Witness: Number 338. Department 3 women's better dresses.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the result of that study? What did y find? A. I found that we had lost sales in volume due the imposition of the red card boycott.

Q. To what extent did those losses go? A. I don't collect precisely at the moment. They run to——

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, if doesn't recollect precisely, I don't think the Co 8994 mission wants any guess.

Examiner Bennett: If you don't recall it proximately, don't try to guess at it.

The Witness: Did you ask me if I could?

Examiner Bennett: I say, if you don't recall approximately do not try to give the figures.

The Witness: I recall it approximately.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may g an approximate figure.

The Witness: 338, lost approximately 15 per cent.; 352 lost more than 25 per cent.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. That is, the whole price range? A. The department as a whole.

Q. The department as a whole? A. The department as a whole.

Q. Now, in your opinion, which departments were affected most from the volume standpoint?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for a conclusion of the witness and no foundation laid. 8996

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let you answer, if you know.

The Witness: I know.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: Departments 333, 338, 353, 354, 371, 380.

By Mr Haycraft.

Q. I believe you said that due to your inability to replace the Guild resources you suffered losses. I will ask you whether or not you can testify as to the resources, the Guild resources of Department 333, that you were unable to replace? A. I can testify as to that. 8997

Q. Will you please do so? A. May I refer to a list of resources that I gave you before, or may I not?

Q. You may. A. I think I have such a list in my pocket. Department 333, we found it impossible to replace A. Traina and Mathew Kadetsky, Edgar Garick and Herman Beispiel. Those four were among the most difficult to replace and there were certain characteristics in other manufacturers that we had missed and would have liked to have had.

Q. Which are those? A. Gardner-Schwartz, for instance, Joseph Greenberg. We just couldn't get anybody to replace A. Traina, Kadetsky, Beisl.

Q. How about Department 334? Were there any resources in Department 334 that you were unable to replace? A. Yes. Dolces Dresses.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I haven't objected very strenuously to Mr. Haycraft leading the witness. Now, the witness has read six departments which he claims were most affected by the Guild program, and his inability, alleged inability to obtain merchandise. Now, in an obvious 8999 attempt to lead the witness, Mr. Haycraft has now inserted another department which the witness has not testified to, and I will ask the Commission to admonish Mr. Haycraft not to lead the witness.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Is there a pending question?

(The record was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may finish your answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: I have finished, your Honor. Dolces Dresses.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

9000 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Dolces Dresses was the only one in that department, in your judgment? A. I say, it is the most important, the one most difficult to replace. I think I have testified earlier that most of the Guild lines we buy because we think they are the best there is, and obviously some are hard to replace, but these were particularly a vital point in our assortment structure where we needed merchandise.

Q. All right. What is the situation in Department 338? A. The line we missed most of all there was Rosen Brothers, and we could not replace Rosen Brothers, Barnett-Ginsberg-Adelson was very difficult to replace also. The others in lesser degree.

Q. Department 353? A. The most difficult ones to replace there, and the ones we could not replace were Maurice Rentner, Strauss-Miller, William Bass, Herman Beispiel, Isenberg, Mary Lee, and I believe I would add Rudolph.

Q. What about Department 354? A. The resources that was--merchandise—the lack of whose merchandise hurt us the most was Milton Altmark, but close in line 9002 with him was Capri, Mary Lee, Stan. Friedlander and William Bass.

Q. How about Joseph Halpert? A. Halpert.

Q. Did you replace his merchandise? A. Well, I am not so clear on that point. I do not think that he was totally replaced, but I think we came closer to getting replacements on Halpert than one or two others. Dolces was extremely hard to replace.

Q. Who was the buyer for that department? A. Buyer for the department?

Q. Yes. A. 354?

Q. Yes. A. Mrs. Johnstone, Nellie D. Johnstone.

Q. All right. What is the situation in Department 371? A. The resource there which we could not replace, re- 9003 sources which we could not replace were Mulligan, which was probably the most severe loss on the whole floor; Ben Ginsberg, who made an extremely saleable line of suits, junior suits and coats; Will Steinman; David Westheim; Junior Guild. I might add, if there is no objection that this department had an extremely hard time replacing many of its resources and suffered severely in sales because practically everybody we used was a Guild manufacturer.

Mr. Albert: What department was that?

The Witness: 371.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. That is, in the dress end of it; is that what you mean? A. I should say in the dresses and primarily dresses costing $10.75 or better. There was practically no resource left to us after the Guild had been closed to us.

Q. What is the situation in Department 380? A. We could not replace Star-Maid dresses, and so far as comparing with 1935 is concerned, that is the only resources which I would say we had extreme difficulty in replacing,
9005 although we had developed in the fall of '35 business with Sam Steinberg and one or two others that we could not carry along with.

Q. Was Grace Ashley in that department? A. She is.

Q. Were you able to replace her? A. Positively not. I wish we could.

Q. Will you explain how the inability to get Guild merchandise after February, 1936, as a result of the red carding of Dayton's by the Guild affected adversely the prestige and reputation of Dayton's in Minneapolis? A. Many customers came to us requiring merchandise of the quality and type which they had before, which we were unable to supply, and as any retailer will tell you, if you are not able to care for women's departments along certain 9006 items of dress you lose business, probably maybe permanently from her, and you lose it in the allied departments as well as in the actual department in which she is interested. Also failure to have what we consider to be the best merchandise rather lowered I would say the morale in the better dresses. They discovered pretty soon that we were not using the kind of business we had before, and I feel that hurt our reputation and prestige. We were compelled to drop certain national lines that we had built up very heavily, and I believe that the dropping of these lines, the failure to continue through on them, hurt our reputation and prestige in the city.

Q. What lines do you have in mind? A. Well, I mean discontinuing the advertising on Mulligan, Star-Maid, I should say Wragge dresses, excuse me. And one or two other lines which we had been promoting. I should imagine it would damage our prestige. Customers ask why, and they will ask for the garments and you haven't got them.

Q. Have you actually received such a request from a customer? A. We are receiving requests for Mulligan dresses every single day. We have received requests for 9008 all of the others at times, some of them almost continuously.

Q. In what way has this inability to get the dresses that you described affected your competitor situation. Has it made it less competitive? What do you mean by that?

Mr. Albert: I object to it, if it please the Court, no foundation having been laid.

Examiner Bennett: What is that question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may answer. Overruled. 9009

The Witness: Well, I believe that Dayton's was doing its fair proportion of the better dress business in Minneapolis up to the time we were shut off, and naturally you can't abandon certain manufacturers who are admittedly among the best, perhaps the best in the industry and not sacrifice something in the way of competitive standing in the city. Our competitors naturally are buying these resources. I have seen a statement to the effect that the Guild manufacturers had replaced all the business they had lost with red carded accounts. Hence, I presume they are selling more of this merchandise to our competitors in the city. I feel that we have—or it has become known to the public that our dresses are not of the grade that they used to be, that our competitors are perhaps selling more of these other types of dresses, and hence our competitive standing has gone down.

Q. Now, you mentioned among the effects of the red carding, disappointed customers on particular items. Do you have any concrete illustrations of that? A. Following the red card boycott a number of special orders were refused and those special customers were of course disappointed. It has been furthermore, a habit for customers to come into our model shop—that is the better dress shop, the highest priced end—with a copy of "Vogue," "Harper's," and say, "Can you get me this garment," or "Can you get that one?" and we could always or nearly always get it for them. Now, when they come in with those magazines we try to get their minds on something else knowing that we can't get those garments in all probability. Customers have asked if we carry certain dresses by name. A few customers are familiar with Maurice Rentner's line, ask for it, and we tell her that we no longer have it. Some have inquired about his "Quality Street" dresses this fall and we have been compelled to say that so far we have bought none. As I mentioned before, the effect of Mulligan's, they have inquired for them. Many women to whom we sold the Wragge dresses made by Star-Maid last spring desired other dresses by the same maker or a duplicate of what they had last spring, and we were unable to furnish them.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 714 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 714 and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a record of our estimated loss and travel expense and time, exclusive of buyers' salaries, made necessary by the red card boycott last spring.

Q. Who prepared it? A. I furnished the material for it from my records.

Q. Who compiled it? Was it compiled under your supervision? A. It was compiled under my direct super- 9014 vision.

Q. Was it compiled in the ordinary course of your business? A. It was.

Q. Are you satisfied that it is approximately correct? A. I am satisfied that, if anything, it is an under-statement of the facts.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the exhibit in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I suppose I should object, your Honor, on the ground that no proper foundation has been laid, but the exhibit is so amusing that I don't think I will object to it.

Examiner Bennett: May I see it?

(The paper writing referred to was handed to the Examiner.) 9015

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will receive it.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 714, was received in evidence.)

9016 Dayne Donovan—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you have in mind when you testified with respect to the loss of investments in confined, branded lines?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, on the ground that Mr. Haycraft is now on his redirect examination before we have started cross-examination. The witness has testified to it.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection, to the question in that form.

9017 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you give me an illustration of loss of investment in confined branded lines, referred to in your previous testimony?

Mr. Albert: Objected to upon the same ground, and upon the additional ground that no foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: You may do that. You may answer that. Overruled.

The Witness: I can answer it. We happen to have checked a while ago and we had invested in publicity of various kinds and types over a thou-

9018 sand dollars in Louise Mulligan, and we now consider that that investment is probably a loss to us, and not only that, but seems to be invested for the benefit of our competitors who now handle the line.

Q. In what way was that one thousand dollars expended? What type of advertising? A. Partly in Fashion Shows, in popularizing the personality of Miss Mulligan, showing her garments directly worn on girls to people who came into the store to see them, and partly through our Datonian, which is a quarterly publication of the same company and perhaps most of all the newspapers in promoting that line.

Q. Over what period of time? A. The figure I mendioned refers to the time elapsing between August 1st, 1935 and February 1st, 1936, a period of at least roughly of six months.

Q. Can you give any other illustration? A. We have in the promotion of Wragge dresses invested some money in the same manner, although I have no actual figures to quote. And in the promotion of Grace Ashley dresses we have also spent some money in the same way. 9020

Mr. Albert: Is that the corpus delicti, Mr. Haycraft (referring to large box)?

Mr. Haycraft: Is there something on the record that I didn't hear?

The Reporter: "Is that the corpus delicti, Mr. Haycraft?"

Mr. Haycraft: I think that is on the other side of the table. Mark this for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 715 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 715 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. That is the booklet which Maurice Rentner made up for us to send out to our select customers, in the fall of '35. They are his dresses in the booklet. 9021

Q. How many of those did you send out? A. I can only estimate that. I don't know it precisely.

Q. What is your estimate? A. My estimate is 3,000.

Q. To whom were they sent? A. Presumably customers on our list who buy high grade garments.

Q. And at what expense? A. I cannot testify.

Q. I notice in pencil figures on this exhibit, heavy black figures, "$285.00." To what does that refer? A. I believe that refers to the cost of booklets to us plus the mailing. It is a swell book.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this.

Mr. Albert: No objection, Mr. Haycraft.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 715, was received in evidence.)

9023 (Thereupon a document was marked Commission's Exhibt 716 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 716 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. That is a Dayton ad run in the "Journal," January 16th, 1936. Do you want me to give the contents, too?

Q. No, just what it refers to? A. Referring to a Fashion Show of Louise Mulligan dresses.

Q. There is a heavy pencil notation on it. What are those figures? A. The cost of the ad.

Q. Was that made under your supervision? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have anything to do with it at all? Do you 9024 know whether or not the ad was issued? A. Do I know whether or not the—what?

Q. This ad was actually issued? A. Yes, it was run.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit 716 for Identification was received.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now I will show you——

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this for identification.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 717 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 717 for Identification——

Mr. Albert: Maybe there will be no objection, Mr. Haycraft, and we can save time——

9026

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing). —and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. An ad on Louise Mulligan dresses run in "The Minneapolis Journal," August 21, 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: Offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 717, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft. 9027

Q. The pencil notations are the cost of the ad, also? A. They are.

(Thereupon a discussion ensued off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: They are received.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 718, 719, 720, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732 and 733, were received in evidence.)

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, you referred to a situation in the fall buying season which began, I believe, the first of August, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Have you been able to replace Guild merchandise which you had formerly purchased from Guild manufacturers?

Mr. Albert: Up to the present time, do you mean?

Mr. Haycraft: Up to the present time.

Mr. Albert: Yes.

The Witness: In a great many cases we have been unable to replace it at all, some places where 9029 we have partly replaced it.

Q. Now, referring to your memoranda again, I will ask you to testify as to the instances where you have been unable to replace Guild merchandise for your fall requirements? A. We have——

Mr. Albert: Without conceding the truth, I will concede that the witness will testify substantially to the same effect.

Examiner Bennett: Did the other testimony apply only to spring purchases?

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor.

By Mr. Haycraft.

9030 Q. Well, I can ask this question: Have you been any more successful in replacing your Guild resources in your fall merchandise than you were in your spring? A. We have not been any more successful. In fact, since our fall season is more important, it is a larger season, I think I might say we have been a little less successful, certainly no more.

Examiner Bennett: When was——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Could you list the outstanding resources of Guild merchandise which you have been unable to replace for your fall requirements? A. Yes.

Q. Please do so. A. Grossman-Spiegel, coats, Mangone, coats and suits, Friedman—maybe I better give them by departments. Would you rather have that?

Q. You better; it would be easier to follow. A. Department 300, suits.

Q. Just a moment, let me catch it. All right, go ahead. A. Suits, Mangone, in Department 300; Departments 310 and 320, Mangone, Grossman-Spiegel and Carmel Bros.; Department 332, J. L. Friedman Bros., or J. L. Friedman 9032
Company; Department 333, A. Trainor Company, Matthews Kadetsky, Ed Gerrick, Herman Beispiel; Department 353, which is the top of our misses' better dresses, Maurice Rentner, William Bass, Eisenberg Sons & Company, J. J. Rothenberg, Herman Beispiel and Straus Miller; Department 334, Baran Dress Company, Dolces Dresses and Henry Gans; Department 354, Milton Altmark, William Bass, Charles Lang, Casino Dresses; Department 338, Rosen Bros. and C. D. Robbins; Department 358, Witlin Schneider, Aywon and International Dresses; Department 371, Mulligan, Incorporated, Ben Ginsberg, Junior Guild, Junior League and Bon Ray; Department 380, Sam Steinberg and Star Maid.

Q. You were to get, at the noon recess, your percentage 9033 that Department 358 purchased from Guild resources. A. I have that.

Q. What are they? A. Spring of 1935.

Q. All right. A. 24.4 per cent. of all purchases.

Mr. Albert: What department was that?

The Witness: In the spring of '35, in Department 358.

Mr. Albert: What are the figures?

The Witness: 24.4 per cent. of all purchases were from Guild houses, and in the fall of 1935 we purchased 32.3 per cent. of our total purchases from Guild houses.

Mr. Albert: What are the figures?

The Witness: 358, 32.3 per cent. In Department 380, in the spring of 1935, we purchased 11.1 per cent. of our merchandise from Guild resources.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is that spring or fall? A. That is the spring. The fall figure I have given you.

9035 Q. Oh, I see. That is all.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. You started buying fall merchandise about July 15th? A. No, we start early, your Honor. We start about June 20th.

Q. About June 20th? A. Coat and suit lines and dress lines start about July 5th.

Q. And you start selling at the same time, do you? A. Well, we will sell a very little bit of fall merchandise in the latter end of July and more early August, and then it increases until at this time of the year, September, our selling is 96 per cent. fall merchandise, probably.

Q. So the buying and selling have been going on from 9036 some time in June, about the 20th of June to the present time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Under present conditions? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Do you want to take a recess?

Mr. Albert: I think we might as well, your Honor, rather than starting and then interrupting the cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: All right, we will take a recess of ten minutes.

(Thereupon a ten-minute recess was taken.)

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, you have testified in various ways and in different language as to the necessity for the Dayton Store obtaining merchandise from Guild manufacturers. What, if you will, was it about that merchandise that was so necessary to the Dayton store? A. Well, on the whole, the merchandise from Guild houses contain more of the elements of saleability than merchandise from a similar number of non-Guild houses. 9038

Q. What are those elements? A. Well, I consider saleability in a garment first of all fit, whether or not it fits the woman in question; next, the composition of the dress in its various elements, in a manner that is pleasing to the customer, becoming to the average woman, and has eye appeal. Also, the ability to deliver, to manufacture and deliver promptly has something to do with its usefulness to us. Furthermore, Guild houses, as a rule, were among the first to have certain materials, certain trimmings, having the choice of the material in the trimming market, and these enter into the saleability of the dress. Their experience in manufacturing. Most of them have been in the manufacturing field for some time, experience in manufacturing, knowledge of the dress field, show up in the workmanship, in the details on the dress. I think that would be my answer, Mr. Albert. 9039

Q. Have you omitted any element? A. Would you read the answer back to me and I will see.

Q. (Answer read.) A. I think that is a complete answer, isn't it?

Q. I am not answering you. You are not trying to give the answers that will please me, are you, Mr. Donovan?

A. No. You asked if it was a complete answer. I do not know of anything more I can give you.

Q. That is all I wanted to know. In that answer, have you, by chance, in the description of one of the elements, used a word that is not commonly applied to that statement?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, too indefinite and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Give me the question, please.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you understand that 9041 question?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may answer.

The Witness: But I cannot answer, I do not know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, don't you think; Mr. Donovan, it is rather unusual, with a divisional merchandise manager in the dress company for as long a time as you are, have been, in the description of the elements that you take into consideration in purchasing goods, which will sell to your customers, have not used the word "style" or "fashion"? A. I don't know whether it is unusual or not. It did not oc-9042 cur to me.

Q. Well, would you say that you have used that word or the term "style" or "fashion" in any of the words that you have used in describing the elements? A. I think it comes——

Q. Under eye appeal? A. Possibly.

Q. Is that what you mean? A. Possibly.

Q. Possibly. Does it come in under anything else? A. I mentioned the matter of composing the materials of the dress to present a pleasant picture.

Q. In other words, you have used everything except the word "style" or "fashion."

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Previous question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do any of your customers, when they do not like the looks of a dress, say it has no eye appeal to them, or do they say it hasn't any style? A. Well, they usually say it is not a style that they want.

Q. Did you ever hear any of them use the word "eye appeal"? A. No; very few at least. 9044

Q. Well, then, would you say that style is synonymous with your expression, with the word "eye appeal"? And is one of the elements that are considered by you in purchasing dresses that you think will sell in your store?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has used language with which he is familiar and is accustomed to use.

Examiner Bennett: If he wants to add "style," if he thinks he has covered it, all right. I will let him answer. He is able to answer the questions.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

(Question read.) 9045

The Witness: Well, I believe I covered the question fairly sincerely. I don't feel like changing my answer.

Q. Don't you think a dress can have eye appeal without having style? A. I believe it could.

Q. So that you have not covered style by the use of the word "eye appeal," if you can have eye appeal without having style, have you? A. Would you mind repeating the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. Well, I presume you can have style without eye appeal.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, then, you left out consideration of style as one of the elements that you consider? A. I believe I included the element of style such as I considered them in my original answer, Mr. Albert.

Q. Well— A. If you wish to know whether I intentionally left it out or not, I will answer.

9047 Q. Well, I think the record will reveal adequately whether you did or not. A. Very well.

Q. In consideration of the elements that you took into consideration, you mentioned first fit. Do you mean by that that that is the first one you happened to think of, or do you mean that that is the most important? A. According to my lights, Mr. Albert, I believe it is the most important.

Q. Fit? A. Fit. For this reason, if you wish me to explain, all right.

Q. Yes, go ahead. A. I believe when a customer, anyone comes into our store, the first thing we have to do is fit her. If we cannot fit her, we have lost a sale. We know it right to start with. We might have the most 9048 desirable fashions, styles, anything that you or I might care to put in, but if we cannot fit her, the sale is gone. Therefore, I put down the word "fit" as being the first requirement, and I believe the major requirement, and I believe the layout of the department stores, whereby they segregate the sizes and usually appoint buyers to buy certain sizes, and the character of the market, whereby manufacturers make certain sizes, and specialize on certain sizes, indicates that that is the first requirement of a dress.

Q. Mr. Donovan, you mean by the use of the word "fit," the ability to provide your customer with the proper size? A. I do.

Q. Is that all you mean by fit? A. No. In that connection with what I meant after——

Q. So that, insofar as your description of the elements that go into your purchase of dresses, what you mean by fit is the ability to get the proper size? A. Well, I mean the ability to get the proper size and have it made to that size correctly. In other words, so that a 38 fits a 38 woman.

Q. In other words, what you mean is that, insofar as the size is concerned, it is to be able to fit a woman with a 9050 dress once she has selected the dress, is that not so? A. I would say the opposite. I would say we have to show her a dress she can wear in the correct size and made to her correct proportions before we have any chance to interest her in anything else.

Q. Is it your contention, then, that your customers come in and ask for a size 12 dress and put it on, see how it fits; and then start to look at the style of the dress? A. No, my contention is that they come in and ask for a size 12 dress and, if we have not a size 12, we lose the sale. Therefore, that seems to me to be the first requirement, to have size ranges.

Q. In other words, if you haven't got a size 12, you cannot sell it? A. Well, you have a chance, of course, to 9051 sell size 14.

Q. Dayton's would not sell a woman a size 14 if she only wore a size 12, would it? A. Well, is that an inquiry into our methods?

Q. Well, I want to find out what elements you take into consideration in selling a dress. A. Well, I am trying to tell you as far as I have gone.

Q. Has Dayton's tried to sell a size 14 to a size 12 woman? A. If she looked easy, a trifle large for a 12, we might. Some of the manufacturers, not Guild, I suppose, would make a size 14 a little scanty.

Q. What is your contention with respect to the elements that are taken into consideration by your customers when they attempt to purchase a dress? A. I can name four or five things that I believe almost every woman considers in the purchase of a dress. Would that answer the question?

Q. Well, I think we all will concede, Mr. Donovan, that nobody will purchase something that does not fit. A. That is right.

Q. That nobody will purchase a sack cloth to wear—

9053 A. That is right.

Q. —is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And that when a woman buys a $100 dress she wants the needle work to be good, is that correct? A. Mostly, they expect it. I have seen them buy it and not know whether they were getting good, bad or indifferent needle work.

Q. That is the next thing I was coming to. Does the average women know anything at all about the needle work on a dress? A. The average woman does, the average woman does.

Q. But many do not? A. There are some who do not.

Q. When a woman buys a better dress or an expensive dress she also likes to see that the workmanship is proper; isn't that so? A. Most of them do.

9054 Q. When a woman comes into your store, what is the first thing that she asks for with respect to a dress? A. "I wear a size 28, what can you show me in a dinner dress, an afternoon dress, a daytime dress."

Q. Is that all that she is interested in? A. At first.

Q. Well, naturally, she has got to tell you what her size is in order to get anything at all; isn't that so? A. Sure—well, no, not always. We can guess it the most of the time.

Q. Then you know the size without her telling it? A. What?

Q. Then you know it without her telling it? A. Frequently.

Q. How frequently can you tell it without her telling it to you? A. I don't know that. I haven't sold the dresses myself.

Q. Do you know it on the average? Do your buyers or your salesladies know it on the average? A. They can make a reasonably close guess, but the woman naturally will give her size.

Q. So that when a woman comes into your place to purchase a dress, does she by any strange circumstance or 9056 peculiar quirk of her own ask you anything about the style? A. After we show her the dresses and start showing them she will make inquiries as to whether she is interested in the one style more than another.

Q. When you show her the styles of the dresses, do you show her your left-overs from last year? A. Not unless we have reason to believe that she would be interested in buying them. We have to sell them to somebody.

Q. What are the elements that would lead you to believe that she was interested in last year's dresses? A. Well, she might indicate that she wanted a dress to wear around.

Q. After she first asked you for the size? A. No.

Q. Or before? A. It might be either one or the other. She might ask for the size first or say simply, "I need a 9057 dress to wear around. I wear a size forty. Have you got one like that?"

Q. You wouldn't show her last year's dress unless you first told her about it; would you? A. If she wanted to wear a dress around, we have several hundred we have got to sell to somebody.

Q. What happens when you show them last year's styles? A. What happens? Either they are bought or not bought; I don't know which always.

Q. Those last year's styles are purchased at a price, aren't they? A. Yes. You mean the manufacturer's price?

Q. When you show last year's styles to your customers, you sell them for less than you sold them last year; don't you? A. Why, at this time of year or any end of the season that we are showing last spring's merchandise, for the most part it is reduced, not always.

Q. When you sell last year's styles to a woman, it is generally because that woman has come in to purchase a dress at a price, isn't that so, rather than to purchase the prevailing style? That woman wants a cover; she doesn't 9059 want the latest fad, mode, does she? A. I don't suppose she expects it if she wants a dress at a price which is last season's garment.

Q. When your customers come in who are not looking for dresses at a price, but who are looking for dresses that adequately reflect the trend of the day and dresses that they wouldn't be self-conscious being seen it, what do they ask for?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner. There has been no showing that there is any such creature.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: I think you had better not 9060 load your questions down with so many ifs and ands. If you will just ask him a direct question, I think that will be better.

Mr. Albert: Well, then, let's make it direct, Mr. Donovan.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I think you have been following the hearings very closely and have been attending some of the hearings.

What is the most important thing to a woman in a dress? A. Didn't I answer that before?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Isn't the style of the dress more important than the fit? A. I think I testified to the contrary. I don't think it is.

Q. Is it your contention that a woman—by that we mean the average of your clientele who purchases better dresses, will purchase a dress that fits her despite the fact that it wouldn't possibly be in style? We are not talking about exceptional cases, Mr. Donovan. I want your honest opinion from your years in the industry what the most part of your clientele of women seek when they come in for a dress. 9062

Mr. Haycraft: Now, I object to that question. It is a little complicated. No one in the world can understand it. He starts out with an average and winds up with the most.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I think the question has already been answered.

Examiner Bennett: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: Why, I think I know what he is driving at. 9063

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead and answer it.

The Witness: But I think I have answered it.

Examiner Bennett: What?

The Witness: I believe I have answered that. If I may interject at this moment, I think, Mr.

Albert, I can safely say and be perfectly frank to concede that style is a very important element in a dress, but I am willing to concede it is the most important element. I think that explains——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that— A. —the position.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Donovan, that when a woman comes in for a dress, if she doesn't say so in so many words, "I want to see your latest styles," that your sales force will show her the latest style of a dress in the size that may fit her? A. Not necessarily.

9065 Q. Then you try to sell dresses that are not in the latest style? A. I don't believe I said that.

Q. What do you mean by "not necessarily"? A. Well, I mean that we have dresses running in style back anywhere from to-day's dress, received to-day, back three months, four months, and that we have those dresses for sale, and if they appear suitable to the woman who comes in and are her size, we show her those dresses regardless of whether they are to-day's styles or four months ago's styles. We make no distinction in our selling as to how old they are.

Q. With that answer in mind, upon what do you base the reputation of the Dayton store? A. That we have a large proportion of styles that have come in to-day and 9066 up-to-date fashions, but we make no pretense of stating that we have nothing that was last week's or last month's left in stock, and it does have to be sold. And it is true in all stores, and we try to have as much as possible, as most stores do, of the new established merchandise.

Q. Who is it that consistently in your opinion, provided that new established merchandise insofar as style is concerned? A. Why, there is a large group of good manufacturers who provide that.

Q. Would you say that they were the Guild manufacturers? A. I think the Guild, among others, provide new merchandise and I would say that insofar as the Guild comprising the market in certain types in that proportion the Guild has the most new merchandise.

Q. By new merchandise you mean new style? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification, please?

Examiner Bennett: What are you marking for identification?

Mr. Albert: Two pages in the "Good Housekeeping Magazine," December of 1935 issue. Pages 72 and 73. 9068

(The pages referred to were marked Respondents' Exhibits 61-A and B for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, I show you Respondents' Exhibits Nos. 61-A and B, being two pages from "Good Housekeeping" for December, 1935, containing illustration of designs for various dresses, and ask you what it is in these dresses that is emphasized? A. Well, the color is emphasized, the details as to neck line, waist line, and so on, in many of the dresses. In short, it is the youthfulness, the salability of the dresses that is demonstrated, the desirability of the dresses.

Q. You still seem to have an adverse prejudice to using the word style; haven't you? Would you say that the style of those dresses are in any way emphasized? A. In a general sense, yes, the style is. 9069

Q. What is there that is attractive about the illustration there other than the style of the dress? A. The colors are very attractive, and it demonstrates in a very striking way the youthfulness of the fashions which I think——

Q. Isn't the youthfulness of the fashion a result of the style or design of the dress, or do you mean by that that the illustrator has merely painted or etched, or whatever it is that he did there, a very young girl with youthful looks? A. Well, the illustrator has done that. I also mean that the dresses are of styles and of colors and of general designs that are very youthful and appealing to a younger person.

Q. Will you tell me if there is anything in that advertisement which in any way asks the customer to please come in and feel the material and see how good the material is?

9071 Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Give me the question.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if he sees anything like that.

The Witness: I think every ad implies that the customer may do that if she is interested in so doing.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In other words, it is taken for granted, isn't it? A. To a large degree, although I do notice here it refers to celanese taffetas and other materials which might make a customer want to come in and see what they look like and 9072 feel them.

Q. That is merely a description of the material of which the dress is made so that the customer can know exactly what it is; isn't it? A. Well, that is true.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "merely," Mr. Examiner, as argumentative.

The Witness: Well——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Without the use of the word "merely," isn't that all it is?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that "isn't that all it is." It is argumentative.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if he can.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question without using the word "merely."

(The question was read as follows: "That is a description of the material of which the dress is made so that the customer can know exactly what it is; isn't it?") 9074

The Witness: Well, that is what most advertising is, a description so that they can——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Of course. Of course. A. —so that they can be interested in it and come in and investigate further. We hope they will, and lots of times they don't.

Q. Is there anything in that advertisement that says that those who read it, "please come in and try on our dresses and see how beautifully they fit and enjoy yourselves." A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. 9075

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, isn't the only thing that a woman can see in that advertisement to prompt her to come into your store to buy a dress is the style of the dress? A. Well, no. I think she can see from this advertisement that they are junior fashions and that we are asking the juniors who read this ad to come in and look at our merchandise.

Q. All right. Isn't the only thing in that advertisement that will attract the juniors who read that advertisement to come into your store, the design and the style of that dress? A. I don't honestly think I can answer for the juniors. It will seem like to me——

Q. After your years of experience you can't tell me what it is that you try to play up to in your customers? A. I can't say what they think about in reading that page.

Q. What purpose did you have in mind— A. We hoped——

Q. —in letting your name be used in connection with that advertisement? A. We have the hope that they will 9077 be interested enough to come in and ask about these garments.

Q. And the only thing that is in there that you hope they will come into your store, is a result of the design and the style of the dress; isn't that so? A. Well, that is a very important element.

Q. Well, now, what did you mean when you said that your customers came in with a copy of "Vogue" or "Harpers" and asked for those dresses? Do they know anything about the material in the dress, as to its quality or value, or do they know anything at all about the fit of those dresses from what is in those advertisements? A. Well, they—what I was referring to, Mr. Albert, was not this particular—I mean illustrated garments in "Vogue" 9078 or "Harper's" and don't know whether they know anything about the fit or not. I don't suppose they do.

Q. Is this type— A. It doesn't mean that we have sold the garment because they come in and ask for it. It does mean that they would be interested in seeing it and providing the fit is there and the material is suitable they might buy it.

Q. Isn't the only thing that attracted that type of customer who reads "Vogue" or "Harper's" or "Good Housekeeping" the style and design of the dress as illustrated in those magazines? A. You are asking that the only thing that those customers are interested in is the style?

Q. I said, is the only thing that attracted those customers to your store, that impelled them to go to your store, as a result of seeing the advertisement in "Vogue" or "Harper's" or "Good Housekeeping," isn't that only thing the style or design of the dress, as reflected in those magazines? A. I would say it is an important element in it.

Q. Is there any other element that is contained in those advertisements to attract their attention? A. Why, I think there is descriptive matter there pertaining to materials that are in the pages directed to junior readers. I think any one of those that want to come in and see the 9080 new celanese taffeta, might not at all be interested in what the garment looked like. They want to see the taffeta and hope they get something else maybe.

Q. So in other words, you think the only thing that attracts your customers when they see an advertisement in "Good Housekeeping" is not the seven comely ladies in fashionable dresses, but rather the line or two of type in that advertisement that states that you have on sale a celanese dress? If that is so why don't you just put an ad in "Good Housekeeping," "Come in and see our celanese dresses"? A. I never said that that was so, Mr. Albert.

Q. What did you say was so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. The record shows what he said.

9081

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. Too indefinite.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have a piece goods department, Mr. Donovan? A. Yes, sir, we have.

Q. Your customer can see celanese in your piece goods department; isn't that so? A. Certainly, that is open at all times within store hours.

Q. You mailed or distributed Commission's Exhibit No. 715 to your customers; did you not, Mr. Donovan? A. Yes, we did.

Q. And that went out as a publication of the Dayton Company; did it not? A. I believe it did. I don't know to what extent.

Q. The name of the Dayton Company stands behind everything that is stated in that; doesn't it? A. The Dayton Company is on there.

Q. The Dayton Company doesn't lend itself——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

9263 The Witness: It is all right. I just wanted to be sure. I didn't remember all of this. But I understand what you mean. It is Dayton Company's publication to all intents and purposes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Indicating) On Commission's Exhibit No. 715? A. That is true.

Q. The Dayton Company does not lend itself to any advertising or to any statements that are misleading; does it? I don't mean any wrong inference by that at all. I am merely trying to get information from you. A. We do not knowingly ever subscribe to statements or things which we think are misleading and false.

9264 Q. Naturally before you issue a document of this sort under the name of the Dayton Company and have the Dayton Company's name behind it, you examine the contents thereof in order to make sure that there is nothing in there that you wouldn't want to stand solidly behind; isn't that so? A. That is the normal course. I can't testify from my own knowledge.

Q. The Dayton Company is not subnormal, is it? A. No.

Q. It would not reach its position that it has reached in the industry to-day, if it were? A. Well, there are lots of subnormal things go a long ways.

Q. Now, will you tell me what the Dayton Company meant by this statement: "For a woman to feel that she has done justice to herself and her appearance, she will, out of sheer necessity, have to resort to better clothes." What did the Dayton Company mean by that?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, irrelevant and immaterial, improper cross-examination. I object to that, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: I heard you. Let us see the document, please. 9086

(Document handed to Examiner Bennett.)

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, may I point out that this witness has specifically testified on direct something which thus far has not been testified to by anybody else, that the Dayton Company is meticulous in the truthfulness of its advertisements.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, there is nothing about that statement to indicate otherwise.

Mr. Feldman: It is their advertisement.

Mr. Haycraft: What of it? I say it is immaterial and irrelevant. There is nothing about that statement read to the witness that can have any probative value or tends to contradict anything the witness has said. 9087

Examiner Bennett: As I understand it, you have read this first paragraph and asked what was meant by it.

Mr. Albert: I read this sentence here (indicating).

Examiner Bennett: This paragraph?

Mr. Albert: Beginning 401.

Mr. Haycraft: May I be heard on the objection, your Honor? Unless your Honor feels that you want to overrule it. I do not want to waste time.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if you give him the whole thing.

Mr. Albert: Yes, I am showing it to him.

Examiner Bennett: if you give him the whole context.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

The Witness: I do not think I can add anything to what this statement says by itself. I did not 9089 propose the booklet or pass on it. As a matter of fact I have not seen it to my knowledge ever before. Probably I read it at one time. It has no special meaning to me.

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until 10 o'clock to-morrow, and will meet at this place.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., an adjournment was taken.)

9090

Room 307, Federal Building,
Minneapolis, Minnesota,
September 3rd, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 o'clock A. M. C. S. T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(SAME APPEARANCES)

PROCEEDINGS.

9092 Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed. All right, Mr. Donovan.

Mr. Donovan: Good morning.

DAYNE DONOVAN thereupon resumed the stand for the Commission and, having been previously sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert (continued).

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 715, Mr. Donovan, to the last page thereof, I read you the following language: "To achieve the smartest and the latest fashion in your costume, that is every woman's aim. If you depend on Dayton's timely, lovely selections you are 9093 assured of styling in the best of taste, the last minute touches and pleasant pricing." And ask you what is meant by that?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. There is nothing ambiguous about that. It speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: There isn't any question yet.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I have objected to the question, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Is that your language?

Mr. Haycraft: It has no probative value.

The Witness: It is not my language.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is not that the language of the Dayton Company?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will overrule your objection, if you want to find out what his interpretation of that language is.

9095 Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor. That is all I want.

The Witness: I believe the language is the language of Maurice Rentner or his concern; that is, the selection of words, and so on. I believe that this booklet presented to us—I think when we got it we looked at the illustrations and got through Mr. Rentner's nephew, I think, an idea of about what it contained, probably about some idea of the wording, and so on, but not any—not in any definite way. The booklet came, was approved, passed by our advertising office, or at least subscribed to, I presume, and sent in; but as to any other interpretation, I can't help you any on that. I presume it means about what it says, according to their 9096 light.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then, do you wish us to understand, Mr. Donovan, that insofar as Dayton's is concerned, they let a book go out containing certain descriptive matter and printed matter without being fully aware of the significance of what was said and what they were lending their name to?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, no probative value.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Well, I don't think that I can tell you what you may interpret from it. I say, there are the facts. You can draw any conclusion you wish from them. I don't know any more than is down there. Usually we do check our things pretty closely that go out.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Didn't you read that before it went out? A. I don't recall having personally read it, no. 9098

Q. When is the first time that you read it? A. I don't remember. In fact, I don't know that I ever read it word for word. I looked at the illustrations.

Q. When is the first time that you got the idea that it was a swell book? A. When one of our competitors had it the previous year and did business on it.

Q. The same book? A. No, a book like it, or that—well, let me amend that. It is a book on that order and with the same name.

Q. Then you weren't referring to this book when in your direct testimony you said it was a swell book? A. No; I was referring to this book.

Q. When did you first think that this book was a swell book? A. This particular book, I presume? 9099

Q. Yes. A. When I saw how the dresses sold that were illustrated in the book.

Q. When were you able to compare the sale of the dresses with the illustrations in the book if prior to this time you hadn't read the book?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. There is nothing in the testimony that he did make any such comparison. I don't know whether he did or not. Why don't you ask him?

Mr. Albert: He just said he did.

Mr. Haycraft: No, he didn't.

The Witness: Not quite that, Mr. Albert.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

The Witness: I can only say this: I know that the dresses in the book sold, and that was the basis of my general statement that it was a good book.

9101 We liked it. I didn't refer to any feature of it particularly. We know the dresses sold.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How did you first know what dresses were illustrated in that book that you had in stock? A. How did I first know what?

Q. Or when did you first know that, rather? A. Well, I don't suppose I know exactly what you mean. Our buyers bought the dresses in the book, and I knew that they had bought them.

Q. And aside from that, that is all you knew about that book? A. Well, I knew the general character of the book, the way it was printed. It is a very good-looking booklet, 9102 and very creditable, and I knew that one of our competitors had had a similar book the year before and that customers had praised it, and that I had liked that kind of a book.

Q. Did you not go through that book in order to make certain that there wasn't anything in that book that might be objectionable to the Dayton Company's standard or policy or series of advertising, of the truthfulness or anything of that nature; is that so? A. No, sir. There is a question that I can't answer. I did not. It is not my function.

I presume that the advertising office done that, and if a book has the general character of something that we think is of value to us, I let them do the checking of the words and check the policies. They are very good at it.

Q. You have to check up on your buyers, don't you, to see that they are doing their work properly; do you not?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: It is a foundation question, your Honor, in the light of the last answer.

The Witness: Why, I am perfectly——

Mr. Haycraft: It has no bearing upon the last answer, and I object to it. 9104

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Go ahead.

The Witness: Why, certainly, I keep a reasonably close check on them as well as anybody can.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Didn't you testify that so far as Mr. Dayton is concerned, Mr. Dayton said that there isn't anything that he knew of that the buyers weren't responsible for in the sale of their merchandise? A. I did so testify.

Q. Therefore, the buyers would be somewhat responsible for whatever is in that book; isn't that so?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as absurd. He is carrying this examination to the point of absurdity. 9105

Mr. Albert: Quite right. I am trying to make Mr. Donovan look as absurd as possible.

Mr. Haycraft: You are not making Mr. Donovan absurd, you are making yourself absurd.

Examiner Bennett: Do not make these remarks across the table. You are making this record much longer than it ought to be. Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, the Dayton Company writes the ads for the Minneapolis newspapers; don't they? A. Our advertising office does, yes.

Q. Do you see those ads at all? A. I see most of them, in part at least.

Q. You check up on them before they go out; don't you? A. Roughly, yes.

9107 Q. In order to make certain that your departments are getting the proper sort of promotion in the advertisements; isn't that so? A. Why, yes. I am a party to what goes in the advertising.

Q. That is right. A. Roughly. I don't assume full responsibility for the advertising or the ads.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, I show you Commission's Exhibit 725, being an advertisement in the "Minneapolis Journal" of November 8, 1935, by the Dayton Company, and ask you what the Dayton Company meant by the following: "Mary, Mary, quite contrary, out Mulligans Mulligan, if such a thing could be"?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to that, Mr. Examiner, no probative value.

9108 Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, give his interpretation of it, if he has any.

The Witness: Well, my interpretation of it is that, among other things, Miss Mulligan does well, they have a knack of styling for younger girls, well liked, and that this ad refers to the fact that those particular touches and things which Mulligan put on her garments are even more pronounced than the ones which we are showing and illustrating here.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you mean by that that Mulligan had outshone itself in the designing of these dresses? A. No, I think my other statement tells it as completely as I can. Mulligan does many other things, certain things very well. She has very cute yarn embroidery on her things and different little wooden ornaments and for such characteristics Mulligan dresses are recognized as such. I suppose that it seems that it has some of these pronounced treatments of hers and that they are pronounced in the garments.

Q. Do you say that the design of the dress has nothing to do with the Mulligan popularity? A. I think there are many things which have to do with Mulligan popularity.

Q. Is there anything in that advertisement, and is there anything in any of the advertisements that you have put into evidence here that in any way attempts to advertise or play up the fact that the dresses are good fits or that the material in the dresses is of particularly high order, and is it not a fact that the only thing that is played up in all of the advertisements that have been put into evidence is the design and the style of the dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The advertisements speak for themselves.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Well, I am frank to say I have not read all of these advertisements for a long time. I do not know just what is in them.

9111

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I will let you have them and look them over, Mr. Donovan. A. An ad like this, which starts in talking about sub-debs, for which we pay money, right there is our intention to sell to a certain size range and to attempt to enter a certain size range first of all.

Q. Isn't the sub-debs a variegated size department? A. Yes.

Q. Does it not show in that department all sizes? A. Certainly not.

Q. Isn't there a variety of sizes in that department? A. Four sizes.

Q. Well, now, you take a look at these advertisements and you tell us what, in these advertisements, the Dayton Company believes that it is advertising in an attempt to attract customers, upon the basis, one, of the fit of its dresses; two, upon the basis of the quality of the material?

9113 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, no probative value.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: Well, I think that they bring forth a number of things, Mr. Albert. I do not deny the style is an important feature in this ad, in particular operations, which has a great deal to do with it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let us see if we can get off this topic, Mr. Donovan. Is it not a matter of fact that in so far as women are concerned, when a woman comes in to buy a dress she assumes, and anybody that buys any clothing assumes, first, that they are going to buy something that will be

9114 a proper fit——

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Albert: And second—I have not finished my question, Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: What did you pause for?

Mr. Albert: That is just for effect, to get you excited.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, you failed.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continued) —and second, that if it had confidence in the reputation of the store that it is doing business with, the customer will believe that the material will be worth the money paid for it, and what a customer goes into that store for—when she goes in for a dress—is to see something that is a good model and good design in fashion and trend?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continued) Is that not substantially true? 9116

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as being——

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you let me state my objection?

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

Mr. Haycraft: The objection is, Mr. Examiner, it is about quadruple in form. It is highly objectionable. It is argumentative. The witness has answered it to the contrary.

Examiner Bennett: I know he has answered it to the contrary. He is trying to break down the answer.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to again ask that counsel refrain from standing between me and the 9117 witness.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to be considered a part of this court room scene.

Mr. Albert: Personally, I think it is a lot of off-stage noise, but if you want to join the cast——

Examiner Bennett: Make an objection and I will pass upon it. I think the shortest way is the best way.

The Witness: Am I to answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, you may answer.

The Witness: Would you mind reading the question, please? As I remember, it is a lengthy one.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. But you do remember it? A. I remember you asked the question, but I would like to know the details, which you included, so I do not make a wrong answer.

9119

Examiner Bennett: You may answer, but confine yourself to women, and do not try to cover the whole universe as to anybody who buys any clothes anywhere.

The Witness: I do not know what I can say other than that when a customer comes into our store she first inquires what we can show her in the size that she requires and frequently we lose many sales because we have a desirable fashion or style in a size which she cannot wear. I cannot believe that all she thinks about is the fashion or the style of a dress. I think that is one of the things that she thinks about.

9120

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, isn't the first thing she wants to settle the style of it, and then she will see if the dress fits her? A. I would say very greatly—I have no knowledge of what the first thing they want to settle in their minds is, except in my opinion is, "What have you in my size that will look well on me?" That is the first thing she wants to settle, is if we have something in the size for her.

Q. Well, let me put it this way, Mr. Donovan: Would any woman buy a dress which fits her and which has good material if she is not satisfied and if she is not pleased with the design or the model of the dress?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner. That assumes that the woman he is talking about wants the latest style and she wants a stylish dress, and she may be satisfied with something less than that. I don't think we are getting anywhere. We are running in circles.

The Witness: If I may make a comment, Mr. Albert, and you won't take it amiss——

Mr. Haycraft: I have an objection. 9122

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection and let the witness answer.

The Witness: Will you read the question?

Q. (Previous question read by the reporter.) A. Well, it is one of the qualifications which she wants. I have known them to come into the store and say, "This is the only place in town I can get a 38½ dress, but I don't like it, but I have to buy a dress."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is the type of woman that comes in and all she wants is something to cover her? A. I don't know what percentage wants something to cover them or which 9123 percentage wants something else. I am not an expert on what every woman wants. I believe fashion is highly important, and the style of the garment.

Q. Is there any general type of dress in which style or the design of the dress is not important? A. The only kind I have discovered is a burial dress.

Q. What kind? A. Burial dress.

(Laughter.)

Q. That is a new one that you added since we left Chicago? A. That is not true.

Q. We did not hear of that in Chicago. A. I do not know what you heard in Chicago.

Q. You do not mean that? A. I was tossed out early in the second day, before I heard what you——

Q. Well, you read it, didn't you? A. Well, you would not want a witness dumb enough to say he did not read it or did not have any opinion about this case.

Q. All right, that is all I wanted you to say. Is it your opinion that, aside from a burial dress, there is no dress in which style is not important? A. I said that is one 9125 of the circumstances.

Q. Are there others? A. There may be other instances, but in general style is a very important factor of a dress no use denying that.

Q. The only one you can unequivocally state that style is not an important factor in is in a burial dress? A. Well, I believe that style in a burial dress is less important than it is in almost any other kind of dress. Although I have known burial dresses to be sold to Polish bridesmaids to wear at weddings. I presume they are assumed to have some style value or she would not buy it.

Q. Do you mean to say that Dayton's sell burial dresses to women for weddings? A. No. We show them dresses and explain what they are for, and the girls in this particular party wanted to buy them for use as bridesmaids 9126 at a wedding.

Q. Your burial dresses were of a particular style that your customers wanted to wear at a wedding? A. I would say lack of style. The fact that they appealed to these girls is evidence that they did not have the remotest idea of style. Did not care anything about it.

Q. How much of your clientele would you say had such an idea of style? A. An extremely small percentage.

Q. A small percentage? A. Such a small percentage as to be practically negligible.

Q. Mr. Donovan, you stated that most girls had no idea or conception of design or style? A. I assume their knowledge of style was pretty small.

Q. And, of course, were these burial dresses of very good material or very enchanting material? A. Well, they were in a very nice color which the girls liked.

Q. Color and nothing else? A, Mostly color.

Q. What was the needlework on these dresses? A. Very good in front and pretty bad in the rear.

Q. How about the workmanship? A. Well, I think that answers the question. The workmanship was good in 9128 spots and not very good in other spots.

Q. Yet despite that fact, in so far as these girls were concerned those dresses were the height of style and the height of design, sufficient for them to want to wear them at a wedding, despite the poor workmanship and poor needlework and your refusal to even testify as to the kind of material?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to that as being immaterial, contrary to the wtiness' testimony.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Donovan, Dayton's uses display win- 9129
downs in its store, does it not? A. It does.

Q. Do you put dresses in those windows? A. Very frequently.

Q. You also put dresses on the floor of your department for display, do you not? A. Continuously.

Q. What is the purpose of that? A. We wish to show new features of the dresses or what we consider to be salable features of the character frequently of color, frequently in exemplification of problems of size and fit which we think we can take care of, and frequently for new touches in designing.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Donovan, isn't the only reason, or certainly the prime reason, why you put dresses in your show windows and display them on your floor is in order to allow your customers to see those dresses and to see the lines of them, the design of them, the model of them, the style of them, and thus be attracted to come in and attempt to purchase those dresses? A. With many other things, yes.

Q. You think that a woman can see very much of the fabric of the dress aside from its connotation from outside 9131 your store, looking into your show window? A. I do.

Q. She could tell the quality of the material aside from being able to distinguish the kind of material it is? A. Very well, very well. If we have a sign showing this is the new lustratone that we had in our window last week, and the new Parma Violet color, I think it will show it very well.

Q. Do you think your customers have to be told that is a certain color? A. If it is a new color, they do. If they have seen it somewhere else, probably it is not.

Q. I think your answer is that signs regarding the color assist the shopper in being able to determine from the sign, looking into the show window, the quality of the material? A. I do not think I said that, Mr. Albert.

Q. That is what I was talking about. A. I did not mean 9132 to state that a sign indicating a particular color will give any indication of quality of material.

Q. Let us start all over. Do you think that your women shoppers can tell from the outside, looking into your show room window, the quality of a dress in your window aside from being able to distinguish that the dress is either of silk or some other material?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. It has already been answered by the witness.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I will sustain the objection. I don't think it means anything.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Q. Well, Mr. Donovan, will you tell me what it is about a copy of a better dress that makes that copy sell?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not being proper cross-examination. It refers to nothing in the direct examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Haycraft: There is nothing established to 9134 show what a copy is. How is he going to tell?

The Witness: Do you want me to answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, if it does sell. I don't know anything about it.

The Witness: Well, I think it is the same thing that makes any dress sell, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is that? A. Well, that it is probably—assuming that the dress does sell——

Q. Yes. A. It must be well sized, it must fit, it must have attractive styling to it, it must have pretty good workmanship for the kind of a garment that it is at the price. It must be of an interesting fabric, pleasing, har- 9135 monious and nice color, and be reasonably priced with what it appears to be.

Q. Is it your contention, Mr. Donovan, that in so far as the sale of a copy of a better dress is concerned, that the dress sells because of the fact, first, that it has up-to-date design in the style trend as copied from better dresses; second, that it has good workmanship; and, third, that it has good fit?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. The witness has already answered that question.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. That is not the statement of the witness.

The Witness: No.

Examiner Bennett: It is almost directly opposite.

Mr. Albert: May I have the witness' answer read back to me?

(The answer was read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do copies of better dresses have those elements? A.
9137 Very frequently.

Q. When they sell? A. Well, all dresses, I believe, have those, including copies, yes.

Q. Is it your contention that all dresses of good workmanship—is it your contention that all dresses have good workmanship and are good fits? A. No, not all dresses.

Q. Well, then, what is it that you can get in the better dress from the Guild manufacturers that you can't get in a copy dress? A. I think I covered practically that same ground yesterday, but I will do so again if you wish.

Q. Let me put the question this way then, Mr. Donovan: What is it that you can—withdraw it. Do the dresses that are copies of the better dresses and that compete, according to your testimony, with the better dresses that you sell 9138 have equally as good workmanship and equally as good fit as the Guild merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. I don't understand that to be the witness' testimony.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I didn't understand that copies competed with the better dresses. There is no such testimony.

Examiner Bennett: I don't recall his testimony to that effect.

Mr. Haycraft: I don't either.

The Witness: I didn't so testify.

Examiner Bennett: If you will cut out that part of it, why, and make it a question, a plain and simple question as to those two classes of dresses, I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: There is no foundation laid yet for it. He hasn't established knowledge yet.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that question in that form.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 9140

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Since February of 1936, Mr. Donovan, has the Dayton Store been purchasing copies of Guild merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as not proper cross-examination, your Honor, irrelevant and immaterial to the issues in this case.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it further unless the question is confined to his own department, so he knows what he is talking about.

Examiner Bennett: Well, of course, I think it is understood that he is confined to his own de- 9141 partments.

The Witness: For the first two or three months—I am giving you my honest convictions as to the length of time—it may vary a week or two, but the first two or three months following the red card boycott we did not change our policies in any respect. In other words, we had adhered to the Guild policies prior to that time as regards to purchasing of so-called copies or purchasing so-called copies of manufacturers, and I would say there never was an exception; but we did not hold any meetings of buyers and say, "This is over. Now go ahead and buy all the copies that you can," or anything of that kind. We stuck to virtually what we had been doing before. Within the last two or three months the question has come up whether or not we should knowingly buy copies, and in every case the ruling has been that we would not buy a dress under any conditions because it was a copy or because it wasn't. If it looked to be—you understand that 9143 since not having access to Guild houses we have no idea of what is or what is not a copy unless the manufacturer tells us, and they may or may not tell us—but we have not at any time bought a dress because it was a copy of a Guild dress that we didn't think it was a good dress or because one of our competitors had it and we knew he was selling it. We bought it strictly on its merits as a dress. If it looked right to us, looked as if it would sell, for the last three months we have—would be buying it, otherwise we have been passing it. And I might add that not over ten days ago I passed a line. He said it was a copy line of one of the best known Guild houses and I said we are not interested in it. We just don't care about the dresses. We are pass-

9144 ing it. If they had been good dresses and looked as if they had been salable, perhaps we would have bought them if we needed them.

Q. Then since February of 1936 you have been substantially conducting your business in substantial conformity with the Guild policy with respect to the protection of style? Remember I am only saying "substantially," Mr. Donovan. A. Yes, I understand, and I am endeavoring to give you the picture as we see it. As I say, we haven't —copying, in the first place, has never been to us——

Q. No. Will you answer the question, please? A. Well, all right.

Q. Mr. Donovan? A. Excuse me.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the witness being interrupted, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: The witness obviously realized he wasn't answering the question and he desisted himself.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, he did not desist until you interrupted him.

The Witness: I was going to back up to it again. 9146

Mr. Haycraft: The witness is entitled to make an explanation. This question is a broad question. I think he is entitled to make a full explanation. I object to his being interrupted.

Examiner Bennett: I will permit a full explanation. Go ahead.

The Witness: I will leave out that objectionable part.

Examiner Bennett: Give the best answer you can. Do you want the question?

The Witness: We made no ruling whatever on whether we would or would not buy copies for several months following the red carding, and we did practically the same as we did before. I don't say 9147 that the buyers didn't buy copies; maybe they did. I don't know whether they were copies or not. We didn't see the Guild lines. We didn't get any notices from the Guild that this was a copy, and I presume we did buy copies. But we didn't make a policy of buying copies of Guild lines or copies of our competitors' merchandise.

Q. So that substantially— A. I am not quite through.

Q. I am sorry. A. Within the last two or three months, as I mentioned before, the question has come up and our store has expressly forbidden or requested the department managers, including myself and others, again not to make a policy of buying copies because it is a copy, but to relax our former policy to the extent that if we see a good dress which we think will sell, to buy it on its merits as a dress without reference to its being a copy or where the manufacturer got the design, because that is his problem.

Q. Would you care to answer this question, Mr. Donovan: Where you purchased the dress solely upon its merits 9149 and subsequently learned, within a reasonable time after delivery, that the dress was a copy, is it your policy today to return them because it is a copy?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness has no way of learning that, he has already said.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I believe the witness is perfectly qualified to state what his policy would be if they learned that it was a copy.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. You may answer. Do you want the question again?

The Witness: No, I don't need the question. Why, if we were told that a dress was a copy of another dress, I do not think we would have any warranty for returning it.

9150

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You don't think what? A. That we would have any warranty for returning it. I don't believe that we have been stamping orders the last two or three—or I don't believe that we would attempt to return it because we don't think the manufacturer would take it, and further I believe——

Q. Now——

Mr. Haycraft: Let him finish his answer. Let him complete his answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you finished with your answer? A. And further, I don't feel any longer under any obligations to return it.

Q. In so far as the agreement with the Guild is concerned? A. In so far as the agreement with the Guild is concerned, correct.

Q. Now, granted that perhaps you might have no legal justification for returning the garment because you didn't have the protection of the warranty stamp, would you, after learning that the dress was a copy, reorder? 9152

Mr. Cant: If the Examiner please, on behalf of the Dayton Company, I object to the question on the ground that the Examiner nor the respondent is interested in what the policy of the Dayton Company has been since it was red carded on February 17th, 1936. It is a matter of confidential information and has no relevancy, no bearing here.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor, off the record, the relevancy and the pertinency of the question, or does your Honor think it unnecessary?

Examiner Bennett: If you wish.

Mr. Cant: I ask that the witness be protected for that purpose, for that reason. 9153

Examiner Bennett: Does the representative of Dayton Company want to hear what this gentleman has to say?

(A discussion is had off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: I shall sustain the objection of the Dayton Company to further going into the policies subsequent to the red carding.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Donovan, when the Dayton Company started using the warranty stamp?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as not being proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. If you did use it. Did you use that stamp?

The Witness: We did.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

9155 Q. When did you start; do you recall? A. I believe it was in June or July of 1935.

Q. That is the first time that you used that stamp? A. Well, it is the first time that I remember it being invariably and universally used, and meetings held to see that it was used, and letters written by New York that it must be used.

Q. Had you used it at all prior to that? A. I am not clear whether we have or not. I have been asking myself that same question and not been able to decide. We had discussed the matter. It is my impression that we used it part of the time and did not generally use it.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 701 and ask you if this will refresh your recollection as to whether or not you used the warranty stamp prior to June or July of 9156 1935? A. You asked if this refreshes my memory as to whether we did or did not use the warranty stamp?

Q. Yes. A. No; I can't say that I can add any more than I have. I am not sure whether we used it. Of course, you didn't require it on all orders, as I remember it, and I believe possibly we used it on some orders, and did not on some others.

Q. Is there any exception in that Commission's Exhibit No. 701?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. The witness didn't write that exhibit.

Examiner Bennett: Well, this is cross-examination. Go ahead. You may answer.

The Witness: May I have the question again?

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I wish to point out further, your Honor, that this witness was not interrogated about the use of the stamp at all.

Examiner Bennett: About what?

Mr. Haycraft: No question was asked of him about the use of that stamp.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it seems to me there 9158
was. At any rate——

Mr. Albert: Certainly, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: At any rate, this part of it——

The Witness: What is the question that I am to answer?

(The question was read again.)

The Witness: Why, the only exception can be in the phrase "we would be glad to co-operate so long as this proves possible, and that we would not knowingly buy"——

Q. That is the only exception? A. There is no exception on the warranty stamp. It says: "This order is 9159 placed upon the seller's warranty that the above garments are not copies of styles originated by the members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated. The purchaser reserves the right"—and so on. It says that we will stamp our apparel with that stamp.

Q. As a matter of fact, do you know that Mr. Larson testified that that stamp was agreed to be placed upon all orders?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness was not present when Mr. Larson testified, and I don't recall that he did so testify.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to what Mr. Larson testified to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 706, which is your letter to Mr. Post, dated May 8th, 1935, and ask you what you mean by the following: "You know, of course, that we have two inexpensive dress departments on our second floor and several basement 9161 dress departments, all of which compete closely with the chain stores and mail order houses, which by the nature of their business have no need of the F.O.G.A. and no contracts with them"? Now, what do you mean by this sentence which follows: "It is possible that this fact really need not concern us, but at least it has been one reason for our hesitation"? What do you mean by "It is possible that this fact really need not concern us"? If you want to follow me there (indicating). Well, it seems to me that statement is pretty clear. The only way that I could explain it any further is that I believe that the Guild expected to get into their organization all of the stores selling dresses, or at least many of these chain shops, and it is possible that I referred to that; that in 9162 the course of time you would have that problem, if there was any, eliminated by taking in such shops as were competing with us and not with—not members of your organization.

Q. Do you mean, then, that if the Guild succeeded in signing up to the declaration of co-operation all or substantially all of the chain stores, that then there would be no problem at all as far as the Dayton Company was concerned with the competition of chain stores? A. No,

I don't—it wouldn't eliminate all problems immediately but it would answer a part.

Q. Substantially most of them; isn't that so? A. Not even most of them, but it would take care of one rather vital point, we think.

Q. It would take care of that chain store competition point; wouldn't it? A. Well, I don't think we would have much argument left as far as maintaining our competition position with regard to certain price lines of the business. I think it would help us answer that argument, yes.

Q. In so far as style piracy is concerned? A. Well, in so far as your objectives were concerned. 9164

Q. Do you or do you not know, Mr. Donovan, that as the lower-price lines were embraced within the Guild program more and more chain stores have signed the declaration of co-operation with the Guild? A. I know nothing at all about that. I haven't followed it at all; I have followed it still less since February 17th.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is Sears-Roebuck chain store competition of the——

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) —of the Dayton Store? A. Is Sears-Roebuck competition to ourselves? 9165

Q. Yes. A. Yes, they compete with us.

Q. Do you not know that they have signed the declaration of co-operation with the Guild? A. I do not know whether they have or not.

Q. Is J. C. Penny chain store competition with you? A. Well, it is, I think, in some of our departments.

Q. Do you not know that they have signed the declaration of co-operation? A. I do not know whether they have or not.

Q. Do you know that the Darling Shops is a chain store competition of the Dayton Company? A. The Darling Shops?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know those shops.

Q. Do you know that the Darling chain has signed the declaration of co-operation with the Guild? A. I don't know.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner. The witness said he didn't know. As a matter of fact, I don't believe it has.

Examiner Bennett: There is no testimony or proof on that point.

9167

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, coming back to Commission's Exhibit No. 706, the first sentence which I read to you is the following——

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, I read you the third sentence in the second paragraph of Commission's Exhibit 707, which reads as follows: "You know, of course, that we have two inexpensive dress departments on our second floor and several basement dress departments, all of which compete closely with the chain stores and mail order houses, which, by the nature of their business, have no 9168 need of the F.O.G.A. and no contracts with them." Now, am I correct in saying that that sentence reveals the fact that the Dayton Store in following programs and performing policies of the Guild were of the opinion that there might be some injury to them as a result of the fact that chain stores, who did not sign the declaration of co-operation, might compete with them; is that not a fair interpretation of that sentence? A. I think it is fair, Mr. Albert, with the exception that you should say at the end there that we felt there might be some injury due to our lower dress department, due to the fact that we could not carry the same kind of merchandise and compete with these chain stores. I think that is what you meant.

Q. I read you the following sentence and ask you, does not the following sentence refer specifically and precisely to the previous question which we have just discussed: "It is possible that this fact really need not concern us, but at least it has been one reason for our hesitation"? Now, what, in your opinion, at that time was there about that fact that need not have concerned you?

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has already answered that question, Mr. Examiner. It is objected 9170 to.

Mr. Albert: I think it is far from answered.

Mr. Haycraft: Same question propounded him, and he answered it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him repeat his answer.

The Witness: I referred to the fact that according to my understanding of the Guild's projected program over the six months that perhaps they were going to sign up all these chain stores and so on eliminated the difficulty that we anticipated due to their being allowed to carry copied styles and sell them in large quantities, while we were deprived of these styles. That is as close as 9171
I can get to it, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And you do not know to what extent the Guild has been successful in obtaining declarations of co-operation from chain stores?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant and already gone over.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(Recess.)

Examiner Bennett: Come to order, gentlemen.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I read you the following question of Mr. Haycraft on page 5112 of the record: "Q. Was any attempt made to re-order from the manufacturers you have named? A. Yes, there were one or two attempts made. Q. With what success? A. The re-orders were not filled." Did you mean by that that the re-orders were not accepted and that the 9173 manufacturers refused to accept orders? A. Yes, I think what happened, I remember one order came back, which was not accepted at all, and I believe the other case it was simply returned to us or was not—I think it was returned to us. The manufacturers were fair in the matter. They said they could not ship.

Q. I just wanted to make sure of what you meant by that. I think there was a confusion of terms there. A. Maybe.

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibit 707 for Identification?

Mr. Haycraft: It is not offered. Do you think you are entitled to it?

Mr. Albert: It is up to you, Mr. Haycraft.

9174 Mr. Haycraft: It is up to the Examiner.

Mr. Albert: Counsel for the respondent has asked counsel for the Commission to produce Commission's Exhibit 707, with which the witness refreshed his recollection. No request was made to look at the paper at that time, at the time the witness was interrogated. Now I am asking whether or not the Examiner believes that, under the rules followed by the Commission, it is now encumbent upon counsel for the Commission to turn this exhibit over to counsel for the respondent.

Examiner Bennett: I think any paper used by the witness on examination is subject to inspection.

Mr. Haycraft: I would have given it to him at that time.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I think also I should make the point, in fairness to the witness, that when I showed this telegram to the witness he said it did not refresh his recollection.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if it develops that he knows nothing about that telegram——. 9176

Mr. Haycraft: He knows about the telegram all right, but the telegram did not refresh his recollection as to the question I asked.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence, if it please the Court, Commission's Exhibit 707, which is a telegram signed by Mr. Donovan, addressed to Mr. Larson of the Dayton Company.

Mr. Haycraft: There is no objection.

Examiner Bennett: Let me see the telegram. Is that objected to? If there is no objection on the part of the Commission, we can let it go in as Commission's Exhibit 707.

(Thereupon the document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 707, 9177 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, did you have any conferences with Mr. Bergdahl or any representative of the A.M.C. stores on or about the time that telegram, Commission's Exhibit 707, was sent? A. Yes, I am very sure I had discussed various phases of the Guild proposals and of the Guild operations and all our rules with Mr. Bergdahl in an informal way. It was not a definite meeting to arrive at conclusions. We just talked about it.

Q. What did Mr. Bergdahl tell you with respect to the inclusion in the Guild program of the $10.75 dress houses? A. I do not remember any specific discussion of $10.75 dress houses.

Mr. Albert: My question is: "Is it, as a matter of fact, true that the request for the inclusion of the 10.75 dress line in the program was at the instigation of the A.M.C.?" This witness can answer the question.

9179 Examiner Bennett: I will ask him: Do you know anything about that situation?

The Witness: I do not know who started this talk about 10.75. I cannot state as to that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You do not know who instigated it? A. Certainly, as far as your question is concerned, 10.75 dresses, I don't know who broached the proposal first. I know you claim the A.M.C. did. I do not know that they did. I do not know the opposite, then.

Q. Do you wish to amend your testimony that the proposal was made by the Guild to conform to your statement just now that a proposal was discussed but you do not 9180 know who it was that suggested the inclusion?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. As to that point, the witness has not said anything now at all in contradiction to what he said before. He was testifying as to the Dayton Company and now the question refers to the A.M.C. stores outside of the Dayton Company, Bergdahl and somebody else.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to the form of the question.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As divisional merchandise manager of the Dayton store, is it fair to say that in order to keep up with the daily trends in the industry, what takes place therein, you make it a practice of reading "Women's Wear"? A. I read "Women's Wear" on every occasion on which I get an opportunity. I regret that I occasionally miss issues when I am on the train or when I am in New York and do not happen to get hold of a copy.

Q. But aside from those peculiar circumstances, you attempt to follow "Women's Wear"? A. Religiously. I make a practice of reading "Women's Wear" when I can.

Q. Was the first time that you heard of the inclusion 9182 of the 10.75 dress line in the Guild program on or about May, 1935? A. Well, it was in the spring of 1935. I cannot tell you about that.

Q. I show you Respondent's Exhibit 45 for Identification, being an advertisement of "Women's Wear Daily" of Wednesday, August 9, 1933, and ask you if you saw that advertisement?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The exhibit is not in evidence.

Mr. Albert: So, I suppose I cannot ask the witness any questions in an attempt to offer it in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation laid, nothing to 9183 show that this witness has anything to do with "Women's Wear," was a writer or an official of that organization.

Mr Albert: The question is a very simple one: Did you see that?

Examiner Bennett: I overrule the objection at this point. I want to see what is going to develop.

Mr. Haycraft: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Do you expect to connect it up with anything, Mr. Albert?

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor, it is very pertinent with the particular inquiry I am on now.

Mr. Haycraft: What inquiry are you on now I don't know.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: I do not remember having seen it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you remember Dress Creators League, constituting the 10.50 and 10.75 manufacturers, becoming part of the Guild on or about that time, August, 1933? A. No, I do not.

9185 Q. Did you have any knowledge of it at that time whatsoever? A. I can't remember now that I had any knowledge of it.

Q. That is, you may have had knowledge of it at the time and were cognizant of it then, but you have forgotten? A. It is possible.

Mr. Haycraft: Move that be stricken, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Beg pardon?

Mr. Haycraft: I move those questions and answers, to which I have objected, be stricken now.

Examiner Bennett: I will grant the motion. It seems as though it was surplusage.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

9186

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, you have testified as to the inability to obtain merchandise from certain Guild manufacturers. Among those Guild manufacturers that you have testified you were unable to obtain merchandise from, you include the International Dress, is that not so? A. Yes.

Q. Was the fact that the Dayton Company bought no merchandise or ordered no merchandise from the International Dress Company due solely to the fact that the International Dress Company refused to sell the Dayton Company as a result of the red carding? A. Will you read the question, please?

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, as calling for a knowledge from this witness which is beyond his possibility.

Mr. Albert: We will soon show whether it is beyond his possibility, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. You may answer.

The Witness: I do not see how I can answer. 9188
It depends on the line. Their line is usually good. I believe we had bought merchandise from them in many years. I do not know that we bought from them. There are many Guild houses, many good Guild houses, that we cannot buy from.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Donovan, is it not a fact that the Dayton Company ceased, stopped, or refused, whichever word you choose, to purchase goods from the International because of the fact that the International sold to many retailers in Minneapolis and that it was the contention or the belief of the Dayton Company that that affected the value of the International Company's dresses 9189 to the Dayton Company?

Mr. Haycraft: Too many questions there, Mr. Examiner. I object to two of them, anyway.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection and let him answer.

The Witness: I do not think the Dayton Company as an organization ever permanently refused or definitely refused to buy International dresses for any reason: I do know that the buyer there at that time, Mrs. Chase, had some time prior to December, 1935, had some rather lengthy discussions with—I can't remember the salesman's name who represents us—represents International in this territory, the man with the carnation, good looking boy—had discussed with him the matter of his selling so many accounts, and I believe once or twice she did not buy from him on one of his trips. Whether or not that was the sole reason I don't know. I know that she felt that he sold too many people and didn't confine his line.

9191

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Donovan, wasn't that question of selling too many retailers in Minneapolis of such importance to the Dayton Company that the Dayton Company made it the subject of complaint and inquiry to the Minneapolis Guild and also made it the subject of complaint and inquiry to the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: We have discussed the matter of selling to a large number of accounts in the city, at the Minneapolis Fashion Guild. I don't know whether we could be considered the prime movers in such discussion or not. We did discuss it and once or twice I have written letters, part of which letters were along some such line.

9192

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification, please?

(The paper referred to was marked Respondents' Exhibit 62 for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit No. 62 for Identification and ask you if that is your signature on that letter, on the letterhead of the Dayton Company? A. That is mine.

Q. Is that a letter that you sent to Mr. Golby? A. It is.

Mr. Albert: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: No objection. It just tends to support the Commission's complaint.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the latter remark of Mr. Haycraft be stricken? It is a sad commentary of the Commission if it is dependent on side remarks by Mr. Haycraft to support it or give it any added strength. 9194

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 63, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, did you on or about July of 1935 have any correspondence with Mr. Bergdahl with respect to your signing the declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial. 9195

Mr. Albert: Laying a foundation, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will see what is coming. Overruled.

The Witness: On or about July, 1935, have we had any correspondence with Mr. Bergdahl in reference to signing the agreement with the Guild?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes, sir. A. Well, we are in pretty close correspondence with Mr. Guild, or Mr.—pardon—Mr. Bergdahl, Mr. Albert. I can't say whether I did or not. I presume it might have been discussed.

Mr. Albert: Mark this for identification, please.

(The paper referred to was marked Respondents' Exhibit 63 for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

9197 Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit No. 63, and ask you if you recognize this as being a copy of a letter sent by you to Mr. Bergdahl? A. I recall a letter to that general effect, yes. I presume this is the letter. I think it is.

Q. Is that the letter that you sent to him on or about July 12th, 1935, over your signature on the letterhead of the Dayton Company? A. I believe that it is the letter.

Mr. Albert: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

Mr. Haycraft: It confirms the Commission's complaint.

Mr. Albert: You certainly must feel weak about it, Mr. Haycraft, if you have got to reiterate your own remarks with respect to it.

9198 Mr. Haycraft: I have all the more reason now for stating that.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 63, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Have you any objection, Mr. Haycraft, if we substitute a photostat for Respondents' Exhibit No. 63?

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Mr. Albert: And 62?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, you have given testimony with respect to the relationship of the Dayton Company with manufacturers as reflected in "Good Housekeeping," "Vogue," "Harper's" and similar magazines, and you have, I believe, referred to that relationship as co-operating in the advertising. What do you mean by that?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. The witness did not use that language. That was mine. 9200

Mr. Albert: He didn't correct you, did he, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: That doesn't make any difference.

Mr. Albert: Well, it certainly is more objectionable if that language was used by Mr. Haycraft and the witness fell into error as a result of Mr. Haycraft's questions. I am attempting to clear it up, in justice to the witness.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness didn't say that.

The Witness: What did I mean by——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let me try to shorten this, Mr. Donovan. Did you 9201 mean anything more in that than that the Dayton Company was invited to permit its name to be used in the advertisement as a retail store selling the merchandise named in the advertisement? A. Well, we have—we had a voice in the selection of the garments to be used.

Q. Well, of course, but you paid nothing for the advertisement, did you? A. I do not believe that we did. That would have to be settled definitely by the advertising department.

Q. Don't you know? A. No. It has been my impression that we paid nothing for it, but I might be wrong.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, you have testified that the redecarding of the Dayton store and the inability to obtain better merchandise lowered the morale of the sales persons in the store; is that correct? Am I right in that? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any attempt whatsoever to improve the morale of your sales force?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think it is irrelevant and immaterial. I will sustain the objection.

9203 Mr. Albert: Exception. If it please the Court, I offer to prove that if the witness had been permitted to answer the question, he would have testified that no effort was made to improve the morale of the sales force. Upon the receipt of which answer, I believe that I would have been able to elicit from the witness that a lack of morale in a sales force is reflected in a decreased volume of sales.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask the witness whether that is true or not, what he said.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, unless I am permitted to ask the witness the questions.

Mr. Haycraft: I can't allow counsel to put such 9204 a statement in the record which is contrary to what I am satisfied the witness will say.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. It is subject to a motion to strike.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike it.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

9205

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How often do you go into the markets, Mr. Donovan? A. I have testified that they go depending upon the department and the necessity, and a number of factors, anywhere from two times a season to possibly eight, maybe ten times in certain departments, depending upon the departments that you have in mind.

Q. Now, does the itemization of the number of trips made by buyers, as reflected in Commission's Exhibit No. 714, constitute the entire number of trips to the various markets made by the buyers? A. No, it does not.

Q. What does it reflect? A. I can tell you how this was—would that cover your question if I tell how this was?

9206

Q. I would rather you answered this question: Did the buyers make any trips to the markets in addition to those trips? A. Yes, they did.

Q. How many more? A. I don't know. I didn't count them.

Q. You didn't count the total number of trips that they made to the market? A. No; I have had no occasion to count them, so I haven't.

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until 2 o'clock for luncheon.

(Whereupon, at 12:30 o'clock P. M., the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day, Thursday, September 3, 1936.)

9207

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 o'clock P. M.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 703-A, and ask you if the Dayton Company still feels that the following proposal is still urged by them: "Fashion Originators Guild Incorporated, members will not sell their product to any one in the city of Minneapolis not a member in good standing of the Minneapolis Fashion Retailers Guild"?

Mr. Cant: If the Court please, the Dayton Company objects to that on the ground that it is a mat-

9209 ter of no concern what the policy or the feeling of the Dayton Company is since it was boycotted in February. It is entirely outside of the issues and is irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: May I call to the attention of the Court that not only this witness but Mr. Larson has already testified on direct with respect to the matter that is now the subject of the questioning.

Mr. Haycraft: I beg your pardon, Mr. Examiner, I do not concur in that statement.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I will sustain the objection to the question. I think it is immaterial and irrelevant.

By Mr. Albert.

9210 Q. Does that proposal, joined in by the Dayton Company, reflect the Dayton Company's feeling about the matter to-day?

Mr. Cant: Same objection.

Mr. Haycraft: Objection.

Mr. Albert: May I point out the direct testimony of the witness with respect thereto?

Question by Mr. Haycraft: "Does this agreement, 703-A and B, represent Dayton's position with respect to the Fashion Originators Guild program at that time? Answer: That document did represent the feelings of the Dayton Company at that time." Question by Mr. Albert interposed at this point: "Has there been any change in the position of the Dayton Company since that document has been prepared? Answer: I do not think there has been any subsequent change in their feelings."

Mr. Haycraft: It was not even my question.

Mr. Albert: It still is testimony on direct, and you did not move to have it stricken. 9212

Mr. Haycraft: How could that be testimony on direct if you asked the question?

Mr. Albert: It is in the record.

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly. It is just confirming what I said.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am not changing my ruling.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Haycraft: What page is that?

Mr. Albert: 5081.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does the Dayton Company still feel any doubt as to the practicability or advisability of allowing the retailers 9213 of the so-called Style Piracy Committee in New York to judge whether or not the dresses were copies?

Mr. Haycraft: Objection.

Mr. Cant: Same objection, if the Court please.

Examiner Bennett: I do not see that the answer of the witness, whatever it may be, would change the situation.

Mr. Albert: I believe it goes, if your Honor please, to the question of fairness and reasonableness of the plan.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: I believe it goes to the question of the fairness and reasonableness of the plan.

Mr. Haycraft: It is irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think the plan is sufficiently plain from the evidence. Let the tribunal judge as to that.

Mr. Albert: Does your Honor then sustain the objection on the ground that it has been adequately brought out previously?

9215 Examiner Bennett: I think it is irrelevant. I do not see its relevancy. I do not see how it could change the situation nor is it a test of this witness' accuracy or truthfulness or knowledge.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you done anything or has the Dayton store done anything at all, Mr. Donovan, with respect to building up resources? A. Well, we have attempted to find resources—you mean building up resources available, I presume?

9216 Q. Yes. A. Well, we have attempted to tell the things we like to have made in certain cases, and give them ideas which would help them to make garments to fill gaps in our stock. We have done that right along.

Q. Have you in any way made use of the dresses that have been imported by the A.M.C. for that purpose? A. The Dayton Company has made no direct use of those imports, but through our A.M.C. office the imports have been shown to such manufacturers as might be interested, and

I presume that our buyers in the market have patronized these manufacturers to some extent and have obtained a little or some use of these garments, imports.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Had the manufacturers to whom these imports were made available been able to adequately for your purposes adapt these styles in the creation of designs of dresses suitable for your purposes? A. Well, they have certainly been unable to adapt them to give us all the requirements that were made necessary by the absence of Guild houses, but I think they may have made a start along those lines and have made some use and have been some help to us 9218 along those lines.

Q. Have they been able to interpret these imports as to create designs sufficient to meet the needs of the Dayton store?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the phrase "create designs," Mr. Examiner, as having no basis in fact in this record that there is such a thing.

Examiner Bennett: Just read the question.

Mr. Haycraft: I have no objection to the word "adaptation."

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to revise it? Are you willing to accept that?

Mr. Albert: I think the witness is perfectly ca- 9219 pable of answering the question as it is, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, read the question.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation laid for that question, Mr. Examiner. I object to it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain an objection to it. If you want to find out whether they have been able to supply goods to the Dayton store suitable to its needs, that is all right.

9220

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In your attempt, Mr. Donovan, to obtain or build u resources, has Dayton Company in any way attempted t subsidize any manufacturers?

Mr. Cant: Now, just a moment. That is objecte to, if your Honor please, on the ground it is irrel vant and immaterial and not proper cross-examin tion, and is a matter which should not be disclo by this witness on behalf of this company when h has no authority to do so.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain an o

9221 jection to that.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Are you aware of the fact, Mr. Donovan, that variou members of the A.M.C. have contributed to a fund to b used in subsidizing manufacturers for the purpose of e abling these manufacturers to supply the members of th A.M.C. with the dresses which they need?

Mr. Cant: Same objection, if your Honor plea

Mr. Haycraft: Irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objecti to that. It is along the same line and I am n going to hear anything indirectly that we wou not entertain directly.

9222

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, you have testified to the hones and probity of the Dayton's relationship with its custo ers; what do you——

Mr. Haycraft: Object to that question, the fo to start with.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) What do you tell your customers when they come and ask for a Mulligan dress, an Ashley dress, a Quality street dress, and you haven't got it?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to it as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Cant: Same objection on the part of the Dayton Company, and the further objection that the witness should not be compelled to testify at this time what happened since the boycott in February.

Mr. Albert: I believe, if it please the Court, that 9224
this goes to the credibility of the witness and the sincerity and the frankness of the testimony of the store in respect to the matter.

Mr. Cant: If your Honor please, we are not trying Dayton's policy here. We are trying merely the issues presented by the complaint.

Mr. Albert: We are trying the frankness of the testimony that has been given, and anything that will tend to show that testimony has not been frank is relevant.

Examiner Bennett: There is only one question as far as the Examiner is concerned, and that is, as he sees it, the question of the adequacy or inadequacy of the supply after the concern was red 9225 carded and boycotted by certain manufacturers. Now, I am willing to entertain the questions that bear more or less directly upon that matter. Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I do not think we are going into the ethics of Dayton Company.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, you have testified, I believe, that as a result of the red carding you have lost customers who have patronized your competitors in an endeavor to get the merchandise which you have been unable to get, is that correct, substantially? A. Substantially, yes.

Q. Do your customers, when they are unable to obtain the merchandise of you, in any way indicate their opinion or feeling that they will continue to patronize your competitors so long as you refuse to protect the styles of the manufacturers who are members of the Guild?

9227 Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: That goes directly to the public interest.

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation whatever.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to let him answer, if he has an answer to that.

The Witness: I have an answer.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: I have never heard a customer make a statement like that and I have not heard of, through the buyers and my sales people, of any people making such statements. Would you mind reading the question, so I am sure I get it correct?

9228 Examiner Bennett: You may read the question.

(Question read.)

The Witness: My answer is correct.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do your customers, in any way, make known the fact that they prefer to buy their dresses from those concerns as a result of whose policy they will not see copies of the dresses that they have bought after they have purchased them? A. I have no recollection of a customer taking that attitude with us.

Q. Have you, in any way, attempted to investigate the proposition in order to determine your customers' reaction to the store policy? A. I have made no special study of it. If that is what you mean. I am in contact with our department managers and sales people and to some extent with our customers, but there have been no evidences of the feelings you described, that have become known to me.

Q. And have you, in any way, had any conference through your buyers or your sales people to determine their reaction to the policy of the Dayton store with respect to the Guild program?

Mr. Haycraft: Whose reaction?

Mr. Albert: Will you read the question to Mr. Haycraft?

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. It is too indefinite, irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that. I do not get it.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have testified, Mr. Donovan, that prior to February of 1936, the styles of various manufacturers have been confined to the Dayton Company, is that so?

9231

Mr. Haycraft: Styles?

Mr. Albert: The dresses.

The Witness: Of some manufacturers, and it is also true that certain styles are common to most businesses.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. By that you mean that in the Minneapolis territory you have the exclusive right to the sale of those manufacturers' dresses? A. I mean that in the City of Minneapolis the sales of those dresses were usually confined to us.

Q. And, as a result of that contract, no other retailer in the City of Minneapolis had a right to sell those dresses, is that so? A. Well, usually we have no definite contract. We had an agreement and the manufacturer permitted us to use the name exclusively in connection with these dresses and, if somebody else had them, it was without our knowledge or permission, and it might have been under 9233 another name.

Q. You mean by that you had no written contract of confinement? A. I cannot recall a written contract in any case. It was an agreement.

Q. Was the reason why there was no written contract with respect to the confinement, the doubts of the Dayton Company as to the legality of such a contract?

Mr. Cant: I object on the ground it is absolutely irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did your order blanks, on which you placed such 9234 orders, have anything on them with respect to confinement of the style?

Mr. Cant: Same objection, if the Court please.

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In your opinion, does not this confinement of style restrain and restrict the competition in the City of Minneapolis?

Mr. Haycraft: Oh, object to that.

Mr. Cant: Just a moment. Objected to as absolutely incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: The same.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: I think the witness is not competent to testify on that subject as far as the developments have gone.

Mr. Albert: I offer to prove, if the Court please, that if the witness were permitted to answer, he would answer that the policy of the confinement of sales restricts and restrains the competition in the area in which the confinement is applicable. 9236

Mr. Cant: Objected to for the reasons given, if your Honor please.

Mr. Haycraft: I move it be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken, as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, what is the total dollar value of sales in Department 371, in your price line 12.95 to 1395, for March of 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Cant: Same objection and further objection, 9237
it calls for confidential information which this witness should not be required to divulge.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: The Examiner has not tried to compel the production of those figures, and he is going to continue that policy. He has some doubt as to the validity of those statements, without going into the matter of supporting evidence, but it is going to be left to—that is a matter left with the attorneys to support or argue out.

Mr. Albert: In order to save time, may I ask whether or not the same objection will be sustained with respect to questions seeking to elicit the total dollar volume in the months and for the price lines as indicated in Commission's Exhibit 713?

Mr. Haycraft: I will say that will be objected to, Mr. Examiner. I wish to explain in connection with that——

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon.

9239 Mr. Haycraft: I wish to explain in connection with that, in light of the remarks you made a moment ago, the exhibit does not refer to dollars and cents.

Examiner Bennett: No, I know it does not, but dollars and cents is the basis.

Mr. Haycraft: Dollars and cents is not the basis of the document he is examining this witness on, that has a basis of units.

Examiner Bennett: That has a basis of units, has it?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I think I was mistaken in my comment then. I will sustain that objection.

9240 Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Where you are dealing with units. My impression was you were dealing with dollar percentages.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is the relationship between your dollar volume in percentage for the month of March, 1935, in your 12.95 to 13.95 price line, as compared with your total dollar volume in your ready-to-wear dress departments in the departments covered?

Mr. Haycraft: The objection will be the same. In addition, the question, as now worded, assumes there is such a relationship.

Mr. Cant: Same objection on the part of the Dayton Company.

Examiner Bennett: Let me see the document, so that I can have the situation in mind.

(Document was handed to the Examiner.)

Examiner Bennett: These are all units, are they? 9242

The Witness: Yes, those are the number of garments sold at those prices.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: That was not gone into in connection with that document at all.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What percentage of your total dollar volume is the dollar volume of the total figure for the four months March, April, May and June, 1935, to the total dollar volume of your ready-to-wear department for the same period in 1935? 9243

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Cant: Same objection, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception. I offer to prove that if the witness had been permitted to answer, his answer would have revealed, with respect to the price lines and departments affected, regardless of the percentage of Guild merchandise on hand in the department, the total dollar volume with respect to that department is an insignificant portion of the total dollar volume of ready-to-wear dress departments.

Mr. Haycraft: I move it be stricken.

Mr. Canf: Same objections to the offer, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: Exception. No further questions.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Is that all of this witness?

9245 Mr. Haycraft: No, I have some redirect.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Donovan, when you were asked on cross-examination as to the elements of salability, did you intentionally leave out the style? A. I thought that in my description of what I considered to be salability of a garment I had fully covered style by getting back to what seems to me in the long run to be the component parts that make style. I had no intention deliberately of omitting the word "style." I believe I offered to reinsert it if they wished.

Q. What is your definition of style? A. Well, I regard style in a garment as being the selection of certain component parts such as neck lines, waist lines, trimming de-9246 tails, details in the material, other things which go into a garment in such manner as to produce an article that is pleasing, if possible, to the customer, what the customer thinks is good looking and wearable.

Q. In your opinion, is the same style satisfactory to all women that come into your store? A. No, it is not.

Q. Why not?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, no foundation has been laid. I don't think this witness has demonstrated his knowledge of that.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection to that.

Mr. Haycraft: You thought he was pretty good. You asked him a lot of questions on it.

The Witness: Well, I shall answer?

Examiner Bennett: You may answer, yes.

The Witness: I believe that different women have different ideas as to what they consider a good looking garment. 9248

Mr. Albert: Including wearing a shroud to a wedding?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. I move that it be stricken, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will strike it because I don't think his interjection was proper.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you continue your answer, Mr. Donovan? A. I believe that answer is complete enough.

Q. Can you give an illustration of that from your experience? A. Well, I can give you a rather recent one. A woman told me this morning just before I started down here to the court room that she was leaving our millinery department and that she didn't care what the style was, that she simply would not and could not wear one of those high crowned hats that the millinery department was trying to sell her. 9249

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. I ask that the witness' answer be stricken as entirely immaterial. The vagaries of women with respect to their hats I think exceeds their vagaries with respect to clothes.

Examiner Bennett: Read the answer.

(The answer was read.)

Mr. Albert: I still say that we see women wearing hats that they don't really like but they are in style.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I should like to have you confine your testimony, Mr. Donovan, to the divisions of the store under your supervision. Now, will you read the question?

9251

(The record was read.)

The Witness: Well, I can only say that it is a matter of daily occurrence to have two women come in and say, "I like that style," and the friend with her say, "I don't like that style."

Mr. Feldman: And they like some other style?

The Witness: What?

Mr. Feldman: And they like some other style.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You were cross-examined, Mr. Donovan, with respect to a letter that you wrote to Mr. Post, May 8th, 1935, Commission's Exhibit No. 706. I will ask you to testify at this time as to what your understanding was as to the Guild program on or about May 8th, 1935, referred to in your testimony. A. Well, the information concerning the projected program of the Guild came to me through certain letters from the Guild, through contact with other people who were in closer touch with the Guild's program, and through some conferences with Mr. H. O. Bergdahl of our New York office who at that time was, I believe, in almost daily contact with Mr. Albert Post. Through those contacts I arrived at the idea that the Guild in attempting to enforce the returns of all merchandise including the lower-price ranges which were alleged copies was going to be fairly lenient with the stores involved until such time as lower-priced manufacturers, who were acknowledged copyists at the time, would be able to produce garments of their own design, and also until such time as certain chain stores and other stores who were not at that time Guild signatories had been induced to sign up with the Guild. I shortly—or I recently wrote Mr. Bergdahl of the A.M.C. to ask if that confirmed our understanding, and the matters that we were talking of along that line at the time, and I would like to refer to that letter, if I may. 9254

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Is that about that date?

The Witness: To see if my recollection is correct.

Examiner Bennett: Is that about that date?

The Witness: No, this letter is of recent date, your Honor, but it refers to those times, that time.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as improper redirect. I ask that the answer of the witness and his testimony in response to the question be stricken as adding nothing new to the testimony heretofore elicited from the witness.

Examiner Bennett: Does that letter to which you are referring reflect your ideas at the time you were asked about it, that is, back in 1935, or does it reflect your present attitude? 9255

The Witness: It reflects——

Examiner Bennett: That is what you asked about, the ideas relating back to 1935; in the early part of 1935.

The Witness: Well, this letter does refer, your Honor, to——

Examiner Bennett: And it is on that that you are refreshing your recollection; is it?

The Witness: Yes, sir, directly.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you refreshed your recollection; have you anything to add to what you have said? I mean to what you have testified to? A. Why, the letter adds nothing substantial to that testimony, Mr. Haycraft, except that our stores, or, at least, Mr. Bergdahl feels that the policies or those two exceptions that we took for granted and we 9257 understood to have received, were not granted.

Q. What exceptions do you mean? A. I quote, if I may, the words here;

"The F.O.G.A. has always attempted to enforce returns at all price lines with the exception of the fact that the writer along with several managers of New York Resident Buying Offices, had an understanding with the Guild that the F.O.G.A. would not enforce returns in our stores, because of our basement and budget shop departments. The Guild rescinded this understanding when they took in the $10.75 manufacturers in July of 1935, but agreed to a definite policy of leniency at that time, which was to extend until the inexpensive manufacturers would have organized themselves sufficiently on the new basis of creating their own styles. This took for granted that it 9258 would require some considerable time for the inexpensive manufacturers to find designers, since it was agreed that there was not a sufficient number of good designers available to enforce such an all inclusive policy without considerable damage to the manufacturers as well as to the retailers who purchased low priced merchandise.

"Also, until such times as the large retail dress distributors, chain stores, and so on, of inexpensive dresses would have signed pledges agreeing to co-operate with the Guild."

Those were the two provisions, and that was in accordance with my recollection.

(The paper writing referred to was handed to the Examiner.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Donovan, you were questioned with respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 714 on cross-examination. I will ask you if you will explain for the Examiner what factors you took into consideration in preparing this exhibit with respect to the expenses of the individuals named therein? 9260

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing) On the dates indicated?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as improper redirect. The witness was asked exactly one or two questions with respect to that exhibit. It was originally put in evidence without any explanation whatsoever, and there is nothing in the cross-examination that warrants any further direct examination by Mr. Haycraft with respect to a sheet of paper containing figures that he put into evidence without explaining it at all. 9261

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

9082 Dayne Donovan—For Commission—Redirect—Recross.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You were asked, Mr. Donovan, on cross-examination as to whether or not the individuals named here had made other trips to Chicago than those—other trips to the places indicated in the exhibit than set forth in the exhibit. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. And if I recall your testimony correctly you said that they had? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. I will ask you whether or not you have included in this exhibit any transportation expenses other than to Los Angeles?

9083 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. The exhibit speaks for itself.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, then, why do you ask the questions on cross-examination? It spoke for itself just as well then as it does now.

Examiner Bennett: Read that question.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: I think that appears on the face of the document. I will sustain the objection to it.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all on redirect examination.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

9084 Q. Mr. Donovan, in response to Mr. Haycraft's questions with respect to your understanding of the Guild program, on or about May of 1935, or the summer of 1935, you refreshed your recollection from a letter and read certain portions thereof into the record. May I see that letter?

Examiner Bennett: Yes; he has a right to see it.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark that for identification, please?

9265

(The paper referred to was marked Respondents' Exhibits 64-A and B for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I notice in this letter, Mr. Donovan, that you refer to a letter that you sent to Mr. Bergdahl of August 22nd. Have you that letter? A. No, I haven't.

Q. Is it available? A. Why, I might be able to get a carbon of it. I didn't expect that it would come into question so I didn't provide myself with a carbon copy. I might even insert the original.

Q. Have you any objections to providing us with a carbon copy of it? A. Not at all, if I can secure one.

9266

Q. Will you communicate to us as to whether or not there is one in existence? A. I will have to look, and I will look.

Q. And if there is one in existence will you furnish me with a copy of it? A. I will guarantee that.

Mr. Albert: I offer into evidence Respondents' Exhibits 64-A and B for Identification, being a letter dated August 28th, 1936, from Mr. Bergdahl to Mr. Donovan.

Examiner Bennett: It seems to be settled that if you put part of a document into the record the rest of it should go in.

Mr. Haycraft: Then I withdraw my objection.

Examiner Bennett: All right; proceed.

9267

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Donovan, don't you know, as a matter of fact, that if the Dayton Store agrees to protect the styles of members of the Fashion Originators Guild and abide by the policy of the Fashion Originators Guild, that the members of the Fashion Originators Guild will be happy to sell the Dayton Store?

Mr. Cant: Just a moment.

Mr. Haycraft: In other words, if you will agree to the boycott, it is O.K., is that it? Is that the purport of that question, Mr. Examiner?

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Haycraft: I will object to the question.

Mr. Albert: How many objections do you want, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Cant: It is sustained.

Mr. Haycraft: One.

By Mr. Albert.

9269 Q. Are you aware of the fact, Mr. Donovan, that the voluntary act of the Dayton Store in refusing to protect the styles of members of the Fashion Originators Guild resulted in the refusal of the members of the Guild to sell their merchandise to the Dayton Store?

Mr. Cant: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper examination at this time.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception. I offer to prove, that if the witness had been permitted to answer the question, he would have answered that if the Dayton Store agree to protect the styles of the Fashion Originators Guild, the members of the Fashion Originators Guild will sell the Dayton Store merchandise.

9270

VIRGINIA COLLINS MCDONALD was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your name, please? A. Virginia Collins McDonald.

Q. Where do you live? A. 906 West 42nd Street, Minneapolis.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I am a shopper for the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. In what city, Mrs. McDonald? A. Minneapolis. 9272

Q. How long have you had that position? A. Since a year ago last March 1st.

Q. Who employed you? A. Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Incorporated? A. Incorporated.

Q. Of America? A. Of America, Incorporated.

Q. And have they continued to employ you since that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are your duties?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please. I think it has been thoroughly gone into. It has been explained by everybody as to what the duties of a shopper are and I believe that Mr. Donovan has volunteered some testimony with respect to it, and, at this stage of the game, I believe that in order to save the record and to save time this cumulative evidence should not be permitted: 9273

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. She may answer.

The Witness: Shall I answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, what are your duties?

The Witness: I shop for copies of original designs.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where? A. Minneapolis, in the stores.

Q. What stores? A. The stores that belong to the Guild.

Q. You mean retail stores? A. Retail stores.

Q. Can you give a list of them at the present time?

Mr. Albert: May I ask Mr. Haycraft to remove his hand from his mouth? I cannot hear him.

The Witness: Well, there is Powers Mercantile——

Mr. Albert: I ask the question be read. I have not heard it.

9275

Examiner Bennett: It may be read.

(Previous question read.)

The Witness: Powers Mercantile, Maurice Rothschild, J. C. Penney, L. S. Donaldson, John W. Thomas, Bjorkman, Harolds, Jackson Graves, Raleighs, Sallys, two Marna Lee shops.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How do you spell that? A. Capital M-a-r-n-a. There are numerous small shops.

Q. What is that? A. There are quite a few of the smaller shops, Buttrey Stores, Incorporated, Featherstone, Jennie Lee, Strem Fashion Studio.

Q. How do you spell that? A. Capital S-t-r e m Fashion Studio, Marion Stricker. Did I say J. C.—yes, I said Penney; I believe that is a good part of the list, anyway.

Q. Young Quinlan? A. Young Quinian, yes.

Q. Benton? A. Benton, yes.

Q. How about Calla Dubois? A. Yes.

Q. Donaldsons? A. Yes, I have that.

Q. Daytons? A. No.

Q. You did shop Daytons? A. Yes, I did.

Q. When did you stop shopping Daytons? A. About February 16th or 17th last.

Q. Gerners? A. Gerners, yes, Fields.

Q. Field? A. F-i-e-l-d.

Q. Mary Jones? A. Yes, Mary Jones.

Q. Lind Gowns? A. Not any more, they are out of business.

Q. Did you intend to indicate there were two stores in Buttrey Stores and Featherstone? A. Well, Buttrey Stores is the same, main office. They have a chain of stores throughout Montana, Wyoming and Minnesota. The Featherstone store which opened up about three months ago is of that group. 9278

Q. Is there more than one store in Minneapolis? A. No, not more than one, no retail store.

Q. How long have you been shopping Sallys? A. Sallys?

Q. Yes. A. Well, I believe I got word of their joining about six months after March 1st when I started working.

Q. It was some time last fall? A. I believe so.

Q. How about Marna Lee; how long have you been shopping that store? A. Since the beginning.

Q. How long have you been shopping J. C. Penney? A. Well, I got word about nine months ago that they had joined. However, the store was not completed until just about three months ago, it was opened here.

Q. So you have just been shopping it about three months? A. Yes. 9279

Q. How about C. L. Johnson? A. On Central Avenue? Yes, they belong.

Q. I say, how long have you been shopping Johnson? A. I think just a short time, around six months.

Q. Do you shop Sears Roebuck? A. No, they belong, but I do not shop them.

Q. You do not shop them? A. No.

Q. Why do you not shop them?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please, as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled, you may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: What was the question?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Why do you not shop Sears Roebuck? A. Well, as I understand it, Sears Roebuck have signed a declaration of co-operation but that it is not necessary for me to shop them because they do not carry the same type of merchandise that the other retail stores do here.

9281 Q. Was that your instruction? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who gave it to you? A. Well, I was just told that.

Q. By whom? A. By Mr. Post.

Q. When? A. I don't remember

Q. Recently? A. No, it is not recently. It was when I first started this work.

Q. First started? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any other store that came in that same category? A. No, sir.

Q. How often do you shop the various stores? A. Well, I try to shop the big stores, by that I mean L. S. Donaldson and Powers, practically every day. The other ones I pick up as I go along, or as I think is necessary.

Q. What is your method of procedure? A. I go through 9282 the stocks.

Q. And what price lines? A. Well, I look at them through almost every price line.

Q. Do you go through the basements, too? A. Not now, no. I did.

Q. When did you stop going through the basements? A. The beginning of this summer, last spring.

Q. May? A. About, I should say.

Q. What was the reason for not going through the basements, then?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: No knowledge shown or foundation laid on the part of this witness that she knows the reason.

Mr. Haycraft: She knows why she did not; that is what I want.

The Witness: Well, I know why I didn't was that I was asked not to for a while.

Q. Who told you not to for a while? A. I got it from the New York office. 9284

Q. From Mr. Post? A. Mr. Goldstein.

Q. Do you have that letter in your files? A. Yes.

Q. Do you think you could find it? A. Yes.

Q. I would like to have it. A. All right.

Q. When you go through the stocks looking for copies, what do you have in mind? How do you know a copy when you see it? A. Well, the procedure is, I am sent sketches from New York with the original dress, with the style number and the name of the manufacturer of the original, also the manufacturer, if possible, of the copies and their style number, and usually I go and look at the original dress, if I find it, and then I go through the stock. Of course, I know the copies by style numbers and also by how they look.

Q. You look then for copies of garments described to you in this information that you get from New York? A. Yes. 9285

Q. Do you ever try to ascertain the name of the manufacturer when they do not know in New York what the name of the manufacturer is, can you find out for them sometimes? A. Well, there are two ways. I mean, sometimes they know definitely who the manufacturer is of the copy. If they do, it is put on my slip. If they have—I do not know how this is worked back there, but anyway, I get a little notation which says "Alleged copyist," we will say, "Claudette Frocks. If you find this copy by Claudette, hold a Piracy Committee meeting here, and forward their decision."

Q. Then you would have a meeting here of the local Guild? A. Yes, sir, they would.

Q. Suppose you find that there is a copy in a Guild store, what do you do then when you find a copy? A. I ask to have them returned to the copyist.

Q. Do you give the buyer any paper or anything of that kind? A. Naturally, yes.

9287 Q. Description of it? A. Yes.

Q. What is the usual procedure after you do that? A. Well, the slip is made out signifying how many copies are going to be returned, that is, three or four of one style number of such and such a manufacturer; I sign it and the buyer or the head merchandise man; also I send that slip to New York attached on to a report which I make out every day.

Q. Do you go back to see whether or not the garment has been returned? A. Yes, I do.

Q. You check up on that? A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. You say you make daily reports to New York. Do you make weekly or monthly reports? A. No.

Q. A number of copies? A. No.

Q. You don't make any tabulation of the number? A.

9288 No, I don't.

Q. You just fill out your daily report? A. That is right.

Q. So you wouldn't have any idea as to the number of copies found? A. No.

Q. Over a period of time? A. No.

Q. You followed this same method as you have described now all of the time since you have been employed, or was there a time that you had a different method? A. Well, there have been changes, naturally.

Q. How long have you been using this slip that you talk about which you furnished the buyer? A. Since last fall.

Q. Let's see. That would be November, October? A. I think around October.

Q. Prior to that what did you do? A. I just made out my report sheet and indicated there how many copies I had found.

Q. You didn't get any receipt or— A. No, I didn't.

Q. Or get anything from the buyer himself? A. No.

Q. When you go into a store, do you always go to the buyers and tell them that you are in there looking for something? A. They almost always see me.

Q. They know you? A. They know me, knew me from 9290 the beginning.

Q. And they know what you are after? A. Yes.

Q. That is, they know that you are looking for copies? A. Yes, absolutely.

Q. Do you make it a rule to advise the buyer as soon as you go in the store what copies you are looking for? A. No. No; I just look through the dresses. If I find anything then I talk to her, otherwise I don't bother her.

Q. Otherwise you don't? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit number.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 734 for Identification.)

9291

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 734 for Identification, I show you an article beginning on page 6 and continuing through page 11 entitled "Fashions for fashionables" by Virginia McDonald, and ask you if you are the author of that article? A. Yes, I am.

Q. How did you come to write that article, Miss McDonald?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: What do you expect to show, Mr. Haycraft? I would like to have you indicate what it has to do with the matter in hand?

(The exhibit referred to was handed to the Examiner.)

Mr. Haycraft: Perhaps I can ask her a couple of questions, your Honor. I thought that question would probably do it.

Mr. Albert: I will withdraw the objection, your Honor.

9293 Mr. Haycraft: I would like the indulgence of the Examiner for that question and a couple of more as foundation questions.

Mr. Albert: I will withdraw the objection.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. I was a contributor toward that article—I mean, toward the magazine.

Q. How long have you had that position, have you been doing that contributing to this magazine? A. Since last January.

Q. January of this year? A. Yes, of this year.

Q. Up to the present time? A. Yes.

Q. What was the arrangement that you had with re-

9294 spect to—what is the purpose of the articles that you write? A. Well, it is a fashion article giving fashion hints.

Q. Did you consult the Fashion Originators Guild, Incorporated, before you made this arrangement to publish this article? A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. Did they know anything about it? A. They didn't know a thing.

Q. You mentioned the Guild in it; did you not? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you mention the names of prominent members of the Guild in that article? A. Not directly, no.

Q. How about Hattie Carnegie? Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. It names some of the Guild manufacturers? A. Yes. I never happened to think of that, though.

Q. Did you mention the names of some of the retailers at Minneapolis that were Guild members, where Guild merchandise may be bought? A. Yes. Not in a direct way.

Q. Refresh your recollection (indicating)? A. Yes, I know. I see what you mean. I didn't understand.

Q. Then you have mentioned, for instance, Hattie 9296
Carnegie's dresses can be bought at Young and Quinlands and Harold's, Incorporated? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the article in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: All right, it is received. I wish you would excerpt the article.

Mr. Haycraft: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: I wish you would excerpt the article and relieve the record of some of it.

Mr. Haycraft: You mean to cut it out as a separate exhibit? I will be glad to have the reporter do that, just cut the article out and give the exhibit the number.

Examiner Bennett: I wish you would do that 9297 with that other trade magazine.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, that is all I have of this witness at the present time, but I should like to make the request of Mr. Albert, I don't want to turn the witness over to you just yet. I should like to request the witness to produce the correspondence that she had with Mr. Goldston with respect to Sears Roebuck—no, with respect to not shopping basements, some time in the spring of 1935, and also a sample report that she makes to the Guild and any written instructions that she may have at the present time; and also a sample report that she leaves with the buyer.

Mr. Albert: I believe, if it please the Court, the sample reports are already in evidence and that written instruction are in evidence. If Mr. Haycraft wants them again we will only be too glad to furnish them. As regards the letter that Miss McDonald has referred to, I have no doubt that we will look for it. If she still has it you can have it.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. You got paid for this article; didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You were on the staff of— A. I am not on the staff.

Q. Golfer and Sportsman? A. I am just a contributor.

Q. But you have been called upon to write articles at various times that were accepted and were paid for? A. Yes.

Q. As a result of this article appearing in Golfer and Sportsman what happened, if you know, with respect to your relationship with that magazine? A. Well, I was asked not to write any more fashion articles.

Q. Do you know whether that was at the instigation of anybody?

HELEN COFIELD was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examiner Bennett: What is the name?

The Witness: Helen Cofield.

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where do you live, Miss Cofield? A. 4924 South Emerson.

Q. What city? A. Minneapolis.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Department manager for the Dayton Company. 9302

Q. What department do you manage? A. The Sub-Deb Department.

Q. The Sub-Deb Department? A. Yes.

Q. What type of garments? A. Junior sizes and many types of garments.

Q. Do you have dresses, suits, coats, or what? A. We have dresses, coats, suits, wraps, sweaters, skirts, and knit wear.

Q. How long have you occupied that position? A. Four years, the 1st of August last.

Q. Does that department have a number? A. Yes, it does.

Q. What is it? A. 371.

Q. You say four years? A. Four years. 9303

Q. What? A. Four years, August 1st next.

Q. That would be 1932? A. (The witness nodded her head affirmatively.)

Q. Are you familiar with Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first learn of that organization, approximately? I do not care for an exact date. A. Well, I do not know exactly the date. When I first knew of them as an organization, or when I first knew we were red carded?

Q. When you first knew of them as an organization. A. About two years, isn't it?

Q. About two years? A. Yes.

Q. How did it come to your attention? A. Many manufacturers we were purchasing from were members of the Fashion Originators Guild, Incorporated.

Q. And they told you that, did they? A. Yes.

Q. Did they call at your place of business? A. No, but it was common knowledge.

Q. What are your duties as department manager of De-9305 partment 371? A. To buy and sell goods.

Q. Well, where did you buy them? A. New York, mostly; some in Chicago, some in Cleveland, some in Los Angeles, and a small amount in San Francisco; occasionally St. Louis, but the very biggest bulk of it is in New York.

Q. And you sold them at Dayton's in Minneapolis? A. That is right.

Q. What is the price range of the garments that you sell in your department? A. Price?

Q. Yes. A. On the average from 9.75 to 39.75, with some higher, but the bulk of it is——

Q. How about suits, how do they run? A. 17.95 usually, up to about $100.

9306 Q. These are all retail prices? A. Retail prices.

Q. You say you have coats also? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What price range are they? A. 17.95 to $135.

Q. Do you ever go to the market yourself to buy these garments? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How often would you say you went in the fall of 1935? A. Fall, starting from August or starting from our first fall purchase?

Q. Take your first fall purchase. A. I would say sixty-seven times, maybe sixty-eight.

Q. Sixty-seven? A. Sixty-seven.

Q. Do you go to more than one place? Do you go to ll these markets you speak of? A. You mean the out of own markets?

Q. Yes. A. You mean last fall?

Q. Last fall, where did you go, a year ago? A. Mostly New York, outside of Chicago for some dresses, one shop n Cleveland in the month of November for one manufacurer only, and Chicago was made en route for a half a iay between trains.

Q. Now, can you testify from memory as to the prinipal resources for your department, dresses and suits, in he fall of 1935? 9308

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, having been fully testified to by Mr. Donovan, purely cumulative. I think we are wasting a lot of time at this late stage of the game in Minneapolis. I ask your Honor to foreclose this line of testimony. It has been fully testified to by Mr. Donovan and I do not believe he was cross-examined about it.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not know why counsel does not want to listen to a buyer.

Mr. Albert: I do not want to listen to the fact that a buyer went to New York.

Mr. Haycraft: If you just give me time, I will bring out all the facts. 9309

Mr. Albert: That is just the point. I do not want my time wasted at this stage of the game.

Mr. Martin: You did not mind wasting our time at your first stage of the game.

Mr. Albert: Then you concede you are wasting time?

Examiner Bennett: Leave this off the record.

(Discussion had off the record.)

9310 Helen Cofield—For Commission—Direct.

Examiner Bennett: Proceed.

Mr. Haycraft: I am waiting for a ruling.

Examiner Bennett: I am waiting for you to get through talking across the table. Are you through?

Mr. Martin: I am through, for the time being.

Examiner Bennett: Now read the question.

(Previous question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer, if you can.

By Mr. Haycraft,

Q. Can you do it or can't you? A. I can, yes.

9311 Q. Now will you do so, and indicate in your answer the resources, the type of merchandise, that is whether it is a dress or suit and the wholesale price range? A. Do you want all of the important dress resources and their price ranges and their types?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as having been given in evidence with Mr. Donovan with Mr. Haycraft's assistance, and not having been cross-examined on, purely cumulative. It is in the record completely.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

By Mr. Haycraft.

9312 Q. Go ahead. A. In the higher priced dresses, Junior League, who make ordinarily 12.75 up, depending upon the costume, it may be as high as 69.50 wholesale, but their average prices are 16 to 25 and 29. They make day times and evenings.

Mr. Feldman: Is that average cost or just average price? Do you mean average retail price?

The Witness: Cost. They are asking cost. Ira Rentner Miller, who make daytime things in about the same price ranges as Junior League and about the same type. Will Steinman, who make 10.75 and 12.75 evening clothes. Bon Ray, who make 10 and 12.75 evening clothes. Joann, Junior, Sing Bros., which is synonymous, it may be known by one or the other, make 10.75 and 12.75 daytime clothes, some costumes occasionally higher, but they are a 10.75 house. Val Roy——

Mr. Feldman: Who?

By Mr. Haycraft. 9314

Q. How do you spell that? A. V-a-l, capital R-o-y, make 10.75 daytime things. International, the junior division, who make 10 and 12.75 daytime things, a few evening things. Louise Mulligan, who is our outstanding resource, making 10.75, 12.75, 16.75, and a few above, making daytime and dinner and evening, at 7.75. Ros Anna or Rosenthal Kollman, making 7.75 street things; Debutante, who make 7.75 street things; Security, who make 4.75 street things; Neufeld Fuerst, who make 4.75 street things.

Mr. Feldman: Where are they located?

The Witness: They just moved to 1400. They were 147 West 37th Street.

Mr. Feldman: What do they make? 9315

The Witness: 4.75 street things. Accurate, who make 4.75 street things. Ernest Janowitz, who make 8.75 evening things; Cartwright, who make 10.75 and 12.75, some 16.75 street and evening. Now, there are more, but that is the bulk of the prominent ones.

9316 Helen Cofield—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Those were the principal resources last fall, a year ago now? A. Yes.

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until 10 o'clock in the morning at this place.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., an adjournment was taken.)

9317 Room 307 Federal Building,
Minneapolis, Minnesota,
September 4, 1936.

Met pursuant to adjournment, 10 o'clock A. M. C.S.T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

HELEN COFIELD was thereupon recalled and, having been 9318 previously sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination (resumed) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Miss or Mrs.? A. Mrs.

Q. At the last session you were giving a list of resources in your department in the fall of 1935? A. That is right.

Q. Have you completed that? A. No, sir; we adjourned before it was completed.

Q. All right. You may continue. A. David Westheim.

Q. Which? A. David Westheim, $10 and $12.75 street things. Junior Guild Frocks in Chicago, $10, $12, and up to $16.75, street things.

Q. A little bit louder. I can't hear you. A. Did you get the last?

Q. What was that, street something? A. Street clothes, daytime clothes. Silver Dress, $10.75 and $12.75 street things. Allan Kay Frocks, which is Lang Kohn.

Q. Was Lang what? A. Lang Kohn, L-a-n-g K-o-h-n of St. Louis, daytime clothes at $10.75 and $12.75. Corde, C-o-r-d-e, $6, $10.75 street clothes. Rae-Mar Dress in Cleveland, $6 to $10.75, R-a-e M-a-r. I think that about completes the list as nearly as my memory recalls it. 9320

Q. Now, of these, were there some of them non-Guild houses or were they all Guild houses? A. No, they are not all Guild houses. The majority of the $10.75 up cost houses are Guild members.

Q. How about the $4.75 ones that you mentioned? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Were any of the $6.75, $7.75 resources Guild houses last fall? A. Only one, and that was Rosenthal Kalman.

Q. Were there any outstanding Guild resources that you depend upon more than any other? A. Yes, Louise Mulligan, Zium Brothers, Steinman — Will Steinman, Junior League, Junior Guild Frocks. Those were the most important resources at $10.75.

Q. Do you recall when it was that the Dayton store 9321 was red carded by the Guild? A. I believe it was February 17th.

Q. This year? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. How did that come to your notice? A. I don't recall exactly. I believe that I was in New York at the time and we were told, and "Women's Wear" carried it.

Q. What was the occasion for your being in New York at that time? A. Buying merchandise.

Q. Did you make any calls on Guild resources after you were red carded on that trip to New York? A. I made a few calls on Guild houses in a friendly way, not to buy merchandise, because, of course, we were not permitted to see their lines. We called on them to find out about our past orders that had been placed with them and what the situation was going to be as to getting delivery on things that were on order at that time.

Q. Were you successful in getting delivery on pending orders? A. Not until a decision was handed down that they could—manufacturers could ship anything that was on order prior to the date of the red carding.

9323 Q. When did you eventually get it? A. March, I believe.

Q. You said they would not show you their lines? A. Yes.

Q. What does that mean? A. It means that we were not permitted to see their lines of—lines of merchandise because they had been requested—it was part of the agreement with the Guild that red carded stores were not permitted to see their lines.

Q. Did you ever discuss this matter of red carding with any of the representatives of your resources since February? A. Many times.

Q. Do you find the Guild representatives of the Guild houses friendly or unfriendly? A. Decidedly——

9324 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. It is entirely immaterial. Who knows what friendly or unfriendly means? What this witness' conception of friendly means——

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will let her answer. You may answer.

The Witness: Decidedly friendly.

9325

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was any explanation given as to why they did not allow you to see their lines? A. None other than that was the agreement and they were to be penalized by a fine if they showed their lines to red carded stores.

Q. Well, now, what did you do as buyer for Dayton Company when you found you couldn't buy Guild merchandise? A. We tried to replace it, but last spring it was not possible because the market is so limited in the Junior Division that practically every one at $10.75 up was Guild. There were very few exceptions, which meant we had almost no one to fall back on.

Q. Did that have any effect upon your department? A. A decided effect of loss of business this spring.

Q. What was the situation—what is the situation this fall? A. It is somewhat better this fall. For one reason there have been several resignations in the Junior Division of manufacturers who were formerly Guild members.

Q. Do you recall some of those? A. Yes. The first resignation was Zim Brothers. I think it was about May when they resigned. Will Steinman and Bon Ray, who have just resigned within the past month. Delroy, who has also just resigned within the past month. That combined with developing some out of town resources which we have not used to a great extent before, and going to the California market, has help to take care of that situation much better this fall than this spring.

Q. What did you do about Louise Mulligan that you handled? A. We didn't—we are not able to replace it at all. It is a distinctly different line which is not replaceable by the regular run of manufacturers' merchandise. It is a marked line.

Mr. Albert: What kind of a line is it?

The Witness: I would call it a marked line. It is a line that you can recognize, anyone who is accustomed—customers come in and say "This is Louise Mulligan," when we had them, without ever seeing a ticket because they recognize the type of garment that they put out.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any calls for Louise Mulligan now? A. Every day, have had all spring and we are still having this fall.

Q. What did you do about the Junior Guild Frocks you mentioned? A. That is another line that was very difficult to replace because it is a flashy line that is not similar to 9329 most other lines at the same price that are available. Louise Mulligan was more difficult to replace, and second, Junior Guild.

Q. What was the situation—what is the situation at the present time with respect to the replacement of Guild lines in your department? You say you have not been able to replace the Louise Mulligan and more difficult to replace Junior Guild frocks. You say Will Steinman you can get now? A. Yes.

Q. And Joan Junior and Zim Brothers? A. That is right. It is very much better because of the resignations and because of some replacements, but we have not been able to replace our loss of Louise Mulligan and Junior Guild, and there are still a few resources that we miss 9330 greatly, particularly above $10.75, where there is only two junior—to my knowledge, only two junior recognized resources that make better merchandise above $12.75. That is Rentner, Miller, and Junior League.

Q. Have you had occasion to check your volume of sales August, 1936, against August, 1935, with the better lines, better dresses? A. Yes, I have.

Q. What do you find?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court; the exhibit in evidence speaks for itself.

Mr. Haycraft: It is not in evidence. It may speak for itself, but it has nothing to do with this question.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer, if you have any.

The Witness: About $20 we have lost considerable volume, $20 and above, against August, 1935, against August of last year.

Q. When you say considerable, can you be more definite than that? A. Not in actual dollars, because our depart- 9332 ment——

Q. Can you give me a percentage? A. Yes, I would say——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to——

The Witness (continuing): Twenty to 25 per cent.

Mr. Albert: Miss Cofield, would you mind not answering while I am objecting?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question and statements of counsel.

(The record was read.)

Examiner Bennett: The objection may be taken as having come before the answer, in due time, and overruled. I will let the answer stand. 9333

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How many trips did you make to California to replace that merchandise? A. Two.

Q. Did you make any other trips to replace your merchandise? A. Not separate trips. We stopped off in Chicago and looked for things that might be available there, but we go through Chicago, so it was not a separate trip. It was en route to New York.

Q. You mean you spent extra time? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any effort in the New York market, to obtain other markets? A. We individually made an effort and we as a store made an effort to persuade manufacturers to make 10.75 and to persuade some other manufacturers, who were not Guild manufacturers, to make junior sizes.

Q. Did you succeed? A. We got no misses' house to make junior sizes.

Q. How about your volume of business of your lower priced lines, 4.75? A. You mean has it been affected?

Q. Has that been affected? A. No.

9335 Q. Have you made a comparison of August, 1936, with August, 1935? A. Yes.

Q. What does it show? A. It shows that we have held our lower-priced business.

Q. You have held it? A. Yes.

Q. How about this price range, 6.75, 7.75? A. We haven't been affected there at all, because Rosenthal Kollman was the only manufacturer who was Guild at the time of the red carding, and they resigned because they were the only one in the price line that was Guild, and they thought that was not fair, being the only one in the price to be a Guild member.

Q. What about your volume of sales of August, 1936, compared with August, 1935? A. We haven't gotten a completely monthly sales yet for August.

9336 Q. You don't know about it? A. No, the month has just closed. It is not——

Q. Well, do you have an opinion as to what the effect will be on your department if you are not able to get Guild merchandise during the coming seasons, the balance of the fall season? A. I feel very definitely that it will hurt our better business.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

The Witness: No, I was just——

Mr. Albert: Just a moment.

The Witness: I was just shifting.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. I believe you testified, Miss Cofield, that the Junior League was and is a Guild house? A. That is right.

Q. How about Ira Rentner Miller? A. It is.

Q. Are they Guild houses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Still are? A. To my knowledge.

Q. Will Steinman? A. Not now.

Q. Bon Ray? A. Not now. 9338

Q. Joan, Junior? A. Not now.

Q. Sing Brothers? A. That is the same thing.

Q. Val Ray? A. Not now.

Q. Rosenthal Kalman? A. Not now.

Q. Debutante? A. Not now.

Q. Security? A. Never has been.

Q. Neufeld Fuerst? A. Never has been.

Q. Ernest Janovits? A. Never has been to my knowledge.

Q. Cartwright? A. No.

Q. What is it that Rosenthal Kalman told you, and who, on the part of Rosenthal Kalman, said anything to you? A. If my memory serves me correct, Mr. Kalman.

Q. Well, you are not going to testify to anything which you do not remember, are you? You have already told us 9339 that Rosenthal Kalman told you something.

Examiner Bennett: Let the witness answer the question and then make your comment, please. Go ahead.

The Witness: My understanding was that Rosenthal Kalman resigned because he was the only 7.75 Guild member in the junior market.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Who told you that? A. Mr. Kalman.

Q. Mr. Kalman personally? A. Yes.

Q. Where? A. In the showroom.

Q. In New York? A. In New York.

Q. In his showroom? A. In his showroom.

Q. About what time of the year did he tell you that? A. I would say about the latter part of February.

Q. Did he give you any reason for having resigned from the Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ask him for the reason, as to whether or not there was any other reason? A. No, sir.

9341 Q. Had he filled any orders at that time with Guild merchandise, do you know? A. I don't believe there was ever any stoppage of merchandise from——

Q. Rosenthal Kalman? A. —Rosenthal Kalman.

Q. During this whole period, Rosenthal Kalman has been continuing to deliver merchandise at least to the Dayton store? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not he has continued delivering merchandise to other stores?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as immaterial.

The Witness: I don't know.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

9342 Q. Did you have any discussion with Mr. Kalman about it?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: I shall sustain the objection as to other stores.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, when your customers call for Louise Mulligan dresses, what are they told?

Mr. Cant: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, on the ground that it is irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: Then I ask the witness' testimony with respect to the fact that customers have called for those goods since the time of February 17th be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: Will you read the question, please?

(Previous question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception. Has the Dayton Company given any instruction to its sales force as to the manner in which they are to handle the proposition that they haven't Louise Mulligan dresses? 9344

Mr. Haycraft: Objection, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Cant: Same objection, if the Court please.

Examiner Bennett: The same.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is there, Miss Cofield, that is so distinctly different about the Louise Mulligan dresses? A. One thing is pattern. They do not use a standard Bauman figure of a pattern or a standard junior pattern that other manufacturers use. They use their own measurements, which is a smaller waist line and differently cut dress. It fits different than any other dress that we carry in our stock from any other recognized manufacturer. 9345

Mr. Haycraft: What is that Bauman, capital P -u——

Mr. Albert: Capital B-a-u-m-a-n. Anything else?

The witness: They are very young clothes, I would say, what we call "tricky" clothes.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Can you give us any more common name for it than "tricky," something that the layman would understand? A. Well, they are different looking.

Q. Well, to you they are different looking? A. They are different looking to the customers.

Q. What would the ordinary person looking at them think? A. They are different looking because they are not —they do not look like any other New York merchandise.

Q. To the eye? A. That is right.

Q. Would you say that to the untrained eye the design of those dresses was obviously different than the other 9347 dresses? A. I would say the make-up of the dresses was obviously different.

Q. That the model was different from the other dresses? A. (No response.)

Q. Is it your contention, Miss Cofield, that of a group, let us say of a dozen dresses, that might be hung up in a showroom, the average woman could walk in and take a look at the dresses and say that one is a Louise Mulligan dress? A. Not unless they were familiar with Louise Mulligan dresses.

Q. But, having once seen a Louise Mulligan dress, they could pick it out on a rack of dresses? A. I could not say everyone could. I would say some people could.

Q. Would you say more than the average or less than 9348 the average? A. More than the average.

Q. The average woman could? A. Yes.

Q. Merely from looking at a rack of twelve dresses? A. That is right.

Q. What is it that the Guild manufacturers told you at the time you had this very friendly conversation with them? A. Well, they were regretting not being able to sell the Dayton Company because they felt we had done nothing except use the best tactics and had never done anything to them.

9349

Q. Well, the Dayton Company hasn't done anything—

Mr. Haycraft: Let her finish her answer.

Mr. Albert: I knew what I was going to get, Mr. Haycraft.

The Witness: They were sorry, and that they regretted they could not sell us, as we regretted that we could not buy from them.

Mr. Albert: May I have the answer?

(Answer read.)

By Mr. Albert.

9350

Q. Of course, they have lost the ability to sell you dresses, haven't they? A. They have lost what?

Q. They have lost the ability to sell you dresses, when they do not sell them to you? A. They have lost the ability because they belong to an organization which has prohibited selling our store.

Q. Do you not mean that they have agreed not to sell your store? A. I would not say so.

Q. When they are unable to sell your store, they lose a profit, do they not? A. That is right.

Q. Did it ever occur to you to examine into the reasons why a manufacturer should abandon the possible profit on a sale of dresses to you in order to determine the relative gains that he might receive?

Mr. Cant: Objected to as argumentative, and irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, Mr. Cant has no standing in this hearing with respect to the materiality and relevancy of any question. He is only here to protect the witness in regard to this highly elusive trade secrets that we have heard so much about since we have left the Atlantic seaboard.

Examiner Bennett: I think that is true. He has no standing. Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I think it is irrelevant and immaterial, objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think probably the witness is not competent to answer that question, not being a manufacturer, and not knowing.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, I think, with the background that has been laid in this case, this witness has been testifying to the effect and everything else, and if she wants to find out why her department is being injured, if she does not know, which I seriously question, because I think the witness knows exactly what the question is aimed at, should find out what it is necessary for her to do in order to get this merchandise.

9353

Examiner Bennett: If you want that question—

Mr. Haycraft: She is tell you what she was told.

Mr. Albert: That is all I am asking her about.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all she knows about.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer, if she knows what it is.

Mr. Albert: May I ask counsel for the Dayton Company be requested not to prompt Mr. Haycraft in the objections he should make.

Examiner Bennett: I have nothing to do with that, if Mr. Haycraft wants to be prompted, that is up to him.

9354

Mr. Albert: May I call your attention that Mr. Haycraft did not object until after Mr. Dayton objected.

Examiner Bennett: Well, go ahead. You may have your answer if there is any answer. Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Witness: My first answer would be, I don't believe he abandoned voluntarily selling us. He belonged to an organization that, at the time they were selling us clothes, a controversy came up, he belonged to that organization and must abide by its rules. I don't believe any manufacturer voluntarily just did not sell the Dayton Company.

Q. Other manufacturers have resigned from the Guild, haven't they? A. What do you mean, other manufacturers besides the one I said?

Q. You testified to the fact that certain manufacturers have resigned from the Guild? A. That is right.

Q. And after their resignation from the Guild have sold you merchandise, that is right, isn't it? A. Yes. 9356

Q. Certain other manufacturers have not resigned from the Guild? A. That is right.

Q. Isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. And refused to sell you merchandise, isn't that so? A. I cannot say that they have refused, because we haven't asked them to sell us since the red carding, but it amounts to the same thing.

Q. So far as you know as regards the individual manufacturers is it your belief that they may sell you if you go to them and attempt to place an order? A. I could not answer what they might do.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, as a result of your experience you know, in so far as the Guild manufacturers are concerned, they will not sell you until you sign the declaration of co-operation, isn't that so? A. Not completely, be- 9357 cause we got a small amount of merchandise after the red carding from Guild houses.

Q. You mean that unfilled orders were delivered to you? A. No, sir.

Q. Who were the Guild houses that sold you the merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

9358

Mr. Cant: That is objected to, if the Court please.

Mr. Albert: Then I ask it all be stricken out.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will ask the witness if there were any substantial sales of Guild merchandise after the red carding.

The Witness: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: I will ask the witness if there were any substantial sales to her department of Guild merchandise after the red carding, I mean 9359 where the orders were given after the red carding.

The Witness: No great amount of merchandise; a small amount of merchandise.

Examiner Bennett: Oh, I think I will let the decision stand. It is a venomous proposition and I am not going into that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did any of these manufacturers tell you under what circumstances they would sell you merchandise? A. Are you talking about all Guild manufacturers?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Did you ask them when they might sell you merchandise? A. I didn't need to ask them. I knew that they—9360 most of them would not do anything until the red card had been removed.

Q. Did you make any inquiry to determine under what circumstances the red card would be removed? A. No, but I knew that we had to sign another agreement before the thing could be settled. At least, that was my impression.

Q. Didn't you know, as a matter of fact, that it was even unnecessary to sign a new agreement, that all that it was necessary for the Dayton Company to do was to signify its intention to protect styles?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant, actually contrary to the evidence in this case up to this time, also irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you ever been to the California market before, Mrs. Cofield? A. I testified twice.

Q. Had you ever been there before that? A. No, sir.

Q. Have any of your buyers been to the California market?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. 9362

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) If you know?

Mr. Haycraft: Nothing to show—that is objected to unless the question is confined to her department.

Mr. Albert: If you know.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer if you know.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question, please?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Yes.

9363

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, you have a Los Angeles office, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, how far ahead in the lower priced part of your department, how far has it gone ahead over last year? A. I don't know.

Q. It went ahead, though, definitely, didn't it? A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did it fall behind? A. No, I think it was about the same.

Q. Just about the same? A. You are talking about lower priced retails?

Q. Yes. A. That is right. I think I testified earlier to that, that we hadn't lost any business.

Q. Yes. A. On lower priced—I don't believe we have gained much business. I think it is just about the same.

Q. So that your ability to obtain a complete market in the lower priced dresses did not help your lower priced department?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

9365 Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let her answer.

The Witness: Oh, at least we maintained our business.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You maintained it? A. That is right.

Q. So that in so far as your lower priced dresses in the department were concerned, carrying a complete line of merchandise from anybody that you wanted to purchase from, the department did no better after the red carding than it had done before the red carding; is that your testimony? A. Right.

Q. Now, Mrs. Cofield, the Louise Mulligan line is confined to the Dayton Company—was it not? A. Yes.

9366 Q. For how long a period of time was it to be confined? was there any written agreement with respect thereto? A. No.

Q. So that you had no legal right to insist upon a continuance of the confinement, had you?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness is not a lawyer.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is there anything, in so far as you know, in the relationship between the Dayton Company and Louise Mulligan, that would have prevented or that does prevent Louise Mulligan Company from confining that style to any other retailer in Minneapolis aside from the Dayton Company for the coming season?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Cant: The Dayton Company objects to that. 9368

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Were there any store conferences with respect to Dayton's policy in connection with the Guild program?

Mr. Haycraft: What is that question?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) Up to the date of red carding, Mrs. Cofield?

Mr. Haycraft: What is that question?

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as immaterial, improper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Foundation question, your Honor. 9369

Examiner Bennett: You may answer if you participated.

The Witness: Yes. We were instructed to observe all the agreements of the Guild situations.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Were there any conferences in the Dayton Company store— A. Mr. Donovan——

Q. (Continuing) —prior to the red card? A. Mr. Donovan had meetings in his office with the buyers on the floor, instructing us to observe all the Guild——.

Q. When? A. About a year ago last June or July.

Q. Is that the last time you had any conference with Mr. Donovan with respect to the observance or non-observance of Guild policy? A. I am sure we discussed it further than that, but that particular time it was over stamping our orders and being sure to observe the rules of the Guild agreement.

Q. Was there any general conference of any kind prior to the red carding, let us say in the months of November 9371 or December or January of 1936? A. No.

Q. None whatsoever that you know of? A. Not that I know of?

Q. Is the first that you knew of the fact that the Dayton Company had been red carded your inability to obtain merchandise from Guild manufacturers? A. No, I don't believe so. I believe my first knowledge was through our office or through "Women's Wear."

Q. When? A. About February 17th.

Q. Prior to the time that you had learned of the red carding, had you been in any way informed by the Dayton Company, through its executives or your superiors, that the Dayton Company was no longer going to co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. So that the first inkling that you had of any red card
9372 is when you were told of the accomplished fact of the red carding; is that so? A. To my knowledge, it is.

Q. Do you know whether or not any other buyers had been in any way forewarned with respect to the market or any other matter? A. That I can't answer.

Q. Beg your pardon? A. That I can't answer because I don't know.

Q. Mrs. Cofield, with respect to these manufacturers who resigned from the Guild—withdrawn. Mrs. Cofield, will you please tell us what Guild manufacturers you had conversation with that you were referring to when you said that they were decidedly friendly? A. I didn't—there was a conference with the manufacturers that I saw that were friendly and that were regretting the inability to sell us, were practically all on the list that were Guild.

Q. All on the list of the Guild? A. Were all the Guild members, Junior Guild members.

Q. Was that Louise Mulligan? A. Included, yes.

Q. Who in Louise Mulligan did you speak with? A. Mr. Gisnet.

Q. Didn't he as a matter of fact tell you that as a result of his being released from the necessity of confining his 9374 business to the Dayton Company he has sold more goods in Minneapolis than what he has ever sold before? A. He did not.

Q. Don't you know from your examination of the market and from your investigations that as a matter of fact Louise Mulligan has sold more goods in Minneapolis as a result of being released from his confinement than they ever did before? A. Mr. Albert, if you will let me answer that question in my own way, I can tell you exactly what happened.

Q. Well— A. In the first place, Mr. Gisnet, the Louise Mulligan line was kept out of Minneapolis all spring in the hopes of a settlement of this thing so that they could sell us.

Q. Quite right. A. They didn't want to ally themselves 9375 with any other store in the hopes—they would rather sacrifice their spring business in Minneapolis rather than to sell another store and get tied up so that they couldn't come back and be confined to the Dayton Company.

Q. And wasn't that——

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment.

The Witness: I am not finished, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I am sorry. Go ahead. A. Where was I?

(The record was read.)

A. (Continued) To the Dayton Company at the termination of this Guild controversy. Anything Mr. Gisnet said to me all spring was a decided indication that he wanted to come back and be confined, his merchandise be confined to the Dayton Company, and that he was decidedly disturbed at his loss of selling us.

Q. And Mr.— A. They have not sold——

Q. And Louise Mulligan are still members of the Guild, 9377 aren't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they are taking this loss that you speak of? And this being unable to sell the Dayton Company, aren't they? A. They haven't sold in Minneapolis until just now. I don't know what their fall experience is but they took a spring loss, yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, don't you know that they did make some sales in the spring? A. To my knowledge not. There was no advertisements on Louise Mulligan in Minneapolis at all this spring.

Q. In other words, what you want to say is that Louise Mulligan in the ethical conduct of its business waited as long as possible to see whether or not Dayton's would protect the Louise Mulligan style which the Dayton Com- 9378 pany wanted so much? A. My understanding is that they waited that long so as to be sure of the amount of business that they would get from Minneapolis because they knew from their experience with the Dayton Company that it had been a very profitable operation on both sides. We don't protect their styles, we sell their merchandise.

Q. What do you mean you don't protect their styles? A. Well, how can we protect the manufacturer's style? We buy merchandise to sell.

Q. Yes. And in all your experience with the Dayton Company during its co-operation with the Guild program you don't know how to protect style? A. That was not the question.

Q. You volunteered that you don't protect the style, Mrs. Cofield.

Mr. Haycraft: She did not. She was answering your question.

The Witness: I was answering your question. You asked me about protected style of Louise Mulligan.

By Mr. Albert.

9380

Q. Yes, and you said, "We don't protect the style." A. I don't see how their confining the line to us, when they are confining the line to us, it comes to protection of style.

Q. Quite true. But no matter how you sell the dress, whether it is by reason of confinement or merely by reason of the fact that you sold the dress with other retailers, isn't the objection that Louise Mulligan has to selling you at all, whether confined or not, the fact that you refused to protect the style? A. Ha, ha, ha! Well, your question said that they refused or objected to selling us, and my answer is that they haven't objected to selling us. They still want to sell us.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In other words, you say that because they are abiding by the Guild program in their agreement with the Guild, that that is the only reason that they won't sell you? A. It is the only reason, I am sure.

NEILLIE D. JOHNSTONE was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examiner Bennett: What is the name, please?
The Witness: Mrs. Johnstone.
Mr. Albert: Is that with a "t"?
The Witness: Yes.

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you tell your full name for the record? A. Mrs. Nellie D. Johnstone.

9383 Q. That last name is spelled, J-o-h-n-s-t-o-n-e? A. Right.

Q. Where do you live? A. 2517 Humboldt.

Q. Minneapolis? A. Minneapolis.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Department manager and buyer for the Dayton Company.

Q. What department are you manager of? A. I have two departments, the Model Shop and the Barbara Lee shop.

Q. Do they have numbers? A. 353 and 333 in the Model Shop.

Q. 333 and 353 in the Model Shop? A. Right. 354 and 334 in the Barbara Lee shop.

Q. What is the difference between those two shops? A. Price.

9384 Q. All right. Give us the price range of your Model Shop department. A. The Model Shop comprises women's and misses', and the price range is from 39.50 and up.

Q. How far up would you say? A. Well, we sold things in the fall seasons up to $295.

Q. Well, that would be dresses or suits or coats? A. Costumes.

Q. Costumes? A. Yes, usually dresses up to 150.

Q. Now, the Barbara Lee. What is the price range of those two departments? A. From 19.75 to 39.50.

Q. Now, how are those departments arranged at Dayton's? Just describe how they are arranged. A. They are classified under two heads, misses' and women's, under the same price classification.

Q. How are they displayed to the public? A. By our sales people.

Q. Are the dresses out so they can be inspected? A. No. In the Model Shop, none of our stock is displayed to the public, except on sale days, and that only in the Barbara Lee shop. Never in the Model Shop. Private selling.

Q. To what type of clientele would you say these four departments cater? A. I think they cater to the well- 9386 dressed, sophisticated woman, regardless of price, both departments.

Q. How long have you been in charge of those departments? A. It will be three years the 15th of November, I think.

Q. That would be since November, 1933? A. Yes. No, that would be in 1932, wouldn't it?

Q. You say three years? A. No, that is right.

Q. Was it 1932? A. No, it was 1933.

Mr. Albert: As long as you start February 6, 1936, we are satisfied.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you do before that, Mrs. Johnstone? A. 9387
I have always been in this business in Minneapolis for the last eighteen years.

Q. Were you in business for yourself? A. Yes, previous to coming to the Dayton Company I was associated for a number of years with E. E. Atkinson, Young Quinlan, and I was a partner in the Jennie Lee, Incorporated.

Q. Before you came to Dayton's? A. Yes.

Q. So that all of your business experience has been in this type of merchandise? A. Yes, it has been.

Q. How well acquainted did you become with the manufacturers of this type of merchandise? A. Very well acquainted with all of the better manufacturers.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild, Incorporated? A. Yes.

Q. When did you first learn of that organization? A. I don't remember.

Q. When you went to Dayton's did you know about it, had you heard of it then? A. I don't think so.

Q. Well, since you have been with Dayton's, what has been your contact, if any, with the Guild or its activities? A. Well, of course, it is represented in most of the better 9389 houses.

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the answer be stricken, your Honor, as not responsive.

Examiner Bennett: The question and answer, please.

(Previous question and answer read.)

A. I have had constant contact with them. Is that better?

Mr. Albert: It is a little better, Mrs. Johnstone.

The Witness: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

9390 Q. Well, in your department, since you have been with Dayton's, what percentage of the garments that you sell there would you say you bought from Guild manufacturers? A. Well, it varies in the two departments.

Q. Well, give us first the Model Shop, 353 and 333, say 1935, the fall of 1935. A. Well, I would say 90 per cent. of the Model Shop.

Q. What would you say about Barbara Lee? A. Well, 65, 60 or 65.

9391

Mr. Albert: 50 or 55?

The Witness: 60 or 65.

Mr. Albert: What is that number of this department, is that 353 or 333?

Mr. Haycraft: 334 and 354.

The Witness: 354 and 334.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind straightening out the numbers of the departments? Which is the Barbara Lee?

The Witness: 354 and 334.

Mr. Albert: 334?

The Witness: Yes.

9392

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would you testify now to the best of your ability as to the principal resources of your Department 353, pick out 333 first. What were the principal Guild resources, say in the fall of 1935, in Department 333? A. That is of the women's departments. Some of the most outstanding were A. Trainor, Matthew Kadetsky, which is, by the way, the only half-size better dress house in New York City, I mean better price, Ed Gerrick, there was Louise Barns Gallagher, and Herman Beispiel, those are outstanding, the bulk of our business, the better ones.

Q. Now, will you give the same information for Department 353? A. If I could look at my list, I would be a little better for you.

Q. All right. A. I would not need to take so long. Put my glasses on. Well, M. Rentner is the most outstanding.

Q. Which? A. Maurice Rentner.

Q. All right. A. Louise Barns Gallagher, Milton Altmark, William Bass, J. B. Barnett, Henry Gans, Virginia Hume and Mary Lee, Ben Reid, Rothenberg, J. Rothenberg, and Rudolph Gowns, Straus Miller and Suttre Frocks.

Q. Did you mention Eisenberg? A. I——

Q. Are they a resource of your department? A. Yes, very important, too.

Q. What is the cost price range of dresses sold in those two departments, 333 and 353? A. They are from 22.95 to 28.95, 29.95.

Q. Will you give us the same information for Department 334, the same information? A. The prices are from 19.75 to 39.50 in the women's department; one of our most outstanding resources, which we have lost, are Dolces Dresses in the women's department.

Q. Dolces? A. Yes.

9395 Q. Do you recall any others? A. Gans, Henry Gans.

Q. How about Joseph Greenberg? A. Joseph Greenberg is out of business.

Q. He was in business in 1935? A. Yes. I beg your pardon. He was important at that time.

Q. Will you give us the same information as to Department 354? A. Milton Altmark, Mary Lee, Charles Lang, Bender Hamburger, Capri, Casino, Fiegenbaum Adelson, A. Goodman, William Bass, did I mention him?

Q. No. How about Joseph Halpert? A. Very important but not perhaps as strong in our department.

Q. What was the cost price range, the same in this as in 354? A. No, 12.75 to 22.75.

Mr. Albert: That is 354?

9396 The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: That is 354?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mrs. Johnstone, do you recall when the Dayton store was red carded by the Guild? A. When?

Q. Yes. A. It was in February.

Q. Do you recall how that came to your attention? A. Yes. I was in California at the time and William Bass——

Mr. Albert: Wasn't there anybody at the Dayton store, Mr. Haycraft, when they were red carded?

Mr. Haycraft: I move that be stricken from the record and the witness be allowed to answer without the facetious remarks from the other side of the table.

Mr. Albert: There is nothing facetious about it; it is serious.

Mr. Haycraft: It has nothing to do with the 9398 issues in this case whether they were there. I suppose people have to buy goods as well as sell them.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you go ahead with your answer? A. William Bass' representative, young Mr. Hawkus, was the first one to tell me that the Dayton Company was red carded.

Q. Was any explanation given at the time? A. No. I was taking a taxi, and he just stuck his head in the door, no explanation, ha, ha.

Q. Did you try to confirm it in any way? A. No.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind speaking a little louder, Mrs. Johnstone?

9399

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You say you were in California at the time? A. Yes.

Q. Upon your return to Minneapolis did you make any attempt to obtain merchandise from the Guild manufacturers?. A. Certainly.

Q. What did you do in that respect? A. We made a trip to New York and interviewed most of them personally.

Q. Whom did you call on? A. We called on Milton Altmark, for one.

Q. Whom did you call on there? A. Mr. Altmark.

Mr. Albert: Who?

The Witness: Mr. Altmark.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did he tell you? A. Nothing he could do.

9401 Q. What did he explain? A. His kindly feeling and all that sort of thing, and he regretted, the clothes were ready for us, but it was inpossible for him to ship them.

Q. Did he tell you why? A. Well, we knew the reason why. It was because of the——

Q. Because of what? A. Well, it was because he was a member of the organization that had red carded the various stores.

Q. Well, did you call on anybody else? A. What?

Q. Who else did you call on? A. Talked to Mr. Rentner.

Q. What did he tell you? A. Well, he regretted, too, the circumstances.

Q. Did he give you the same explanation or a different one? A. What?

9402 Q. What explanation did he give you? A. Well, he talked as to the merits, of course, of the organization, how he hoped that things would adjust themselves that we would stay with the org—with the F.O.G.A.

Q. Did you call on anybody else? A. Mary Lee.

Q. Whom did you talk with there? A. I think Miss Morris.

Q. What did she tell you? A. I remember going in the back and looking over the clothes that were still being filled for the Dayton Company subject to settlement of the question.

Q. What did she say about it? A. Well, she, too, had the same feeling. She regretted that they weren't allowed, wouldn't ship, but possibly something could happen so that this thing could be adjusted and things would straighten themselves out.

Q. Who else did you call on? A. Dolces.

Q. Who did you talk with there? A. I think Mr. Aitman.

Q. What did he tell you? A. Well, the same thing, couldn't ship anything, couldn't even accept re-orders. We had things on re-order there at that place and special 9404 orders coming through that they couldn't ship us.

Q. What did you do then after you made the rounds of the Guild manufacturers? A. Well, we went searching for merchandise. We spent days trying to get it, what we had already bought shipped to us.

Q. Did you finally succeed? A. Yes; that boycott was finally lifted, that is, they allowed the manufacturers that had the merchandise made up to ship it.

Q. Did they allow you to place any more re-orders? A. No.

Q. Or special orders? A. No.

Q. Well, then, what did you do? A. We have been working ever since.

Q. Have you had any success? A. Ha, ha, it has been 9405 most difficult in the Model Shop, the better clothes, the better priced clothes.

Q. Have you been able to replace any of the merchandise of any manufacturers that were buying from the Guild? A. That were buying from the Guild, manufacturers in the Model Shop, no.

Q. Have you made strenuous efforts to do so? A. To the best of my ability.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as calling for a conclusion of the witness, and leading as to whether or not she made strenuous efforts.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception. The question was answered.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. As to the Barbara Lee shop, what success have you met with? A. We have had more success in the Barbara Lee shop.

9407 Q. Are there any manufacturers of garments of any manufacturers in that shop which you have not been able to replace? A. Yes.

Q. Which ones? A. Dolces, for one.

Q. Any others? A. Capri.

Q. Can you think of any more? A. Casino, Fleigenbaum-Edelson, Henry Ganz.

Q. Now you said that you did get the orders that had been placed but you were unable to get re-orders? Special orders? A. Yes, after—well.

Q. After you—I want you to direct your testimony now to the spring of 1936 and testify as to the effect that the inability to get goods from the Guild manufacturers had upon the department under your supervision.

9408

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, no proper foundation has been laid.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have an opinion, Mrs. Johnstone, as to the effect of your inability to get Guild merchandise, the effect it had upon your departments in the spring of 1936?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, immaterial, no foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

The Witness: Well, always in the spring of the year it is less difficult to suit the public with less expensive merchandise. I mean, in the spring of the year people don't pay the price for clothes. They are not as interested in high-priced merchandise. Therefore, we have been able to—we haven't missed them as much in the spring season as we would in the fall, which is more important. 9410

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the situation with respect to the fall? A. Well, it is discouraging.

Mr. Albert: To whom, Mrs. Johnstone?

The Witness: Well, I am afraid for the Dayton Company, ha, ha.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Discouraging in what way? A. Well, we have been unable to round out our stocks. We have not been able to please our customers for the type and kind of price that they want to pay. There is such a big gap in our resources that—in our stocks—it certainly reflects itself 9411 in just that manner and our customers are quick to realize it both in types and in price.

Q. Have you observed anything along with respect to that situation in your contact— A. With the public?

Q. Yes. A. Indeed.

Q. Can you give me some illustrations of that? A. Well, it seems to be generally known that the Dayton Company have been—their better resources are limited, see, and customers notice. That is one thing. Even though they come to our shop and don't find just—we had a customer in this morning, a very important customer from St. Paul whom we clothed, likes our clothes. She met me before I went to New York. She said, "Mrs. Johnstone, if you will go to that manufacturer that made those gorgeous clothes for me last fall, that is the kind I want." She came back this morning and she sent word to me, asking me if I bought clothes of A. Traina. She didn't know A. Traina, but that is who it was.

Q. What did you have to tell her? A. Why, I told her I had bought some very nice things—but—— 9413 Q. Have you any other instance of that kind or is that an isolated case? A. Well, there might—our clothes last fall were very wonderfully accepted both from Rentner, Louise Barnes Gallagher, costumes, and we have not been able to replace them. Last week there were three customers walked out of the Dayton Company and bought suits on the avenue from $135 to $175, our customers, personal customers.

Q. Has this shown any effect upon the volume of your sales? A. Why, naturally.

Q. What effect has it had? A. Well, in figures?

Q. If you have any way of giving it.

Mr. Albert: Just say very bad, Mrs. Johnstone.

The Witness: Very bad.

9414 Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, may I be allowed to conduct the examination without being interrupted?

Examiner Bennett: All right, go ahead.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you made any study or comparison with your volume of sales last year and this year in your department? A. I just came home this morning. I haven't checked them.

Q. Will you do it— A. We were behind when we left.

Q. Mrs. Johnstone, do you have an opinion as to what the effect would be on your departments if you are still unable to get Guild merchandise in the future? A. Well, it would change our clientele.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. Well, we would not be able to satisfy them unless the resources, new resources spring up that we have no reason for feeling they will.

Q. Have you just recently been engaged in looking for new resources? A. I certainly have.

Q. Where did you go? A. Well, everywhere.

Q. Yes. A. Everywhere in New York that I could be directed to, to find merchandise that might substitute the Guild houses. 9416

Q. Did you find any? A. No, not a great many.

Q. Mrs. Johnstone, has the inability to get good merchandise had any effect upon the morale of the personnel of your department? A. Serious.

Q. Will you explain how, in what way? A. Well, each of the sales people in these two departments have a direct following of customers. They have their own clientele. They are girls that work into that. It means the success of our department, and my very best sales person this week, or since I came home, has told me her failures to sell so and so, so and so, customers that she always has been successful with, and, you see, they can't help but realize that they are key merchants, see the difference in the grouping of merchandise, or the selection, rather, I mean. 9417

Q. Does the limited selection that you refer to have any effect upon your ability to sell garments in your department? A. Yes.

Q. Why is that true? A. Well, as I said before, the public is educated to— . There is a high class something about a well made garment that is just the difference between an amateur production and a finished product, like men's tailored suits, for instance. It is the same thing. There is a something that goes into tailoring and workmanship and quality of materials, an expression of style that round out a garment, that a fastidious customer appreciates. It is just something that sometimes is indescribable, but it marks that smart suit or dress.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all, Mrs. Johnstone.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mrs. Johnstone, would you mind telling me again,
9419 please, the percentage of Guild merchandise which you had in Department 333? A. Well, I couldn't tell you exactly.

Q. Approximately? A. The two departments are considered together.

Q. 333 and 353? A. Yes.

Q. What is the percentage there? A. About 90 per cent.

Q. 90? A. Yes.

Q. How about 334 and 354? A. I would say the same, about 60 per cent.

Q. What is the price line in 333 and 353? A. $39.50 to $295.

Q. What is the low price? A. $39.75.

Q. Do you want to amend your statement, then, to Mr.
9420 Haycraft, that it was $22.95 up?

Mr. Haycraft: She didn't say $22.95 for that department.

The Witness: That is cost in that department.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then $39.50 is the retail price and $22— A. That is right.

Q. $22.95 is the cost price? A. $22.75.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And in Department 354 what is the cost price? A. The same price ranges.

Q. You mean from— A. Oh, no. In 354? I beg your pardon. They are from $12.75.

Q. Is that cost price? A. Cost price, $12.75 to $22.75.

Q. And what is the retail price? A. $19.75 to $39.75.

Q. So that your $12.75 dresses sell for $19.75? A. Some of them.

Q. Approximately? I mean on the average? A. $22 that would be. They are usually marked $22, some for specials that runs in at $19.75.

Q. Of course, there is a discount on your $12.75 cost price? A. Yes.

Q. Is there not? A. Uh huh.

Q. When you called upon Milton Altmark what did he tell you about not selling you dresses? A. He said, "We have every one of them back there waiting to be shipped to you but we can't ship them."

Q. Did he tell you why he couldn't ship them? A. Well, because of his organization wouldn't permit, I think was his reason.

Q. Did he tell you why the organization wouldn't permit it? A. No.

Q. Didn't you ask him why it is that the organization wouldn't permit him? A. I don't remember.

9423

Q. Well, you had been in California, hadn't you, when this red carding took place? A. Uh huh.

Q. Naturally, you don't know the events leading up to it? You didn't know the events leading up to it at that time? A. Only that the papers were filled with it.

Q. The papers were filled with it? A. Yes.

Q. What did you learn from the papers? A. The women's—ready—women's wear. We learned that the F.O.G.A. were not allowed to ship merchandise to the following red carded stores.

Q. Did you learn why they were not? A. Well, it had to do with copying for one thing, I suppose.

Q. What do you mean when you say it had to do with copying? A. Copying models.

Q. What do you mean when you say it had to do with copying models? A. Well, I do not understand what you are trying to find out.

Q. Red carding is a result, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know what caused that result? A. No.

Q. You do not know? A. Well, I don't know all the 9425 ins and outs of the F.O.G.A.

Q. What did you learn as to it as far as— What is your opinion of it?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What did you learn as buyer in the Dayton store as to the reason for the red carding? A. Well, there were many reasons, I don't know.

Q. Let me have half a dozen of the many reasons.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, the testi-

9426 mony has been given here that these buyers are responsible for almost everything that can be imagined in any way in their department. One witness has testified that there is nothing that he knows of that a buyer is not responsible for, and those were the recorded remarks of Mr. Dayton, who was here today. I am asking this department buyer if she knows what she is supposed to know about her department.

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Give me the question.

(Previous question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer. Overruled.

The Witness: I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then, Mrs. Johnstone, your testimony that after being in charge of these departments, 333, 353, 334 and 354 for the past three or four years, which departments you are completely responsible for, and which you say 9428 have been injured by a certain action of somebody, that you do not know what caused that action? A. I do not know all the reasons that caused this action.

Q. Well, give me one reason that you know.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. She has not shown that she knows any.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer, if she knows. I do not know that she knows any.

Mr. Albert: Quite contrary, your Honor.

The Witness: I have really never discussed it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mrs. Johnstone, you have said that you know some of the reasons, you do not know them all; now, will 9429 you please give me one reason that you know as to the existence of the state of affairs with respect to the Dayton Company and the F.O.G.A. and the Guild members?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to that question as not proper cross-examination, immaterial, irrelevant, no foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Objection overruled. You may answer if you know any.

Mr. Haycraft: That is, if she knows. She ha not said she knows.

The Witness: I really do not know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then, you do not know of any reason why the Day ton Company was red carded? A. No, I don't. I don' think the Dayton Company deserved to be red carded.

Q. Why didn't the Dayton Company deserve to be re carded? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, now, Mrs. Johnstone, you predicate your opin ion upon knowledge of some kind, don't you, or is th 9431 fact that you do not think the Dayton Company deserve to be red carded, due solely to your loyalty to the com pany? A. No, it is not that.

Q. All right. Now, upon what do you predicate you opinion that the Dayton Company did not deserve to b red carded? A. Well, that is between the Dayton Com pany and the F.O.G.A. I do not really know.

Q. Then, when you say that the Dayton Company did not deserve to be red carded, you do not know why they did not deserve to be red carded? A. Well, I think it is a surprise.

Q. What is a surprise? A. It was a surprise to me, I have said.

Q. Haven't you made any inquiry since the red carding
9432 to determine why the Dayton Company was red carded? A. I only knew it to be a fact.

Q. And aside from the fact that you know that the Day ton Company was red carded, you, in your position as a buyer, for these four departments, in complete supervision thereof and with complete responsibility for the success or failure of those departments, do not know to-day why the Dayton Company was red carded? A. No.

Q. And you have made no attempt to inquire? A. That is——

Q. Will you answer the question, please? A. (Short pause) I do not know.

Q. And I ask you if you have made no attempt to inquire in order to alleviate the condition of the department for which you are responsible, as to the reason why the Dayton Company was red carded?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

The Witness: No.

Mr. Haycraft: There is nothing to show that there is any responsibility on the part of this witness as to the reason they were red carded. I do not think there is any foundation laid.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Dayton is here and will he deny the testimony of the witnesses that he did not know anything that a buyer was not responsible for in his departmen.? 9434

Mr. Haycraft: Are you trying to stage a show around here?

Examiner Bennett: This witness does not seem to now, and I guess that is hardly worth while to try to get that information from a witness who does not know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it your testimony, then, that you did not ask Milton Altmark as to why the Dayton Company had been red carded? 9435

Mr. Haycraft: She didn't say that.

Mr. Albert: I am asking her if she did.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer. Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: She answered it once.

Examiner Bennett: I think the witness answered it already.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Johnstone, didn't Mr. Altmark tell you that the red carding of the Dayton Company was wholly the Dayton Company's fault? A. No.

Q. Didn't he tell you that the red carding of the Dayton Company was the result of the Dayton Company's own actions? A. (The witness shook her head negatively.) I do not remember that.

9437 Q. Do you know who Maurice Rentner is? A. Yes.

Q. Who is he? A. He is one of the leading manufacturers in New York City.

Q. What is his connection with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. He is president.

Q. Was he such at the time that you spoke with him? A. He must have been.

Q. And he still is, to-day, is he not? A. I think so.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Rentner, the president of the Fashion Originators Guild, why it is that the Dayton Company was red carded at that time? A. No.

Q. Did he tell you? A. I don't remember that he did.

Q. Do you mean by that that you do not remember whether he did or not, or that he did not tell you? A. I 9438 don't remember.

Q. Well, will you bear with me for just a moment, Mrs. Johnstone? A. Yes.

Q. I would like to understand your testimony. Is it your testimony that Mr. Rentner may have told you why and you have forgotten, or is it your testimony that he did not tell you at all? A. I do not remember relative to it at all.

Q. That is, he may have told you but you have forgotten, is that what you mean? A. We talked with him.

Q. Do you not recall whether Mr. Rentner mentioned in any respect the reason why the Dayton Company was red carded? A. No, we were just one of the group of stores.

Q. He told you nothing as to the reasons why you were red carded? A. He regretted it.

Q. Every manufacturer regrets his inability to sell a customer, doesn't he? A. I think so.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did he tell you why he regretted it? A. I do not remember.

9440

Q. Didn't he tell you that he regretted the policy of the Dayton Company in not protecting his styles? A. He would have no reason for making that remark.

Q. Why would he have no reason? A. He just stopped working for the Dayton Company.

Q. Up to when? A. As long as we had them.

Q. When was that? A. At this time. We have never had any since.

Q. Or consultations had with you? A. What?

Q. Did you know of the telegram which was sent by the Fashion Originators Guild asking whether or not the Dayton Company subscribed to a certain letter submitted by Mr. Riley? A. I never saw it.

Q. Then you know nothing as to why the red carding was imposed on the Dayton Company?

9441

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has already said so.

The Witness: No.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it. It has already been answered.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to anything further in this line. You are not developing anything.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is it that a well-dressed sophisticated woman wants in a dress when she comes into your department? A. She wants quality, wearable clothes, an expression of the style which is becoming to her particular need, her particular type, rather; I think that covers it.

Q. Can you say which of those three is the most important to your customer?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, assuming need of the three.

Mr. Albert: Now, with the assistance of Mr. Haycraft, can you answer?

9443

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation laid for the question. If counsel will place a proper question, it will not be necessary to object to it.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer. Overruled.

The Witness: Will you state the question?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have mentioned quality, wearability and expression of style as the three points that your well-dressed sophisticated woman looks for when she purchases a dress in your department. A. Wearability.

9444

Q. And wearability is the first thing that she looks for? A. Yes.

Q. She does not look for the dress to fit her? A. Certainly; it would not be wearable if it did not fit her.

Q. And if wearability depends solely upon its ability to fit her? A. Not altogether.

Q. Well, is there anything in addition to the fit that you put in in wearability? A. Well, all the qualifications that go into a well-made garment. There are many that you might describe.

Q. Wouldn't you say that wearability and quality are almost synonymous? A. No.

Q. Why not? A. Well, many things that haven't a great deal of quality are wearable.

Q. Are not wearable? A. They are wearable, but you said the sophisticated, well-dressed woman.

Q. How many dresses a year would you say the well-dressed, sophisticated woman buys in your department? A. That is limited.

Q. What? A. That is limited to her financial circumstances. She might be well-dressed and very sophisticated 9446 and get along on very few clothes.

Q. Well, didn't you testify with respect to these departments, most of your customers, who purchased these dresses therefrom, were not particularly interested in the price? A. I didn't mean to infer that altogether.

Q. What did you mean to infer? A. Well, clothes under $100 are not expensive, terribly expensive.

Q. No? Well, now, as a matter of fact, Mrs. Johnstone, is it not true, in your experience, that the woman who purchases dresses in that price line, by reason of her experience in having purchased dresses in that price line, takes it for granted and knows, first, that the dresses in that price line will be wearable, second, that they will be of a very high quality, and that the only thing she has to 9447 look for when she goes into that department, aside from the incidental of getting a dress of the proper size, is something that is a sufficient expression of the style which she can wear?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer, if she can. Do you want the question read again, or do you understand it?

The Witness: Well, each customer, of course, demands a different type of clothes. Some look for style, some for quality. I mean, quality may happen to govern one person; price may govern another, who is not the judge so much of the merchandise as the fact she is willing to pay. There is a difference.

Q. Tell me this, Mrs. Johnstone, in your department in this class of well-dressed, sophisticated women, are there any women, aside from a negligible number, who will purchase a dress, the quality of which satisfies them and the 9449 wearability of which satisfies them, but which does not reflect the expression of style suitable to their particular, shall I say, personality, physique, or anything else that you want to take into consideration in the question?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as too indefinite and complicated. He says, "Anyone aside from a very few."

Examiner Bennett: Will you read the question? (Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let you answer the question, if you can. Overruled.

The Witness: Yes, I think they do, sometimes.

By Mr. Albert.

9450 Q. Sometimes? A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that it is very often? A. No.

Q. Let me put it this way: Is it not a fact that before you can make a sale in those departments as the ultimate thing, that you must place in your customers, you must be able to give them the expression of style in the dress that will suit them? A. Certainly, that is our aim.

Q. Now, you stated that these dresses were not displayed, did you not? A. Well, they are kept in cases, and perhaps a few outstanding dresses on the floor, new things, usually, but the stock is not displayed to customers except in sitting rooms.

Q. After a woman comes in and tells you the size dress she wears, so that you can bring out something you can fit her with, what is it that a woman asks for when he comes into your department for a dress? A. She usually states her needs, what she is looking for, type of dress, perhaps give you some inkling of what she would like to find.

Q. How did she describe it? Did she describe it by— A. Well, she may say she wants something to wear to a luncheon, or she might say she wants a black dress, or 9452 she might say she is looking for a dinner type or evening. She makes some——

Q. And then, when your sales people get the dresses, and I believe you have described them as keen merchants, do they bring out dresses which they believe are the expression of style of this particular customer? A. They bring what they feel is suitable and as near the customer's demand as possible, especially first showings.

Q. In other words, they want to impress the customer immediately that Dayton Company carries dresses which express the style of this customer, is that not so? A. Yes, suitability.

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M. 9453

Examiner Bennett: Come to order, please.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, this morning I believe I made a remark—I don't know whether the reporter got it or not, there was a lot of discussion—about wishing to put Mrs. McDonald on the stand in New York.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: The reason for that was that we understood last night that she had certain records out at Lake Minnetonka, about thirty miles out, which she had not been able to get. I was afraid if Mr. Haycraft insisted we would have to remain in Minneapolis while she went out, but Mrs. McDonald tells me this morning that she discovered that she brought those records in with her when she moved and she was able to look at them.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert (continued).

9455 Q. Now, Mrs. McDonald, you were requested by Mr. Haycraft to bring in certain papers. Will you examine your files for them? A. Yes, I did.

Q. I think you were asked to bring in blank forms that you used as a shopper? A. Yes.

Q. Did you bring those with you? A. Yes.

Q. Have you them with you? A. They are in the brief case.

Q. You have the forms that you used? A. Yes, I do have them. Do you want to see them all?

Q. Well, if they are different.

(Paper writings referred to were handed to Mr. Albert.)

9456 (The papers referred to were marked Respondents' Exhibits 65, 66, 67-A, B and C, and 68-A, B and C for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibits 68-A, B and C and ask you what these sheets are. A. These are from my daily reports on my shopping.

Q. What do you report on those sheets? A. I report how many copies I have found.

Q. You filled in the blanks on these sheets, is that it? A. Yes. I send these two, the pink and white, to New York.

Q. You mean Respondents' Exhibit 68-A and 68-B, you send to New York? A. Yes.

Q. The yellow one you keep? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I offer these in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The reports referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 68-A, B and C were received in evidence.)

9458

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 65 and ask you what that paper represents. A. This is a Piracy Committee report.

Q. And what information is contained or put into that report? A. Well, if I hold a Piracy Committee report, it is put on here.

Q. You mean a Piracy Committee meeting? A. Meeting, I mean.

Q. And the results of that meeting are set forth in this report? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And sent to New York? A. Yes.

Examiner Bennett: That is 65?

9459

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor. I offer in evidence Respondents' Exhibit 65, if the Commission wants it.

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 65, was received in evidence.)

9460

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 66 and ask you what that represents. A. That is the report of the refusal or the failure to co-operate.

Q. You mean by that, where a retailer has refused to return copies? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Or has refused to acknowledge that he will protect copies, then you make out a report on this sheet and sent it to New York? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I offer Respondents' Exhibit 66.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

9461

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 66, was received in evidence.)

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 67-A and ask you what that represents. A. Well, this I use when I find reports. I make out this slip and I send the green——

Mr. Haycraft: You send copies, you mean? When you find copies?

The Witness: Yes, when I find them. I send the green to New York, give the white to the buyer or merchandise man or whoever man I have contacted, and I keep for myself this tissue, which is right in my little book there.

Mr. Haycraft: That stays in the book; does it not?

9462

The Witness: Yes, it does.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then, you send Respondents' Exhibit 67-A and 67-C? A. No; I send 67-C to New York; I give this to the buyer or merchandise man.

Q. By "this" you mean Respondents' Exhibit 67-A? A. Yes.

Q. And you yourself keep Respondents' Exhibit 67-B? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence Respondents' Exhibits 67-A, B and C.

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 67-A, B and C, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mrs. McDonald, you were asked to bring in a certain letter which has been referred to by you as being received from Mr. Goldstein? A. Yes. 9464

Q. Were you able to find that letter in your files? A. I was not able to find the one you referred to.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this?

(The document referred to was marked Respondents' Exhibit 69 for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 69 and ask you what that is. A. This refers to the letter I mentioned yesterday. Should I explain it?

Q. You can't explain it yet. Now, I notice that in this letter, in Respondents' Exhibit 69, a certain letter of March 5th is referred to. A. Yes. 9465

Q. Is that the letter that you had reference to yesterday when you spoke of a letter from Mr. Goldstein? A. Yes.

Q. And does this——

Mr. Haycraft: May I ask how you know that, Mrs. McDonald?

Examiner Bennett: I didn't get that.

Mr. Haycraft: How do you know that that is the letter if you haven't seen it, haven't got it, couldn't find it?

The Witness: I couldn't find it, but I do believe that this is referring to that letter.

Mr. Haycraft: You believe it but you don't really know it?

The Witness: No, I am not certain.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Between the time that the letter referred to here as 9467 March 5th and April 2nd, is that the time you were not shopping for basements?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that a letter received by you from Mr. Goldstein in the regular course of business of the F.O.G.A.? A. Yes.

Q. And it was received by you after April 2, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. It was mailed to you? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I offer this letter in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Let me see the letter;
9468 please.

(The letter referred to was handed to the Examiner.)

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 69, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is the letter of March 5th referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 69, the letter that you had reference to as being the letter from Mr. Goldstein?

Mr. Haycraft: She has already answered that.

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And is it during that period, during the period of time covered by these letters that you had reference to yesterday, when you were not shopping the basement? A. 9470
Yes.

Q. After the receipt of this letter what did you do with respect to basement and cheaper merchandise? A. I shopped the basement in the cheaper merchandise.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. For how long a period of time did you do that? A. Well, I shopped from until around June, and, understand, that when summer merchandise comes in the basement carries very low cost dresses, and that low cost copies that I might find are in these sports shops and other better floors during the summer. The merchandise is different priced. 9471

Q. Well, there were copies in the basement, weren't there, when you shopped? When you shopped did you find any copies the last time you shopped the basement? A. In the basement?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. Well, who told you to stop shopping in June? A. Nobody told me to stop shopping in June.

Q. You did that of your own accord?. A. Well, I did it after looking through the basements and seeing dresses at 2.95 and a dollar and a half, I would not find any copies in that price.

Q. They are not copies? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Did you stop shopping the basements last summer, too, in 1935?. A. Well, I cannot remember. No, I don't think I did.

Q. Well, what is the highest priced dress in the basement in Minneapolis? A. Well, they vary. They go from probably a dollar and a half to some place between ten and twelve dollars.

9473 Q. Don't you find copies among the ten and twelve dollar dresses? A. Yes, I do, when they are in stock.

Q. Are they not in stock now? A. Not during the summer season, they don't have them. They are beginning to come in now. During the fall season it comes in.

Q. When are you going to start shopping the basement? A. Well, right away.

Q. Did you shop them last week? A. No, I didn't. I think it is a personal matter, I think that is a question, that I decide by myself.

Q. You have discretion on that, do you? A. I think so.

Q. Do you have discretion in what stores you will shop, too? A. No. I shop all the stores.

Q. But you have discretion as to the price lines you shop? A. Well, you see, on my sketches, they usually 9474 give the price of the copy or what it might be, so I go through——

Q. And you did not get any sketches with price lines as low as the basements in the summer?

Mr. Albert: That is not the testimony. Your Honor, the testimony of the witness is that the higher-priced basement dresses go upstairs and that the basement carries the very cheapest merchandise in Minneapolis.

Mr. Haycraft: I did not hear you say that.
The Witness: That is what I meant to say.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You have meant to say it, but counsel testifies a little better.

(Laughter.)

Q. Has there been any use of this form No. 65? A. Oh, yes.

Q. This summer? A. Oh, yes.

Q. How many times would you say that you had to hold a Piracy Committee meeting to determine whether or not 9476 a dress was a copy? A. You mean in all? I have no idea, really.

Q. Are they frequent or infrequent? A. Well, more or less infrequent.

Q. Did you have any last week? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What store was the dress in last week? A. You mean what store was the copy in question?

Q. Yes, what store was the copy in? A. May I look at my sketches? They would refresh me.

Q. Certainly, you may refresh your recollection in any way you want to. A. The copy was at Gerner's.

Q. Where was the original? A. The original was at Young Quinlan's.

Q. Who sat on the committee? A. I believe Mr. Bjork- 9477 man, of Bjorkman's, Mr. Shapiro of Jackson Graves, Mr. Bach of Raleigh's.

Q. Who selected the personnel of the committee? A. Well, I do that myself.

Q. You do? A. I do not always get the same people. It depends on whether they are in or not. It depends on what vicinity of the city I am in. I go to the closest because I have to carry the dresses around with me.

Q. When you hold this committee meeting where do you hold the committee meeting? A. Well, I just bring the dresses to each man. I see one after the other. I do not call them to a meeting.

Q. I see. You just go to these three men? A. Yes.

Q. And show them the two dresses? A. Yes.

Q. And ask them if it is a copy? A. Yes.

Q. If one is a copy of the other? A. Yes.

Q. And when you find out what their opinion is, do you send that report then directly to the Guild and then wait until you get a report back before you have the store that has a copy returned, or do you go back to that store and 9479 tell them right away? A. I go back and tell them to return it if it is judged a copy.

Q. That is what I mean. A. Yes.

Q. That is, if the committee finds it is a copy, then you go back to the store and tell them to return it right away? A. Yes. I send that report and the other reports right together.

Q. Do you ever find that the original is with more than one store? A. Yes, of course.

Q. Are you careful to select a committee so that no one who has the original will be on the committee? A. Yes, always.

Q. And also, you do not select the store that has got a copy? A. No, no.

Q. You haven't any way of telling how many commit-

9480 tee reports you have submitted? A. No, I really have not.

Q. Do you keep copies? A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, with respect to the Respondents' Exhibit 66, which is the report of refusal or failure to co-operate, have you had to use that? A. Yes.

Q. More than once? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever report to Dayton's? A. I think once.

Q. Do you remember when it was? A. No, I could not tell you.

Q. Well, was it when you first came here or was it just before they were red carded? A. I think it was around that time, yes.

Q. Around that time? A. Well, I mean before——

Q. This time. Just before they were red carded or when you first came on this job? A. Well, we did not have those complaint sheets when I first started working.

Q. When did you get the complaint sheets? A. We got them—I could not be sure, I think last fall. I could not tell you the exact date, right around Christmas, I mean more towards——

Q. You are positive that you have reported Dayton's, though? A. No, I am not positive. 9482

Q. Well, can you recall anybody that you reported? A. I have very seldom used them. I have only just a scattering, not very often have used them.

Q. Would you say as many as ten? A. No, I am sure not as many as ten.

Q. Around five? A. Yes, around five.

Q. Were the stores that you reported red carded as a result of your report? A. No, sir.

Q. Has any other store in Minneapolis been red carded besides Dayton's? A. No, I don't know.

Q. Do you show anyone else this Piracy Committee report before you submit it to the Guild's office in New York? I am referring to Respondents' Exhibit 65, do you show that to anyone else? A. This is shown to the men who sign it. 9483

Q. Each one of them has to sign it? A. Yes, each one of them has to sign it.

Q. Do you fill out the rest of the blank? A. I fill out the rest.

Q. Besides their signatures? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know of any instance where the committee found it was not a copy? A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that was often or not? A. No, I would say it was not often.

Q. In other words you would not take a garment if you did not think it was a copy? A. No, sir, I would not.

Q. So if they found it was not a copy, they just disagreed with your recommendation? A. I have no recommendation. I just give them the two garments and ask them if one is a copy.

Q. Well, you would not give it to them if you did not think one was a copy? A. No, sir, I would not.

Q. Do you keep a copy of this report of refusal or failure to co-operate? A. I am sorry, I have not done so.

Q. So you do not have any idea of how many there have been? A. No, I really do not.

9485 Q. Now, referring to Respondents' Exhibit 68-A, B and C, these are your daily reports? A. Yes, they are.

Q. Do you find copies every day? A. No, I do not.

Q. When you do not find any, do you just simply report that you did not find any? A. No, I send in, I put up here, general shopping (indicating), on all copies, and I fill in where I have found a copy.

Q. And this general shopping means— A. It means I shop on all sketches I have on hand, that is, I go through all the stocks.

Q. And if you do not find any, you just indicate that? A. I just indicate that way, by sending in.

Q. Do you have some of the sketches there which you will let me see? A. (Producing sketches) Yes. Those are my recent ones.

9486 Q. The recent ones? A. Yes.

Q. They have changed their form from time to time, have they not, in the way they send them out to you? A. Well, let me see. What do you mean, form?

Q. As to the information contained on the form that you get. A. Has been changed?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, slightly.

Q. These are all current, are they? A. Yes, they are.

Q. You haven't any old ones? A. Yes. I have some old ones. I haven't any here.

Q. You haven't any old ones? A. However, there are a few in there that I do not need to have.

Q. Would you indicate those to me? A. Yes.

Q. I do not mean to interfere with your work. A. I think this is one (indicating). I believe that is all.

Q. I think we have one like this. A. This is another (indicating).

Q. Can you spare this one? A. Yes. What is the date?

Q. August 4. A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark that as exhibit, unless you want to make that one of your exhibits.

Mr. Albert: Mark it my exhibit, then.

9488

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 70 and ask you if you can tell me what use was made of that, Mrs. McDonald. A. Well, this was mailed to me from New York. It is the sketch of an original design.

Q. That is registered with the Guild? A. With the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. With the number of the style? A. And the manufacturer.

Q. And a description of the garment. A. And the description of the garment.

Q. Name of the alleged copyist? A. Yes.

Q. Instructions as to what you are to do about it? A. Yes.

9489

Q. The pencil notations, are they yours? A. Well, that should not——

Q. Is that your own writing? A. It is. I put it down to remember something. It does not mean anything.

Q. I do not want that, just leave that off. A. Oh, that could be erased.

Q. Have you got a pencil? A. I don't think so, no, I haven't.

Mr. Albert: Here is an eraser here.

(Witness erases marks on document.)

The Witness: Would you want one that is not so messy?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is that the same as this one? A. No.

Q. This is one you do not have to have? A. Yes.

(Thereupon the documents referred to were marked Respondents' Exhibits 70 and 71 for Identification.)

9491 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Showing you Respondents' Exhibit 71, will you tell us what that is? A. That is also a sketch of an original that is registered with Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. What is the difference between these two sketches, as to what you are supposed to do with them? A. Well, in this one——

Q. Just a minute, that is 70 she is referring to. A. In this one, if I do find this alleged copy, I hold my Piracy Comminttee on it.

Q. Yes. Now, as to 71. A. In this one, it has already been decided that Worthmore dress is a copy.

Q. So all you have to do is locate it? A. That is right.

9492 Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, I show you Respondents' Exhibits 72 and 73 and ask you if it is your recollection as to whether or not you made out a report of refusal or failure to co-operate with respect to Dayton's on form 'Respondents' 66. A. Yes.

Q. And is that your signature? A. It is.

Q. On Respondents' Exhibit 73? A. Yes.

Q. Did you also make out this report, Respondents' Exhibit 72? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I offer these in evidence.

(Thereupon the documents heretofore marked Respondents' Exhibits 70, 71, 72 and 73 for Identification, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Whereupon at 2.45 o'clock P. M. the proceedings were adjourned to 11 o'clock A. M. Eastern Standard Time, Tuesday, the 8th day of September, 1936, at the Commission's hearing room in the city of Chicago, Illinois.) 9494

FASHION ORIGINATORS' GUILD OF AMERICA, INC., ET AL., PETITIONERS, vs.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

PETITION FOR CERTIORARI FILED OCTOBER 31, 1940.

CERTIORARI GRANTED NOVEMBER 25, 1940.

BLANK PAGE

Room 1123, New Post Office Building,
Chicago, Illinois, September 8th, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 11 A. M. E.S.T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

J. R. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

M. A. ALBERT, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., and HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq., appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.

9500

ALEXANDER H. MARSHALL, of Marshall and Marshall Chicago, Illinois, appearing for the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago.

MRS. FRANCES MALSH was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Mr. Martin: I think she was sworn the other day, your Honor.

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

9501

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh——

The Reporter: What is the witness' name, please?

Mr. Martin: Mrs. Malsh, M-a-l-s-h.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, where do you live? A. 5120 Harper Avenue.

Q. Chicago? A. Chicago.

Q. Have you any occupation, Mrs. Malsh? A. Well, yes, I have. I am in the ladies' wearing apparel.

Q. Where do you conduct your business? A. At the same address, 5120 Harper Avenue.

Q. How long have you been engaged in the sale of ladies' wearing apparel? A. Almost fifteen years.

Q. At the same location? A. No. I originally had a very exclusive floor shop, ground floor shop.

Q. Where was that located? A. At East Seventy-first Street in Chicago.

Q. How long have you been in your present position?
9503 A. I have been there about four years, three and a half, four years, somewhere around there.

Q. Now, you say you are engaged in women's apparel. Just what lines do you handle? A. Right at the present time?

Q. Yes. I mean, do you handle dresses? A. Dresses, silk dresses and knit wear, high-grade knit wear.

Q. What price lines? A. Wholesale price lines?

Q. Yes. A. Well, mostly from $16.75 up to around $29.75, a few at $10.75.

Q. What markets do you purchase your stock in? A. Well, New York market.

Q. Do you use any other market? A. Not at the present time. I haven't the last two years. I used to use the 9504 Chicago market but for quite a few years I have used the New York market entirely.

Q. Have you ever heard of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, I have.

Q. When did you first hear of it? A. About two years ago.

Q. About two years ago? A. '34.

Q. Have you ever signed a declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I did.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: I did.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall when you signed this declaration, Mrs. Malsh? A. Shortly after I came back from New York. I just don't know the exact date.

Q. Do you know the year? A. The Guild?

Q. I say the year in which— 9506

Examiner Bennett: Yes, she said she did.

The Witness: I didn't get that.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What year was it? A. Guild? Michigan Avenue Guild?

Q. No, mam. Year, y-e-a-r. A. Oh, that was in 1934.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: The spring or the fall?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was it in the spring or in the fall? A. It was in the fall because I was in New York in September—no, I was 9507 in New York in July. It was in the fall.

Mr. Martin: Mark this for identification.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 735 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you ever received any communication from the Guild, about this? A. Yes, I did.

9508

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 735 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. What is it? A. Well, when I was in New York——

Q. Just state what it is. Don't say what it says. What is that? A. It is a declaration of co-operation.

Q. No. This is a letter from whom to whom? A. Mr. Golby.

Q. To whom? A. To myself.

Q. Under what date? A. Under the date of August 20th.

Q. Was that letter received by you? A. Yes, it was.

9509

Mr. Martin: I offer that letter in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 735, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Referring to the last paragraph of Commission's Exhibit No. 735, which says: "Will you therefore kindly get in touch with the secretary of this local organization, Mr. Edward A. Fletcher, Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago, 840 North Michigan Avenue, who will be pleased to go over this matter thoroughly with you?" Pursuant to that, did you get in touch with Mr. Fletcher? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you make any application to join the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Well, we had quite a lengthy conversation, Mr. Fletcher and I, and he explained the whole thing to me, and said he would put it before the Guild.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 225 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that paper. A. Yes, I do.

Q. Now, what is it? A. Well, it is an application of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. Signed by whom? A. By myself.

Q. What is the date? A. December 21, 1934.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 225, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

9512

Q. Did you ever receive any reply to this? A. Yes, sir. I received a reply, saying that——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, and may it please the Court, as to what the reply said. The best evidence of the reply is the letter.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 226 and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Now, what is it? A. That is the reply to my application. They refused to admit me.

Q. Dated what? A. January 4, 1935.

Mr. Albert: I ask that that part of the witness' answer that characterizes the letter be stricken, as not responsive. 9513

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Is this the letter you refer to as your reply to your application? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 226 and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, in the fall of 1934, what markets were you using for the purchase of your goods? A. The New York market.

Q. Do you recall some of the manufacturers you dealt with at that time? A. I dealt with Feigenbaum & Adelson, David Crystal.

Q. Any others? A. I think L. C. Rosenblatt. I just don't recall anyone else. I don't know as there was any-9515 one else, outside of Knitwear.

Mr. Martin: I will ask that these three documents be marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 736, 737 and 738 for Identification.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 736, 737 and 738, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 736 for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, that is the duplicate of my copy.

Q. What is it? A. It is a duplicate of a copy of an 9516 order I gave.

Q. Who was the order placed with? A. With David Crystal.

Q. What was the date of it? A. December 12, 1934.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, if the Examiner please.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 736, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin:

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, were the goods which were ordered in that order, which is Commission's Exhibit 736, shipped to you? A. No, they were not.

Q. Did you ever receive any communication from David Crystal relative to those goods? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did he advise you in his letter? A. He advised me——

9518

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court. The letter is the best evidence.

By Mr. Martin:

Q. Can you identify this? (Handing to the witness Commission's Exhibit 737 for Identification.) A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter received from David Crystal in reference to my order.

Q. Of what date? A. December 19, 1934.

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence, if the Examiner please.

Mr. Albert: This is objected to, if the Court please, on behalf of the respondent F.O.G.A., as being irrelevant and immaterial to the issues presented by the Commission; upon the further ground that no proper foundation has been laid, no proof of the authority of anybody to send this particular letter, there is no proper signature affixed to the letter; and upon the further ground that the contents thereof are not binding upon the F.O.G.A.; and, further, upon the ground that it referred to a letter of the witness to Mr. Crystal, or David Crystal, Inc., dated December 14, which letter has not, as yet, been presented, and without which Commission's Exhibit No. 737 for Identification, I believe, is unclear.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. It may be received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 737, was received in evidence.)

9521 By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 738 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from David Crystal, canceling my order.

Q. What is the date?

Mr. Albert: I object to the characterization by the witness of the letter. I think it is about time that Mr. Martin informed the witness not to tell us what the contents of a letter are until it is in evidence.

Mr. Martin: I would like to call your attention
9522 to the fact that that has already been done, as you know, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. That is a letter from whom to whom? A. That is from David Crystal to myself, canceling the——

Q. Do not say what it is, or what it says, rather. It is a letter from Crystal to you? A. A letter from Crystal to me.

Q. Under what date? A. Under date of December 27, 1934.

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please, as not binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A., no proper foundation has been laid with respect to the authority of anybody to write this particular letter, inasmuch as no signature is affixed thereto, and there is no proper foundation laid as to the mailing thereof; further, upon the ground that the letter is immaterial to the issues set forth by the Commission with respect to the respondent F.O.G.A.; and, further, upon the ground 9524 that the contents thereof, insofar as they refer to the F.O.G.A., are made without authority and no proper foundation has been laid with respect thereto.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 738, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: I will ask that these two documents be marked, respectively, for identification, Commission's Exhibits 739 and 740.

(The documents referred to were marked Com- 9525 mission's Exhibits 739 and 740, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 739 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. That is a copy of an order I placed with Feigenbaum & Adelson on August 1, 1935.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, if the Examiner please.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 739, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was this order filled, Mrs. Malsh? A. Beg pardon?

Q. Was this order filled? A. No, it was not.

9527 Q. Did you ever receive any communication from the manufacturer? A. Yes, I did.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 740 for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter received from Feigenbaum & Adelson, dated August 2nd.

Q. Was this received by you? A. Yes, it was.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, if your Honor please.

Mr. Albert: Objected to, may it please the Court, upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid; and the further ground that Commission's Exhibit 740 is in no way binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A.

9528 Examiner Bennett: Overruled. It may be received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 740, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Subsequent to the receipt of this letter from Feigenbaum & Adelson, what did you do, Mrs. Malsh? A. I didn't do anything—well, I don't know what reference you mean.

Q. Did you get in touch with the Guild in any way? A. No, I did not, not at that time.

Mr. Martin: I will ask that this letter, consisting of two sheets, be marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 741-A and B.

(The letter referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 741-A and B for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 741-A and B and 9530
ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter written by me on August 7th, 1935, to the Guild, a copy of a letter.

(Letter referred to was handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: No objection, if it please the Court, subject to investigation as to the receipt thereof by the F.O.G.A.

Mr. Martin: I have an answer to that.

Examiner Bennett: Was that letter sent to the F.O.G.A.? Was the letter sent to the Guild?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was that letter sent to the Guild? A. Oh, yes, sir. That is a copy of a letter that was sent to the Guild. 9531

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 741-A and B, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: Mark this for identification.

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 742-A and B for Identification.)

Mr. Albert: No objection to Commission's Exhibit No. 742-A and B.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 742-A and B, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: I offer 741 in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: It is received.

By Mr. Martin.

9533 Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, will you refer to Commission's Exhibit No. 741-A and B, for the purpose of refreshing your recollection.

(Witness reads Commission's Exhibits 741-A and B.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, after having refreshed your recollection from Commission's Exhibit No. 741-A and B, will you tell me whether or not after the receipt of this letter from Feigenbaum and Edelson, in which this language occurs, Commission's Exhibit No. 740: "However, we regret to advise you that in view of the fact that we have a red card for 9534 your account from the Fashion Originators Guild, and as we are Guild members we are not permitted to ship merchandise to you." Did you or not make any further attempt to sign a declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you receive any communication from them in reply to your letter? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did they accept your membership? A. No, they did not.

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, since the date of that letter, Commission's Exhibit No. 742-A and B, which is dated August 12th, 1935, have you made any further effort to become affiliated with either the Fashion Originators Guild or the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Well, yes. When I was in New York in July, I called on Mr. Golby.

Q. What took place? A. Why, you want me to tell what took place?

Q. Yes. A. Well, I went around and I found that they were all Guild members and I couldn't——

Q. Found—. A. Different manufacturers, and I couldn't get merchandise. And I called on one manufacturer that I had done business with last year, and as I 9536 was going I noticed the Originator Guild sign, or whatever you would call it, in the room, so I said to the young lady that waited on me, "Are you Guild members?" And she said, "Yes." Well, I said, "I am afraid you can't sell me that."

Q. Do you recall what manufacturer that was? A. That was Dolces.

Q. All right, go ahead. A. And she said, "Wait. I will go and see if there is a red card." So she went back and she came back and said, "Yes, there is a red card for you." So I continued, finally in a fit of desperation, I thought, well, I am just going to go back there and speak to them. So I spoke to Mr. Anthom, I think his name is, and I said, "Mr. Anthom, what am I going to do?". I said, "I have got to have merchandise. I came down for the purpose." 9537
And I said, "I see a number of things here I want, and you have me red carded." He said, "Tell me what it is all about. Why won't they admit you?" I said, "Simply because I have an upstair dress shop." I said, "I have been in the business a great many years." And I said, "I have never violated a rule." And he said, "Why don't you go over and see Mr. Golby?" And I said, "Oh, well, I don't think it will do any good. I have had it threshed back and forth." So he said, "Well, I am going to call him up." I said, "All right, if you want to, you can do that."

Q. Did he call Mr. Golby then? A. Yes. He said maybe he can fix something up for you. "Maybe he can get together with you." And so I said "All right." So he called him up.

Q. Did you go over and see Mr. Golby? A. He came back and said, "Mr. Golby said he would be glad to talk to you." I should go over there.

Q. Well, now, what took place when you went to see Mr. Golby? A. Well, we had a very lengthy conversation 9539 and I explained everything in detail to him and told him everything, and of course he talked a long while, and he finally said he would call up his lawyer to find out. I said, "Mr. Golby, can't you do something for me? What can you do for me?" "Well," he said, "Let me call up my lawyer." Well, he went out of the room, called up his lawyer, and came back and said, "Well, I don't know. I don't think at this time we can do anything inasmuch as you are subpoenaed." He said, "I don't think we can do anything for you."

Q. What was it? Inasmuch as you were— A. As I was subpoenaed by the Federal Commission that they couldn't do anything for me.

Q. Since that time have you been able to get any merchandise? A. No.

9540 Q. From Guild manufacturers? A. No, I have not.

Q. Do you recall when was the last time you were able to get any merchandise from a Guild manufacturer? A. Well, I got a couple of things from non-Guild, but not what I want, and not what I should have.

Q. I mean, Guild manufacturers. Do you recall when was the last time you were able to get anything from Guild manufacturers? A. Last year. The first time I think it was in '34. It was in '34 when I was there; that is, when I didn't know so much about the Guild and they weren't so many in the Guild association.

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, has your inability to purchase garments manufactured by members of the Guild had any effect on your business? A. Oh, it certainly has.

Q. What effect? A. Well——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

The Witness: It is impossible for me to tell——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

Mr. Albert: As calling for a conclusion of the witness, no proper foundation has been laid. 9542

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead and answer. A. My trade has been——

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness (continuing): —has been mostly high-class trade, because they have been with me for years. I have had the same clientele practically ever since I have been in business with few exceptions. And they have been accustomed to buying very high-grade stuff from me and having the proper treatment. And naturally a great many just depend upon me to get their things for them. 9543

Well, I can't sell them a $22.75 or a $19.75 garment when they are accustomed to paying $55 and $65, $45. And I can't present it to them, and they won't buy it. They say, "Well, what is the matter with your stuff? It isn't like it used to be."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you been able to replace the garments that you formerly bought from Guild manufacturers with garments from non-Guild manufacturers? A. Oh, no, I have not. I have not.

Q. You haven't been able to find any.

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Cross-examination by Mr. Marshall.

Q. Mrs. Malsh, you testified that you made an application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild of 9545 Chicago, December 21, 1934; is that correct? A. Yes, I believe so.

Q. And at that time where were you selling your merchandise from? A. From my home.

Q. At what address? A. 5120 Harper Avenue.

Q. In Chicago? A. Chicago.

Q. That is the address given on the application that you filed for membership as shown on Commission's Exhibit No. 225? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been in the business of selling dresses and knitwear at retail prior to that date? A. Well, I have been in the business almost fifteen years selling dresses.

Q. In what capacity? For yourself? A. For myself.

9546 Q. Where were you in business prior to the time you were selling from 5120 Harper Avenue? A. Well, I originally was on East Seventy-first Street. I was one of the pioneer exclusive dress shops out there.

Q. Was that in an apartment or in a store? A. No; that was on the ground floor, a large shop.

Q. That was a retail store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the ground floor. What experience have you had in buying merchandise of this type? A. Well, I feel that I have had a great deal of experience.

Q. Have you been buying throughout this period of fifteen years? A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. Now; directing your attention to the apartment at 5120 Harper Avenue, from which you were selling these dresses and knitwear at retail at the time that you filed your application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild. What floor of the building is that apartment on?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as irrelevant.
The Witness: Second.
Mr. Martin: Irrelevant and immaterial.
Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer.
Mr. Martin: All right.
The Witness: Second floor. 9548

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. How many floors are there in the building?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The same objection.
The Witness: Three with a— —
Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer.
The Witness: Four, I might say.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. How many apartments are there in the building? A. I don't know how many. A great many. Fifty.

Q. It is a residential apartment building? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There are no stores in the building? A. No, none whatsoever. 9549

Q. You had a conversation with Mr. Fletcher at the time you gave him your application for membership? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And isn't it a fact that he called your attention at that time to a rule of the Michigan Avenue Guild which limited membership to persons conducting their business from retail shops and excluding persons selling from their living quarters? A. Yes.

Q. And residential apartments? A. Yes.

Q. He explained that to you? A. Oh, yes, he explained it.

Q. So that you realized at that time that the place from which you conducted your business did not make you eligible for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes. May I add something? Mr. Fletcher, at the time, asked me if I could not readjust myself in some way to comply with the Guild rulings.

Q. With the Guild rules? A. Yes. I did try to do that, which I thought I was doing.

Q. He called your attention, did he not, to the fact 9551 that the rule confined membership to those who sold merchandise openly and in the regular retail manner, from regular retail premises, and did not conduct their business from a private residence or home, or from residential suites or quarters in any hotel or apartment building, whether used as or in connection with living quarters or not, did he not? A. He explained it all to me.

Q. And his suggestion was prompted by a desire to have you come into the Guild if you could qualify, is that correct?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that. She could not know that.

9552 By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Mr. Fletcher did state that he would like you to readjust your arrangements, so that you would become eligible for membership? A. No, he didn't say that.

Q. No? A. He didn't say that.

Q. What did he say? A. He asked me if I couldn't figure out some way in which I could comply, if there was such a thing possible; but that was all that was said.

Q. Now, let me ask you, do you know that that district in which you were then residing was zoned under the city ordinance for residential purposes only?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Are you familiar with the zoning ordinance of the City of Chicago in force at that time? A. No, I am not.

Q. And did you know that under the zoning ordinance at that time, the district in which you lived was zoned for apartments only? 9554

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor. The witness has already testified that she was not familiar with the zoning ordinance.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will sustain the further objection to it. It would be an affirmative defense.

Mr. Marshall: Except I am asking her now whether she knew that that district was not zoned for apartments only. She can answer that "yes" or "no."

Examiner Bennett: She has already answered.

Mr. Martin: She has already answered.

Mr. Marshall: No. She answered that she did not know the provisions of the ordinance. Now, I am asking her whether she did not know that the district was zoned for apartments only. 9555

Examiner Bennett: She said she did not know the provisions of the ordinance. I will sustain the objection to it any further.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: That is an affirmative defense, which you may very well make, in case you have it to make. I am not going to mess up the record with conjecture that there might be such an ordinance.

Mr. Marshall: We would like to make the offer of proof, if the Court please, to the effect that if the witness were permitted to answer that question, she would testify that she knew that district was zoned for apartments only.

Mr. Martin: I move that the offer of proof be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken, as not founded upon the statement of the witness, or as 9557 negative to the statement of the witness.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Did you at that time have a retailer's license to do business at that apartment?

Mr. Martin: I object to that, as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

Mr. Albert: Exception on the part of the F.O.G.A.

By Mr. Marshall.

9558 Q. Were you making returns under the Illinois Retailers' Occupational Tax Act at that time, as a retailer?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objections along that line.

Mr. Albert: Exception, by the F.O.G.A.

Mr. Marshall: Exception. I should like to submit the offer of proof, to the effect that if the witness had been permitted to answer, she would have testified she does not make returns and reports and payments under the Retailers' Occupational Tax Act.

Mr. Martin: I move it be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken, as irrelevant.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. You made your application for membership in M.A.G., Michigan Avenue Guild, December 21, 1934, that was the time at which you had your conversation with Mr. Fletcher? A. Yes. 9560

Q. And he explained that, under the rules, you could not be eligible for membership while conducting business from your apartment? A. Yes.

Q. And you received a letter from Mr. Fletcher, under date of January 4, 1935, Commission's Exhibit 226, declining your application for membership? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Fletcher subsequent to that time? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever make another application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes, I did.

Q. When? A. After I thought, or I felt I had readjusted myself, according to Mr. Fletcher's suggestion, that is, segregating my business from my living apartments.

Q. Was that a written application? A. What's that? 9561

Q. Was that a written application? A. Well, I believe I stated so in my letter to the Guild in New York.

Q. Are you sure that that was addressed? Is this the letter you refer to (Mr. Marshall showing document to the witness)? A. That is the letter I wrote to the New York Guild.

Q. That is Commission's Exhibit 741-A and B? A. That is a copy of the letter.

Q. And that is the letter you have just referred to? A. Yes.

Q. As being that subsequent application for membership? A. Yes.

Q. But that was directed to the Fashion Originators Guild of America in New York, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Let me ask you again, then, did you ever, subsequent to January 4, 1935, renew your application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, I did not.

Q. Now, in the letter addressed to the Fashion Originators Guild, under date of August 7th, 1935, being Commission's Exhibit 741-A, to which you have just referred, 9563 you made some reference to changes in conditions affecting your selling, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And you referred to the fact that you had salesmen out in an automobile? A. I didn't say I had salesmen out, no.

Q. That you were selling from automobiles? A. Not from my automobile. I went to and fro for my appointments, in an automobile.

Q. That is, men solicited your customers— A. To my customers.

Q. (Continuing) —from door to door? A. No. I beg your pardon.

Q. You went to your customers? A. I had a special appointment with my customers before I ever went. I never went unless I had an appointment.

9564 Q. And you did no selling from your apartment? A. Absolutely none.

Q. How did you make those appointments? A. How is that?

Q. How did you make these appointments? A. Over the 'phone, and through the mail.

Q. Were these appointments over the 'phone made from your apartment? A. From my apartment, of course.

Q. And were these letters sent, making appointments, addressed from your apartment? A. Well, most naturally.

Q. And this was contemporaneously with the date of that letter, August 7, 1935? A. Yes.

Q. But you never filed another application for membership with the Michigan Avenue Guild, did you? A. Not with the Michigan Avenue Guild, no. I felt that I should take it up directly with the New York Guild.

Mr. Marshall: I will ask to strike the latter part of the answer as not responsive, if the Court please.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

9566

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Did you have a peddler's license? A. I am not a peddler.

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. You testified you occupied the second apartment at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as repetition. She has already answered that question.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

9567

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Who occupied the apartment above you at that time?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. How long after January 4, 1935, did you continue in business at 5120 Harper Avenue? A. Well, I just don't know. I am still living there, I am still living there.

Q. Are you still selling from there? A. No, I am not. Partially, if people want to come.

Q. You carried a stock? A. Since my rulings did not affect the Guild.

Q. Do you still carry a stock of merchandise in your apartment?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial.

9569

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer.

Mr. Martin: You can answer.

A. Yes.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. You carried your stock of merchandise in your apartment January 4, 1935, did you not, at the time your application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild was rejected? A. In the Michigan Avenue Guild, yes.

Q. In contacting your customers personally by carrying your cases in your automobile to your appointments, did you carry samples?

9570

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Since the date, January 4, 1935, have any customers come to your apartment and selected garments in your apartment?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to. She has already answered that.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.

A. No, not many. Maybe one, possibly, I may. They all prefer the way I was working.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Do any of them come? Have any of them since that date? A. No. Well, possibly one or two, but outside of that, not; and that is only by special appointment.

Q. You do not refuse to sell them if they come to your 9572 apartment? A. What's that?

Q. You do not refuse to sell them if they come to your apartment? A. Right now, no. I would if my application had gone through.

Mr. Marshall: That will be all.

Mr. Martin: That's all.

Mr. Albert: The respondent F.O.G.A. would like to ask some questions.

Mr. Martin: I beg your pardon.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Marshall: Perhaps I should, for the record, make it clear that the cross-examination just completed was on behalf of the respondent Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago. 9573

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You testified, Mrs. Malsh, that you purchased dresses at cost at $16.75? A. At what?

Mr. Martin: At cost, at $16.75.

The Witness: Yes, yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What did you customarily sell those dresses for at retail?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

9575 Q. Do you still do business at 5120 Harper Avenue?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. That question has already been asked.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. It has already been gone into.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mrs. Malsh, do I understand correctly from Commission's Exhibit No. 741, that after the time in that letter you took two apartments at 5120 Harper Avenue? A. No; I never said I took two apartments.

Q. What did you mean by the following statement in Commission's Exhibit No. 741: "I gave up my apparel studio in this fashionable building and took a small living apartment for myself and dependents"? A. Well, I took a second apartment, yes.

Q. And gave up the previous one? A. Gave up the previous one and took this small apartment. The other one was a small apartment, too, but I lived more privately in a different location.

Q. In the building? A. In the same building.

Q. Where did you keep the stock which you had previously in the old apartment?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. She has already answered that question on cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: I don't think it was very clear, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: That ground has all been gone over.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you have a lease for the first apartment which you had in The Sadonia?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial. 9578

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you at present a lease on your apartment in The Sadonia?

Mr. Martin: The same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. It is irrelevant.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you employ any salespeople of any kind in connection with your business?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. She has already testified as to that on cross-examination. 9579

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you employ any models in connection with your business?

9580 Frances Malsh—For Commission—Cross.

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you employ any help of any kind whatsoever in connection with your business?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception. I offer to prove that if 9581 the witness has been permitted to answer the question, the answer to the questions as to whether she employed any help in connection with her business would have been in the negative.

Mr. Martin: I move that the offer of proof be stricken as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Do you have a considerable cross-examination?

Mr. Albert: I am afraid so, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, we will take a recess for lunch, then. I will ask you to come back after luncheon.

Mr. Martin: Be back at two o'clock.

9582

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., the hearing in the above entitled matter was adjourned until 2.00 o'clock P. M., of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Albert: No more questions of Mrs. Malsh.

Examiner Bennett: You have another witness; have you?

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Martin: Will you come around, please.

Examiner Bennett: You will be sworn, please.

FLORENCE W. HERTZ, was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows: 9584

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Miss Hertz, will you please state your name and address, please? A. You want my residence address?

Q. Yes, mam. A. Florence Hertz, H-e-r-t-z, 1111 Hyde Park Boulevard.

Examiner Bennett: What is the name, please?

The Witness: Hertz, H-e-r-t-z, Hertz.

Mr. Martin: Hertz.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What is your occupation, Miss Hertz? A. Ready-to-wear. We have a ready-to-wear shop.

Q. What type of garments do you sell, Miss Hertz? A. 9585
The better type only.

Q. Dresses? A. Dresses principally, suits.

Q. Dresses and suits. How long have you been engaged in the retail sale of dresses and suits? A. Well, I should say off and on about fifteen years.

Q. How long have you been engaged in the sale at your present address? A. Since the first of January this year.

Examiner Bennett: Will you speak just a little louder, if you please, so that these gentlemen can hear you also?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Miss Hertz, where were you located prior to January the 1st? A. Well, I had been out of business, for a few years, and before that I was on Delaware Place, 105 East Delaware Place.

Q. When you were at Delaware Place, were you engaged in the sale of dresses and suits there? A. Yes, uh huh.

9587 Q. How long had you been there? A. About three and a half years.

Q. Now, at your present location, was that a ground floor store? A. That is an apartment, first apartment in the building, a large court building, a U-shaped court.

Q. Do you live and conduct business from the same apartment? A. No; we use this apartment solely for business.

Q. Do you do the buying for your business? A. Yes. Both Mrs. Lang and I do, but I do most of it.

Q. You and Mrs. Lang are in partnership? A. Yes.

Q. How long have been doing the buying? A. Well, ever since I have first been in business, almost fifteen years.

9588 Q. In what markets do you buy? A. New York market principally and the better class of merchandise.

Q. Do you use any other market? A. We use Chicago market to some extent.

Q. What price lines do you carry, cost price lines? A. $16.75 up.

Q. $16.75 up? A. In the summer it runs from $10.75 up.

Q. Will you name some of your sources of supply in New York? A. Well, Sportcraft. We depended on for the greatest amount of merchandise.

Q. Any others? A. Lenkowsky, Modes.

Mr. Albert: What was that third.

The Witness: Lenkowsky, Modes. And then the other people, Jerry Dress, and a few others were not Guild houses, Nathanson Company are not Guild.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who is that last one? A. Nathanson Dress. That is an evening dress house. Then we have been refused merchandise——

Q. No. Now, I will get to that later. Those are the ones that you have done business with? A. Yes, uh huh. 9590

Q. Now, Miss Hertz, have you ever heard of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, we have.

Q. When did you first hear of them? A. Well, I think I heard of them right after I went out of business, when they were first organized.

Q. Can you fix the time? A. I would say about 1932.

Q. When did you go back into business? A. In the past January, 1936.

Q. You have been out, you say, for three years? A. I have been out four, about four years.

Q. When you went back into business on January 3rd, of this year, who were your main sources of supply? A. Sportcraft, Lenkowsky and Jerry Dress Company, Nathanson. Sportcraft and Nathanson were our largest ac- 9591 counts.

Q. Have you ever signed a declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. We have, yes.

Q. Do you recall when you signed that, Miss Hertz? A. That was around the middle of December.

Q. Of last year? A. Last December.

Q. Have you ever heard of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. I have. Since I have been in business, yes.

Q. Are you a member of that organization? A. No, we are not.

Q. Did you ever make application for membership? A. We did.

Q. Do you recall when you made application? A. That was about the last week in December.

Examiner Bennett: 1935?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was your application accepted? A. No, it was not.

9593 Q. Did they give you any reason for refusing your application? A. They apparently accepted the first and then told us that when the meeting was called for the third of January they would pass on it, and then Mr. Fletcher foretold before that time that we would not be admitted. I had taken him through this apartment when we made application and told him that we had not signed our lease there, and he made no comment except that it was a cute place. I showed him that it was not fitted up for living, and he made no comment except that it was a very nice place. And a week or two later he prophesized that we would not be admitted because of the restricted location.

Q. Were you ever formally notified by the Guild, by the Michigan Avenue Guild, that your membership—that 9594 your application was not accepted? A. No, we were not.

Q. Did you ever receive any notice from any source that you — A. Just from New York, various New York manufacturers.

Q. Since that time, Miss Hertz, since the first of the year have you made any effort to—strike that out. After you signed the declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild, did you co-operate with them? A. In every way, yes.

Q. Did you place the Guild stamp on your orders? A. We did.

Q. Did they shop your store? A. Apparently not.

Q. Were you ever requested to return any garments as being copies? A. No, no.

Q. Now, Miss Hertz, do you recall when you first were refused garments by a Guild house? A. Well, the first that we knew of it, we were refused the last part of February, we were refused an order which had been placed and accepted.

Q. Who refused you? A. Sportcraft.

Q. Did they give you any reason for not? A. No. They just never answered a letter until their salesman 9596 came here.

Q. Did you ever have any correspondence with Sportcraft relative to shipping you any goods? A. No, they did not answer. I just delivered our ultimatum to them, but they never answered.

Mr. Martin: Mark this for identification Commission's Exhibit 743.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 743 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 743 for Identification and ask can you identify that paper? A. Yes. 9597

Q. What is it? A. This is when they——

Q. Don't say what it states, but just say what it is. It is a letter from who to who? A. It is a letter from Sportcraft to our firm, advising us——

Q. Don't say that. What date is it? A. January 15, 1936.

Q. Was this letter received by you in the mails? A. It was.

9598 Florence W. Hertz—For Commission—Direct.

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence, if the Examiner please.

Mr. Albert: Objected to, may it please the Court, as in no manner binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild of America, no proper foundation laid with respect to the authority of anyone to send such a letter, in regard to the substance thereof, and the condition thereto; upon the further ground that the letter is not signed.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

9599 (The document referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 743, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Since the date of this letter, which is Commission's Exhibit No. 743, dated January 15, 1936, have you ever had any orders filled by Sportcraft? A. We have, yes, many of them.

Q. Since the date of this letter? A. Since that date, yes.

Q. When were they filled? A. They were filled up unto February 28th.

Q. But no orders have been filled since? A. From that date on, February 28th, they refused.

9600 Q. Did they give you any reason for not filling them? A. Not in writing.

Q. Did they give you any oral reasons? A. Yes, sir; their representative.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court. The answer is "yes" or "no."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who gave you any information? A. The local representative.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as a conclusion of the witness. I think the question calls for the name of the party.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who is their local representative? A. Mr. Kornicker is their man, their salesman, who comes here, their traveling salesman.

Q. What did he tell you? 9602

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Examiner please, as not binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild of America, and no proper foundation laid as to the authority of this man to make any statement whatsoever.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What did he tell you? A. He told us that the local Guild, the Michigan Avenue Guild, were actively engaged in preventing their selling to us. That he had got in touch with this Guild, and told them that we were playing the rules of the game in all respects, but that, on account of our location being in a residential neighborhood, they refused to allow the Guild people to sell us. 9603

Q. Since that time, have any other Guild manufacturers refused to sell you? A. Yes.

Q. Who? A. Lenkowski Modes.

Q. Any others? A. International Dress Company.

Q. Any others? A. Well, the others were really hardly refusals. We just wrote, making inquiries.

Q. Did you place any orders with Lenkowski? A. We did, yes.

Q. They were not shipped? A. Not shipped, no.

Q. Did they give you any reason for refusing to ship them? A. They merely wrote that, being members——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court. The letter is the best evidence.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you that letter? A. I haven't it with me. I have the letter, yes.

9605 Q. Can you bring it down to-morrow morning? A. Can I send it? It is very difficult for me to get down. I get up out of bed at noon, I have been very ill; but, if necessary, I could bring it in the afternoon.

Q. Did you place any orders with the International Dress Company? A. We tried to, yes.

Q. What did they tell you? A. Being Guild members——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild of America and no proper foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: Objection overruled; it is preliminary. She has not said they were not filled.

By Mr. Martin.

9606 Q. Did they accept the order? A. They accepted the order.

Q. Did they fill it? A. They did not.

Q. Did they give you any reason? A. That we are not members.

Q. Who did you talk to in the International Dress Company? A. Louis Cohen, their local representative.

Q. What did he tell you? A. He said we were not members of the Michigan Avenue Guild, they could not sell us.

Q. Did any others refuse? A. No. We tried no more Guild houses after that.

Q. Have you made any further efforts to join the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, I don't believe that we would join them.

Q. Did the Fashion Originators Guild ever return your declaration of co-operation? A. No. We received their stamp, we have their stamp and their letter admitting us.

Q. Now, Mrs. Hertz, have you been able to replace the Guild manufacturers with whom you formerly did business? 9608 A. We have not.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as leading, and calling for the conclusion of the witness; also, no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. You may answer.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. You may answer. A. No, we have not been able to replace such merchandise as we depended upon the Guild for.

Q. Have you formed any opinion as to the effect on your business of your inability to get Guild merchandise? A. We have learned very decisively that it has cost us, as far 9609 as we know, $1700 in being unable to fill our orders that were placed.

Q. Will you explain that more particularly, please? A. We had placed a large order with the Sportcraft, and also a large order—not a large order, but a substantial order, with Lenkowski, for the early spring merchandise. Naturally, we let our customers know that we had this merchandise coming in, and we did not receive it. Then, we placed special orders on merchandise that we already had, which were not filled and, in consequence, we lost entire orders; in one instance we lost an entire trousseau from an old and wealthy customer. And we lost three orders from another customer who had bought Sportcraft merchandise, they wired us, thanking us, and told us they would make a special effort to give us the merchandise within one week. We did not receive the merchandise and no answer to any wires or letters after that.

Q. Have you done your fall buying yet? A. No, we have not been able to.

Q. Why? A. We have not been able to get the mer-
9611 chandise. If I were able to go to New York, and scout around for a week, I might be able to find some other houses to take their place; but, in the meantime, we have not been able to.

Mr. Martin: That's all.

Mr. Marshall: If the Court please, I will cross-examine this witness now on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago.

Cross-examination by Mr. Marshall.

Q. Did you make the statement that you would not join the Michigan Avenue Guild now? A. I think that is correct, yes.

9612 Q. 1111 Hyde Park Boulevard, was that the place of your residence at the time you made your application for membership in Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Residence, yes.

Q. Is that the place from which you conducted your business? A. No.

Q. Where did you conduct your business from? A. 1113 Hyde Park Boulevard.

Q. 1113 Hyde Park? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the same building? A. Same building, yes.
Q. How many apartments in the building?

Mr. Martin: I object, as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Marshall: This, if the Court please, presents the same issue as presented with respect to the preceding witness. We intend to bring out the same facts with respect to this witness.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to try to prove that she did live in that apartment from which she did business?

Mr. Marshall: That she was selling from an apartment, and that the rules prohibited it. 9614

Examiner Bennett: That is in the record. What else do you want?

Mr. Marshall: Well, I want to show that it was an apartment building.

Mr. Martin: She has testified to that.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer. Objection overruled.

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Martin: If you know.

A. I should say in the neighborhood of between thirty-six and forty.

By Mr. Marshall. 9615

Q. Are there any stores in the building? A. Not right now.

Q. At that time you filed your application, were there any, at the time you made your application? A. I am not certain whether the one that had been there had gone out or not. That also was in an apartment.

Q. Are there any stores in the building, that was my question. A. No. There never have been.

Q. At the time you signed your application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild, you had a conversation with Mr. Fletcher, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact that at that time Mr. Fletcher went over the rules of the Michigan Avenue Guild with you? A. Well, he read them off so rapidly that we could hardly pay attention to most of them.

Q. Did you understand, or did you not understand that there was a rule to the effect that no member could sell merchandise except from regular retail premises, and not sell from a private apartment? A. No, no. I took Mr. Fletcher through that apartment before we signed the 9617 lease.

Q. Did he tell you he would take your application, but that it would be subject to the action of the board of directors of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Not then, not at that time, no.

Q. He did not tell you that at the time he took your application? A. No. I had occasion to call him up a few days after, when he told me that.

Q. Did you ask him why he wanted to see the apartment? A. No; I wanted to show it to him.

Q. What was the purpose of showing him the apartment? A. Well, Mrs. Lang's brother was one of the originators of the Fashion Guild in New York.

Q. Yes. A. And he told us that we were within our rights to take an apartment provided no one lived there.
9618 He suggested that we do that, so before we signed the lease we thought that——

Q. What was his name? A. Stanley Brown.

Q. Stanley Brown? A. Stanley Brown was formerly of Brown Brothers.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead and finish your answer.

The Witness: We took Mr. Fletcher through on our own accord.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead.

The Witness: We wanted to prove to him—we wanted to prove to him that there were no living facilities, so I asked him if he would like to come through and see the apartment. He did not ask to see it. I offered to show it to him.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Was it fitted up like an ordinary apartment? Did it have a stove in it? A. In the kitchen, yes.

Q. Bathroom? A. Yes, naturally.

Q. Kitchen? A. Naturally, yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Fletcher told you your application would have to be passed upon by the board? A. 9620
When I called him up a few days later, yes.

Q. At the time isn't it a fact that you had not yet signed your lease, but merely had an option on your lease? A. When I took him through, yes.

Q. Yes. Did you understand that your application was accepted then and there? A. We really didn't think anything about it. We thought as long as we were members of the New York Guild, naturally we were automatically members of this Guild.

Q. Did you know that there were rules of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, never had heard of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. Well, you signed an application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. At that time. Yes, up to this time I never had heard of the Michigan Avenue Guild. 9621

Q. When you signed your application, were you interested in knowing whether they had any rules? A. We presumed that they were the same rules as the Fashion.

Q. Fashion Originators Guild? A. Style piracy, price cutting, premature sales, such things.

Q. What did Mr. Lang tell you with respect to this apartment and membership when you talked to him? A. Mr. Brown?

Q. Mr. Brown . A. Well, he advised us to take an apartment.

Q. Did he suggest your calling Mr. Fletcher out there? A. I don't think Mr. Brown knew anything about the Michigan Avenue Guild either. That was not formed at the same time; was it, Fashion Originators?

Q. Do you know why he would suggest an apartment without any living quarters?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer.

Mr. Martin: All right. Go ahead.

The Witness: He didn't suggest that.

9623 Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

Q. (The question was read.) A. That wasn't Mr. Brown's suggestion. I knew that the Fashion Originators Guild would not permit anyone to do business from the same place that they lived.

Q. You knew that the Fashion Originators Guild would not permit that? A. In a dwelling, oh, yes.

Q. What did you base that information on, or that impression on? A. Why, it wasn't an impression; it was a fact that we obtained from Mr. Cornicker when we came down to buy—do our first buying.

Q. Do you know as a fact that there is no such rule of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. No, I really don't.

9624 Q. Who gave you this information? A. Mr. Cornicker.

Q. Mr. Cornicker? A. Mr. Cornicker.

Q. Who is he? A. Mr. Cornicker is the salesman for the Sportcraft, Incorporated.

Q. Of New York? A. Yes.

Q. You relied on his information? A. Naturally.

Q. As to what the rules of the Michigan Avenue Guild were? A. Oh, Michigan Avenue Guild. We didn't know anything about the Michigan Avenue Guild until we got a letter from New York telling us to join them.

Q. When you filed your application for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild and gave it to Mr. Fletcher— A. Yes.

Q. —you then knew that you were seeking membership in a Chicago organization; did you not? A. Yes, uh huh.

Q. You say you were not concerned about their rules? A. Well, not to the extent of the way he rattled them off, no. We were refused to copy, and naturally when refused to copy, we weren't especially interested in what the rules were. We thought it was automatically the same as the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. There was some question in your mind as to whether or not it would be— A. Only from——

Q. Satisfactory? A. Conducting business from a dwelling, yes.

Q. So it was furnished as a dwelling at the time; was it not? A. No; it wasn't furnished at all at the time.

Q. It was equipped as a dwelling? A. No. It was a dwelling but it was laid out as a dwelling, no furnishings in it at the time we showed it to him. It was just the bare apartment.

Q. Did you know at the time that that district was zoned for apartments only? A. No.

Mr. Martin: Don't answer. Objected to, your Honor, irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: I will let her answer that one question.

9627

The Witness: No, we did not.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Did you ever make inquiry as to whether you had the right to conduct the sale of merchandise from that apartment under the Chicago zoning ordinance?

Mr. Martin: Just a second. Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to that.

Mr. Marshall: We should like to make a proffer, if she were permitted to answer she would testify that she did know.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: Move that the offer be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: There is no basis for that offer of proof. I strike it, without probable basis of fact.

Mr. Marshall: The reason we present the question, if the Court please, is because we assume that one who engages in business in the city——

Examiner Bennett: Her answers would indi-
9629 cate that she had no such knowledge.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. How long after your first meeting with Mr. Fletcher were you advised that your application could not be accepted by the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. I should say about a week later.

Q. A week later. That is the only application that you made for membership? A. Naturally.

Q. Are you selling merchandise from that apartment now? A. We are.

Q. Continuously since the time of your application? A. We have.

Mr. Marshall: That will be all for the Michigan
9630 Avenue Guild, if the Court please.

Mr. Albert: No questions.

Mr. Martin: That is all, Miss Hertz.

Mr. Marshall: If the Court please, I wonder if I could ask one more question?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, sure.

By Mr. Marshall.

Q. Did you have a retailer's license?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. Don't answer. Irrelevant and immaterial, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Marshall: Exception. I desire to make an offer of proof, if the Court please, if she were permitted to answer her testimony would be that she did not have.

Mr. Martin: Move that the offer be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken as irrelevant. Anything further? 9632

Mr. Marshall: That will be all, Judge.

Mr. Martin: That is all, Miss Hertz. Thanks very much for coming down.

(Witness excused.)

EDWARD A. FLETCHER was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you please state your name, full name and residence, Mr. Fletcher? A. Edward A. Fletcher, F-l-e-t-c-h-e-r. 9633

Q. Where do you live? A. 529 Wellington Avenue, Chicago.

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Fletcher? A. Secretary of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. What is the Michigan Avenue Guild, Mr. Fletcher? A. A trade association.

Q. Composed of? A. In what respect?

Q. Well, who goes to make up the membership, not the names but the types of business? A. Retailers of the ready-to-wear industry in the city of Chicago.

Q. When was the Michigan Avenue Guild organized? A. Approximately 1932 or '33 some time.

Q. Can you recall it any more definitely as to months? A. Well, I was not connected with the Guild at its original inception.

Q. Would you say the last part of '32 or the— A. Some time in '32.

Q. How long have you been secretary of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. About July or so, 1933.

9635 Q. Is the Michigan Avenue Guild a corporation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Chartered under what laws? A. The laws of the state of Illinois.

Q. How is the Guild governed? A. It is governed by a board of directors.

Q. How is that board of directors chosen? A. From the membership.

Q. In what manner? A. By a vote.

Q. A vote of whom, the members? A. Vote of the members.

Q. Does the Michigan Avenue Guild have any other officers than you as secretary? A. We have an attorney, counsel.

9636 Q. Who is your counsel? A. Mr. Alexander H. Marshall.

Q. Do you have a president? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is the president? A. Mr. Guy Eiderheimer, Sr., E-i-d-e-r-h-e-i-m-e-r.

Q. Do you have any other officers, vice-president, treasurer? A. Vice-president is Mr. Frank L. Cole, C-o-l-e.

Q. How about your treasurer? A. Treasurer is Mr. Lawrence R. Pearson, P-e-a-r-s-o-n.

Q. Who composes the board of governors? A. The board of governors at the present is composed of Mr. Eiderheimer, Mr. Cole, Mr. Harry Blum, Mr. Leo Bramson, Mr. Greenbaum, Mr. Lindbergh, Mr. Leavitt, Miss Gossert.

Q. Miss who? A. Miss Gossert, G-o-s-s-e-r-t, and Mr. Rose.

Q. Rose? A. Rose, R-o-s-e. That is nine, is it?

Q. Yes, sir. What are the purposes of the Michigan Avenue Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as being irrelevant, immaterial, outside of the scope of the Federal Trade Commission's com- 9638 plaint, which can have jurisdiction solely over interstate matters, and the purposes of the Michigan Avenue Guild as a local organization are something which are beyond the scope entirely of the Commission's investigation, and on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild, in the absence of counsel for the Michigan Avenue Guild I wish to make an objection on his behalf.

Examiner Bennett: Have you a certificate of incorporation?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: Have you one with you, Mr. Fletcher?

The Witness: No, sir. I think it was delivered 9639 to Mr. Nevein. It is incorporated in the State of Illinois not for profit.

Examiner Bennett: It is not in evidence?

Mr. Martin: No, sir, I don't think it is in evidence.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. You say you have not a copy of it with you? A. No, sir.

9640 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Have you a copy which you can produce to-morrow? A. I presume our attorney has.

Q. I ask you at this time, if you will, if it is available, produce that to-morrow. A. Yes, sir. The certificate of incorporation?

Q. Yes, as to the purposes.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if there is no question raised as to the best evidence, you may go ahead.

Mr. Albert: I am afraid I must raise the objection, your Honor, that the best evidence is the certificate of incorporation.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I know it is. I say, if 9641 that question is not raised, I will let him go ahead. If it is, I don't see how he can.

Mr. Albert: May we be off the record for a moment, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Has the Michigan Avenue Guild adopted any by-laws? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: Will you mark these for identification, please, Commission's Exhibits 744-A to K?

By Mr. Martin.

9642

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 744-A to K for Identification and ask you can you identify that, Mr. Fletcher? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is the by-laws of the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Up to what date? A. The by-laws were amended and brought up to date, I think shortly before the first of this year.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Does Commission's Exhibit 744-A to K contain the amendments? In other words, are they the by-laws which are in effect at this time? A. May I consult some references that I have in my brief case, for comparison?

Mr. Martin: Yes. Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you a complete set, up to date, with you? A. Yes.

Mr. Martin: Suppose we just mark those, in 9644 place of the ones that have been marked Commission's Exhibits 744-A to K, suppose we mark these, in their stead, Commission's Exhibits 744-A to H for Identification?

Examiner Bennett: Very well.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 744-A to H, respectively, for Identification.)

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 744-A to H, being the by-laws of the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago, as adopted March 2nd, 1933, and amended November 7th, 1933, October 24th, 1934 and December 17th, 1935 and as being the by-laws now in effect. 9645

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, upon the part of the Michigan Avenue Guild as being immaterial and irrelevant; as being incompetent to the issues of the complaint of the Federal Trade Commission, it concerning purely a local organization, intrastate in character. The same objection on the part of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Overruled, and the document is received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 744-A to H, respectively, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: I will ask this be marked for identification Commission's Exhibit No. 745.

Examiner Bennett: One sheet?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 745 for Identification.)

9647

Mr. Martin: I will ask that this document be marked Commission's Exhibit 746-A and B for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 746-A and B for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 745 for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a list of the officers, board of directors, advisory board, executive committee, publicity and advertising, arbitration committee, wholesalers' relationship committee, State Street contact committee, of 9648 the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. For what year? A. For the year 1936.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibit No. 745.

Mr. Albert: Objected to, on the part of the Michigan Avenue Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild, as being immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 745, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin:

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 746-A and B and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. A list of the rules and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. In effect as of what date? A. In effect as of the present date.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 746-A and B. 9650

Mr. Albert: Objected to, may it please the Court, on the part of the Michigan Ayenue Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild, as being immaterial and irrelevant, and as being incompetent, in that it concerns matters not within the scope of the Commission's complaint, nor within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission, being confined to matters solely intrastate in character, and of local origin and inception and, in addition, that it is in no manner binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. It is received as Commission's Exhibit No. 746-A and B.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 9651

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 746-A and B, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin:

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, are any meetings of the Michigan Avenue Guild ever held and, if so, when? A. Meetings are held from time to time upon executive call, of the president, or any ten members of the organization.

Q. Are written records of these meetings kept? A. Yes.

Mr. Martin: I will ask that this be marked Commission's Exhibit 747-A to E, inclusive, for Identification.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 747-A to E, inclusive, for Identification.)

Mr. Martin: And I ask that these also be marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 748-A and B.

9653

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 748-A and B for Identification.)

Mr. Martin: I ask that these documents be marked for identification, with the proper subletterings where necessary, Commission's Exhibits Nos. 749 to 815.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits Nos. 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, X-786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 9654 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814 and 815, inclusive, for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, I hand you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 747-A to E, to 815-A and B for Identification, which exhibits purport to be minutes of the meetings of the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago held on December 17th, 1932, down to October 4th, 1935. There are also included in these minutes various minutes of meetings of the board of directors and also of the executive committee of the Michigan Avenue Guild and various annual reports of the officers of the Michigan Avenue Guild rendered to the membership at certain meetings and ask you if you can identify those as being what they purport to be. A. Does it make any difference if I separate these? That will disrupt the chronological order, but it will be all right.

Mr. Martin: No.

(Short interruption.)

By Examiner Bennett.

9656

Q. Do you know the question? A. I would like to have the question read, if you please.

Mr. Martin: Read the question to him.

Q. (Question read by the reporter.) A. I can identify minutes of meetings from February 20th, 1934 to October 4th, 1935.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What is that first date? A. February 20, 1934, to and including October 4, 1935.

Q. With respect to the other exhibits, can you identify them? A. No, sir, because I was not secretary at the time those minutes were recorded.

9657

Mr. Martin: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Can you identify these exhibits which purport to be minutes of meetings, at a time when you were not secretary of the company, as being true copies of the records of the Michigan Avenue Guild, as furnished to the Federal Trade Commission by Mr. Marshall? A. Are we going to be technical? I cannot identify these meetings. It is not my composition, it is Mr. Marshall's.

Q. Can you identify these as the papers that were furnished— A. From the minute book.

Q. (Continuing) —from the minute book of the Michigan Avenue Guild, to the Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I offer these exhibits in evidence.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I object particularly to the introduction into evidence of any minutes or reports of meetings of officers or 9659 committees which occurred prior to the time covered by the complaint of the Federal Trade Commission, as being irrelevant and immaterial to the proceedings.

I also object to the introduction into evidence of these reports of the proceedings of various committees of the Michigan Avenue Guild, and of the Michigan Avenue Guild itself, as being immaterial and irrelevant, and as being incompetent, in dealing with matters purely intrastate in character, which matters are outside the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission, and form no part of the complaint. And I further object to the same upon the ground that no proper foundation has 9660 been laid as to connection with the Fashion Originators Guild; and, further, upon the ground that the same are not binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: They will be received as Commission's Exhibits 747-A to E, to 815-A and B, inclusive.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 747-A to E, to 815-A and B, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: May we be off the record, your Honor?

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: In view of the representations of counsel that the attorney for the Michigan Avenue Guild, who is absent, would have an especial interest in certain documents still to be presented, the Examiner will adjourn the hearing until 10.00 o'clock to-morrow morning, at this place. 9662

(Thereupon, at 4.00 o'clock P. M., the hearing in the above entitled matter was adjourned until 10 o'clock A. M., Wednesday, September 9th, 1936.)

Room 1123, New Post Office Building, Chicago, Illinois, September 9th, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M. E.S.T.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, at this time I am going to ask that Mr. Fletcher step down. I have another witness with whom I had arranged to be here the first thing this morning, and we put Mr. Fletcher on yesterday for the purpose of identifying some exhibits.

Mr. Albert: No objections, your Honor.

(Witness excused.)

9664 A. E. Levitt—For Commission—Direct.

A. E. LEVITT was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been previously sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you state your name? A. A. E. Levitt.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. How do you spell the last name? A. L-e-v-i-t-t.

By Mr. Martin.

9665 Q. Where do you live, Mr. Levitt? A. My home, you mean?

Q. Yes, sir. A. Belmont Hotel.

Q. Chicago? A. Yes.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I manage the Betty Wales Shop at 172 North Michigan Avenue.

Q. What business is the Betty Wales Shop engaged in? A. Ladies' ready to wear.

Q. How long have you been with Betty Wales? A. About ten years.

Q. How long have you been manager over there? A. Approximately seven years.

Q. What type of ladies' ready-to-wear does Betty Wales sell? By that I mean dresses, suits, coats or what lines?

9666 A. Well, we cater to the medium and better-class of trade.

Q. In what garments? A. Dresses, coats, suits and furs.

Q. Medium to better class? A. Yes.

Q. What price lines? A. Well, we start cost $10.75.

Q. And run to what? A. Well, we run to coats, $400. Or, not cost. I would say $275 cost.

Q. How about dresses? A. Well, we run $10.75 to, oh, $79.50, cost, in some instances a little higher.

Q. Do you do the buying over there, Mr. Levitt? A. I do part of it, and we have another buyer, we have a dress buyer.

Q. Does your dress buyer report to you? A. Yes.

Q. Under your supervision? A. Yes.

Q. What markets do you buy? A. New York market.

Q. Any others? A. We do some buying here.

Q. Have you ever heard of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first hear of that organization? A. When it was organized.

Q. Do you recall when that was? A. It was back around three or four years. 9668

Q. Have you ever heard of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first hear of that? A. Some three years ago.

Q. Did you ever sign a declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall when you signed that? A. Well, I believe at its inception.

Q. Can you make that any more specific? Can you give me whether it was in 1933, '34, '35, or when? A. I don't recall the dates. I would say it goes back nearly four years ago.

Q. Have you ever been red carded? A. No, sir.

Q. Your declaration of co-operation is still in effect? A. Yes, sir. 9669

Q. Since you have signed the declaration of co-operation with F.O.G.A., have you co-operated with them? A. Yes, we have.

Q. In what way? A. The natural ways of conducting the business. We have bought our merchandise, and sold it. We haven't had much dealings with F.O.G.A., because we have bought from our firms and sold our merchandise.

Q. Are you familiar with the Guild warranty stamp? A. As regards copying, you mean?

9670

Q. Yes. Do you place that stamp on your orders? A. Yes, we do, sir.

Q. Since you signed the declaration has the Guild shopper ever shopped your store? A. They have come in to make inquiries regarding copies.

Q. Has the F.O.G.A. ever requested you to return any garments on the ground that they were copies? A. The shopper has.

Q. Did you return them? A. I believe we did.

Q. What was the reason you signed the declaration of co-operation?

9671

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial, outside of the scope of the Federal Trade Commission complaint.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: What was the question again?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What was the reason that you signed the declaration of co-operation with the Guild? A. We believed that it would be for the good of our business.

Q. Is that the only reason? A. That is right.

Q. No other reason?

9672

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, does Mr. Martin insist upon the witness giving him some other reason when the witness says he has none?

Examiner Bennett: I don't suppose he will give any if he has none.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you ever receive any correspondence from the Guild requesting you to sign a declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. The witness has stated that the store has signed the declaration of co-operation, and surely any correspondence received beforehand is merged in the signature of the declaration.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

Q. (The question was read.) A. I don't believe so.

By Mr. Martin: 9674

Q. Did the F.O.G.A. ever advise you that unless you signed the declaration you would not be shown Guild merchandise?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as to form.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: What was the question again?

Mr. Martin: Read that question back.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

The Witness: No.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin, I believe, is referring to the letter which has been in evidence all of this time. 9675 The only purpose of this question is to see if the witness remembers the letter, and then he is going to show him the letter and ask him if he received it. I ask that if Mr. Martin has such a letter he show it to him immediately and ask him if he received such a letter.

Mr. Martin: I would suggest that Mr. Albert seems to be a mind reader this morning.

Mr. Albert: I say, "If you have such a letter." We can save some time at this stage of the game. I think we are all interested in completing the hearings as soon as possible.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have any Guild manufacturers ever refused to sell you any garments? A. No.

Q. Did you ever buy anything from Ben Gershel? A. Ben Gershel?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, occasionally.

9677 Q. Did Ben Gershel ever refuse to sell you any merchandise? A. Not that I remember of.

Q. Do you remember a Commission attorney, Mr. Evans, interviewing you?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial and irrelevant.

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: Will you resume the stand, please, Mr. Fletcher?

9678

EDWARD A. FLETCHER thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin (continued).

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, what are the purposes or objects of the Michigan Avenue Guild?

Mr. Albert: As contained in the charter, you mean, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

The Witness: As contained in the charter?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Yes. A. A corporation, incorporated not for profit, of the State of Illinois, to advance the trade interests of its members. It is to maintain merchandising, advertising policies and standards in the retail wearing apparel trade, from its customs and usages to advance trade and commercial interests of its members.

9680

Q. How many members are there of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Approximately eighty.

Q. Have you a list of those members? A. Not available, at the present time. I have a list.

Q. Can you procure such information and bring it in this afternoon? A. I doubt whether I could get that this afternoon or not, because my office girl is away.

Q. Could you produce a list of the members to-morrow? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you do so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As Secretary of the Michigan Avenue Guild, Mr. Fletcher, do you communicate with the members of the Michigan Avenue Guild relative to the affairs of the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

9681

Mr. Martin: I will ask that these documents be marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 816, 817, 818, 819, 820-A and B, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825 and 826.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 816, 817, 818, 819, 820-A and B, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825 and 826 for Identification.)

9682 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, I hand you Commission's Exhibits No. 816 to 825, inclusive, for Identification and ask can you identify those papers?

(A short pause.)

The Witness: The question, please?

Q. (The question was read.) A. I can.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What are they? A. Separate identifications for 9683 each one?

Q. No, they are all practically the same. A. Correspondence, letters of general information to the members of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Mr. Albert: Those are mimeographed forms?

The Witness: Mimeographed forms, form letters.

Examiner Bennett: Sent by whom?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Were those letters sent by the Michigan Avenue Guild to its members? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer these in evidence."

9684 Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, upon the ground that they concern matters, transactions and policies which are purely local in character as between the Michigan Avenue Guild and its members, and in no manner binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, nor the possible subjects of investigation or complaint by the Federal Trade Commission, as not being within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission, concerning, as they do, solely matters which are intrastate in character.

Mr. Marshall: The Michigan Avenue Guild joins in the objection, if the Court please, on the same ground.

Examiner Bennett: I want to see them.

(The paper writings referred to were handed to the Examiner.)

Examiner Bennett: The objections are overruled and the——

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: —documents are received in evidence. 9686

Mr. Marshall: Exception on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 816 through 825, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, referring to Commission's Exhibit No.—no, I will withdraw that question at the present time. Are you familiar with an organization known as the State Street council? A. I know of its existence.

Q. Have you ever had any correspondence with the State Street council relative to co-operation? A. Along what lines? 9687

Q. Co-operation in considering local problems.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as entirely irrelevant and immaterial, as to what local problems anybody may be engaged in, in the State of Illinois.

Mr. Marshall: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection at this time and let him answer.

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

9688 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

Q. (Question read by the reporter.) A. Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit for Identification No. 826 and ask you can you identify that letter? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from me to the secretary of the State Street Council, dated September 10, 1935.

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 826.

Mr. Albert: The same objection as previously, your Honor.

9689

Mr. Marshall: Same objection on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Examiner Bennett: You said it was a foundation offer. It seems to be purely, as the face of it indicates, a local problem. They speak of local manufacturers and no others.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, it refers to the practice also of the local guild regulations with regard to apartment houses.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. That is local, so far as that indicates.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I respectfully ask that while apartment houses are local propositions, this Michigan Avenue Guild has a contract, which is in evidence, with the Fashion Originators Guild, by the terms of which contract the Fashion Originators Guild will not sell merchants who are not members of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor pleases, may we have an indication of the particular paragraph in the agreement to which Mr. Martin refers, and which he is paraphrasing?

Examiner Bennett: If you want to confine your offer to that particular thing, co-operation as to apartment house sales, in interstate commerce——

Mr. Martin: That is what it is offered for.

Examiner Bennett: If that is the purpose, all right. I do think that it is generally inadmissible.

Mr. Martin (indicating): Paragraph One.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I ask that Mr. Martin not sum up with respect to the meaning of various agreements, and I think that we can both best interpret or attempt to interpret that agreement at the proper time. I don't think that this is the proper time to attempt to do it. 9692

Mr. Martin: That is the purpose of it.

Mr. Albert: Suffice it to say, your Honor, that we heartily disagree with Mr. Martin's attempted paraphrasing of these agreements.

Mr. Martin: You disagree with your own handiwork?

Mr. Albert: Your interpretation isn't our handiwork. That is the hand of Jacob but the voice of Esau.

Examiner Bennett: Well, that is my offer, if you want to submit it for that particular purpose——

Mr. Martin: That is perfectly satisfactory to me, sir. 9693

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 826, was received in evidence.)

9694 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, referring, Mr. Fletcher, to Commission's Exhibit No. 826, the last paragraph, which reads: "Guild has appointed a committee to consider these problems and invites the co-operation of a similar committee from your organization." Did these committees ever have a meeting?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial and not binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A. concerning, as it does, solely local matters of intrastate character, outside of the 9695 jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission and not within the complaint.

Mr. Marshall: The same objection. May I add, if the Court please, that there is no foundation laid as to show the State Street Council is in any wise a party to the understanding or arrangement of any kind with F.O.G.A.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

The Witness: The question, please?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: The committee was appointed.

Mr. Martin: Mark that for identification.

9696

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 827 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 827 for Identification and ask, can you identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from me to Mr. Leo Bramson, dated October 7th, 1935.

Q. That letter referred to the committee which you just testified was— A. Referred to the Guild committee, yes, sir.

(The paper referred to, as Commission's Exhibit 827 for Identification, was handed to Mr. Albert Post.)

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to Commission's Exhibit 827, upon all the grounds previously urged with respect to this type of communication; and, further, upon the ground that Commission's Exhibit 826 was admitted upon the limited ground, I believe, as attempting to 9698 show a tie-up on the question of apartment house selling.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain the objection to that. You need not finish your statement.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: Mark this for identification Commission's Exhibit 828.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 828 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 828 for Identification and ask you, can you identify that? A. Yes, sir. 9699

Q. What is it? A. It is a list of manufacturers of dresses, coats, juniors' and knitwear.

Q. Was that letter sent to the members of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Frankly, it is not my style of composition, I cannot say, "yes" or "no."

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please I am advised by counsel for the respondent, that Commission's 9700 Edward A. Fletcher--For Commission—Direct.

Exhibit No. 828 for Identification, which I just offered in evidence, is already in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 88.

Mr. Albert: Here it is.

Mr. Martin: Yes. I, therefore, withdraw the offer of Commission's Exhibit No. 828.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, has the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago ever entered into an agreement of any kind with the Fashion Originators Guild of America?

9701 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as most indefinite, and calling for a conclusion. Whether or not something is in an agreement is a proposition and question of law, not a fact for the witness to determine.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 5 and ask you to refresh your recollection by reading that.

Mr. Albert: I do not quite understand it. I think Commission's Exhibit No. 5 is already in evidence.

Mr. Martin: I say, it is.

Mr. Albert: And I further object to the question on the ground the exhibit speaks for itself.

9702 Mr. Martin: He certainly has a right to refresh his recollection.

The Witness: What is the question?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Martin: The question before that.

(Question read as follows: "Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, has the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago ever entered into an agreement of any kind with the Fashion Originators Guild of America?")

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Is that agreement in effect at this time? A. The agreement specifies the term of the agreement.

Q. I did not ask you that. I asked, is it in effect at this time? A. I believe the agreement expires in 1940, subject to cancellation by either party on specified notice.

Q. Has it ever been canceled by either party? A. No, sir.

Q. And, to the best of your knowledge, it is in effect at this time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is this the first agreement that was entered into on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I have knowledge of a previous 9704 agreement, but I cannot say that it is in my custody.

Q. In whose custody is it in? A. I presume in the custody of our attorney.

Q. Do you know the date of that document? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you give me the approximate date of it, the year? A. The date of the contract?

Q. Yes. A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Was it in 1934? A. I cannot say.

Q. Was it in 1933? A. I could not say.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please——

Examiner Bennett: Did you turn that document over to the attorneys of the Guild?

The Witness: Our attorney was in charge of handling all documents of such a nature. The 9705 secretary is not the executive secretary, merely takes the orders of the board of directors.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. He had original custody of the documents?

The Witness: Sir? The secretary?

Examiner Bennett: No, the attorney.

The Witness: Yes. Yes, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right.

9706 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Never been in your custody? A. No.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess for ten minutes.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did the Michigan Avenue Guild ever have any correspondence with the F.O.G.A., relative to Frances Malsh, 9707 the witness who testified yesterday? A. Yes.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 224, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231 and 232 for Identification and ask, can you identify those pages? A. Yes.

Q. What are they? A. They are communications from me to Mr. Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Are there any communications from Golby to you? A. And communications from Mr. Golby addressed to me.

Q. The letters addressed by you to Mr. Golby were mailed to him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the letters from Mr. Golby were received by you? A. Yes, sir.

By Examiner Bennett.

9708 Q. Were you writing in your capacity as secretary of the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibits Nos. 224, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231 and 232 the documents just identified by the witness.

Mr. Albert: No objection, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: They are received, there being no objection.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 224, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231 and 232, respectively, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, at the time of the agreement dated May 10th, 1935, that was entered into between the Michigan Avenue Guild and the F.O.G.A., was there any other agreement in effect between the two parties?

Mr. Albert: We will try to find out for you during lunch, Mr. Martin.

The Witness: No, sir. 9710

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Had the previous agreement expired; do you recall? A. I believe it did.

Q. Do you know when it expired? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know for how long a period there was no agreement between the two organizations, Michigan Avenue and Fashion Originators Guild? A. Approximately four or five months, possibly less.

Q. So that on the basis of four or five months the previous agreement would have expired in December of 1934? A. Approximately.

Q. How long had that prior agreement been in effect? A. I could not say. 9711

Q. Do you know why a new agreement was not entered into between the two organizations, not entered into immediately between the two organizations when the original agreement expired in December?

Mr. Albert: That is objected, if it please the Court, as wholly immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will let him answer. You may answer.

The Witness: Do I know why?

9712

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Yes. A. Negotiations were being conducted from the time the previous agreement expired during the—until the new agreement was signed.

Q. Were conferences held between the officers of the two organizations prior to the signing of this agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They were held in New York or Chicago, or where? A. Chicago.

Q. Who attended these conferences on behalf of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. No one.

Q. With whom in the Fashion Originators Guild of 9713 America did the Michigan Avenue Guild negotiate preparatory to signing this agreement? A. Our attorney handled the matter of the execution of the agreement.

Q. Do you know whom he conferred with in the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I presume with the officials of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Do you know whether he had any conferences with Mr. Post? A. Not definitely.

Q. Do you know whether he had any conferences with Mr. Golby? A. Not definitely.

Q. Did Mr. Post and Mr. Golby ever come to Chicago at the time of these negotiations, that these negotiations were in progress? A. I believe they were.

Q. Did you ever have any conferences with them? A.

9714 No, sir.

Q. So far as you know, did Mr. Marshall ever have any conferences with them on those occasions? A. I believe there was a meeting of the Board of Directors at which Mr. Marshall was present.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who prepared this agreement?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court; entirely irrelevant and immaterial. I do not see what difference it makes who prepared it. The agreement is there, it speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: I cannot see the relevancy of it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was this agreement submitted to the Michigan Avenue Guild for its signature by the Fashion Originators Guild, or did the Michigan Avenue Guild submit the agreement to the Fashion Originators Guild for its acceptance?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as being highly immaterial and irrelevant to the issues involved. 9716

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if he knows. Overruled.

The Witness: The agreement was negotiated by our attorney.

Mr. Martin: I move that answer be stricken as not responsive to the question, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: And, if neither one is true, the answer is "no," I believe?

The Witness: The Michigan Avenue Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild collaborated in the compiling of the agreement.

Q. Referring to the paragraph marked 1, on page 2, of Commission's Exhibit No. 5-A to F, I find the following language: "Fashion Guild members will not sell their merchandise within the City of Chicago to such retailers who are not members in good standing of the Michigan Avenue Guild and/or to those retailers who do not observe the code of fair competition in the industry, and whose practices do not conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild. This provision not to apply to such stores as are named in the list hereto attached as Exhibit A, and hereby made a part hereof." Now, Exhibit A lists the names of Marshall Field & Company, Carson, Pirie, Scott & Company, Mandel Brothers, Charles A. Stevens, Maurice L. Rothschild, The Davis Store, Wieboldt's, Sears Roebuck & Company, The Hub, The Fair, The Boston Store and Madigan Brothers. Now I will ask you why were those stores, which I just named, excepted from the operation of paragraph 1? A. I could not say.

Q. Are those stores that I have just named members of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, sir.

9719 Q. None of them? A. No, sir.

Q. Does the Michigan Avenue Guild forbid its members from purchasing from other than Guild manufacturers? A. No, sir.

Mr. Marshall: Objection.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do they request its members to confine their purchases to Guild members? A. No, sir.

Q. I will read from Commission's Exhibit No. 824, which is a letter from you to the members of the Michigan Avenue Guild, under date of November 4, 1935, and which states, in part: "This is to advise you that David Crystal, Inc., has resigned from membership in the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., and his resignation has been duly accepted." What was the purpose of advising your members that David Crystal was no longer a member of the Guild?

9720

Mr. Albert: Isn't that contained in the letter, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: I do not see it.

Mr. Albert: I am just asking you. May I see the letter?

Mr. Martin: Certainly.

(Handing document to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: May I read the second paragraph of Commission's Exhibit 824? (Reading:) "As a result of such resignation, David Crystal, Inc., will no longer be entitled to enjoy the benefits of membership in the Fashion Originators Guild, and more particularly the right to register his original creations and obtain the benefit of the style protection machinery of the Guild." The answer is obvious, it is contained in the letter.

By Mr. Martin. 9722

Q. Now, I renew my question, and ask why did you feel it necessary to notify the members of your Guild that Crystal was no longer a member of the F.O.G.A.?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please. The exhibit in evidence speaks for itself as to the reason. Paragraph 2 clearly shows the reason for sending the letter, to inform the members.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: David Crystal's resignation from the Fashion Originators Guild would not entitle him to register his style creations with the Guild. The Guild could, therefore, not apply its style protective set-up to his merchandise.

9723

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you always notify Michigan Avenue Guild members when a manufacturer resigned from the F.O.G.A.? A. I won't say in every case. Occasionally.

Q. You did not purposely overlook any, did you? A. No.

Q. Why did you only notify them occasionally? A. No particular reason.

9724 Q. Are the merchants in Evanston members of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Do they have a separate organization of their own?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to; no foundation laid.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. If you know.

Examiner Bennett: If he knows.

The Witness: I don't know.

9725 By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you ever have any correspondence with the Fashion Guild relative to the situation in Evanston?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as being wholly immaterial and irrelevant, not within the issues of the complaint.

Mr. Marshall: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: I believe so.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 178 for Identification and ask can you identify that? A. Yes.

9726 Q. What is it? A. A letter from Mr. Golby to me, dated April 15th, 1935.

Q. Was that letter received by you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: This is objected to, if it please the Court, as concerning matters purely local in character of an intra-state nature, in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, and in which the Fashion Originators Guild expressly disclaims any interest.

Mr. Marshall: The same objection for the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will receive it.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification, Commission's Exhibit 178, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 181, 182 and 183 for Identification and ask can you identify those papers? 9728
A. Yes.

Q. What are they? A. They are letters from me to Mr. Golby, a letter from me to Mrs. Emma Beattie, and a letter from Mrs. Emma Beattie to me.

Q. Were they letters from you mailed by you? A. The letters by me to Mr. Golby were mailed, yes.

Q. And the letter to Mrs. Beattie mailed? A. Yes.

Q. And the letter from Mrs. Beattie received? A. Yes.

Mr. Martin: I offer those in evidence.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, this is specifically objected to upon the grounds previously urged, being solely a question of local practice and local matters, outside of the scope of the Commission's complaint and outside of the jurisdiction of 9729 the Commission, in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild; and further objected to unless the correspondence, if any, passing between the Michigan Avenue Guild, the so-called Evanston Guild, Mrs. Beattie, be likewise offered in evidence.

Mr. Marshall: The same objection.

Mr. Albert: The showing being incomplete without the full correspondence.

Mr. Martin: Very obviously the letters that counsel refers to are in his possession or in the possession of the F.O.G.A.

Mr. Post: They were in the possession of the Michigan Avenue Guild when the investigator went in there. Why didn't he ask for them?

Mr. Albert: Those letters addressed to the Michigan Avenue Guild were in their possession when the Commission went in there, and if the investigator for reasons best known to himself thought it unwise to bring in the answer of the Fashion Originators Guild to the Michigan Avenue Guild, I 9731 don't see why the hearing should be interrupted at this time in an attempt to get those letters. Everything was thrown open to the investigator.

Mr. Post: And they took everything.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I move that that statement by counsel be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken. All right. Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Marshall: Exception.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification, Commission's Exhibits 181, 182 and 183, were received in evidence.)

9732 By Mr. Martin.

Q. Referring again, Mr. Fletcher, to Commission's Exhibit No. 5-A to F, and the numbered paragraph 1 on page 2 thereof, we find the language: "And whose practices do not conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild." Now, I ask you, does that refer to the rules and regulations which were put in evidence yesterday as Commission's Exhibit—do you have that number, Mr. Keller?

Mr. Keller: The rules and regulations are Commission's Exhibit No. 746-A and B.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Does the language in Commission's Exhibit No. 5, which I have just quoted, refer to Commission's Exhibit No. 746-A and B?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. The instrument speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: The question, please?

(The question was read.) 9734

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Are there any other rules and regulations, other than those set out in Exhibit 746-A and B? A. No.

Q. Referring again to the language of Commission's Exhibit 5-A to F: "And whose practices do not conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild." Now, what are the standards of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. The standards of the Michigan Avenue Guild are those advocated by its by-laws, rules and regulations.

Q. Since the Michigan Avenue Guild entered into this agreement, under date of May 10, 1935, have they lived 9735 up to the agreement? A. Well, just a minute. That is a big question. Substantially, yes.

Q. In what way have they deviated from it? A. There have been differences of opinion.

Q. Such as what?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as being entirely irrelevant and immaterial, unless made certainly more definite as to what is meant.

Mr. Martin: I don't know. I cannot be any more definite.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What instances do you refer to?

Mr. Albert: I think we have progressed sufficiently in this investigation, and I believe the Commission has presented sufficient facts, as to make it unnecessary for them now to go on a fishing expedition to determine what they would like 9737 to continue to question about.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I believe we have progressed sufficiently in this case for Mr. Albert to have learned by this time that the Commission's attorneys will handle the case as they see fit, and not as Mr. Albert sees fit. He can conduct his own case to suit himself, but I respectfully submit that in the conduct of my case, I will be governed by my judgment, and not by Mr. Albert.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Policies.

By Mr. Martin.

9738 Q. What particular policies? A. I do not recall any, specifically.

Q. Well, you must have had something in mind when you said "policies." A. One shop may be—one member may be in favor of this particular ruling, and another member may be in favor of that particular ruling, in preference to some other ruling; or a member may think that a ruling may be a little stronger.

Q. Do you mean by that, that there have been deviations from this agreement by individual members of the Michigan Avenue Guild, rather than deviations by the Guild as a whole?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as to form, assuming a state of facts not in the evidence, attempting to place an answer in the witness' mouth; and, further, upon the ground it is an obvious attempt to cross-examine the witness, rather than to present facts on the direct question.

Mr. Marshall: Same objection for the Michigan Avenue Guild, if the Court please.

Mr. Albert: Further, upon the ground that the 9740 matter is obviously purely local in character, in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, and is directed toward eliciting facts which concern themselves solely with local matters.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: Question, please.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Deviations from our rules and regulations by individual members.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was that done with the consent or approval of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, sir. 9741

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, can't we shorten this, and have it appear that some of the members of the Michigan Avenue Guild disobeyed the rulings, and steps were taken to see that they were obeyed? I think that is all we are getting at. We are going to waste an hour here on a matter of that kind.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

9742 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

Mr. Martin: Have you finished now, Mr. Albert?

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until 2 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Hearing resumed at 2 o'clock P. M., E.S.T.

9743

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed. You may resume the stand.

Mr. Marshall: Just one moment.

Mr. Albert: In the meantime, your Honor, I would like to point out with respect to Commission's Exhibits 178, 181, 182 and 183, you may recall that I objected to 181, 182, 183 going into evidence unless the reply or the correspondence from the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to those letters was also in evidence.

After checking during the luncheon period, it appears that Commission's Exhibit No. 178 now in evidence is the Guild correspondence which replies to the series of com-

9744 munications known as Commission's Exhibits 181, 182, 183.

The reason why this was not apparent immediately was because Commission's Exhibit 181 is erroneously dated May 12th and should be dated April 12th.

Examiner Bennett: I see.

Mr. Albert: The date which appears in typewriting on the letter was not corrected. However, the pencil notation above it shows that the letter was actually written on April 12th and not on May 12th.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right. I am glad you called our attention to it.

Mr. Albert: See it up here?

Mr. Martin: I see.

Mr. Albert: This Exhibit No. 178 is April 15th.

EDWARD A. FLETCHER was thereupon recalled as a witness for the Commission, and, having been previously sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination (resumed) by Mr. Martin.

Q. Is the firm of John T. Shayne & Company a member 9746 of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Were they ever a member of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did they resign from the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Sometime in 1935, I believe.

Q. Take a look at these. A. This top letter, Mr. Martin?

Q. All of them. They all deal with the Shayne Company. I just wanted to see—hand them to me a minute. I had better refer to them for the record. I hand you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 235 to 242 for Identification, and ask you can you identify those papers? A. I can.

Q. What are they? A. They are letters—some letters from me to Mr. Post, and letters from me—from me to Mr. 9747
Post in regards to John T. Shayne & Company.

Mr. Albert: These are objected to.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Receive the exhibits.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 241 and 242, were received in evidence.)

9748 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 237, which is a letter from Mr. Post to Mr. Considine of the John T. Shayne Company.

Mr. Albert: What is the date?
Mr. Martin: It has no date on it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. (Continuing) —I find the following language: "I am informed that the by-laws of the Michigan Avenue Guild have been adjusted to meet the objection that you 9749 had to them." Do you recall what objection Mr. Considine had to the by-laws of the Michigan Avenue Guild?

Mr. Albert: "Yes" or "no," Mr. Fletcher.
The Witness: No.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall which particular regulation he objected to?

Mr. Albert: "Yes" or "no," Mr. Fletcher.
The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Which one was it?

9750

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial, concerning a matter of local purview entirely, in no manner binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, not within the complaint of the Federal Trade Commission, nor within the jurisdiction of the Commission.

Mr. Marshall: Same objection for the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. You may answer. A. Mr. Post's reference to by-laws, I think, refers to the rules and regulations of the Guild. The by-laws were not changed, as I recall. The rules, in regard to clearance sales, to which Mr. Considine took some exception, were modified. That is, the rules and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. As I understand it, there was a regulation dealing with sales, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that Mr. Considine objected to that particular regulation, and it was changed, is that correct? A. As it existed at that time, yes, sir.

Q. What changes were made? 9752

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as entirely immaterial and irrelevant, and for all of the additional reasons previously stated with respect to the matter being local in character.

Mr. Marshall: Same objection on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: It was modified to permit a greater latitude of promotional activity.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, when an application for membership is received by the Michigan Avenue Guild, do you notify the Fashion Guild that you have received the application? A. If, after the application is presented to the Board of Directors, the application is accepted or approved, the Fashion Originators Guild is notified. 9753

Q. Are they ever advised before action of the local Guild in either refusing or accepting the application? A. In rare instances, the Fashion Originators Guild may be advised before the formal approval.

Q. Did you ever receive an application from Emily Mazer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was her application accepted? A. It was not accepted by the Board of Directors.

Q. She is not a member of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 233 for Identification and ask can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is an application executed by Emily Mazer for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild.

9755 Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection, your Honor, subject to connection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 233, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin:

Q. What does the notation "advised New York 12-21-34," on the bottom of that refer to? A. It means I communicated with New York in some respect in connection with that application on that date.

9756 Q. Will you refer to Commission's Exhibit No. 233, for the purpose of refreshing your memory; and tell me what was the date of the first contract between the Fashion Originators Guild and the Michigan Avenue Guild?

Mr. Albert: I believe Mr. Marshall has brought that contract in, Mr. Martin?

The Witness: I do not understand the question, Mr. Martin.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I say, just use that to refresh your recollection. Now, can you tell me what was the date of the contract between the Michigan Avenue Guild and the Fashion Guild, which was prior to the one that is in evidence? A. That contract was May 10, 1935.

Q. Yes. Now, what was the date of the one prior to that? A. As to that, I cannot say.

Q. Does this exhibit refresh your recollection any? A. No.

Q. Did you read that last part there, the last part of the third line? A. Oh, pardon me. As to the date of that agreement. 9758

Q. What was that date? A. The agreement was dated December 17, 1932.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, did the Fashion Originators Guild ever request the Michigan Avenue Guild to ask its members, that is, members of the Michigan Avenue Guild, not to purchase from manufacturers who are not members of F.O.G.A.?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, as having been previously answered.

Mr. Martin: I don't think so. I asked him the question as to whether the Michigan Avenue Guild had ever done it. I have not asked him whether it was requested by the Fashion Originators Guild. 9759

The Witness: The question, please.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Not to my knowledge.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 234 for Identification and ask can you identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from Mr. Golby to me dated November 10th, 1934.

Q. Relative to what? I mean, don't say what the letter states, but just what it is about. A. Relative to Emily Mazer.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

9761 (The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 234, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What co-operation between M.A.G. and F.O.G.A. is referred to in that letter?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. The letter speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection and let him answer, if he knows.

(There was a short pause.)

Examiner Bennett: I have already passed upon it. He may answer.

9762 Mr. Feldman: Read the question back.

(The question was read.)

The Witness: The interpretation of that paragraph has never been——

Mr. Albert: May I also object, if it please the Court, upon the ground that the time in question, the matter therein referred to at the time in question was legal and particularly sanctioned by the National Industrial Recovery Act, whatever may be the position with respect thereto to-day.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, of course, that is one of the things that is in issue.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead with your answer.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

The Witness: The interpretation of that paragraph to my mind has never been quite clear.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What is your interpretation of it?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as being immaterial and irrelevant. The witness has testified that it was not clear to him what was meant. The only man who can therefore adequately explain it is the man who wrote the letter. 9764

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection unless it is shown that some action was taken with reference to it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. As a result of this letter, was any action taken by the Michigan Avenue Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, unless the testimony is connected in such a manner so as to show that the action is continued and is still continuing after the expiration of the N.R.A. down to and including the present period, within the period included in the Federal Trade Commission's complaint. 9765

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, sir. A. In what respect?

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. With respect to that last paragraph? A. None whatsoever.

Q. Emily Mazer, I believe, you testified has never been a member of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Albert: "Yes, sir," she has never been a member, or "Yes, sir" you so testified?

The Witness: He believes that I testified that Emily Mazer was never a member of the Michigan Avenue Guild. I did.

9767 By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know whether she had signed a declaration with the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, no foundation has been laid. It is incompetent for this witness to testify as to what Mrs. Mazer may or may not have done with the Fashion Originators Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will let him answer, if he knows.

The Witness: I do not know.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Martin.

9768 Q. Did the Fashion Originators Guild ask you to shop Mrs. Mazer's store? A. As I recall——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I believe the letter in evidence covers that fully. We seem to be going on the principle to-day, your Honor, of asking the witness questions and then confronting him with letters which either support or tend not to support his testimony. May I ask that in order that in order to save time the witness be shown the letters in the first place, that they go in evidence, and that that is the end of it. I don't quite see the point of attempting to contradict his own witness and then support his own witness by putting in letters which are the best evidence after the witness has testified orally.

Mr. Feldman: That has been the practice in other hearings.

Examiner Bennett: I don't know that that has been the procedure. I think there is no serious conflict between the evidence and the letters.

9770

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you refer to the exhibit and answer my question? A. The question is, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: Read it back.

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you shop the store? A. She had no store.

Q. Did you shop her place of business? A. She had no place of business.

Q. Where did she conduct business?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. The witness testified that she had no place of business. 9771

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Where did she make her sales from? A. As explained to me by Mrs. Mazer, she made her sales from hotels, various summer resorts, traveling on the road.

Q. Did you in any way attempt to shop her stock of dresses wherever located? A. No.

9772 Edward A. Fletcher—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Was the firm of Fred A. Block a member of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Have they ever been members? A. No, sir.

Q. Have they ever made application for membership? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not the firm of Fred A. Block were ever members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any correspondence with the Fashion Originators Guild of America relative to Fred A. Block? A. Yes, sir.

9773 By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 210 to 222, inclusive, for Identification, and ask can you identify those papers?

Mr. Albert: Let's have them as you finish them, will you, please?

(Short interruption.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Can you identify those papers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are they? A. Communications from me to the Fashion Originators Guild, in regard to Fred A. Block, and communications from the Fashion Originators Guild to me regarding Fred A. Block.

9774 Q. And they were duly received and mailed by you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer those in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I object to the admission in evidence, if the Court please, of Commission's Exhibits 210 to 222, inclusive, upon the ground that they concern matters which are purely of local origin, matters which concern the members of the Michigan Avenue Guild, who are Chicago retailers, and

Fred A. Block & Company, which is a Chicago manufacturer, with respect to the problems that exist between that manufacturer and those retailers, with which the Fashion Originators Guild has no concern, the actions of the Guild with respect to which are not binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, and the subject matter of which is not within the Federal Trade Commission complaint, nor within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Albert: Exception, your Honor.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 210 to 222, both inclusive, were received in evidence.) 9776

Mr. Albert: Your Honor, I notice that Mr. Martin has quite a good deal of correspondence there yet, and I believe that the philosophy of the Commission in offering them is that it is correspondence that passed in the regular course of business between the parties thereto. Now, as regards to that fact, perhaps if Mr. Martin will let me see all of the correspondence we may be able to save a great deal of time and at least be able to concede that it was received or was sent, because these seem to be the only questions that Mr. Martin is asking with respect to them.

Mr. Martin: This is all—off the record. 9777

(A discussion was had off the record.)

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Mr. Martin: I haven't offered them yet.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

Mr. Martin: I merely let you look at them. I had better handle it this way, your Honor. These are all mixed up exhibit numbers.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits for identification, Nos. 179, 180, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197.

Mr. Albert: It is conceded that they have been sent by the parties who sent them and who appear to have sent them in the letters and to have been received by the parties to whom they were sent as appear in the letters.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification, Commission's Exhibits 179, 180, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, and received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: Objection overruled. Received in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: As to the numbers indicated.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification, Commission's Exhibits 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208 and 209, were received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

9780

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 223 for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from me to Mr. George M. Gleason, dated April 22nd, 1935.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Albert: This is objected to, may it please the Court, upon the ground it is purely an inter-office communication between Mr. Fletcher and Mr. Gleason, the subject matter of which is not binding upon the respondent, Fashion Originators Guild of America; further, upon the ground that it concerns purely local matters, intrastate in character, not within the Federal Trade Commission complaint, nor within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Marshall: Same objection for Michigan Avenue Guild, Mr. Gleason at that time having been president of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled, and received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked 9782 for identification Commission's Exhibit 223, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: I will ask that this be marked for identification as Commission's Exhibit 828.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 828 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 828 for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from me to Mr. Marshall.

Q. Under what date? A. Under date of May 17, 1934. 9783

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 828.

Mr. Albert: This is objected to, may it please the Court, upon the ground it is purely an interoffice communication between Mr. Fletcher and the attorney for the Michigan Avenue Guild; on the further ground that it concerns matters purely local in character, of an intrastate nature, not within the Federal Trade Commission complaint, nor within the jurisdiction of the Commission; and, upon the further ground that it concerns matters long antedating the period which is the subject of the Federal Trade Commission's complaint, and that the subject matter of this particular letter has long been superseded by the agreement between the F.O.G.A. and the Michigan Avenue Guild now in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 5, now in force; by reason of all of which this particular exhibit becomes entirely immaterial and irrelevant.

9785 Mr. Marshall: Same objection for the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 828, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: Mark this for identification.

(The papers referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits Nos. 829-A to J, inclusive, for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

9786 Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 829-A to J, and ask, can you identify it.

Mr. Albert: That is conceded to be the previous contract entered into between the Michigan Avenue Guild and the F.O.G.A, prior to the one now in evidence.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Commission's Exhibit No. 5.

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Marshall: Dated December 17th, 1932.

Mr. Martin: I now offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit No. 829-A to J, and agreement entered into between the Michigan Avenue Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., under date of December 17, 1932.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as being only irrelevant and immaterial to the proceedings now pending before the Commission, as being an agreement long antedating the period covered by the Federal Trade Commission's complaint, and an agreement which is long since in expiration. 9788

Mr. Marshall: Same objection on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild. We ask leave to withdraw the original and substitute a photostatic copy.

Examiner Bennett: Yes; that may be done.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits Nos. 829-A to J, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Fletcher, were there any other contracts or agreements between the Michigan Avenue Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild other than the one under date of December 17th and the one which is in effect now? A. No, sir. 9789

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibits Nos. 208 and 209; 209 being a letter from Mr. Golby to you under date of January 11th, 1935, and requesting that you notify the retail members of the resignation of Arthur Weiss & Company from the Fashion Originators Guild; did you notify your Guild members? A. I am not positive.

Q. See if that will help you any. You told him you would (indicating Commission's Exhibit No. 208). A. I may have told him I would, but I am not positive.

Q. You don't know whether you did or not? A. No, sir.

Q. Is Harriet Stein a member of the Guild at this time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Referring to a letter from Miss Stein to you under date of January 14th, 1935, Commission's Exhibit No. 204, I note the following language: "I wish to advise the Executive Board of the Michigan Avenue Guild that I have, effective January 14th, taken Suite 301 at the Belmont Hotel as my living quarters, and will retain Suite 263 for business purposes only." Does that comply with the regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild?

9791 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

Mr. Marshall: Object.

Mr. Albert: Immaterial and irrelevant, concerning matters purely local in character, no connection with the F.Q.G.A. has been shown, and a matter long since passed and completely a dead issue.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: Yes, the second floor has a commercial aspect.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. You mean of that particular hotel? A. Yes, sir.

9792 There are other businesses on that floor.

Q. Yes. Was the application of Bessie I. Barnett for membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild ever accepted? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did she change her place of business to conform to the rules and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. She changed her place of business.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Does the Michigan Avenue Guild employ a local shopper? A. No, sir.

Q. Does the Fashion Originators Guild have a shopper in Chicago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does the Michigan Avenue Guild pay any part of the expenses of that shopper? A. No, sir.

Q. Does this shopper shop stores which are members of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is the shopper? A. Miss Helen Kindler.

Q. Does Miss Kindler make any report to you of her activities? A. No, sir.

9794

Q. Does the Fashion Originators Guild make any report to you of Miss Kindler's activities? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you report to the Fashion Originators Guild any violations by your members of the Michigan Avenue Guild rules and regulations? A. On recommendations of the Board of Directors, such reports are made.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you request the Fashion Originators Guild to take any action relative to these violations?

Mr. Albert: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling.

A. That depends upon the recommendation of the Board.

9795

Q. Does the Fashion Originators Guild enforce your rules and regulations?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please, as calling for the conclusion of the witness with respect to what action the F.O.G.A. takes.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Such an occasion has never come to pass.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have any retail stores who are members of the Michigan Avenue Guild ever been red carded by the F.O.G.A. for violations of the rules and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: He has answered.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Fletcher, that the interpretation
9797 of Commission's Exhibit No. 5, as between the Michigan Avenue Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild, is that the members of the Fashion Originators Guild are privileged to sell merchandise to retailers who agree either by signing a declaration of co-operation or by declaring it to be their policy to abide by the standards of ethical conduct set up by the Michigan Avenue Guild and the F.O.G.A., even though such retail establishments may not be members of the Michigan Avenue Guild?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as calling for a conclusion of the witness.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, that is the interpretation of the specific parties to this agreement.

9798 Examiner Bennett: I am going to let him answer.

The Witness: That is a fact and practice.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And is it not a fact, Mr. Fletcher, that in practice since the adoption of this agreement, the members of the F.O.G.A. have been selling their merchandise to retailers in the district embraced by the Michigan Avenue Guild who are not members of the Michigan Avenue Guild but who have signified their willingness to abide by the standards of ethical conduct set up by the Michigan Avenue Guild and the F.O.G.A.?

Mr. Martin: And have signed a declaration?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have either signed a declaration or have signified their intention of abiding by the principles? A. That is a fact.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

By Examiner Bennett. 9800

Q. How do they signify their intention of complying? A. In the conduction of their business.

Q. Well, how? In what specific way do they signify their intention of complying? A. By signing a declaration of co-operation.

Q. There is only one class, then, the class who sign declarations of co-operation; is that true? A. Only one class of——

Q. Only one class of those gentlemen who are not considered as members of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Anyone who signs a declaration of co-operation can buy Guild merchandise from Guild manufacturers.

Q. And that is the way in which they indicate their co-operation? A. Yes, sir. 9801

(Whereupon, at 4.25 o'clock P. M., Eastern Standard Time, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned, to reconvene at 10 o'clock Eastern Standard Time the following day, being Thursday, September 10th, 1936.)

Room 1123, New Post Office Building,
433 West Van Buren Street,
Chicago, Illinois,
September 10, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 o'clock A. M., E.S.T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same appearances.)

9803 PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

LOUIS E. KLEIN was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having first been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Klein, will you please state your name? A. Louis E. Klein.

Q. And your residence? A. Peoria, Illinois.

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Klein? A. Vice-president of D. W. Klein Company, Peoria, Illinois.

9804 Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, may I make a statement?

I wish to again enter a protest on behalf of the respondent F.O.G.A. to the actions of the Commission in bringing to Chicago a witness with respect to a store in Peoria, Illinois, without any notice whatsoever to the respondent Fashion Originators Guild except as I shall hereinafter note; as a result of which the respondent Fashion Originators Guild has none of its correspondence or any of its records covering this particular store, and by reason of which it will be most difficult for the respondent to cross-examine.

I believe that Mr. Martin informed me yesterday, off the record, that he intends to put one more witness on the stand from Peoria. We wired to New York in an attempt to get information with respect to the store, and have as yet received no reply.

As a result thereof, your Honor, I respectfully request that, in the event this witness should, in my opinion, testify to anything that requires cross-examination, that we have a right to reserve our 9806 cross-examination and subpoena this witness to appear in New York to give his testimony.

Mr. Martin: I would like to state, if your Honor please, that Mr. Albert asked me on Tuesday what witnesses I had, and I told him, as early as Tuesday, that I would have a witness here from Peoria, Illinois.

Mr. Albert: But you were not sure you were going to put him on. Yesterday you first told me definitely you were going to put him on, and that is when I wired.

Mr. Martin: I don't think it is the duty of the Commission's attorneys to inform the respondent as to what witnesses they are going to use. However, 9807
I did put him on notice as early as Tuesday that I was contemplating calling a witness from Peoria, Illinois.

Mr. Albert: The record is clear on that, I believe, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

Mr. Martin: Will you read the last question and answer?

(Last question and answer read.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What business is D. W. Klein Company engaged in? A. Ready-to-wear merchandising.

Q. How long have you been vice-president? A. I have been an official of the company for the past five years.

Q. How long have you been with the company? A. Twenty years. I have been an official for twenty years, but it was reorganized.

Q. Does the store handle women's dresses and suits? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Misses' also? A. All kinds.

Q. In what price lines, at wholesale, cost price? A.
9809 In the upstairs departments, from $4.75 to $29.75.

Q. Do you have a basement store? A. A basement store, yes, sir.

Q. What price lines there? A. $6.75 down, on dresses.

Q. Do you have anything to do with the buying end of the business? A. I buy all the dresses, ensembles and knit goods.

Q. Now, Mr. Klein, did you ever hear of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first hear of it? A. When it was first organized.

Q. Did you ever sign any declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when you signed that? A. I would 9810 not recall the exact date.

Q. Could you give me the approximate date? A. I couldn't tell. I think you have got it down there. I cannot remember the exact date. I know it was shortly after the Guild was organized.

Q. Would you say, then, it was some time in 1933? A. If that is when the Guild was organized, I believe it was in the following season after it was organized.

Q. Why did you sign this declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, as immaterial and irrelevant. There is no testimony or foundation laid to the effect that the witness signed the declaration, or that he knows who, on the part of the store, signed it.

We have a general statement here by the witness, which I presume, without explanation, refers to the fact that the store signed the declaration. The witness has, I believe, in passing, made reference to the fact that Mr. Martin has the declaration there, and I think that certainly would have been much simpler, and saved time, if that declaration had been put in. I certainly would not have ob- 9812 jected to it.

Mr. Martin: You are very kind.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: Read the question, please.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: To secure merchandise from houses that were organized under the F.O.G.A.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Had you been advised that it was necessary for you to sign this declaration in order to be able to purchase from Guild houses?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court 9813
please, and I ask the Court to admonish Mr. Martin not to lead the witness. It is his witness. It is the second leading question that has been put, and, I think, at this stage of the game, such type of questions are known by Mr. Martin to be objected to by the respondent, and I respectfully ask that the objection be sustained as to the form of the question. We want testimony from the witness, not from Mr. Martin.

9814 Louis E. Klein—For Commission—Direct.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.
Mr. Martin: Read the question.
(Question read by the reporter.)
The Witness: Naturally.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, after signing this declaration, Mr. Klein, did you co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you return garments when requested by the Guild to return the same? A. There was only one cause for return; and at the time, the garment was sold, so it was 9815 impossible to return it.

Q. Have you ever been red carded by the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when it was? A. You mean the exact date?

Q. The approximate date? A. I think it was in about April, 1935.

Q. Why were you red carded, if you know? A. We received a letter regarding a certain copy of a dress, and, in the interim, the dress was sold. However, we re-ordered the dress, or, rather, the dress was on order, I will change that statement, the dress was on order, and it was received, and before we had an opportunity of returning it, it was again sold.

9816 Q. And, as a result of that incident, you were red carded? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: Mark these for identification Commission's Exhibits 830-A and B, 831, 832-A and B, and 833.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 830-A and B, 831, 832-A and B, and 833 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 830-A and B for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a reply, it is a letter from the Fashion Originators Guild to L. E. Klein of Peoria, regarding a dress.

Q. Do not say what it is about. What date is it on? A. April 25, 1935.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 831 and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. April 27th, 1935.

Q. A letter from whom to whom? A. A copy of a letter 9818 to the Fashion Originators Guild, signed by our controller.

Q. Was this letter, of which Commission's Exhibit No. 830-A is a copy, received by your firm? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is this letter, Commission's Exhibit No. 831, a copy of a letter which your store wrote in reply to this letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this letter mailed, sent out from your store? A. I presume so.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 832-A and B for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. April 29th.

Q. Is it a letter? A. A letter from the Fashion Origi- 9819 nators Guild to Klein, Peoria.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 833 and ask you can you identify that? A. I do.

Q. What is it? A. Declaration of co-operation, Fashion Originators Guild and our store.

Q. And is that the declaration which is referred to in Commission's Exhibit No. 832-A? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this letter, No. 832-A, and Exhibit 833 received by your firm from the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibits 830, 831, 832 and 833.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 830, 831, 832 and 833, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

9821

Q. Now, Mr. Klein, when the letter, which is Commission's Exhibit No. 832-A and B, was received, which letter advised you that the declaration of co-operation was being returned, what did you do? A. We requested a reinstatement.

Q. Do you have a New York office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who at that time was your— A. Affiliated Buying Service.

Q. Did you take the matter up with F.O.G.A. direct, or how did you take it up? A. Well, as far as my recollection is concerned, we took it up with the F.O.G.A. direct originally.

Q. And— A. However, later we—after some discussion we had, we took it up with our New York office.

9822

Mr. Martin: Give those exhibit numbers, will you?

(The papers referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 834, 835, 836, 837, 838 and 839 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 834 for Identification and ask can you identify that? A. I do.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from the New York office to Klein's, Peoria, Illinois, dated May 6th, 1935.

Q. Now, pursuant to that letter, did you take any steps towards rejoining the Guild?

Mr. Albert: Resigning the declaration, Mr. Martin.

Mr. Martin; O.K.

By Mr. Martin:

Q. Signing up a new declaration? A. I will have to look at that letter again.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 835 for Identification. See if you can identify that. A. Dated May 8th, to the Fashion Originators Guild from Klein's of Peoria, Illinois. 9824

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 836 for Identification and ask can you identify that? A. I do.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter to Klein's from the Fashion Originators Guild returning our——

Q. Under what date? A. June 27th, 1935.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 837 and ask can you identify that? A. I do. July 9th, from the Affiliated Buying Office to Klein's, Peoria, Illinois.

Q. Commission's Exhibit No. 838. Can you identify that, and if so, what is it? A. I do. A letter from the Affiliated Buying Company to Klein's, Peoria, Illinois, dated July 29th, 1935. 9825

Q. And Commission's Exhibit No. 839. A. A letter from the Fashion Originators Guild of America to Klein's, Peoria, Illinois, dated July 30th, 1935.

Q. Now, referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 834, were any steps taken towards signing up a new declaration with the Guild pursuant to that letter?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. Obviously the letter is something that refers to his steps, and is the best evidence of the substance matter thereof, and I believe we can save some time if it is offered in evidence rather than have this procedure of having a witness testifying orally and then putting in the best evidence to substantiate the oral testimony.

9826 Louis E. Klein—For Commission—Direct.

Mr. Martin: I don't think that happens to be true in this case, Mr. Albert.

Mr. Albert. Then it certainly can't refresh his recollection if it isn't true.

By Mr. Martin.

9827 Q. Did you take any steps pursuant to that letter? A. Not that I know of.

Mr. Martin: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit No. 834.

Mr. Albert: This is objected to, if it please the Court. It is in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild, being the substance of a communication between his store and some third party as yet, I believe, not even appearing in the record. I am not certain of that.

Mr. Martin: Oh, no.

Mr. Albert: But certainly a third party.

Mr. Martin: It tells who the third party was and what relation they bore to this store.

9828 Mr. Albert: But certainly a third party, if it please the Court, and their remarks are in no way binding upon the Fashion Originators Guild. No proper foundation has been laid with respect to the mailing of this letter. It is impossible for the respondent to cross-examine the party who wrote this letter.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, this witness has testified that the writer of that letter was the

New York office, who had been negotiating with the F.O.G.A. on behalf of this store's—for reinstatement.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, it is purely an inter-office communication, even if it is his New York office. We are not bound by the hare-brained, scattered remarks of their office boys in letters to one another. The writer of the letter doesn't even know whom he spoke to at the Fashion Originators Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 834, was re- 9830 ceived in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you, subsequent to that date, make application, your store, for reinstatement? A. We did.

Mr. Martin: I offer that as Commission's Exhibit No. 835.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 835, was received in evidence.)

9831

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, as a result of your request for reinstatement, what action was taken by the Guild? A. I think the letters explain that.

Q. Were you reinstated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were any restrictions placed upon you before you were reinstated? A. Not that I know of, except as explained in the letters.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin does not like the letters.

Mr. Martin: Well, I offer all of those in evidence, your Honor. See if you like them.

Mr. Feldman: We like them.

Mr. Albert: Commission's Exhibits Nos. 837 and 838 are objected to, if it please the Court, as being in no manner binding upon the respondent F.O.G.A., being merely inter-office communications, being most indefinite in statements, being entirely irrelevant, immaterial and incompetent to these proceedings.

9833 I further object to the admission of Commission's Exhibit No. 837 and 838 by reason of the fact that they refer to letters from Mr. Klein to the Affiliated Buying Corporation; that they refer to enclosures, none of which have been offered by the Commission in explanation of the specific exhibits that have been offered into evidence.

(The exhibits referred to were handed to the Examiner.)

Mr. Albert: I call your Honor's attention to the fact that not one of those exhibits specifically refer to an enclosure being returned.

Mr. Martin: I think his Honor is capable of reading it as well as you are, Mr. Albert.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will receive all of them.

9834 Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All of these documents from Commission's Exhibit No. 836, 837, 838 and 839.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 836, 837, 838 and 839, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Why did you re-sign a declaration with the Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: For the same reason that we signed it in the first place.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Which was? A. To secure that class of merchandise.

Q. Have you co-operated with them since that date? A. Yes, sir. 9836

Q. You have not been red carded at any time? A. Not since that time.

Q. —since that time? Since that date have they ever requested you to return garments as being copies? A. No, sir.

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you turn over your files in this case to the Federal Trade Commission?

Mr. Martin: I object to that; same objection.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, I want to find out where these letters are that are missing here, 9837 that have not been presented.

Mr. Feldman: They are highly germane to the issues of the case.

Mr. Albert: We have six or seven letters here that have been placed in evidence, that refer to other letters, letters that have gone into evidence without the enclosure of these letters. I think I have a right to find out where they are.

Examiner Bennett: If that is the purpose, go ahead. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Will you read the question, please?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: According to some correspondence there, I believe that such is the case.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you turn over any correspondence, in addition to these letters that have been shown to you this morning? A. All correspondence, we have no correspondence left at home.

9839 Q. Then you turned over everything you had with the Fashion Originators Guild to the Federal Trade Commission, is that correct? A. Not exactly, I couldn't answer that statement, because they are only in possession of those letters there, as far as I know.

Q. Did you get a receipt from the Federal Trade Commission as to what you turned over to them? A. No.

Q. Have you asked for one? A. No.

Q. Have you a letter dated April 25 from the Fashion Originators Guild to Klein's? A. You are asking me the question?

Q. Yes. A. I answered you before by stating the fact that we had no correspondence whatsoever in our files at the present time.

9840 Mr. Albert: I ask the Federal Trade Commission to produce a letter dated March 21 from Fashion Originators Guild to Klein's, Peoria, Illinois.

Mr. Martin: The Federal Trade Commission replies that it has not the letter, and it has never been in its possession, and therefore it cannot produce it.

I will further, for the benefit of counsel, read from a letter to Klein, or, rather, a letter from Klein to the Federal Trade Commission investigator under date of December 16th.

Mr. Albert: Not unless you are going to put it in evidence, or offer it.

Mr. Martin: All right. Read it, then, for your own information.

(Handing document to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Martin: I have no objection to putting it in evidence. If you want it, I will put it in.

Mr. Albert: I offer the letter in evidence.

Mr. Martin: All right.

Examiner Bennett: All right. It may be received. 9842

(The letter referred to was marked Respondents' Exhibit 74 and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: I call upon the Commission to produce letter dated March 23rd from Klein's to the Fashion Originators Guild as referred to in Commission's Exhibit 830-A.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I reiterate my statement, that those letters are not and never have been in the Commission's possession, as is shown by Respondents' Exhibit No. 74 in evidence, all correspondence which has been in the hands of the Commission relative to this store is now in evidence. 9843

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Klein, if we may interrupt your reading of the newspaper, have you got such a letter? A. No, sir. As I said before, we have no correspondence whatsoever.

Q. In other words, you destroyed the correspondence, or threw it out, or it is missing?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: Since when is the destruction of any evidence immaterial?

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What happened to the letter, do you know? A. What letter are you talking about?

Q. Letter of July 7th, from your firm to the Affiliated Buying Corporation. A. All letters that were in the file at the time were turned over to the Federal Trade Commission.

Q. Was that letter in the file at that time? A. You will 9845 have to search me. I wasn't there.

Q. So you haven't the slightest idea of what you turned over to the Federal Trade Commission, have you? A. That's right.

Q. One way or the other? A. All letters at the time, referring to the mail that was in our possession at the time, were turned over to the Federal Trade Commission.

Q. Has anybody in Klein's got a record of the letters that you turned over to the Federal Trade Commission? A. I doubt it.

Mr. Martin: That is objected to, your Honor. This witness has testified three times in a row, under constant repetition by Mr. Albert, that all correspondence that they had was turned over to the 9846 Federal Trade Commission.

Now, I submit that is a full and complete answer.

Mr. Albert: Very full and very complete, and very enlightening.

I call upon the Commission to produce letter dated July 26, from the Klein store to the Affiliated Buying Corporation.

Mr. Martin: I have no further statement to make, your Honor. I have made all the statements on this line of questioning I propose to make.

Mr. Albert: Am I to presume——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is your name? A. Klein.

Q. Am I to presume, Mr. Klein, that you know nothing about the whereabouts of the letter of July 26th from the Klein store to the Affiliated Buying Corporation?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, and already having been answered.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. 9848

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Klein, the Klein store subscribes to an ethical practice in the conduct of its business, does it not? A. It does.

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.

The Witness: I did answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And you subscribe to the policy of honest dealing with your customers and with your manufacturers, that is, on both ends? 9849

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead.

The Witness: Shall I answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, please.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Klein's store does not affix its signature, nor permit its name to be used in connection with any written representation of it unless it sincerely believes what it subscribes to, does it? A. It does not.

Q. That is, you do not sign anything that becomes a representation of yours unless you mean what you say, isn't that so? A. It is.

Q. And you want the public to know that you stand behind your signature whenever you put it on anything, is that so? A. We do.

9851 Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 833 and ask you what prompted you to sign the declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, already having been answered.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: You say I can answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, answer.

The Witness: That was answered before.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that the only reason that prompted you to sign the declaration of co-operation? A. What reason?

Q. Don't you know the reason you gave? A. You said, "What is the reason?"

9852 Q. What is the reason that you say you answered it before? What is the reason that you gave before as to the reason that you joined the Guild? A. It is in the record.

Q. Don't you remember? Can't you repeat it? A. Certainly, but it is in the record right there.

Q. Now I ask you to indulge me for a moment and tell me what prompted you to sign the declaration of co-operation. A. In order to get merchandise sold by the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Is that the only reason that prompted you to sign that declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already answered the question.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

The Witness: That covers a multitude of thought.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you mind enlightening us a bit on that as to your thought? Be a little more specific. A. In order to secure this merchandise that we could make a profit on, in order to secure that certain type of merchandise that we handled in the store, or had handled; otherwise we would not have been able to secure that type of merchandise. 9854

Q. Is there anything else, aside from the desire to achieve the ultimate result of obtaining merchandise from Guild manufacturers, that prompted you to sign that declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as having been answered. He has answered that same question now three times, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Read the last question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: You may answer that. Overruled. 9855

The Witness: To secure models that we would not have been able to secure elsewhere, original designs and workmanship of the character that these type of manufacturers manufacture, these type of factories manufacture.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is there anything else? A. Well, we believe that in purchasing our merchandise from these type of manufacturers, that we were giving our customers the best in design and modeling and value, with other such qualifications.

Q. Is there anything else? A. I think that covers a lot.

Q. Is there a possibility that you also signed the declaration in order to protect your customers when they purchased these best designs and models and everything else that you have spoken about?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already testified, and in his last answer, for the fourth time, he said that covered a lot of reasons.

9857 Mr. Albert: This is cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: It is cross-examination. Go ahead. He may answer.

The Witness: Read that question again.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Naturally, we thought we were giving our customers the best value by buying from these particular manufacturers.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Klein, who told you to say that you signed the declaration of co-operation in order to obtain merchandise from Guil manufacturers?

Examiner Bennett: Do not answer that.

9858 Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Do not answer that. You have not established, nor does the record indicate, nor is there anything in the record indicating, that anybody told him to say that.

Mr. Albert: I will change the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did anyone tell you what to say——

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as immaterial.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —as to the reasons why you signed the declaration of co-operation?

Examiner Bennett: He may answer that question.

Mr. Albert: Will you read the question to him?

(Question read as follows: "Q. Did anyone tell you what to say as to the reasons why you signed the declaration of co-operation?")

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You seem to hesitate. Aren't you certain as to your 9860 testimony? A. I don't get the question.

Mr. Martin: I suggest you allow him time to answer.

The Witness: You mean at this time, or at the time I signed this declaration, or in the interim, or when?

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. We are trying to find out whether anybody instructed you how to testify in this case to-day. A. No.

Mr. Albert: That is all I wanted to know, Mr. Klein.

The Witness: You didn't mention the time, so 9861 consequently I couldn't state the correct answer.

Examiner Bennett: That is what he seemed to have in mind.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 833 and ask you what was meant by you when you signed the following: "Believing the principles declared by your members and your affiliates to be proper for the protection of the retailers and the manufacturers, we wish to go on record as to our own fixed business policy"? A. So what?

Q. So what? A. Yes.

Q. So this: You have signed a document, have you not? A. Yes.

Q. That is the document that you signed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is a statement in the document? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know what you were signing when you signed it? A. Yes.

Q. What did you know about what you signed when you signed it? A. What would you like to know?

9863 Q. Your conception of what is in that document. You don't sign things without knowing what you are signing, do you? A. Absolutely not.

Q. All right. What do you know about the meaning of that statement when you signed it? A. Exactly as stated here within the copy. That is very explicable, isn't it?

Q. That is very explicable. In what way were you protecting the public when you signed this document?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Answer?

Mr. Martin: Yes, sir. You may answer, if you

9864 know.

The Witness: I will ask the——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. No. I am asking the questions, Mr. Klein. You answer that. A. Well, I want you to explain it. Sometimes it is difficult to answer a question when you ask one to take some encyclopedia to answer it. After all——

Q. If you think you are capable of writing or speaking as an encyclopedia, do so. A. That is true, but then your statement, you say how we protect our customers.

Q. Yes. A. That was the statement?

Q. That is right. How do you protect your customers when you signed that declaration? A. Why, selling them original styles that we hope that no one else will have a copy of.

Q. And was that what prompted you in any way to sign that declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already answered that question, not once, but a dozen times.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. 9866

Mr. Albert: For the thirteenth time. He has been caught in a position now where he has to change his answer, your Honor. I submit that that is the object of cross-examination. I am not bound by what the witness tells me on cross-examination.

Mr. Martin: I move that that latter remark be stricken. There is no evidence here that he has been caught in a position where he has got to change his testimony.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

The Witness: Let me have the question again.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind reading the last answer and then the question which followed?

(The record was read.) 9867

The Witness: That is one of the reasons.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Exactly. That is all I wanted, Mr. Klein. So that is an additional reason to the one that you previously stated, is that so? A. Exactly.

Q. Would you mind explaining what was your conception of the necessity of protecting your customers from having the original designs of dresses which they purchased in your store copied by others?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if he can answer it.

The Witness: Repeat that question again.

(The question was read.)

The Witness: We found that many women expected in higher-priced garments to have styles that would not be able to be purchased elsewhere for less. Is that the question—is that the answer?

9869

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. And those dresses that were purchased elsewhere, was it your conception were copies of the original designs that you had at a higher price?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say that this copying of dresses that you had at a higher price was an evil of the industry at that 9870 time?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial to the issues in this case.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And was not that evil at that time injuring your business? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: No further questions.

Mr. Martin: That is all. Oh, just one or two questions.

Redirect examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Where did you get this paper from originally, Mr. Klein (indicating Commission's Exhibit 833)? Was that document prepared in your office in your store? A. As far as I know, this is a copy of the declaration that I signed in New York City.

Q. Who gave you the declaration?

Mr. Albert: Objected to as immaterial and improper redirect.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

The Witness: The girl in the office of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

ALEXANDER H. MARSHALL was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows: 9873

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you state your name, residence and occupation? A. Alexander H. Marshall; reside at 120 Beach Road, Glencoe, Illinois. I am a lawyer, practicing in Chicago.

Q. Are you the attorney for the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. I am.

Q. How long have you held that position? A. Approximately four years, since its inception.

Q. Did you prepare the charter and by-laws at the time of its incorporation? A. I did.

Q. There was introduced in evidence yesterday, Mr. Marshall, a contract between the Michigan Avenue Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild, which bore the date of December 17th, 1932. I haven't the exhibit here available. It is being photostated. But you are familiar with the exhibit which I refer to? A. I am.

Q. Was that contract prepared by you? A. I collaborated in the preparation of the agreement.

9875 Q. Who did you collaborate with?

Mr. Albert: The same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: With the then officers of the Guild, of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was the contract finally drawn dated December 17th, 1932, the results of your collaboration with the officers of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that contract then submitted by the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that contract then submitted by the Michigan Avenue Guild to the Fashion Originators Guild for their 9876 approval?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial, if it please the Court. We are now speaking about a document that is no longer in force or effect.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: I don't know. I prepared the document at the request of those interested in the Michigan Avenue Guild at that time as officers and I do not know when or how it was executed.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you ever have any conferences with any of the officers of the F.O.G.A. prior to the signing of this agreement? A. No, I did not.

Q. Do you recall when that agreement expired?

Mr. Albert: The document speaks for itself, your Honor. It is in evidence.

Mr. Martin: The document is not available, as counsel for the respondent has withdrawn it to have it photostated.

By Mr. Martin. 9878

Q. Do you recall when the contract expired, Mr. Marshall? A. I think it had a life of two years, which would make it expire in December, 1934, I think.

Q. Upon the expiration of that contract was a new contract entered into immediately with the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as having been fully testified to by the previous witness, and the contract now referred to is now in evidence. The dates are something that is very easily comparable.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.

The Witness: No, a new contract was not im- 9879 mediately executed.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What happened when the original contract expired?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, that is objected to as entirely immaterial. The witness for the Michigan Avenue Guild has fully testified with respect thereto. Both contracts are in evidence and I strenuously object to the Commission wasting our time at this stage of the proceedings by putting in such cumulative evidence.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, sir.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Negotiations were carried on for a new contract.

9881

By Mr. Martin.

Q. By whom? A. Between myself and officers of the Michigan Avenue Guild and officers or agents of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Where were those conferences held?

Mr. Albert: Objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: Conferences were held in Chicago and there was one meeting in New York with persons representing the Fashion Originators Guild and their attorney.

By Mr. Martin.

9882 Q. Who represented the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: Objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: Mr. Schiller was present at the meeting I refer to.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What members of the Fashion Originators Guild were present? A. Mr. Post was present at the meeting.

Q. Anybody else? A. I think Mr. Golby was present, but I am not certain. He may have been present for a short time.

Q. Who appeared on behalf of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. Mr. Gleason, who was then the president of the Michigan Avenue Guild, and I was there as counsel for the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. Do you recall when that meeting was had, Mr. Marshall? A. I couldn't place it definitely except to say that it was some time between December, 1934 and May, 1935.

Q. Well, was it in January? Do you recall, or can you place it as to the month? A. I don't think so. I don't recall. It was somewhere in that period of three or four months. 9884

Q. Well, had these conferences that you had in Chicago preceded the New York meeting?

Mr. Albert: Objected to as immaterial. What difference does it make?

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: I believe they had.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, after the expiration of the previous contract and prior to the adoption of the existing contract which is Commission's Exhibit No. 5, were any other contracts submitted by the Michigan Avenue Guild to the Fashion Originators Guild? 9885

Mr. Albert: Objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: Not that I recall.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. This is the only one that was submitted to them (indicating)? A. Well, that I don't know. I don't know that it was submitted. It represented the results of our meeting, discussion, and it was drafted. I don't recall whether my office drafted it or whether Mr. Keller's office drafted it, but it was not drafted—it was executed without any further changes. That represented the substance of the understanding.

Q. What took place? You say that this contract was either by your office or Mr. Keller's as a result of these conferences and negotiations. What took place at these conferences? What took place, we will say, at the New York conference?

9887 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as wholly immaterial and irrelevant, as to what was said at these conferences. What was said is contained in the contract.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer, if he recalls.

The Witness: Well, frankly, I don't recall all that was said. There was a lot of conversation, discussion, of the provisions of the old contract, and discussion of the provisions, proposed provisions.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was there—excuse me. I didn't mean to interrupt you. A. I am through.

Q. Was a renewal of the old contract acceptable to the 9888 F.O.G.A.?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial, as irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Well, I don't know that I can answer that. My recollection is that it was felt on both sides that the old contract was inadequate for the conditions as they existed at this time, namely, in 1935, due to the fact that the law had changed and the N.R.A. was on the way out and the conditions were generally changed, and there was a feeling, I think, on both sides that the contract should be replaced by a different form of contract and——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. And this contract was the result of those negotiations (indicating Commission's Exhibit No. 5)? A. Yes.

Q. Referring to page 2 of Commission's Exhibit No. 5 and the numbered paragraph 1, which reads as follows: "Fashion Guild members will not sell their merchandise 9890 within the City of Chicago to such retailers as are not members in good standing of the Michigan Avenue Guild and/or to those retailers who do not observe the code of fair competition in the industry and whose practices do not conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild," wasn't the N.R.A. still in effect when this contract was adopted? A. I think it was.

Q. Well, then, the conditions which you refer to were not changed by the status of the N.R.A. then, was it?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, as being cross-examination of his own witness.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to that question.

9891

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What other conditions had arisen which you referred to?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as no proper foundation has been laid. The gentleman on the stand is a lawyer, not a manufacturer or a retailer.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: Why, referring to trade conditions generally. For example, we had inquired of F.O.G. whether they felt they could properly confine the sales of their merchandise to M.A.G. members, and they advised us that they could not do so upon advice of their counsel. And consequently the paragraph you have referred to as paragraph 1 took the form that it did, so that there would be no confinement of merchandise, and it left the F.O.G. free to sell merchandise to many shops in Chicago who were not members of the M.A.G.

9893

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Were there any other conditions? A. I don't recall.

Q. Now, reading further, this paragraph I refer to goes on: "And/or to those retailers who do not observe the code of fair competition in the industry and whose practices do not conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild. This provision is not to apply to such stores as are named in this hereto attached Exhibit A and hereby made a part hereof." Why were those stores listed in that exhibit?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

By Mr. Martin.

9894

Q. (Continuing) Excluded from the agreement?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. (Continuing) From that provision?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. With all due respect to the witness, upon the ground that he is incompetent to testify with respect thereto.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: The proper party to testify with respect to that were the members of the Michigan Avenue Guild and its executive secretary, who was here before on the stand; and, in addition, may I remark, Mr. Martin, that the witness on the stand is an attorney and has a right to plead his professional privilege if he so desires.

Mr. Martin: I would like to call to your Honor's attention that the executive secretary of the Fashion Originators—of the Michigan Avenue Guild was on 9896 the stand and was asked the same question which I am now asking Mr. Marshall, and he replied that he did not know.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if he knows.

The Witness: I don't know. It was understood between the——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, answer. A. It was understood between the officers of the two organizations that this list was to be set up in Exhibit A for the reasons best known to themselves and I followed their instructions in adopting that list. 9897

Q. Did Mr. Fletcher—was Mr. Fletcher present at any of these conferences? A. No, he was not.

Q. What officers of the Michigan Avenue Guild would know it? A. Well, the only officer who was then present was Mr. Gleason, who was then president of the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. He didn't communicate to you his reasons for making that exception? A. Well, I could only surmise. I don't recall any precise communications to that effect.

Q. What was your surmise? A. That the sources named in this exhibit were in an entirely different merchandising category and had problems that were entirely different from the problems of those shops which were members of the Michigan Avenue Guild, and that they did not desire the protection—that the shops which are members of the Michigan Avenue Guild—and that it was not necessary to have them in the agreement or subject to the agreement.

Q. Do you know whether or not those stores are shopped by the Guild shopper? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know whether or not those stores are required to return garments as being copies? A. I do not.

9899 of my own knowledge.

Q. None of the stores, I take it, are members of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, they are not.

Q. Did the original contract between the two organizations include Evanston merchants, retailers? A. My recollection is that it did not do so expressly, but it was our impression—that is, it was the Michigan Avenue Guild's impression that it did include the Evanston shops, and there was some question later which developed as to whether it did or did not include the Evanston shops.

Q. What question arose later? A. The organization of a separate organization by the Evanston group.

Q. Have they a separate organization now? A. I don't know whether they have now, but they indicated—several of the Evanston shops indicated that they preferred not 9900 to be members of the Michigan Avenue Guild, but to have their own organization—retail organization of that type.

Q. And they are not now members of the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. I understand that there are one or two shops located in Evanston which have seen fit to continue their membership in the Michigan Avenue Guild.

Q. Now, during that period of time from December, 1934, up to the adoption of the present agreement, dated the 10th day of May, 1935, did the Michigan Avenue Guild co-operate with the F.O.G.A.? A. In the sense that I understand your use of the word "co-operate," I would say that there was a measure of co-operation, because there was the expectation that the relationship would be continued in whatever new form it took in the new contract.

Q. What do you mean by the language of paragraph Four on page 3: "The Michigan Avenue Guild and its members agree that they will not purchase ready-to-wear merchandise from those manufacturers who shall not strictly observe the code of fair competition in the industry, and particularly those relating to working hours and minimum wage scales, and whose practices do not conform to the standards of ethics and regulations of Fashion 9902 Guild within the price and merchandise lines of Fashion Guild"?

Mr. Alber: That is objected to, may it please the Court. The agreement speaks for itself and the witness on the stand, in addition, is incompetent to testify with respect thereto, as to what is meant. The only proper parties who can interpret that agreement, as to what is meant, are the parties to the agreement, in so far as the present line of inquiry is concerned.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Have you any knowledge as to how that was interpreted? A. I have not. 9903

By Mr. Martin:

Q. Do you attend the meetings of the Michigan Avenue Guild, Mr. Marshall? A. Most of them.

Q. Are the minutes prepared by you, or under your instruction? A. In their final form, they are prepared from the minutes, under my instruction.

9904

Mr. Martin: That's all, Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Albert: Just two questions, Mr. Marshall.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Isn't it a matter of fact, Mr. Marshall, that the reason why the State Street stores were excepted from the agreement, being Commission's Exhibit No. 5, was by reason of the fact that State Street stores did not demand the same protection that is included in that agreement? A. That was my understanding.

Q. Isn't it a matter of fact, to your knowledge, that the 9905 State Street stores have signed declarations of co-operation with the Fashin Originators Guild? A. I have been so informed. That is my understanding.

Mr. Albert: That's all.

Mr. Martin: That's all. No further questions. Thank you, Mr. Marshall.

(Witness excused.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

Mr. Martin: Mr. Leighty, will you come around, please, sir?

9906

Examiner Bennett: Will you be sworn, please?

EDGAR LEIGHTY was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you please state your name and residence? A. Edgar R. Leighty, Glenview, Illinois.

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Leighty? A. I am one of the divisional merchandise men, Marshall Field & Company.

Q. Which departments? A. I have charge of the basement section.

Q. How long have you been in charge of the basement? A. About seven months.

Q. What did you do prior to that? A. I merchandised the women's apparel, wearing apparel.

Q. How long did you occupy that position? A. A matter of about four years.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, sir. 9908

Q. Has Marshall Field & Company ever signed a declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when they signed that? A. I can't recall the date.

Q. Can you recall approximately? A. Well, it was very shortly after the Guild came into existence. I would say a matter of three or four years ago.

Q. Is your declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild still in effect at this date? A. It is.

Q. Since the date of your original signature to the declaration, have you co-operated with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. We have.

Q. Does the Fashion Originators Guild shopper shop Marshall Field's store? A. Undoubtedly. 9909

Q. Have you ever been requested by the Fashion Originators Guild to return any dresses as being copies? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you return them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have never been red carded? A. No, sir.

Mr. Martin: Mark these for identification Commission's Exhibits 840 and 841.

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 840 and 841, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 840 for Identification and ask, can you identify that letter, or that exhibit? A. Will you repeat the question, please?

Q. Can you identify that paper? A. No, sir, I cannot as a matter of fact.

Q. Have you ever seen it before? A. I have seen a copy of it before. I was not present at the time.

9911 Q. Can you tell me what that paper is, what it purports to be? A. This happened February 17, 1936. I was not at the store at the time, I don't even know anything about it.

Q. Have you ever seen it? A. I saw a copy of it in the press.

Q. Where? A. I think in "Women's Wear."

Q. You have never seen a copy of it in Marshall Field's files? A. No, I have not.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 841 for Identification and ask, can you identify that? A. That, also, I have seen in the press. That is my only knowledge of it.

Q. Now, Mr. Leighty, if Commission's Exhibit No. 840 for Identification was sent by Marshall Field, with others, 9912 to the Fashion Originators Guild, can you tell me who in the Marshall Field organization would have been authorized to send this telegram? A. Either the manager or the general manager of the store.

Q. Who is the manager, or the general manager? A. At the present time, Mr. Corley. Are you interested in the set-up at that time, or at the present time?

Q. At that time, February 17, 1936. A. At that time, Mr. Corley.

Q. In other words, what I am trying to find out is who, in your organization, would know about this?

Mr. Albert: May I interrupt for a moment? Is that a document allegedly sent to the F.O.G.A.?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Mr. Albert: By Marshall Field?

Mr. Martin: With others.

Mr. Albert: If you will let me see it, perhaps we can shorten it.

Mr. Martin: I have no objection to letting you see it. Obviously, this witness cannot identify it.

Mr. Post: I have no objection to your putting those in. 9914

Mr. Martin: All right. That is all right, then.

Mr. Albert: There is no objection to Commission's Exhibits 840 and 841 being offered in evidence, subject to comparison with whatever we have received. I don't think there will be any difficulty about it.

Mr. Martin: That is perfectly agreeable. They are not the originals. They purport to be copies.

Mr. Post: They appear to me, from my recollection, to be correct, but I want to check.

Mr. Martin: That is perfectly agreeable.

Examiner Bennett: All right. They are received in evidence.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 840 and 841, were received in evidence.) 9915

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Leighty, referring to Commission's Exhibits 840 and 841, are you in any way familiar with the subject matter of those two exhibits? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not Commission's Exhibit 840 correctly expressed the policy of Marshall Field at that time? A. It did.

Q. And you were in accord with the sentiments expressed by Mr. Petree, in his letter to Mr. Post, dated February 17, which is Commission's Exhibit 841? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does Marshall Field belong to the Michigan Avenue Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Leighty, referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 5, which is the agreement dated the tenth day of May, 1935, and which is now in effect between the Fashion
9917 Originators Guild of America and the Michigan Avenue Guild, paragraph number one, on page two, reads as follows: "Fashion Originators Guild members will not sell their merchandise within the city of Chicago to such retailers who are not members in good standing of the Michigan Avenue Guild, and/or to those retailers who do not observe the code of fair competition in the industry, and whose practices do not conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild. This provision is not to apply such stores as are named in the list hereto attached as Exhibit 'A' and hereby made a part hereof." Exhibit A contains the name of Marshall Field & Company. Do you know why that exception was made? A. No, I do not know why they made it.

9918 Q. With reference to Commission's Exhibit No. 841, with which you have expressed yourself as being in sympathy with, and Commission's Exhibit No. 840— A. Yes.

Q. I note the following language: "It was the original understanding of these stores"—that was the New York stores—"that they would not knowingly buy copies of Guild merchandise"—meaning copies of dresses costing the retailer $16.75 and up—"these stores stand ready to cooperate with the manufacturer on a plan for the design and protection of better dresses, but they reserve the right to continue to buy and sell all merchandise below the $10.75 cost price range in accordance with their own established policies." Have you continued to reserve that right? A. No, sir, we have co-operated with the Guild in the attempt to stop piracy, going below the $10.75 price line. The original agreement setting a price limit—that agreement was later changed, so that the field was extended down into a very much lower price field.

Q. Do they still shop your lower-priced lines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you return copies in the lower price lines? A. We returned a number of copies in a very much lower-priced line.

Q. When did you change your policy as expressed February 17th, 1936, in Commission's Exhibit No. 840?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, there is no such testimony in evidence. Commission's Exhibit No. 840 specifically reserves the right in Marshall Field & Company to take action as a result of the fact that the paragraph says: "Without knowing all of the details of the present controversy." And that is only a qualified expression of policy as regards the telegram.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

By Mr. Martin.

9921

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Leighty. A. Pardon me.

Q. When did you change your policy as expressed in that letter? A. I don't—you will have to point out to me where there is any sign of changed policy.

Q. Here is what I am referring to, Mr. Leighty (indicating). This letter, which is Commission's Exhibit No. 840— A. Right.

Q. Says that without knowing all of the facts you find yourself in full sympathy with the position as outlined in the letter, which is Commission's Exhibit No. 841. A. All right.

Q. And that letter stated that it reserved to itself—continued to buy and sell all merchandise below the $10.75 cost price ranges. Now, when did you change your opinion and start to co-operate with the Guild in all price lines? A. I couldn't give you the exact date when the matter came up. It wasn't done at any one time, or when we originally agreed to co-operate, there was a price, a bottom price established.

Q. I see. A. As we went along from month to month, why, the Guild manufacturers took in a lower-priced 9923 group of manufacturers, and our sympathy was entirely in accord with the Guild, covering the Guild just as far as they could organize it. And it was—I think our sympathy and our thought, even from the time that we first agreed to co-operate with the Guild was the same. I don't think we ever changed our viewpoint.

Q. Does this telegram change that in any way (indicating Commission's Exhibit No. 840)? A. This telegram I would say referred undoubtedly to the controversies that had arisen regarding other things than stopping style piracy, and there were things that were done by the Guild that we were not in accord with, but we were in accord with them entirely on the style piracy proposition.

Q. Well, now, what were some of those things that the Guild did other than style piracy that you were not in 9924 sympathy with?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if he knows. You may answer.

The Witness: Our objections were on the basis of the attempts of the Guild to stop retailers from accepting special advertising allowances that were being made to the retailers.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Any others? A. Also we raised objections, or we were not in sympathy with their attempt to organize the manufacturers on the basis of universal terms.

Q. Any other objections? A. Those are the only two that occur to me at the moment.

Q. Again referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 5, paragraph one of page two, referring to the refusal of the Guild to sell to merchants whose practices do not conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild—do the practices of Marshall Field & Company conform to the standards and regulations of the Michigan Avenue Guild? 9926

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial and irrelevant. Marshall Field & Company have testified that they have signed the declaration of co-operation, that they have been co-operating. Is it Mr. Martin's attempt by that question to contradict this?

Mr. Martin: No, I am not trying to contradict him.

Examiner Bennett: I think Marshall Field qualifies in the other class. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, the reason I wanted to bring that out was because this witness testified that he did not know why they were made 9927 an exception of.

Examiner Bennett: They seem, in fact, to have signed the declaration, and they are living up to it rather meticulously, I think that is covered by the early part of that.

Mr. Martin: Very well, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Has the Guild shopper shopped your store recently, Mr. Leighty, if you know? A. Well, I have been out of the sixth floor, where most of that work was done, for the last seven months, so I am not in a position to know that.

Q. Has any shopping been done in the basement? A. Yes.

Q. Recently? A. I couldn't tell you how recently. There have been no cases of copies called to our attention recently.

Q. No returns have been made? A. That is correct.

9929 Mr. Martin: All right. That's all, thank you, sir.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Leighty, you have mentioned the term "style piracy." Would you mind explaining what the conception of Marshall Field & Company is with respect to style piracy?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

The Witness: Why, for years manufacturers

9930 have been taking original creations, or creations that were made by some individual designer, and have been reproducing them, and, as a result of the reproduction, where they had no overhead, designing overhead, they were able to make these reproductions in many cases just as good, and sell them for less money, and in many cases make them very much poorer and ruin the value of the original creation.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And would you say that what these manufacturers copied of the original creation was the style——

Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) —the design of the dress?

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: Will you read it?

(Question read as follows: "Q. And would you say that what these manufacturers copied of the original creation was the style, the design of the dress?") 9932

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And is it the belief of Marshall Field & Company that the original designs which they purchased from some manufacturers were lessened in value to Marshall Field & Company as a result of this copying thereof?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. There is no foundation laid that they ever had any original.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

The Witness: Very definitely, yes. 9933

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And from your experience in the dress industry, what is your definition of what is an original design?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) —As the term was used by you.

Mr. Martin: Objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial to the issues of this case.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is, you have described these manufacturers as originating designs. What did you mean by that? A. An original design is one that has been created by an individual, usually a paid designer.

9935 Q. And it is his inspiration? A. Right.

Q. And do you mean by "copying," that manufacturers who copy these originals merely adopt the inspiration of the original manufacturer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Instead of attempting to create their own inspiration? A. Right.

Q. Was this copying of original designs an evil at the time that you signed the declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not properly a matter of cross-examination. That is a question more properly brought out in the respondents' defense.

Examiner Bennett: Will you read the question, please?

9936 (Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: The direct-examination, your Honor, brought forth the fact that they signed the declaration, and I believe, in the light of the facts we all know the contents of the declaration, it is proper cross-examination to have this witness testify as to the conditions that existed at the time the declaration was signed.

Examiner Bennett: He was not asked as to why he signed it, or the conditions. I will sustain the objection. You may have an exception.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you familiar with the declaration of co-operation, Mr. Leighty, have you seen it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 833, which is a form of declaration of co-operation and ask you if you will explain what you meant when you signed the declaration containing this language?

Mr. Martin: I object. 9938

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) (Reading): "And we will remove such copied garments from the market and, to discourage style piracy, and the predatory practice of copying." What was the predatory practice of copying to which you had reference when you signed the declaration?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that line. It was not gone into on direct.

Mr. Albert: Exception, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: We have been over that with several witnesses. 9939

Mr. Albert: May I ask the Court's indulgence for a moment?

Examiner Bennett: Certainly.

(Short interruption.)

9940 By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 840, Mr. Leighty, and ask you if you were present at any conference that was held prior to the signing of that telegram?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has already testified that the first time that he ever saw that telegram was in "Women's Wear."

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. Now, after the sending of that telegram, are you familiar with any of the communications or correspondence that passed between Marshall Field & Company and the F.O.G.A., with respect to the subject matter thereof?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Leighty, do you not know that the stores listed on Commission's Exhibit 840, at the time the telegram was sent, and at the present time, in the same manner as Marshall Field is doing, have affixed the Guild warranty stamp upon all orders, and all price lines?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to, as irrelevant and immaterial. The witness has already testified 9942 he was not present at any conference, that he never saw that telegram, and knows nothing about it, except what he read in "Women's Wear." It is obviously not within his knowledge as to what other stores are doing.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. That is very evidently outside of his knowledge.

9943

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Leighty, that Commission's Exhibit 840 was sent as the result of a telephone call from Mr. Schweitzer, of the N.R.D.G.A.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has stated he knew nothing about its being sent, he had never seen it before. That the first he saw of it was in "Women's Wear."

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if he wants to bring it out.

The Witness: Read the question, please.

(Question read by the reporter.)

9944

A. I do not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And do you not know, Mr. Leighty, that the telegram was sent in reliance upon the telephonic summary by Mr. Schweitzer of Mr. Petree's letter, and that the inclusion of the preliminary statement "without knowing all the details of the present controversy" was by reason of the fact that the letter specifically had not been seen by the signatories to the telegram?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to. The witness has already testified he did not know.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think the facts can be brought out from some other source. I think the attorney had better not try to build up a record in that way, on the facts.

9945

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Since the sending of that telegram, Commission's Exhibit 840, have you not learned, in the ordinary course of your business, that many of the signatories thereto were not and are not in sympathy with the letter therein referred to?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that. You may ask him as to Field's store.

Mr. Albert: Exception, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: He has testified they were in sympathy with it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you, since the sending of that telegram, learned of the manner in which it was sent?

9947

Mr. Martin: That is objected to. He has already testified he did not know.

Mr. Albert: He did not know at the time, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: You asked him several questions after that relative to it, and he testified he did not know.

Mr. Albert: If the witness says he does not know, your Honor, it will certainly take less time than the objection of counsel.

Mr. Martin: I renew my objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection I think the sending of the telegram does not seem to have been questioned. The signatures do not seem to have been questioned. The document speaks for itself. The witness has told what he knows about the circumstances.

9948

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor. We will bring out all these circumstances with respect to it in direct, if we have to go into direct.

Examiner Bennett: I think you can get somebody who has a more direct connection with it.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. You testified that for some time no copies have been found or reported to you by the Guild shopper in the Marshall Field store? A. Pardon me. I did not so testify.

Q. I am sorry. What was it that you testified to with respect to that? A. The question was asked me regarding the shopping at the present time, whether shoppers were coming into the store.

Q. And your testimony was what? A. And I said I had been in the basement for the last seven months, and my contact is entirely in the basement, and, as I answerd the question, it referred to the basement, or the lower 9950 price lines only.

Q. And that there had been not many copies returned from the basement, or found in the basement? A. The basement only.

Q. As a result of your experience in the dress industry, and with Marshall Field & Company, and with the Guild program, would you say that this improvement in the fact that there were no copies found in the basement was a result of the Guild program?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. Not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: It very definitely is the result of the Guild's operation. 9951

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say that that has been a benefit to Marshall Field & Company? A. Very much so.

Q. Would you say that that was a benefit to the public?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In your experience, in that they are protected from copies?

Examiner Bennett: I don't think he is qualified to answer that.

Mr. Albert: Exception, your Honor. That's all.

Redirect examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you ever seen an original design? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How do you know it was an original design? A. Well, I have seen a design that was created by an individual, who in my mind didn't do anything else but create.

9953

Q. You are certain that it was original? A. I certainly would assume that it was original.

Q. Do you know where this particular designer might have gotten her ideas? A. Might have gotten them?

Q. Yes, sir. A. Well, I would say she got them out of the back of her head.

Q. Do you know as a matter of fact that she did not copy them from some other dress which you might not have seen? A. I couldn't prove it.

Q. You couldn't prove it either way; could you? A. (Witness shakes head negatively.)

Mr. Martin: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

9954

(Thereupon, at 3.00 o'clock P. M., the hearing in the above entitled matter was adjourned until further notice, time and place of the next hearing to be set by the Examiner or the Commission.)

Room 401, United States Appraisers Store Building, Baltimore, Maryland, November 9, 1936.

Met, pursuant to notice, 1 P. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

E. F. HAYCRAFT, Esq., and R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

MILTON C. WEISMAN, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., M. A. ALBERT, Esq., and HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq. (1450 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.), appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America. 9956

FORREST BRAMBLE, Esq., of Barton, Wilmer, Addison & Semans, 806 Mercantile Trust Building, Baltimore, Md., appearing for Baltimore Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc.

CHARLES F. ROYCROFT was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Mr. Bramble: I would like to ask as a matter of information. 9957

Examiner Averill: On the record?

Mr. Bramble: No, off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you state your full name? A. Charles F. Roycroft.

9958 Q. Where do you live, Mr. Roycroft? A. 3225 Ramona Avenue, Baltimore.

Q. What is your occupation? A. In this particular connection, secretary of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore.

Q. Do you have any other occupation? A. Assistant secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore.

Q. Where do you have your office? A. 1200 Lexington Building.

Q. How long have you been secretary of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. Since its organ-9959 ization during September of 1933, I think.

Q. What, if anything, did you have to do with the organization of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. I, so to speak, arranged the meetings as a result of which the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore was organized.

Q. At that time, were you assistant secretary of the Credit—what was that? A. Retail Merchants Association.

Q. Retail Merchants Association? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc., sponsored by the Retail Merchants Association? A. The meetings were arranged by the association. The association, I suppose you might say, sponsored the organization of the Guild.

9960 Q. What was the action—that is, what prompted you to form that organization, the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc.? A. As I recall, a number of the members of the Retail Merchants Association received from the Fashion Originators Guild a communication outlining its activities in connection with the Anti-Piracy Act, I believe it is, as a result of which several of them contacted the office of the association, and we arranged for a meeting of all local retailers who had received such letters.

Q. And approximately when was that meeting held in relation to the organization meeting of the Guild? By "Guild," I mean Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. A matter of several weeks, I would say, during the fall of 1933.

Q. Do you have any recollection of who the prominent members were that attended that meeting that you speak of, that first meeting? A. For the most part, I think it was the department store people and several of the specialty stores, women's specialty stores. Just who the individuals were I could not tell you, without reference to the minutes.

Q. What occurred at that preliminary meeting? A. A 9962 general discussion as to the policies, you might say, or aims of the Fashion Originators Guild, as we knew them. There was only a handful of people there and, subsequently, or, at least, it was decided at that time to arrange for a subsequent meeting.

Q. When you say "handful," could you give us a better estimate than that? A. I would say possibly somewhere around eight, possibly ten people.

Q. Was there anyone called upon to explain the purpose of the meeting? Did you do that yourself, or who? A. No, no, the members themselves, speaking now as members of the Retail Merchants Association, explained what they knew, and that was, as far as I know, all of the information we had, and we subsequently decided to have this further meeting. 9963

Q. And when was the further meeting held? A. A matter of possibly a week or ten days later.

Q. And where? A. At the Lord Baltimore Hotel, as I recall it.

Q. Who attended that meeting? A. I cannot cite the names of the individuals, or the stores that were represented, but I do know that an invitation was sent to all members of the Retail Merchants Association handling, as I recall, Guild merchandise.

Q. That would be members of the Guild, or— A. Up to that point, they were members of the Retail Merchants Association.

Q. I will put it this way: When you say that they handled Guild merchandise, are you familiar, yourself, with the circumstances under which they handled Guild merchandise, or anything of that character? A. No. I am not familiar with the circumstances under which they handled Guild merchandise or anything of that sort.

9965 Examiner Averill: I would like to know if by that answer you are referring to the time of which you are speaking; namely, some time in September.

The Witness: September, 1933.

Examiner Averill: September, 1933. I say that because at that time, as I understand it, they were not members of the Guild.

The Witness: That is true. At that time they were not members of the Guild.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. By that you mean members of the Guild here at Baltimore or New York, or either? A. The Baltimore Guild was not in existence at that time.

9966 Q. There was no Baltimore Guild then? A. No. There was no Baltimore Guild then.

Mr. Weisman: May I also make clear, and I believe Mr. Haycraft will concur in this, that at no time are any retail stores ever members of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Mr. Haycraft: No. Decidedly that is not admitted. That is a highly controversial point in this case, Mr. Examiner. It is not admitted by counsel for the Commission that that is the fact.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. And did you determine then, whether the members that attended this meeting handled Guild merchandise?

Mr. Weisman: I object to the form of the question. He did not say at any time that he did determine that they were handling Guild merchandise or not.

Examiner Averill: He said that they were handling; that is, the invitation was addressed to those who were, at that time, handling Guild merchandise. 9968

Mr. Weisman: He did not say that he determined it.

Mr. Haycraft: He sent out the invitation.

The Witness: I might qualify my answer. What I did, as I now recall, was to send a letter of invitation to attend the particular meeting to all members of the Retail Merchants Association who were known by me to be handling Guild merchandise.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How many attended that meeting? A. I do not recall, Mr. Haycraft. I think the minutes of the meeting will probably show. 9969

By Examiner Averill.

Q. You said, in your previous testimony as I have a record of it here, "Approximately 8 or 10." A. That was the first meeting, your Honor; this is the subsequent meeting that he is speaking of now.

9970 Charles F. Roycroft—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did anyone besides or outside of members of the Retail Merchants Association and besides yourself, and you were an executive of the Retail Merchants Association, attend? A. Yes, Mr. Mehling, I think, the secretary of the association.

Q. Anyone else besides the secretary and the members of the Retail Merchants Association attend that meeting, the second meeting? A. No, sir.

Q. At that meeting what took place?

Mr. Haycraft: This is merely a preliminary 9971 question laying a foundation. It is of historical value, I think, if your Honor please, in developing the matter.

Examiner Averill: I will permit the witness to answer that briefly just what, generally, took place there, and we will see the import of it.

A. Merely a discussion as to the advisability of the formation of a local association and, as I recall, it was decided then to merely broaden the invitation which had gone out for that meeting. There were some preliminary discussions, I think, about the formation of a local Guild, the details of which I cannot recall just now.

Q. Did you have any communications with the Fashion Originators Guild of America at that meeting? A. No, 9972 sir.

Q. Had you had any communications with any official of the Fashion Originators Guild of America prior to that meeting? A. I had none.

Q. What occurred at that meeting with respect to any further meeting?

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think the witness, Mr. Examiner, should be interrupted when he is testifying.

Examiner Averill: Oh, I think if you have an objection, it is proper. The witness had evidently not answered the question as asked.

Mr. Haycraft: Apparently we differ on that as to whether he was answering it or not.

Examiner Averill: I cannot see why.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead and answer the question. A. Arrangements were made for a further meeting to which local 9974 retailers who had signed declarations of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild would be invited to attend.

Q. Was such a meeting held? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who sent out the invitations for it? A. The Retail Merchants Association.

Q. How did you ascertain what retail dealers had agreements with the Guild—that is, the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I do not recall definitely.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I think we should refer to those papers which were signed at the time that the witness has testified concerning, as "Declarations of Co-operation" until such time as it is, by proper authority, determined that they constitute agreements. In other words, you can 9975 get the same information by asking the witness a question which does not force him to use the word "agreement" to characterize the paper as an "agreement." In the first place, I do not think he is competent to characterize it as an "agreement," and if it is a written instrument, certainly not.

Mr. Bramble: I think what my friend objects to here, is Mr. Haycraft's characterizing it as an agreement when he does not believe that it is an agreement. I think it would add to the confusion to call it an "agreement" when it does not seem necessary to do so in order to elicit the testimony.

Examiner Averill: That would be obviated by adopting my suggestion by asking him how many of them signed this "Declaration of Co-operation." That is what the witness called it when he testified. Objection sustained. Exception noted for Mr. Haycraft.

By Mr. Haycraft.

9977 Q. This question has been amended and, as amended, would that change your answer in any way? A. No, sir.

Q. By that you mean you do not recall how you found out the names of the people who had signed that invitation—the people to whom you had sent that invitation? A. I do not definitely know how I found out the names of the people to whom I sent the invitation, if that is the question.

Q. Did you have any contact with officials of the Fashion Originators Guild of America in connection with sending out invitations for the meeting that you have just referred to? A. To the best of my knowledge, no.

Q. Was such a meeting held? A. Yes.

Q. It was? A. Yes.

9978 Q. When was it held? A. A short time after the organization meeting, so to speak, was arranged, or had been held.

Examiner Averill: Can you give us a little better time than that? That seems to be a bit vague to me.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you give us the date on that? A. The best that I can recall, it was during the latter part of 1933.

Q. Did you keep any minutes of that meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have them here with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you please produce them at this time? A. Yes.

Q. By referring to these minutes that you have just now produced, can you give us the dates of these respective meetings? A. The first meeting?

Q. Yes. A. September 5, 1933, is the date of the first meeting.

Q. Can you testify as to who attended that meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were they? A. Mr. Charles G. Hutzler.

Q. What firm does he represent? A. Hutzler Brothers. 9980

Q. In giving the people who attended the meeting, from now on, will you give the firm that they represented? A. Allen S. Metzger, representing Maisonannette Company; Fred H. Alperstein, representing the Gaxton Company; S. J. Schleisner, representing the Schleisner Company; M. M. Schwart, representing O'Neill & Company; Henry Weil, representing Stuart & Company; J. E. Ellington of the May Company; J. W. Mehling and C. F. Roycroft, the secretary and assistant secretary, respectively, of the Retail Merchants Association, and Mr. William R. Semans, of what is now the firm of Barton, Wilmer, Addison & Semans.

Q. And I assume the latter are attorneys? A. Yes.

Examiner Averill: That is what I understood they were. 9981

The Witness: That is true.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the date of the second meeting? A. September 11, 1933, and there were fifteen establishments represented there, but from my minutes I cannot tell the names of the individuals, or of the establishments because there was no record made of them.

Q. Do you have the minutes of the meetings here for that day before you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you prepare those yourself? A. Yes, sir.

(The minutes referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 842, were marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I notice reference is made to an agreement between the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, on these minutes; do you have a copy of that agreement? A. That is the one.

9983 Q. You have a copy of it here?

Mr. Bramble: I think that is it, and I understand it is in our answer.

The Witness: No, that is a different one.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is this the one (indicating)? A. Is that mine, that you have already?

Mr. Weisman: I believe you left yours there, Mr. Roycroft; is that not it (indicating paper)?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Bramble: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

9984 Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the paper that I am handing you now, Mr. Roycroft? A. This is a copy of the original agreement between the Fashion Originators Guild of America and the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore.

Q. And who signed it? A. Signed by J. M. Golby, as executive secretary of the Fashion Originators Guild of America and Mr. Charles G. Hutzler, as chairman of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore.

Q. The date of it, please? A. September 27, 1933.

Q. Is this the agreement referred to in the minutes that you identified a few moments ago, Commission's Exhibit 842? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have the changes been made in this Commission's Exhibit 843 as referred to in Commission's Exhibit 842? A. Yes, because this is our copy.

(The papers heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 843-A, 843-B, 843-C, 843-D, 843-E, 843-F and 843-G, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.) 9986

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When was the organization meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore held? A. On September 18, 1933.

Q. Do you have a copy of the minutes of that meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: Yes, it will only take a moment.

The Witness: The meeting was discussed at— 9987
the agreement, rather, was discussed at the meeting of September 18.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: Signed by the individual retailers, on that date, and on subsequent dates; if you will notice from the minutes, Mr. Hutzler asked that that be signed by such individuals attending the meeting who had authority to sign it for this firm, just such individuals sign on the 18th if they happened to be present at the meeting.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: There were some, however, not represented at the meeting, or some firms represented at the meeting, the representative, however, not having authority to sign.

Examiner Averill: I see. And who later signed——

The Witness: They subsequently signed it. Then, there were two copies. We refer to the agreements in here (indicating paper), indicating 9989 that they were plural. Both copies were signed by the individuals at this particular meeting. Then both copies were taken by Mr. Hutzler, as chairman of the Guild, with him to New York on his next trip, and on September 27, 1933, Mr. Golby, as secretary of the Fashion Originators Guild, officially signed this agreement, and Mr. Hutzler, then, as chairman of the Guild, signed it on September 27, the signatures of the individual Baltimore retailers having been obtained on the 18th, and the dates being the 18th and 27th.

Examiner Averill: That makes it very clear, as to how it happened.

Mr. Bramble: It explains why the difference in the dates.

9990 Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: Referring to Exhibit 844, this was subsequent to——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I notice there is reference made in Commission's Exhibit 844 to articles of constitution, rules and regulations. Do you have in your possession the articles of constitution, and rules and regulations, referred to in the exhibit? A. I cannot answer that definitely.

Mr. Bramble: I guess this is it, isn't it (producing paper)?

The Witness: No, that is the present.

Mr. Weisman: That is the present.

The Witness: But this is an original set of rules, regulations, and agreements. I do not have that in my possession. I may have that available somewhere in the office. I made no effort to hold onto that, after the present rules and regulations and agreements were adopted.

Mr. Haycraft: I see. All right. 9992

Mr. Hutzler: I think they are in the minutes.

The Witness: The present ones. Wait a moment, what is the date there, September 18 (referring to minutes)? It is just as likely that these may be the ones, but I would not want to say definitely without having an opportunity to peruse them.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you make a check on that so that you can testify later as to that? Will you make a note of that, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I think probably we can save some time if I could take about a ten-minute recess to go through these minutes. I see 9993 some of the minutes have nothing to do with this proceeding.

Examiner Averill: I have no objection.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Averill: We will take a short recess.

(There was a short recess taken.)

9994 Charles F. Roycroft—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have in your possession copies of the meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore on November 17, 1933? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: What date is that?

The Witness: November 17, 1933.

Examiner Averill: Proceed. However, it just struck me that that would be the fourth instead of the third one. I do not think that is correct, is it?

Mr. Weisman: The third one is in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 844. He is now asking for the subsequent meeting on November 17.

Examiner Averill: And not September 17th?

Mr. Weisman: No, that is November 17.

Mr. Haycraft: I asked to have this meeting of November 17th, the minutes thereof, marked with the Commission's next number for identification.

Examiner Averill: That may be done.

(Whereupon the minutes of the meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear on November 17, 1933, were marked Commission's Exhibits 845-A and B for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 845-A and 845-B

9996 and ask you if those are the original minutes of the Guild meeting; that is, the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear of Baltimore as held on that date. A. They are.

Examiner Averill: And what is the date of that?

The Witness: November 17, 1933.

Mr. Haycraft: That is offered in evidence, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, objections as stated by counsel are overruled except, of course, the privilege allowed if later the paper in question is not connected up, if that fact is not brought home to the charges named in the complaint, to move to strike the exhibit and any reference thereof on the record.

Of course, in moving to strike it from the testimony we would have to have a transcript of the testimony here and strike it line by line as it appears to have been immaterial or irrelevant, or whatever it may be.

With that reservation, the objection is overruled, gentlemen, to the papers heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit No. 845-A and the second 9998 sheet thereof which was marked Commission's Exhibit No. 845-B, the same being minutes of the board of control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore for November 17, 1933, and the same will be received in evidence and be marked Commission's Exhibit 845-A and 845-B, respectively.

(The document heretofore marked Commission's Exhibits 845-A and 845-B for Identification, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit 845, I notice that it is the minutes of the board of control on 845-A. Just 9999 what does the board of control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore represent? A. The board of control represent—the board of control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, prior to the incorporation of the organization, functioned as the board of directors.

Q. And the persons named in these minutes were part of that board of control at the time the meeting was held, that meeting? A. With the exception of the secretary.

Q. You were that secretary? A. Yes.

Q. How were the members of the board of control selected? A. A nominating committee was appointed, as I recollect, and submitted its report, which in turn was presented to a meeting of the general membership at which an election took place.

Q. In these minutes of Commission's Exhibits 845-A and B, the following appears on page 1 thereof: "Following the reading of the Committee's report, Chairman Hutzler read a letter received by him from Mr. J. M. Golby, executive secretary of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, in which Mr. Golby outlined the attitude of that or-10001 ganization concerning violations of the rules and regulations of local guilds." Did you receive that letter from Mr. Golby and do you have that letter in your files? A. I do not have it in my possession now. You will notice that it is stated that Mr. Hutzler presented the letter.

Q. It is your testimony that this letter was returned to Mr. Hutzler, or that he retained possession of it? A. The letter was read by Mr. Hutzler at the meeting.

Q. It was not incorporated in the minutes? A. No, sir.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I make the same ruling in connection with that. Gentlemen, the papers heretofore marked Commission's Exhibits 846-A, B and C, the same being minutes of the meeting of the Board of Control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore for January 25,
10002 1934, consisting of three sheets, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibits 846-A, 846-B and 846-C, and I will permit the substitution of copies thereof in the record.

(The minutes heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 846-A, 846-B and 846-C were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: I have one or two questions about that.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. I notice, Mr. Roycroft, that in the minutes you have just identified reference is made to a communication received by you as secretary from Mr. J. M. Golby, executive secretary of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, suggesting that the Fashion Originators Guild be permitted to sign local retailers with the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore. Do you have in your files the original of that communication? A. I may have, Mr. Haycraft, but I could not say definitely without first checking 10004 the files.

Q. Will you make such a check and, provided you can find that, produce it, please; check the files to ascertain if you can find it? A. Yes. I will get the date of it now and do so.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask to have the following document, consisting of four pages, marked for identification. This is minutes of the Board of Control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild for April 9, 1934.

(The document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 847-A, 847-B, 847-C and 847-D.)

10005

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 847-A, B, C and D and ask you whether or not you can identify that as minutes of the Board of Control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore dated April 9, 1934? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that not bear your signature? A. Oh, yes, it does bear my signature.

Q. Page 4 does not bear your signature? A. No.

Q. Is that part of the minutes? A. Yes. As a matter of fact, my signature appears on page 3, and page 3 definitely ties that in. That refers to the fact that subsequent to the meeting the president appointed certain committees, and those committees are therein set forth.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer these minutes in evidence with the same stipulation as was made to previous exhibits.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the same ruling which was made in the cases of the minutes heretofore received in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 10007 845 and 846 will apply in this case, and the objection is overruled.

Mr. Bramble: And exception noted?

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled and exception noted. The same exception noted. The papers in question, heretofore referred to as Commission's Exhibits 847-A, B, C and D, and which purport to be the minutes of the Board of Control, Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, April 9, 1934, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibits 847-A, B, C and D, respectively.

(The documents heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 847-A, 847-B, 847-C 10008 and 847-D were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I notice on the first page of these exhibits that reference is made to a letter which Chairman Hutzler stated had been forwarded from the office of the Fashion Originators Guild of America regarding August coat sales and asks for an expression of opinion from some of the members regarding the elimination of August coat sales. Do you have the original of that letter in the files of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild? A. I will have to check the file, Mr. Haycraft. What is the date of that?

Mr. Weisman: It will be prior to——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Prior to April 9, 1934. A. No, it is not here.
Q. Will you make a search for it? A. Yes.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.
(There was a discussion off the record.) 10010
Examiner Averill: On the record.
Mr. Haycraft: Will you mark this for identification?

(The paper referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 848-A and 848-B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Roycroft, I show you Commission's Exhibits 848-A and B and ask you if you can identify those two sheets as minutes of the Board of Control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore dated June 16, 1934 (handing paper to witness)? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: May I see that? 10011
Mr. Haycraft: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibits 848-A and B.
(The witness hands paper to Mr. Weisman.)
Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, under the same circumstances that the other rulings were given in connection with these exhibits from the minutes I shall receive in evidence the papers heretofore marked Commission's Exhibits 848-A and B, purporting to be minutes of Board of Control of Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, June 16, 1934, and they will be received in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 848-A and B, respectively.

(The documents heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 848-A and 848-B were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you can testify as to whether any of the executives of the Fashion Originators Guild of America addressed a meeting of the Ladies' 10013 Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore on January 21, 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who did so? A. Mr. Post and Mr. Golby.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 849-A and B, purporting to be minutes of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore on February 25, 1935, and ask you to identify them as such. A. I can.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibits 849-A and B.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

(The documents heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 849-A and 849-B were marked as exhibits in evidence.)

10014

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the same ruling with reference to this exhibit as to the prior exhibits, that is, Commission's Exhibits 850-A, B, C, the objection is overruled for the time being, with the exceptions already noted to counsel, of course, and the paper will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibits 850-A, B, C, the same being minutes purportedly of the Board of Control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore for August 5, 1935.

(The minutes heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 850-A, 850-B and 850-C were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I call your attention to Commission's Exhibits 850-A, B and C and the reference there to a new agreement presented by Mr. Hutzler, which he indicated was acceptable to the Fashion Originators Guild. Do you have that new agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the second page of this Commission's Exhibit 850-B reference is made to a communication from Mr. Post regarding the employment of a shopper for Baltimore. Do you have the original of that communication in your possession? A. Let us see. I cannot say definitely without first checking it.

Q. Will you please do so? In the second paragraph on this same page the statement is made that "Chairman Hutzler then presented the Fashion Originators Guild recommendations." Do you remember whether that was done in writing or orally? A. I am inclined to think it was orally or it would have been stated otherwise in the minutes.

Q. When was the present organization of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc., organized? A. During September of 1935.

Q. Can you give the date? A. The first meeting of incorporation was held on Monday, September 30.

Q. 1935? A. 1935.

Mr. Bramble: September 30?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did they adopt by-laws at that time? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you have a copy of those by-laws? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: Where is that? I think we have a mimeographed copy.

Mr. Bramble: This is the copy here. I imagine that it is.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this.

The Witness: Here are your by-laws (indicating). You have more by-laws there.

Mr. Weisman: You want them all, do you not, Everett?

10019 Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 851, which consists of fourteen pages, entitled, "By-laws, Rules, Regulations and Agreements of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore," and ask you if you can identify it? A. Yes, sir.

(The paper referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 851-A to N, both inclusive.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

10020 Q. What is it? A. It is my office copy of the by-laws, rules, regulations and agreements of the Baltimore Guild.
Q. Adopted when? A. Adopted on various dates.

Examiner Averill: As shown on the paper?

The Witness: In some instances, yes; others, no.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you testify as to when they were adopted when they do not show? A. I will be given an opportunity to check the minutes?

Q. All right.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the same ruling with respect to these papers as the ones heretofore marked as Commission's Exhibits 852-A to G, inclusive, and which purport to be minutes of Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore dated September 30, 1935, and some addenda thereto, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibits 852-A to G, inclusive. 10022

(The papers heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 852-A to G, inclusive, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Room 401,
United States Appraisers
Store Building,
Baltimore, Maryland,
November 10, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10.30 A. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner. 10023

(Same Appearances.)

CHARLES F. ROYCROFT resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you were able to locate any of the letters mentioned in your testimony of yesterday and for which you were requested to search? A. Yes.

Q. What success did you have? A. You asked for six letters; I have been able to find five of the six.

Q. Which ones did you find? A. Mr. Post's letter.

Examiner Averill: Off the record just a moment.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 853-A and B for Identification and ask you if you can identify that as an original letter from——

10025

Mr. Weisman: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —from Charles G. Hutzler of Hutzler Brothers, Baltimore, Maryland, dated November 15, 1933, which you found in your files? A. I obtained this from Mr. Hutzler.

Q. From Mr. Hutzler.

(The letter was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 853-A and 853-B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

10026 Q. Is that the letter referred to in Commission's Exhibit 845-A? A. To the best of my knowledge, yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: No objection.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 854 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that as an original letter from the Guild—that is, the Fashion Originators Guild—signed by J. M. Golby, addressed to yourself under date of January 20, 1934? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the letter referred to in the minutes dated January 25, 1934, and which were marked Commission's Exhibit 846-A? A. Yes.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 854 was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: Before going any further on the identification of this correspondence I will ask the 10028 witness to clarify the context of Commission's Exhibits 853-A and B.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At the time that this letter was written the Schleisner Company mentioned in the second paragraph was a member of your local guild—that is, the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. Yes.

Q. What business was it engaged in? A. Sale at retail of ladies' apparel and accessories.

Q. In the second paragraph of this letter it says, "We learn that the Schleisner, after having been informed of the privilege allowed one store in your organization, took 10029 advantage of this privilege by conducting a sale of merchandise contrary to the agreement amongst the members of our Guild." My first question is, what does that privilege allowed one store in the organization refer to there? A. As you will note from the date of that letter, when compared with the date—the organization date of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild, there was only a lapse of about sixty days, so that at this particular time, or shortly prior thereto, the Baltimore Guild was more or less trying to determine what, in its opinion, was best for its members. The question of price lining had come up, and subsequently the question of permitting off prices, or the use of off prices, in connection with clearance sales had been discussed. Certain of the members held to the opinion that current sales would prove more effective if the merchandise was offered at off prices. Others felt to the contrary. So, in order to have something concrete to work on, we permitted one store to run a clearance sale at off prices, having notified the other members of the test, so to speak, that was going to take place.

10031 Q. That is what is meant in that?

Mr. Weisman: I submit that he be permitted to finish.

Examiner Averill: Do not——

Mr. Weisman: He is interrupting him. I want the whole story.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did I interrupt you? A. That was the agreement that was had among the stores at that particular time and had to do with the tests, so to speak, to ascertain the effect of off prices in connection with clearance.

Q. Have you completed? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Now, then, the phrase "the privilege allowed one 10032 store in your organization," I ask you about that—was the privilege of selling at off prices which one store had been allowed? A. They were accorded the privilege of using off prices in connection with the specific clearance sale for a test purpose.

Q. What is this price line agreement that is referred to, that you referred to in your testimony? Explain that. A. It was an agreement among the local stores as the result of which we had adopted certain retail prices, starting at $10.95 and, as I recall it, at that time going up to $49.95. Simply provided for certain retail prices that should be used.

Q. And the word "agreement" used in this paragraph which I just read you a moment ago referred to such a price line agreement in effect at that time? A. Well, now, I did not write that letter; I cannot say what Mr. Golby had in mind.

Q. Had you reported to Mr. Golby such an agreement, line agreement, or line price agreement, I should say? A. I cannot answer that question, Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Had you reported to Mr. Golby that the Schleisner Company had been selling at off prices from a price line 10034 agreement? A. I had not.

Q. Do you know whether anyone had? A. I am trying to—pardon me for a moment. With this letter before me, I might be inclined to answer "Yes"; without the letter, why, I would have to say that I do not know, because Mr. Golby mentions in his letter that someone advised him. Now, who that somebody was I do not know, but I did not.

Q. Do you recall the discussion of this transaction at the meeting of November 17, 1933? A. By reference to the minutes I can.

Q. Yes. That is Commission's Exhibits 845-A and B; is that right (showing paper to witness)? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you refer to the minutes of November 25, 1934?

Mr. Haycraft: Off the record. 10035

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Haycraft: I will withdraw my last question.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. April 9, 1935, was the next one, was it not? A. Yes; that is the "Fifty Million Frenchmen" letter.

Mr. Weisman: Is that the "Fifty Million Frenchmen" letter?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: You have got that in evidence already. Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

(Thereupon a paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 855-A and 855-B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 855-A and B, purporting to be a form letter from the Coat and Suit Division of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, 10037 dated March 29, 1934. I will ask you if you can identify that as a letter referred to in Commission's Exhibit 847-A and the minutes of April 9, 1934? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Roycroft, I show you Commission's Exhibits 856-A and 856-B, respectively, for Identification, and ask you if you can identify it? A. Yes, sir, I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a copy of a letter addressed to The Maison Annette Company in Baltimore, Maryland, by Mr. Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. What is the date of it? A. Under date of February 15, 1935.

Examiner Averill: February 13, 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: No, February 15, 1935.

10038 Mr. Bramble: February 15?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: It is this letter here.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who is The Maison Annette Company? What is that firm? A. This is a local retailer handling ladies' ready-to-wear and located in Baltimore, Maryland.

Q. On the date of that letter was it a member of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Maryland? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did this copy come into your possession? A. I had my secretary make a copy of the original letter which had been addressed to The Maison Annette Company.

Q. Where did you get the original? A. As well as I can recall, Mr. Haycraft, the manager of The Maison Annette Company loaned it to me.

Q. Is this a letter—the letter, in fact—referred to in the minutes of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Maryland, for the meeting of February 25, 1935, 10040 being Commission's Exhibit 849-B and read by Mr. Hutzler at that time to the meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the letter in evidence.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 857-A and B and ask you—these are for identification—and ask you if you can identify those two papers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state what they are? A. It is a copy of a letter which I prepared and sent out to the general membership of the Baltimore Guild as a draft of a letter which I proposed to send to the Fashion Originators Guild of America, outlining the action taken by the board of directors—by our board of directors at its meeting on October 12 with regard to reaffirming our original deci- 10041 sion to support the style piracy activities of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Is that referred to in the minutes that you identified yesterday? A. It is.

Mr. Weisman: When you state "style piracy activities," he means "anti-style piracy activities," I assume.

Mr. Haycraft: I think it would be well to let the witness state what he means in that regard.

The Witness: Yes, that is true. It is us "agin" them. We were, of course, definitely opposed to style piracy, and it was activities of ours designed against such activities—namely, style piracy.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was the original of that letter sent to the Guild? A. Yes, it was.

Q. I will ask you whether or not after reading the excerpt of the minutes which I have just referred to, whether or not Commission's Exhibit No. 857-B is the letter which you sent to the Fashion Originators Guild 10043 of America, Inc., in response to instructions you received at the meeting of October 12, 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That accounts for all of the letters which you produced. Which is the letter that you are unable to locate that I asked you for? A. The letter from Mr. Post regarding the employment of a shopper for Baltimore, supposedly dated some time prior to August 5, 1935, as is referred to on Commission's Exhibit No. 858-B.

Mr. Weisman: Referred to on Commission's Exhibit 858-B?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10044 Q. Calling your attention to the minutes of October 5, 1935, Commission's Exhibits No. 850-A, B and C, wherein there was a discussion with respect to the employment of a shopper at Baltimore, I will ask you whether or not as a matter of fact subsequent to that date a shopper was employed by the Baltimore Guild? A. A shopper was employed, but whether it was prior to or subsequent to that date I cannot state; but it was approximately around that time.

Q. Will you state the circumstances under which the shopper was employed? A. No, I cannot, because I did not employ her.

Q. Did the Baltimore Guild defray any expenses of the shopper? A. No, sir.

Q. Has it ever defrayed any expenses of a shopper? A. Yes; we sent one check to the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., to help defray the expenses of the shopper in Baltimore.

Q. Do you recall when that was? A. Some time during 1935, I think, or possibly the early part of 1936.

Q. Does the shopper report to you in any way? A. Not unless she happens to meet me in the offices. 10046

Q. What does she report to you on such occasions?

Mr. Albert: You mean report, or communicate with you?

A. I do not know as I would term it as a matter of "reporting to me," but she might acquaint me with what is going on or has gone on in the way of copies, so to speak, that have found their way into the Baltimore market. Probably more a matter of conversation than it is a matter of making a "report."

Q. Who is the shopper, by the way? A. A Mrs. Ellen Lapedus.

Q. Has she always been the shopper from the beginning? A. She was the first shopper employed by the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., and she has continued in that capacity. 10047

Q. Does she have desk space in your office? A. Yes, in one of our offices.

Q. Which one? A. Just what do you mean by "which one"?

Q. You said in one of your offices; do you have more than one office?

Mr. Weisman: He means one of the rooms of their offices. They have several rooms in the office.

The Witness: We occupy the entire twelfth floor of the Lexington Building and it has been broken down into offices and we have given her permission to use a desk in one of our offices.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I notice that in the minutes on the third page of Commission's Exhibit No. 850-C you make this statement: "It was felt that the Baltimore Guild should have some control over her (the shopper's) activities. It was ac-10049 cordingly decided, upon motion which was duly seconded and carried, that the Guild agree to reimburse the Fashion Originators Guild for part of the expense incurred in employing a shopper for Baltimore; that she would be employed by the Fashion Originators Guild and receive her compensation from that organization, but that she report to the secretary of the Baltimore Guild and work under his supervision, it being understood that at least for the present the Baltimore Guild would furnish her with desk space." Would you say that that was never carried out? A. No. I would not say that that was never carried out, but that is not the set-up at the present time.

Q. Was there ever a time that the shopper worked under your supervision and reported to you? A. When she first 10050 came to Baltimore, yes.

Q. For how long did that last? A. I could not say exactly, but for such time as she had to have in order to have an opportunity to familiarize herself with the city and to meet and know the different people with whom she would work in the stores.

Q. Did you introduce her to the various stores? A. I arranged for her to meet the merchandise managers of the largest stores and then, at the first meeting of the Guild following her coming to Baltimore, why, I arranged for her to be at that meeting so that she could meet all of the members who would attend.

Q. What instructions, if any, did you give her? A. As far as I can recall at this time, none. She had received her instructions from the New York office of the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Q. What, if any, reports did she make to you at the beginning—that is, when she first came here? A. Reports merely as to how she would work and how she was coming along in her contacts. She would come in to see me and then she would go out to see them and then she would come back and tell me how she came out with her visits. 10052
It was just a friendly co-operation.

Q. Did she ever report to you when she found copies of any merchandise in stores—copies of Guild merchandise in stores that she was calling on, if she did so? A. She would comment about it to me. I do not know whether you would classify it or term it "reporting to me."

Q. Do you know whether or not any local meetings or meetings of local dealers were held to determine whether a garment, any garments found by the shopper in the stores, was in fact a copy of Guild merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Back on the record.

10053

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the selection of those committees of retailers? A. On one occasion Mrs. Lapedus asked for my advice as to whom to contact in connection with the meeting to be arranged for the purpose of determining whether or not certain garments were copies.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was that at the time that she first came to Baltimore, or recently? A. It was the first occasion, as I recall, that she had to arrange such a meeting, or had for arranging such a meeting.

Q. Did she report to you the results of that meeting? A. The meeting was held in my office, so there was no necessity for that.

Q. And you were present? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was any written report made of the results of that meeting? A. I cannot answer that question.

Q. Was any report made by you? A. No, sir.

10055 Q. But you do not know whether she made a report or not? A. No, sir.

Mr. Albert: To whom?

By Mr. Haycraft

Q. Are you sufficiently familiar with her duties to know whether it is customary for her to make reports of such meetings to the Guild? A. No.

Q. Subsequent to that first occasion that you refer to, have there been other instances of meetings of local dealers for the same purpose? A. Which I attended?

Q. No, that came to your knowledge, and by "the same purpose," I refer to your determining whether or not, as a matter of fact, a garment which had been selected by the 10056 shopper as a copy was, in fact, a copy of Guild merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On those occasions, how did the matter come to your knowledge? A. In the course of conversation either with Mrs. Lapedus, or one of the retailers who may have served as a member of the particular committee.

Q. Subsequent to that first meeting which you attended, who made the selection of the members of such committees, local committees? A. I am not familiar enough with the procedure to state definitely. I have an idea but I would not want to state it as a fact.

Q. The only one you are sure about is the first one you had any part in yourself; is that right? A. As to——

Q. The selection? A. As to the selection, yes.

Mr. Haycraft: May I have those rules and regulations you have there?

Mr. Bramble: This (handing papers to Mr. Haycraft).

By Mr. Haycraft.

10058

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 859 and ask you if you can identify and tell us what that is? A. Yes.

Q. Will you describe each one for the record as to what they are, each page? A. 859 is——

Mr. Bramble: Are you going to offer that?

Mr. Haycraft: Just as soon as I get through identifying it.

Mr. Weisman: Then off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the papers that the witness has just been testifying to constitute one subject, and deal with one subject, namely, the articles of constitution, rules and regulations of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore. 10059 These consist, with the cover page, of eight pages, the same being firmly fastened together as a book with fasteners, and will be identified as one exhibit and be marked Commission's Exhibit 859 for Identification. Now, Mr. Haycraft, go ahead with your identification.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I want you to tell us what pages 2, 3 and 4 are in there, so as to make it clear.

Mr. Bramble: If your Honor please, I do not interpose an objection now, but is not that another way of getting the paper in before we have a chance to object? Why can we not have the paper offered and then have him explain?

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

10061 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you if this exhibit which the Examiner has just had bound together includes the agreements between the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Is that agreement Commission's Exhibit 843-A to G, inclusive? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: At this time I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit 859, as identified by the witness.

Examiner Averill: I overrule the objection, gentlemen, and note an exception to counsel.

Mr. Bramble: Exception.

10062 Examiner Averill: And the papers in question are pages to be numbered commencing with the outside title page, from one to eight, inclusive, and will be received in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 859.

Mr. Haycraft: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

(The papers referred to, consisting of eight pages, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 859, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 851 for Identification, Mr. Roycroft, and I will ask you if you will identify that exhibit as to just what it is. A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is my office copy of the by-laws, rules and regulations, and agreement with the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore.

Q. In effect at the present time? A. Except for the 10064 agreement, yes.

Q. Is the agreement attached to the exhibit?

(The witness examines the document for several minutes.)

A. No, not to my office copy.

Q. No? A. No. May I qualify that answer to leave out the agreement.

Q. In other words, it is the by-laws, rules and regulations of the Baltimore Guild? A. Yes, it is the by-laws, rules and regulations of the Baltimore Guild.

Q. In effect at the present time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that exhibit indicate on the various and respective pages thereof the dates of the various rules and reg- 10065 ulations as to when they were adopted? A. It gives the approximate date when the various rules and regulations were adopted, yes.

Q. Calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 6, an agreement between the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc., and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., entered into on September 30, 1935, I will ask you whether or not that agreement, which is to expire on December 31, 1935, was ever renewed? A. No, sir.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 851 for Identification, are any of the rules, regulations, and by-laws contained therein rules and regulations of the Baltimore Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild that were adopted subsequently to December 31, 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which ones? A. What?

Q. On what pages and which ones? A. Page 6, page 7, and page 8. I beg your pardon, I will have to eliminate page 8; page 9 and page 10.

Q. Will you give those pages again so we may be certain

Q. Referring to page 6—

Mr. Haycraft: I am trying to get this so I can make my offer. I am not trying to get anything in the record but just to make clear what I am offering.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I notice the date effective is August 1, 1936, as to page 6. I will ask you whether or not the price schedule similar to that was in effect, a price schedule similar to that was in effect on December 31, 1935, as a rule or a regulation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The same question as to page 7, which refers to the 10068 matter of alteration charges. A. Yes, sir.

Q. As to pages 9 and 10, when were they actually adopted by the Baltimore Guild? A. During April of 1936.

Q. Mr. Roycroft, heretofore in your testimony reference has been made to a so-called "price-line agreement," also in minutes of the Baltimore Guild. A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you to explain for the record what is meant by the term "price-line agreement," and if in doing so can you clear up on page 6 of this exhibit, Commission's Exhibit 851 for Identification, the matter, because this is the exhibit that we are now discussing. A. The price-line agreement, as I understand it, and as I have referred to it, has to do with a group of suggested prices which the Baltimore Guild adopted.

Examiner Averill: I want to ask the witness several questions about this matter.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. From whom did those suggested prices emanate? A. For whom?

Q. From whom? A. From whom? 10070

Q. By whom were the prices suggested? A. They were suggested by the——

Q. Manufacturer? A. Various members of the Baltimore Guild.

Q. When? A. Prior to the organization of the Guild, why, the price set up on ready-to-wear, and particularly ladies' ready-to-wear in Baltimore was more or less chaotic, you might say, to the extent that one store might be offering prices of $11, another of $10.95, another at $10.75, and another at $10.89, or any price thereabouts that you might think of or that might suggest itself to them.

In order to clarify the price lines, we asked for suggestions from all members of the Guild as to what prices from approximately $11, or $10, up to and around $50, they 10071 felt might be desirable both from—well, particularly from, as I might say, for price appeal. In other words, in my opinion, the $10.95 is a price having a price appeal for women that is more than the full $11 price. The scale as it was finally adopted, or the prices, as were originally adopted in the scale, were taken from the suggestions which came in from all of the members, so that where one member might feel that $10.95 would be desirable, and another one might feel that $10.89, however, if the majority favored $10.95 then $10.95 it was.

Q. That is how they were arrived at? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring to these pages——

Examiner Averill: One moment. I would like to follow my line of thought for a moment in order to clarify this matter.

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly.

By Examiner Averill.

10073 Q. What consideration was given, if any, in arriving at these price-line understandings, to suggestions for these price-line suggestions from the manufacturers of nationally advertised apparel, if these be suggestions, in fact? A. We have had none from the manufacturers. We have made an exception—as a matter of fact, I know we have made an exception in our agreement as it applies to nationally advertised apparel simply at the request of one who at that time had—and I refer to one of our members who was handling an advertised line, or handling nationally advertised merchandise, or carrying nationally advertised merchandise in his line as, for example, merchandise carried in "Vogue" from time to time, as it has a specific price, and "Vogue" is a magazine having a national dis-
10074 tribution. We realized that if our price line in Baltimore was $14.50, and "Vogue" advertised a specific garment at $15, the Baltimore stores carrying that merchandise should tie in with the nationally advertised price, consequently, we allowed an exception in that case so as to permit the Baltimore stores who might be carrying these particular styles, and which were advertised in "Vogue," to offer them to the customer at the nationally advertised price.

Q. If they so desired? A. Yes, if they so desired.

Q. You use the word "permit"; that is what I want to know about. A. It was optional with them if they wanted to mark it any price they chose, but the question was primarily raised to permit them to make their prices and to mark them at those prices as set forth in "Vogue," or other nationally advertised garments.

Examiner Averill: That explains what I had in mind.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was it an understanding as the result of any—any of these price-line agreements—was it the understanding concerning any of these price-line agreements that the 10076 price of them, of the garments— A. I am afraid I do not understand.

Q. I will start it from a different angle. A. Yes.

Q. Was it an understanding as the result of these price-line agreements that the members of the Baltimore Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild would observe the prices on the price schedule which was adopted by the Guild in marking up their merchandise in the ranges covered by that schedule? A. Did I understand you to say "as it understood"?

Q. Yes. A. That they would?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. It was? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Was there any, outside of the exceptions that you just referred to now, and which I think were further set 10077 forth in the testimony heretofore, what was the policy of the Baltimore Guild as to exceptions from the schedule as to allowing local merchants, members of the Baltimore Guild, to differentiate from the price list, or depart from the price list in those schedules as set forth? A. Well, in the case of coats, the coat schedule, as an example, as set forth in there, why, any coats advertised in a sale, or, as we term it, "under the caption 'sale,'" could be marked any price the retailer saw fit.

Q. Any other exception? A. There is another exception entered in there with regard to suits priced to resell below $17.95.

Q. What is that? A. In other words, any retailer buying suits, why—and he was going to mark them below $17.95, why, he could use his own discretion as to the price he was going to mark them——

Q. With that exception— A. Say that the price stood at $10.95—the suit started at $17.95, but perhaps I had better give you the full range there. In the first place, the dresses started at $10.95. The suits started in at $17.95. The agreement only held true on coats when they

10079 were offered at other than "sales."

Q. And this exception as to coats, was that one of the things took place effective August 1, 1936? A. No, that exception has been in there for a very long while.

Q. That has been in there for a good long while? A. Some time.

Q. That has been in there for a good long time? A. Yes, sir; it has been in there for quite some time.

Q. Was there any exception as to any other garments in the price range other than coats and suits? A. None that I can recall offhand.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discusison off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

10089

Q. You say that was in effect before August, 1936. Was it adopted about April, 1936, Mr. Roycroft?

Examiner Averill: He is referring now to page 6.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I am referring to the exception as to suits in $17.95, part of that.

Examiner Averill: Yes. All right.

10081

A. This particular averment, as you have it on page 6, was in effect prior to August 1, 1936, except for some minor changes which were made as of August 1.

Examiner Averill: And for how long had it been effective prior to that time?

The Witness: It was adopted at the April 20, 1936 meeting of the Baltimore Guild.

Examiner Averill: That was its first adoption, 1936?

The Witness: No, that is the one that superseded this one (indicating papers).

Mr. Haycraft: That one superseded it, you mean?

Examiner Averill: Yes, the one on page 6.

10082

The Witness: The one—preceding the one of April 20.

Examiner Averill: 1936?

The Witness: April 20, 1936.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What one did that, in turn, supersede? A. That is what—pardon me—this is off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Haycraft: I withdraw the last question.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Let me ask you this question: When did the Baltimore Guild first adopt the price-line schedule or agreement? A. During the latter part of 1933.

10083

Mr. Weisman: That was under the N.R.A.?

The Witness: As I recall it, the N.R.A. was in effect at that time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did the N.R.A. have anything to do with that price-line schedule, to your knowledge? A. Just what do you mean by the N.R.A. having——

Q. Well, anyone from the N.R.A., or did you go to the N.R.A. with the schedule? A. We had a member—a member of the organization on the local board of the—at least on the local retail board of the N.R.A.

Q. The point I am trying to make, was the price-line schedule you referred to a part of an N.R.A. project that you were working on? A. No.

Q. All right. When was it in 1933 that the first price-
10085 line schedule was adopted? A. During October, 1933. When you say "adopted," I presume you mean put into effect?

Q. That is right.

Examiner Averill: And thereafter, sir, were there, from time to time, changes, additions or eliminations from that schedule?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: Which followed on down consecutively at various times until——

The Witness: Present date.

Examiner Averill: Until August, 1936, at any rate?

The Witness: That is it. The first schedule, or,
10086 at least, price line, was first discussed with the Guild during September, 1933, and a definite schedule put into effect during October of 1933. Since then, why, there have been elaborations, modifications from time to time up until the present day, when we now have in effect the schedule which you have in the booklet there, dated August 1, 1936.

Examiner Averill: I see.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Just one more question. Getting back to the question I propounded a while ago. When was it that the Guild put into effect its price-line schedule on suits—that is, suits priced to retail below $17.95, which is indicated on page 6?

Mr. Bramble: Off the record.
(There was a discussion off the record.)
Examiner Averill: On the record.
The Witness: May I have that question again?
(Last question read.)

A. I presume you mean the exception? 10088

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The exception referred to. A. Suits retailing under $17.95?

Q. Yes. A. That exception was made at the board meeting on April 25, 1936.

Q. Can you state why that exception was made?

Mr. Weisman: Wait a moment, let us not go afield on that.
Mr. Haycraft: All right.
Examiner Averill: Off the record.
(There was a discussion off the record.)
Mr. Haycraft: Probably I better ask a couple of questions. 10089
Examiner Averill: On the record?
Mr. Haycraft: Yes. We will leave this for the time being, and take 7, I think I can ask a couple of questions and give you a basis to rule on them.
Examiner Averill: All right. Go ahead.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring to your schedule of alteration charges on page 7 of this Commission's Exhibit 851 for Identification, I will ask you whether or not this schedule is similar in form to the second page of Commission's Exhibit 859 already in evidence, which on its face was made effective June 1, 1932? A. I would like to qualify my answer, if I may. You will note that the particular schedule that you refer to is a schedule of the Retail Merchants Association.

Q. Yes. A. Which was adopted June 1, 1932, and antedates the organization of the Baltimore Guild.

10091 Q. Would you say, then, that— A. Pardon me just a moment.

Q. Yes. A. What you have offered in evidence here is in effect a schedule of the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore which I had simply in my minute book as an office copy, so to speak, because the Guild schedule was patterned after the one which had been adopted by the Retail Merchants Association.

Q. In other words, the schedule of alteration was a matter that had been adopted by the Retail Merchants Association prior to the organization of the Baltimore Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Baltimore Guild simply adopted that schedule as a part of its activities, did they? A. Yes, sir.

10092 Examiner Averill: That is all.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would you say that the schedule of alteration charges, page 2 of Commission's Exhibit 859, was one of the rules or regulations of the Baltimore Guild at the time it began—that is, from the time it began, for the time of its existence as a beginning, in 1933? A. I am inclined to think that this schedule as promulgated by the Retail Merchants Association was adopted by the Baltimore Guild shortly after the Guild's organization.

Q. Was it continuous throughout the life of the old organization, and then adopted by the new organization? By the "new organization" I mean the present Guild.

Examiner Averill: You mean the incorporated Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: The incorporated Guild, with such modification as was necessary from time to time to make.

A. Yes, sir.

10094

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. So that page 7 of Commission's Exhibit 851 for Identification is a continuation of a schedule of alteration charges of misses' and women's wearing apparel, originally adopted by the Guild in 1933? A. Or some time thereabouts, yes.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the paper heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit No. 851 for Identification, the paper being the by-laws, rules, regulations and agreement of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc., to which objections have heretofore been made, all objections are overruled and the paper will be received in evidence, and the same will be marked Commission's Exhibit 851, 10095 pages 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6—page 7 has been withdrawn, and will be physicaly removed from the papers—the page heretofore spoken of as page 8 will be received in evidence and marked "page 8"; pages 9 and 10, as originally contained, not being offered, will not be any part or parcel of this exhibit. The page No. 8 is headed "Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore Regulations Governing Fashion Shows." That is the page referred to. Those pages received in evidence will be bound together and given one exhibit number, namely, Commission's Exhibit No. 851, without any subnumbers thereunder.

(The document heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 851 was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Roycroft, in carrying out the functions and details of the activities—in carrying out the functions of your office as secretary of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild 10097 of Baltimore, what have been your duties and what have you done aside from keeping the minutes which you have gone into heretofore? A. Taken care of the general correspondence of the Baltimore Guild.

Q. Yes. A. Also I have accepted it and acted as the headquarters for, or, at least, have maintained the headquarters of the organization in my office as the result of which all suggestions, complaints, and what not, have, for the most part, come to my attention, or have been brought to my attention.

Q. With whom have you principally had correspondence? A. With the local members.

Q. Do you carry on correspondence with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. From time to 10098 time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would you write to them when you had a complaint that the local rule, a local rule was being violated—a rule of your Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. Would I write to them if I had a complaint that the local rules were being violated?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Would you write to them—what would be the circumstances under which you would write to them? For instance, would you acquaint the Fashion Originators Guild of America of any infraction of the rules of the local Guild? A. Not necessarily.

Q. I do not mean necessarily; I am asking you whether you did or not. A. You said would I, if I understood you correctly, and I said——

Q. Yes. A. —I said not necessarily.

Q. Have you, in any event? A. I do not understand.

Q. Have you ever notified them? A. Have I notified them—may I repeat that question, just for a minute— 10100 have I notified the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., of any violations or infractions of the rules of the local association; is that your full question?

Q. Yes, have you done so? A. Of what guild?

Q. Of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore. A. No, sir.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Is it your custom, Mr. Roycroft, to acquaint the executive secretary of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., of applications that you have had for membership in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc.? A. It was the custom to notify Mr. Golby as executive secretary of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., as to any action taken by our board con- 10101 cerning members or local retailers who might have been or whose applications might have been received by our Board of Directors for acceptance by the members.

Q. Did Mr. Golby, in turn, call upon you to inform him as to whether or not certain retail dealers in Baltimore were members of your organization or had applied for membership? A. From time to time; yes, sir.

Q. What would you do when those requests were made? A. I would answer his inquiry.

Q. Calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit 103, I will ask you whether or not the "For Madam Dress Shop," operated by Mrs. Edward D. Fenton, became a member of the Baltimore Guild in September, 1935, or thereafter? A. I would like to answer the question by stating that Mrs. Fenton never operated the "For Madam Dress Shop."

Q. Did Mrs. Fenton purchase the "For Madam Dress Shop"? A. I do not know.

Q. Did Mrs. Fenton ever become a member of your organization? A. Yes.

Q. She did? A. Yes.

10103 Q. Under what name did she become a member of your organization? A. Mrs. Edward T. Fenton—Mrs. Edward D. Fenton.

Q. Where was she located? A. As far as I can recall, in the Guilford Manor Apartments, or it may have been the Cambridge Arms, I do not know; but I think it was one or the other.

Q. You think it was one or the other? A. I do; yes, sir.

Q. Now, directing your attention to Commission's Exhibit 104, I think it is a lettered exhibit A and B, I suppose it is. I will ask you whether or not you have a recollection of the subject-matter of that letter? A. I recall—to answer your question, Mr. Haycraft—I recall the condition, if I may call it that, that necessitated the writing 10104 of this letter.

Examiner Averill: Now, I wish you would put in there that it appears that the letter in question is a letter from whom.

Mr. Weisman: From the Fashion Originators Guild.

The Witness: From the Fashion Originators Guild of America to myself, as secretary of the Baltimore Guild.

Mr. Haycraft: On October 1, 1935.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Well, now——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —111, 112 and 113, and ask you if you recall——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): May we have those?

Mr. Bramble: May I see those?

Mr. Weisman: May we get through with one exhibit at a tim Judge, instead of hopping from one to another?

Examiner Averill: I think it would be much 10106 better, but I do not know what they contain.

Mr. Haycraft: Cannot do it that way, it is impossible, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Showing you Commission's Exhibits 111, 112 and 113, I ask you whether or not you are familiar with the telegrams therein set forth?

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Last question read.)

A. I am not familiar with the Exhibit No. 111 that was 10107 sent by a member of the Baltimore Guild to the Fashion Originators Guild and did not pass through my hands. The same applies to Exhibit No. 112. I am familiar with Exhibit No. 113.

Q. That is your telegram, is it not? A. It is a telegram of Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore sent by me.

Q. And addressed to Mr. Post?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that, the document speaks for itself.

Examiner Averill: I know, but let it show on the record so that we may know what we are talking about.

Mr. Weisman: Withdraw the objection.

Examiner Averill: You see what I mean?

Mr. Weisman: I should not have objected. Mr. Albert is going to conduct the examination from now on. I am leaving.

By Mr. Haycroft.

10109 Q. What is your answer—addresesd to Mr. Post? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you say that the other two telegrams, Commission's Exhibits 111 and 112, relate to the same subject-matter? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Roycroft, what was the situation in Baltimore that prompted the sending of your telegram to Mr. Post, under date of October 1, Commission's Exhibit 113? A. As I recall, an announcement sent out by a resident of Baltimore in the form of an invitation to her—I suppose you might term it that—friends and associates, directing attention to the fact that Chezrozette, who was going to conduct a fashion show at her residence, or at the residence, I think, of a friend of hers—the location of this friend's house being in a section which is zoned in Baltimore City, as strictly residential. In other words, by permitting Chezrozette to go into that section she was unquestionably having an advantage which none of the local retailers could have. The zoning laws of Baltimore preclude the possibility of a local retailer setting up for business in that section.

Examiner Averill: This Chezrozette is a dealer?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Examiner Averill: In Baltimore?

The Witness: No, he is a New York retailer coming down to Baltimore.

Examiner Averill: I see.

The Witness: Setting up in the restricted neighborhood, selling——

Examiner Averill: Under the guise of a private house?

The Witness: The Guild merchandise under the guise of a fashion show.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: We shopped the etsablishment and found that they were violating the itinerant vendor's 10112 laws of the State of Maryland, brought the State license bureau into the picture; they, in turn, brought the two local aids into the office of the State license bureau, cautioned them as to what would happen if they attempted to repeat it—I mean, repeat the arrangement; and, as I recall it, subsequently noted either Chezrozette or Jane Engel.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who was Jane Engel? A. I understand that Chezrozette is a branch, or something to that effect, of Jane Engel in New York.

Q. Where in Baltimore was this display to be made? A. I do not recall the exact address, but it was in the 10113 vicinity, I think, of University Parkway, in that general location, one of the most exclusive residential sections of Baltimore.

Q. How did you say you learned of this taking place? A. The particular lady who was working out the details with Chezrozette had sent invitations around to the residents of Baltimore, extending an invitation for them to attend.

Q. I notice here it says, "Baltimore Guild definitely opposed Chezrozette or Jane Engel displaying merchandise in Baltimore as planned. Announcements indicate practically all Baltimore Guild regulations will be violated during this showing. This set-up places them in the classification. Baltimore retailers insist Fashion Originators Guild compel them to conform to our regulations when operating locally." What were the Guild regulations that would be violated? A. Selling——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Will you answer that, will you make that plain. Do you refer to the Baltimore Guild?

10115 Mr. Haycraft: That is what it says.

Mr. Weisman: All right. The reason I say this —off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: But I think the telegram clearly shows it refers to the local Guild regulations in Baltimore which were being violated.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead, now. A. Primarily, that they would be selling from an apartment house shop; secondly, that they would be setting themselves up in Baltimore under the 10116 guise of a display, and from what we had been given to understand, actually selling merchandise.

Q. Was there any rule or regulation of the Baltimore Guild that you recall being violated, or that would be violated, if that showing was allowed? A. Not that I can recall at the present time.

Q. How about the price-line agreement? A. I had no knowledge as to what price line Chezrozette used, so that—

Q. Did you see the announcement? A. Yes, but the announcement was not an announcement of Chezrozette, but an announcement of a Baltimore woman, simply calling attention to the fact that this fashion show would be held at her home, and made no effort to quote prices, so to speak.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Well, did your Guild take steps, or did you take steps, acting for your Guild, to follow up and see what was actually done, or undertaken to be done, about that fashion show or so-called fashion show? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you mind telling us what steps? A. We ar- 10118 ranged to have Mrs. Lapedus present.

Q. That is your shopper? A. That is the Fashion Originators Guild shopper, present at either Mr. Golby's or Mr. Post's suggestion, and we arranged to have her present on the first day to observe and see what actually transpired. She came back and reported to me that—she came back and reported merchandise was actually being sold. As a matter of fact, they were using the second floor as sort of a fitting room, I am told. I then called the State License Bureau, knowing—being familiar to a certain extent with the itinerant vendors' law in Maryland, I called Mr. Bratton, and stated to him what was actually transpiring. He said we would have to have evidence, and, consequently, the next morning I sent Mrs. Lapedus out the 10119 second time with money, gave her instructions that, if possible, to buy or make a purchase there. She came back that afternoon with the dress, as I recall. She had paid about $17.95 for it, with a sales check. With that evidence I then went over to Mr. Bratton's office, submitted the sales check and the report of the shopper, and on the strength of that he communicated with the two ladies involved. It was only a two days' showing, as I recall, and as he explained to me at that time it was only a matter of an hour or two yet before they were going to close up anyhow, but he would have them in there within a day or two and sort of read the riot act to them. He explained to me that an out-of-State retailer coming into the State of Maryland, taking orders and actually making delivery, and consummating sales in Baltimore City, without having first taken out an itinerant vendors' license, they were in violation of the State laws, and that if a case really wanted to be made, of course, they were perfectly willing to prosecute, but the violation, in his opinion, possibly did not justify bringing Chezrozette back into the State of Maryland for this particular offense, but that they would put themselves on record with them.

Examiner Averill: Do you know whether the firm calling themselves Chezrozette are manufacturers or retailers?

Mr. Haycraft: They are New York retailers.

Examiner Averill: New York retailers?

Mr. Haycraft: Member of a New York Uptown Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit 114, and ask you if you recall writing that letter to Mr. Post in reply to his letter which is in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 104?

10122

Mr. Bramble: May we look at that just a moment?

Examiner Averill: You may look at it.

Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Haycraft: Read the last question.

(Last question read.)

A. I can recognize it as a letter I wrote; I cannot recall having written it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I cannot do that because the record is gone now, but I will ask you now so that you will have the matter entirely before you this question which will clarify it: If you will explain what price lines were meant in this particular letter? A. The price-line schedule, or at least the price lines which were being used by the Baltimore stores; namely, $10.95 to $49.95, I think.

Q. Did you at a meeting with the members of the local guild discuss this matter—first, I will ask you had you had a meeting with the members of the local guild with respect to this matter? A. I think we had a meeting with the members of the Baltimore Guild at which this particular 10124 matter was discussed, yes.

Examiner Averill: Was that the meeting of the Baltimore Guild prior to the sending of the two telegrams; namely, Commission's Exhibits 111 and 112, which, according to your testimony and according to the signature thereto, was sent out by members of the Guild and not by the Guild itself, so that—first, was that directly afterwards or some time after the period that you have reference to?

The Witness: I am inclined to think that our meeting was prior, but before definitely answering I would like to check up our minutes against the date of this telegram.

10125

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you got the date of that meeting now? A. There is an approximate date on that letter, is there? If there is some date that you can give me I would appreciate it.

Mr. Haycraft: October 22 was the date of that letter.

Examiner Averill: '35?
Mr. Haycraft: '35.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you find it? A. To answer your question, Judge, I think the meeting of September 30, 1935.

Examiner Averill: '35?
The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. By reference to those minutes, can you find out when 10127 this matter was discussed, and, in fact, whether it was discussed at the meeting of September 30, 1935? A. Yes.

Q. Will you do so? A. Yes.

Q. Have you done so? A. I have.

Q. Was it? A. It was.

Q. It was? A. Right.

Q. Those minutes are in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 852-A to C? A. No, A to D.

Q. A to D? A. A to E, I think—wait a minute, there seems to be a whole lot of the alphabet here.

Q. Is it A to G? A. A to G.

Q. A to G? A. Right, A to G is right.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 115 and ask you if you recall receiving the original of that letter? A. Just a moment until I get hold of the exhibit itself.

10128

(The witness examined the exhibit for some time.)

The Witness: Now, if I can have the question read again, please.

(Question read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you recall receiving the original of that letter? A. I do.

Q. You do recall receiving it? A. I do.

Q. Now, I will ask you whether or not you made any attempt to ascertain whether the garments—whether the agreement referred to in that letter was carried out? A. I beg your pardon.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you made any attempt to ascertain whether or not the agreement that is referred to in that letter was carried out? A. I think I mentioned earlier in my testimony that I had Mrs. Lapedus, the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., shopper, attend the fashion show on two days for the purpose of ascertaining exactly what happened, or transpired there.

Q. Did she, Mrs. Lapedus, the shopper for the Fashion 10130
Originators Guild of America, Inc., report to you the prices at which the garments were being sold? A. Yes.

Q. She did? A. Who?

Q. Your shopper. A. Our shopper?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, I did not have your question clearly in mind. I do not think she gave me a complete range of the prices at which the merchandise was being offered. I think, however, she did mention several of the prices, and the prices, as I recall, why, were rather in line, or comparable to the prices at which the Baltimore stores were offering the merchandise.

Q. Did she quote that there were any "off" prices reported as being observed by her as being quoted by the dealers at that fashion show?

10131

Mr. Weisman: If the witness knows.

A. I do not recall at this time.

10132 Charles F. Roycroft—For Commission—Direct.

Room 401, United States Appraisers Store Building, Baltimore, Maryland, November 11, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10.30 A. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(Same appearances.)

CHARLES F. ROYCROFT resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

10133

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 114, a letter you wrote to Mr. Post under date of October 2, 1935, in which you state as follows, in substance: We feel very definitely that Chezrozette in coming to Baltimore and possibly identifying with the Baltimore stores the very dresses they have will cause our members, or particularly the smaller shops, considerable embarrassment, and it is at their suggestion I am writing and asking the F.O.G.A. to at least insist that the established price line promulgated by the Guild here be adhered to by Chezrozette. In what way would the sale of any dresses by Chezrozette cause embarrassment to the members of the Baltimore Guild? A. We in Baltimore had established regular prices for merchandise in the opinion of a number of our smaller shops, or establishments, particularly those catering to the trade to which it was reasonable to assume would be invited to this particular show, and the offer by Chezrozette of merchandise at prices at variance with our established prices, why, would create confusion in the minds of the customers of the Baltimore stores.

Q. Can you give us an illustration of how it would cause confusion? A. Well, as a sample of what it would do, we had in Baltimore a $17.95 retail price. We had in Baltimore a $15 price. For Chezrozette to come into Baltimore with $16.50 merchandise, or a price thereabouts, we were inclined to feel that the Baltimore customers, or, at least the customers of the Baltimore stores would not be in position to know whether they were getting from Chezrozette $15 merchandise at $16.50 or $17.95 merchandise at $16.50. As a matter of fact, I might say that what did happen was that at least in the instances of the merchandise that I purchased from Chezrozette was getting $17.95 for $15 merchandise.

Q. It was the same identical price line? A. The identical merchandise that I bought from, or, at least, my shopper bought from Chezrozette and at Chezrozette's "Fashion Show" in Baltimore, or reputed "Fashion Show"; it was actually a sale of merchandise which took it out of the fashion show category, was being offered by one of the Baltimore stores at $15 because, in order to dispose of mine, I had to sell it at a reduced price because they would not pay any more than they were actually selling the merchandise for.

Q. How was it embarrassing to Baltimore merchants if the Baltimore merchant were selling merchandise at $15 that Chezrozette were selling at $17.95, with an overage in price of $2.95? A. I think anything that would create confusion in the minds of the customers of the Baltimore stores would have a tendency to embarrass the Baltimore stores.

Q. Do the customers of the Baltimore stores expect the stores to sell the same merchandise at the same price; that is, the same merchandise as to grade at the same price?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to. There has been no foundation laid to show that this witness knows what the customers expect of the Baltimore stores.

This witness has not been shown to have an intimate, or even casual knowledge with the workings of the customers of the Baltimore stores.

Examiner Averill: I think the gentleman is an expert. I think he is qualified to give his opinion on the matter, a matter of that type and character; although I rather have in mind what his answer will be, so I shall most reluctantly have to overrule your objection and give you an exception. Mr. Witness, you may answer the question.

Mr. Albert: On second thought, Mr. Examiner, I shall withdraw the objection.

10139 A. I am not qualified. I cannot speak for the customers. I do not know what they think.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What prices, or, to make it more specific, and get at it without so many questions, these prices that you refer to are prices to the consuming public, are they not, retail prices of the garments, just so the record may be clear? A. Yes, I am speaking of retail prices except in the case where I refer to selling merchandise to a store, and that was a sale to a store by me to simply dispose of the merchandise. Of course, in that case, the merchandise was sold at different from the average retail price.

Q. In the next paragraph we have here, it states: "As 10140 mentioned above, we are not asking that cost govern the retail in connection with the price line of their merchandise; while this would be desirable, we can appreciate your inability to enforce the provisions of our schedule"—The part of the letter that I refer to is "cost governing retail"; what do you mean by "cost governing retail" in connection with price lines? A. Exactly as the letter states. At that time the Baltimore Guild had, in fact, an arrangement whereby cost governed the retail price at which the merchandise was sold in Baltimore.

Q. What was the relationship between the cost and the retail price at that time observed by the Baltimore retailers? A. I cannot recall that schedule from memory. I think you have it.

Q. Do you have anything to refresh your recollection from? A. I think you had it in one of the exhibits, if I am not mistaken about it.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you anything to refresh your recollection? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please refresh your recollection, then? 10142

Mr. Bramble: Could we see that? I do not know what it is.

(Mr. Haycraft hands paper to Mr. Bramble.)

The Witness: This is not in evidence, just a memorandum.

Examiner Averill: Oh, no, we just had him look at this memorandum. He wanted to refresh his recollection. Of course you may look at it, I do not mean that.

Mr. Bramble: I see.

Examiner Averill: But it is just something he happened to have in his pocket.

Mr. Bramble: All right.

10143

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, then, having refreshed your recollection, will you testify as to the relation between the cost and the retail price? A. A specific retail price.

Q. You may make any selection yourself. Take, for instance, a dress that is sold at $10.95 at retail, what would be the cost of that, according to the price list? A. On that particular schedule we had no cost governing retail on $10.95. Any merchandise price at $6.75 or less, why, could be sold at $10.95 at the discretion of the store.

Q. Take $12.95 there, retail price at $12.95. A. The cost on merchandise retailing at $12.95 would be anything from $6.76 to $7.75. At this point, when we get into this particular phase of it, I would like to clarify this just to a certain extent, namely, that when I say merchandise costing $6.76 to $7.75, it was retailed at $12.95. That held only for a period of three weeks, and not necessarily three weeks from the date a given store received that merchandise, but for a period of three weeks from when the mer-10145 chandise was first received in Baltimore by any store.

In other words, store A may get the merchandise in to-day, while store B may not get it in for a period of two weeks from now. Store B, under that set-up, would only be required to mark it at $12.95 for a period of a week, because the merchandise had already been in town for a period of two weeks.

Now, there is another angle to it that I think I might clarify, and that is when merchandise—any merchandise that any store might buy—is offered in a sale, and cost did not govern the retailer, as an example, a store might pay $7.75 for a dress, immediately upon its receipt in Baltimore, throw it into a sale that it is offering—they could offer that merchandise at any price they saw fit, below $12.95 or above, provided, of course, it fit into one of our 10146 established price lines.

Q. You would not be allowed to price it between those? A. They could not price it between it; if they went down below $10.95, we had no suggestions.

Q. In other words, if you bought a dress for $7.75, you would expect them to sell it for $12.95 for nearly three weeks, if they were the first one on the market? A. That's it.

Q. But if they were the last one, and there was a sale on, then they could sell it at $10.95? A. If they were the first one, and there was a sale on, they could sell it for anything they wanted to below $10.95, and at any of our established price lines from $10.95 to $49.95, or at anything they wanted to sell it for above $49.95. Our price lining only covers retail prices from $10.95 to $49.95.

Q. In other words, cost did not enter into your sales? A. Not into sales, a cost did not enter into it.

Q. Was there any percentage basis of your mark-up between cost and your price line that you established, or were there varying margins or mark-ups? A. Well, I am not an accountant, but, offhand, looking at the cost figures and the retail figures, I would say definitely that there was a variation of mark-ups. 10148

Q. What would be the cost range for your $15 price line? A. From $7.76 to $8.75.

Q. Your $17.95 price line? A. From $8.76 to $10.75.

Q. Your $19.95 price line? A. We had no $19.95 price line at the time, cost governing retail was in effect.

Q. By the way, when was that in effect, beginning when? A. Again I am going to have to ask to look at the minute book; I do not have the dates.

(Mr. Haycraft shows minute book to witness.)

Mr. Bramble: You are speaking of a particular paper now?

Mr. Haycraft: Still referring to the letter of October 19, 1935, to establish what was meant in a certain paragraph of that letter. 10149

Mr. Bramble: That is Exhibit 114.

Mr. Haycraft: Trying to run the thing back—yes, that is Exhibit 114.

Examiner Averill: Do you want to see it?

Mr. Bramble: No, I think we saw it yesterday.

The Witness: That paper will be down shortly. Now, we are going to a point where I think that paper I am looking for will give you some definite reference.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. After refreshing your recollection from the minutes and other papers which you have before you there, can you give us an estimate of the length of time that those cost prices—cost governing retail price arrangement, or agreement, was in effect by the Baltimore Guild? A. If I understand your question correctly, the Baltimore Guild 10151 had such an arrangement in effect for the period of time of about two months.

Mr. Albert: From when to when?

The Witness: From some time in the first half of 1935 until the early part of 1936 or some time around April, 1936, when it was modified.

Mr. Albert: You said two months; did you mean two months?

The Witness: No, I meant twelve months.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 119, which is a letter from Mr. Golby to yourself, dated October 21, 1935, and advising that David Crystal, Inc., has resigned from 10152 membership in the Fashion Originators Guild and he will be no longer entitled to enjoy the benefits of membership in their Guild. I will ask you what, if any, action was taken by your office on receipt of that letter?

Mr. Albert: May we see this?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Albert: What is that question now?

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: No objection.

A. None.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. None? A. Not a thing.

Q. Did you in any way acquaint the members of your Guild with that information, the Baltimore Guild? A. No, sir.

Mr. Bramble: What did you say?

The Witness: No, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibits 849-A and B, which are the minutes of the Baltimore Guild of February 25, 1935, I call your attention to the second paragraph which says: "The appended report of the committee on price lines was presented by Mr. E. H. Currier, Chairman. Following an extended discussion, and upon motion, which was duly seconded and carried, the report of the committee was adopted, subject to ratification by those members of the Board of Control not present at the meeting." I will ask you whether or not that fixes the date in your mind as to when the cost of price lines was adopted by your local Guild? A. Yes, this is the exhibit that is missing.

(The witness here refers to an unoffered appendment to the exhibit.)

The Witness: I am inclined to feel that subsequent to this meeting—in other words, some time during March of 1935, is when the Baltimore Guild adopted the schedule which terminated during April of 1936.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is Rose E. Phillips a member of your Baltimore Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Did she ever make application for membership? A. No, sir.

Q. She did not? A. She did not.

Mr. Bramble: What was that?

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10157 Q. Did you ever make an investigation, or cause an investigation to be made of the shop operated by Rose E. Phillips at 420 North Charles Street to see whether she would be eligible for membership in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Md., and when I say "by you," I mean if it were made, I do not mean, personally, but did you have the investigation made by those acting under your supervision, direction, and under your authority? A. No, sir.

Q. No? A. I would like to qualify that answer of "no," by saying that the Rose E. Phillips' shop and her method of operations are known to quite a few members of the Baltimore Guild, and that she was eligible for membership. As a matter of fact, we had one of the officers of 10158 the local Guild call on her and extend a personal invitation to join, but she never acted upon the invitation.

Q. Do you know whether or not she handles Guild merchandise? A. I, personally, do not.

Q. Are Miss Lauterklos or Miss Sedgewick of "Town and Country," 811 South Charles Street, a member of the Baltimore Guild? A. Both of those ladies are members of the Baltimore Guild but not in the capacity that you refer to.

Q. Not in the capacity? A. No.

Q. Then in what capacity are they members of the Baltimore Guild, if other than those which I mentioned? A. They were accepted as members at that time, at that particular time, and subsequently thereto they dissolved their partnership, and they are both operating individually, and as individuals they are members of the Baltimore Guild. One is trading as "Town and Country," and the other is trading as "Cross Country."

Q. The firm of Lee, Inc., at 3424 Eastern Avenue, Baltimore, Md.; is that a member of the local Baltimore Guild? A. Yes.

Q. It is? A. Yes.

Q. How long has it— A. What did you say? 10160

Q. How long has it been a member, do you know? A. What is that that you are referring to there? If I knew what you were referring to there I could save a little time by getting the date from it. I notice you have a paper there.

Q. Yes. A. Are you referring to that paper?

Q. I am referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 128. A. And what is that?

Q. What is the date of that letter? A. The date of the letter is March 11, 1935.

Q. Yes. A. To save time, may I answer by saying that they were accepted for membership shortly after the organization of the Guild.

Q. You mean shortly after the date of that letter? A. Yes. I beg your pardon, shortly after the date of that 10161 letter.

Q. Shortly after March 11, 1935? A. Yes. That fixes it more accurately, shortly after March 11, 1935, or some time thereabouts.

Q. The Sloan Strobel firm, 1033 St. Paul Street—is that firm a member of the Baltimore Guild? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Did you make any investigation there as to whether they were eligible for membership or not, and, if so, what were the results of your investigation, if any? A. The investigation which the Baltimore Guild made at that time, as I recall, indicated that that particular firm is operating an apartment shop and not eligible for membership.

Examiner Averill: What do you mean by "apartment shop"? You have used that several times heretofore.

The Witness: Operating from a private residence—that is, this particular store—that is the 10163 particular usage which we give to it in connection with this particular store, sir. We use that differently in connection with some other shops that are located in apartment buildings.

Examiner Averill: You do not mean a shop in a building—a shop in an apartment building?

The Witness: No, not my answer here, no. This is a combination residence and shop, where the individual lives possibly on the second floor and operates on the first floor, or lives in the rear of the first floor and operates in the front part of her place of business.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10164 Q. As a matter of fact, do you know whether there were other businesses conducted in the same block where this store is located? A. I am not in position to answer that at this time.

Q. Would that make any difference in determining whether that particular shop was eligible or was not eligible? A. The location of the shop would not necessarily change its status.

Q. No. Commission's Exhibit No. 132, in or wherein you report to Mr. Golby, in reply to a letter from him that the Sloan Strobel establishment is, in your opinion, "an apartment house." A. No. In our opinion.

Q. In your opinion? A. "In our opinion." Speaking now for the Guild and not for myself.

Q. Yes, speaking for the Guild, the Baltimore Guild, "an apartment shop," and, as such, is not eligible for membership in the Baltimore Guild. Upon what do you base your own "our opinion," as you called it in the letter? A. The report of the shopper who visited the address in question; namely, 1033 St. Paul Street in Baltimore.

Q. Well, now, will you state for the record what your 10166 rules and regulations are as to eligibility with respect to an apartment shop of the Baltimore Guild? A. I have not any. We have no hard and fast rule set up for the eligibility of an apartment shop or shops as members.

Q. What do you consider an apartment shop that would not be eligible for membership as referred to in this letter?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as entirely immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant for any purpose whatsoever.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You mean you do not have any rules to determine 10167 what is an apartment shop? A. None that I am familiar with.

Q. Do you have any apartment shops who are members of your Guild? A. It would depend entirely on what you would classify as an apartment shop. We have as members shops located in apartment buildings.

Mr. Albert: But you do not classify those, do you, as "apartment shops"?

The Witness: The shops of the Baltimore Guild?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

The Witness: So far as the Baltimore Guild is concerned, why, we would not and are not classifying them as apartment shops.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your definition of an "apartment shop"?

Mr. Bramble: I object to that.

Mr. Albert: I object.

Mr. Bramble: It can serve no purpose.

10169 Examiner Averill: Objection sustained, gentlemen. Exception noted to counsel.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 6, A to something else, E——

Q. Why did you write the letter?

Mr. Albert: That question is objected to as entirely immaterial.

Examiner Averill: The objection to the former question is sustained, but the objection to this question is overruled. He may say why he wrote the letter.

10170 A. Because Mr. Golby wrote me, I think, asking for the information.

Q. Was it customary for you to furnish that information to Mr. Golby?

Mr. Albert: Object to the question as immaterial.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Bramble: Exception.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Last question read.)

A. It was customary to furnish it upon request.

Mr. Bramble: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Bramble: May we consider that Mr. Albert's objections will be for me, too?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Albert: And when Mr. Bramble objects it may be considered for me also?

Mr. Bramble: Unless there is something special.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10172 Q. Is Gladys R. Ware, Inc., a member of the Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you make any investigation to ascertain whether she was eligible for membership? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you find? A. That she was.

Q. That she was eligible? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know why she did not join your Guild? A. She did join.

Q. I thought you said that she was not a member when I asked you a while ago? A. No, sir.

Q. She is a member? A. No.

Q. She joined and resigned; is that it? A. Yes, she has since gone out of business.

Q. I see. Are you acquainted with Mrs. Mathew Fenton? A. No, sir. 10173

Q. She is not a member of your Guild, the Baltimore Guild? A. Mrs. Edward T. Fenton is. That, I suppose, is the same individual; it may be the wrong Christian name.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 137, a letter from J. M. Golby to yourself, and ask you if that refers to Mrs. Edward T. Fenton, or is that the Mrs. Fenton you have in mind (showing paper to witness)? A. Yes, this is the Mrs. Fenton I have in mind.

Examiner Averill: The witness is now referring to what?

Mr. Haycraft: To Commission's Exhibit No. 137.

Examiner Averill: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did she become a member of the Baltimore Guild on or about April, 1935, April or May? A. I cannot recall the exact date, but she was accepted for membership in the Baltimore Guild.

10175 Q. I show you the last paragraph of the same letter——

Mr. Albert: Which one is that?

Mr. Haycraft: 137.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —in which Mr. Golby says: "Will you kindly let me hear from you regarding the steps the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore have taken regarding the unfair competition of Mrs. Fenton until such time as she takes a shop and joins the local Retail Guild?" Did you make any investigation pursuant to that request, or take any action pursuant to that request? A. Not as I recall.

Q. Do you know what Mr. Golby referred to there as 10176 to unfair competition of Mrs. Fenton? A. Nothing other than as set forth in this letter.

Q. What is a commissionaire, that is what they termed her, is it not? A. My interpretation would be more or less a curbstone broker, somebody that carries their office around in their hat, goes out and solicits orders, and then after she gets the orders, why, attempts to buy them from a manufacturer.

Examiner Averill: Excuse me just one moment. Those orders—if this person is acting in the capacity such as you spoke of and succeeds in obtaining orders, they attempt to place them with manufacturers; is that the idea?

The Witness: May I enquire——

Examiner Averill: Those orders are all obtained from retailers, or are they obtained from consumers?

The Witness: It was that type of operator—not speaking of Mrs. Fenton now.

Examiner Averill: I understand.

The Witness: But that type of operator will 10178 solicit orders from consumers.

Examiner Averill: Consumers, that is what I want to find out.

The Witness: And they attempt to fill the orders by placing them with a manufacturer. She may have a catalog, or something of that sort, and sell from a catalog.

Examiner Averill: Thank you.

Mr. Martin: In other words, she does not carry anything in stock but buys the goods after she gets the order.

The Witness: My understanding of a commissionaire is that, yes.

By Mr. Haycraft. 10179

Q. Mr. Roycroft, I now direct your attention to Commission's Exhibit 138, which is a letter from yourself to Mr. Golby under date of May 3, 1935, and ask you if you sent that letter in reply to Commission's Exhibit No. 137?

A. May I look at it?

Q. Read the context of it (handing paper to witness).

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the Mrs. Mathew Fenton mentioned in Commission's Exhibit 138 the same Mrs. Fenton referred to as Mrs. Edward Fenton? A. Yes, there is only one Mrs. Fenton.

Q. All right. A. There is no reference to the first name in Exhibit 137, but in the Exhibit 138 she is referred to as Mrs. Mathew Fenton. As a matter of fact, it should be Mrs. Edward T. Fenton, as I recall it.

Q. Now, in this paragraph, Commission's Exhibit 138: "With regard to Mrs. Mathew Fenton, your suggestions along these lines, I feel are rather well taken. While the Guild, as such, is not in a position to do anything, unquestionably our individual members are, you can rest assured 10181 that the full facts will be placed before them at the next meeting, and I feel quite certain your organization can count on their co-operation." Did you, as a matter of fact, acquaint the members with the information you received from Mr. Golby in Commission's Exhibit 137 at the next meeting of the Baltimore Guild as promised in this letter? A. I do not recall definitely, but I am inclined to feel that at the meeting following the writing of this letter, why, Mr. Golby's letter, which is Exhibit 137, was read for the information of the members.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 142, a letter from yourself to Mr. Jack Goldston, Fashion Originators Guild 10182 of America, dated August 22, 1935. What position does Mr. Goldston hold in the Fashion Originators Guild, to your knowledge? A. I really do not know.

Q. Did you send this letter to him? Do you recall sending the letter referred to? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall the occasion, that is, why you sent that letter?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial. May I see the letter, Mr. Roycroft?

The Witness: Yes, sir (witness hands paper to Mr. Albert).

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled. He may answer that question if he can, if he recalls why he sent it. He says he does not recall the position that the man occupies.

The Witness: May I have the question, please?

(Last question re-read.)

A. In an effort to have the Fashion Originators Guild assist in keeping at least a certain number of copies out 10184 of Baltimore. May I just say this off the record to Mr. Haycraft: You are asking about the first part of the letter, I assume?

Q. Yes, that is the main part. A. Yes.

Examiner Averill: May I see it?

(Counsel hands paper to Examiner Averill.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. This Mrs. Lapedus mentioned in the letter, that is the Guild shopper? A. The Fashion Originators Guild shopper.

Q. The Fashion Originators Guild shopper? A. Yes.

Q. Was this shortly after she began her duties as shopper? A. Yes, sir. 10185

Examiner Averill: This letter bears date August 22, 1935.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

The Witness: She started some time during August.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who is Mr. Morganthau mentioned in the second part of the letter? A. He is divisional merchandise man with O'Neill & Company.

Q. Who is Jack Rappaport, and what name does he trade under? A. He trades as Jack Rappaport, Inc.

Q. In Baltimore? A. In Baltimore.

Q. How would you describe him? As a retail dealer here? What sort of a shop does he operate? A. The shop is located in the 200 block of North Charles Street. At that particular time, I think, he was handling either one or two price lines; I do not recall which, and specializing, 10187 as far as I know, in copies. Regardless of the fact that he was handling the low-cost range merchandise, why, he did not—that is, he individually did not have occasion to buy from F.O.G.A. houses, but what he was doing was buying copies of F.O.G.A. merchandise, and being—or, rather, having a location in the 200 block of Charles Street, which is right in the heart, so to speak, of our better women's apparel stores, right in that district, why, he was naturally spraying them all over the window.

Q. What price range do you recall that he was selling?

Examiner Averill: Selling these copies, you mean?

Mr. Haycraft: These copies, yes.

The Witness: Speaking of retail?

10188

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes, retail. A. One of them was a $10 price. I don't at this time recall the other.

Q. You refer to it as a shop. Is his place of business confined to ladies' and misses' ready-to-wear? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Hixbie is mentioned in the last paragraph of this letter; what sort of a place is that? A. It is a chain organization located on West Lexington, just west of Liberty, and, for the most part, trying to go Jack Rappaport one better.

Q. You mean by "chain organization," it has retail shops in a number of cities? A. That is my understanding. I do not know that they operate them all as Hixbie's; I cannot answer definitely for that, but it is one of a chain.

Q. And both those concerns were not members of the Baltimore Guild, and because of the nature of their business could not become members, did you say? A. No, I would not say that.

Examiner Averill: Now, which question are you answering? That they were not members? 10190

Mr. Albert: The important part that Mr. Haycraft tacked on, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: I know, but there are two questions there.

Mr. Haycraft: I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. These two concerns, Rappaport and Hixbie, were not members of the Baltimore Guild at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Have they since joined the Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Ever made application to join? A. No, sir.

Mr. Albert: Would you care to have the last half of your question answered now, Mr. Haycraft, in the light of the answer that was given, obviously, the last half of the question? 10191

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. O'Neill & Company mentioned here, is that a department store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. A department store handling Guild merchandise, that is, F.O.G.A. merchandise, is that right? A. It is a department store handling all types of merchandise, as its name would imply.

Q. I say, it handles F.O.G.A. merchandise? A. Yes, they handle it.

Q. Was it a member of your local Guild at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, had they attempted to meet the competition of Rappaport? A. You will have to clarify that question a little more—what competition of Rappaport?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I am asking you whether they sold copies—that was 10193 my question.

Examiner Averill: No, that was not the question.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Whether O'Neill sold copies to meet the competition of Rappaport. A. I can answer that by saying no. Now, if you want to refer to this exhibit, I mean, I can explain this to you.

Q. I will ask you specifically whether the O'Neill Company, to your knowledge, sold a dress in Baltimore that had been copied by Brenner-Suessman, a manufacturer, from a Guild member? A. May I see that? Will you repeat the question?

10194

(Last question read.)

A. Are you referring to a dress made by Brenner-Suessman, or to an original made by Altmark?

Q. I am asking you whether O'Neill sold a dress manufactured by Brenner-Suessman, which was a copy of a dress made by Altmark? A. To the best of my knowledge, no.

Q. Did they display it for sale?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.

Q. Did they display it for sale?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled. Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Albert: If the witness knows.

Examiner Averill: Yes, if the witness knows.

A. I can only answer that question by repeating what 10196
Mr. Morganthau of O'Neill & Company, told me and relate my experience at that time.

Mr. Bramble: We object to that.

Mr. Albert: We object to that.

Examiner Averill: Do not state that at the moment.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you go to O'Neill's store to see whether or not they had a copy of the Altmark dresses in stock? A. Yes, sir, that dress.

Q. Did you find one there? A. Mr. Morganthau showed me one.

Q. Did you discuss with Mr. Morganthau the return of 10197 that copy to Brenner & Suessman? A. I discussed with him first his reasons for having it.

Q. What reasons did he give you for having it? A. A matter of self-protection.

Q. From what? A. He wanted to protect himself from the sale of that dress in Baltimore, he having the original.

Q. Who was selling a copy of it in Baltimore to his—who did he say was selling a copy of it in Baltimore? A. I do not recall that he said anyone was, now.

Q. Just to refresh your recollection on that, I will ask you to read the second paragraph or the third paragraph of the letter from yourself to Mr. Weinstein, Commission's Exhibit No. 142. A. We spoke to Mr. Morganthau with the view of having him return the copy to Brenner & Suessman and he indicated that if we could give him any assurances that this copy would not find its way into other Baltimore outlets such as Rappaports and a number of others over which the Guild has no control, he would be most willing to return it to Brenner & Suessman. As a matter of fact, he purchased it and had it confined to him for the sole purpose of protecting his originals.

10199 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 143 and ask you if you received the original of that letter and whether this is in reply to Commission's Exhibit No. 142? A. It is.

Q. It is? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have the information contained in that letter to analyze? A. Yes.

Q. And did you convey it to Mr. Morganthau? A. Yes.

Q. What resulted? A. As I recall the copies were sent back to Brenner & Suessman.

Mr. Bramble: This is a letter? What letter do you refer to? I think the questions of counsel are somewhat obscure.

10200 The Witness: This is the letter from Mr. Golby.

Mr. Bramble: What is the date?

Mr. Haycraft: October 23.

Mr. Bramble: What year?

Mr. Haycraft: '35.

Mr. Bramble: 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Bramble: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In this letter I notice that it states that since writing this letter we have learned from Marizon-Rosenberg that Rappaport will return the copies in question and that they will sign a declaration of co-operation. Who is Marizon-Rosenberg? A. It is a New York buying office, as I recall.

Q. Do you know whether or not Rappaport returned the copies and became—and signed the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" as well? A. No, I do not recall it.

Q. Did you, yourself, invite them to become members of your Guild, or at any time subsequent to August 22, 1935, issue or extend to them such an invitation? A. I do not recall that. If you care to have me, why, I will be glad 10202 to elaborate just a bit on that.

Q. Do so. A. That letter came from Mr. Golby, as I recall, and I think his information was obtained from Marizon-Rosenberg. As I recall the facts as stated in Mr. Golby's letter, why, at the time I received it or shortly thereafter we did pass on Mr. Rappaport. What we were particularly interested in was seeing whether or not copies could be kept out of Baltimore and Rappaport was making a particular effort to buy up all of the copies that he could get hold of and when we saw him he told us he knew nothing about the commitment of the Marizon-Rosenberg as stated in that letter, but when he went to New York he would find out about it.

Q. Was that the last contact you had with him about 10203 it? A. I did not have any contact with him.

Q. Anyone from your organization? A. No, I think there was some further contact but he never joined the Baltimore Guild.

Q. Never? A. Never.

Q. Did he discontinue handling copies? A. That is debatable. I have heard indirectly that he did and I have heard indirectly that he did not. I do not know.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 144, a letter from Mr. Golby to yourself, and there does not appear to be any date on it, I do not know why, and I will ask you whether or not you complied with the request contained in that letter?

Mr. Albert: May I see that letter, please?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

(The letter was handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: I do not see the materiality of this, your Honor, but it will probably be less painful not to object. This is just a little social chit-chat between the two.

10205 (The letter was handed to the witness.)

A. I do not definitely recall whether I complied with the letter or not.

Mr. Albert: It is now 12.30, Mr. Examiner, shall we adjourn for lunch at this time?

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: We will go ahead until 1 o'clock.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q Referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 146, who is Mr. F. H. Alperstein, mentioned in there? A. He is, as 10206 far as I know, the principal owner of Stanley's.

Q. That is a Baltimore organization? A. Yes.

Q. It is? A. Yes.

Q. Does he also own a firm named "Gaxton's"? A. Again I will have to say to the best of my knowledge he is the principal owner.

Q. Does both Gaxton's and Stanley's handle ladies' ready-to-wear? A. In the sale of ladies' ready-to-wear Gaxton's does, and also accessories, and Stanley's handle ladies' ready-to-wear.

Q. They have been members of the Baltimore Guild up to August 27, 1935? A. Yes.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 149, who is the A. Weinstein mentioned in the first paragraph of that letter, the letter from yourself to Mr. Golby under date of October 25, 1935? A. He is the retailer located at 360 North Charles Street in Baltimore, primarily engaged in the sale of furs.

Q. Did you, on or about that date; namely, October, 1935—did he, rather, on or about that date, October, 1935, go into the ladies' ready-to-wear business? A. He had been 10208 in it.

Q. He had been in it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the last line of that letter, after reciting the facts that you have there, you make the following statement, "Will you please investigate these matters and let me hear from you promptly." What investigation did you expect Mr. Golby to make?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for a conclusion of the witness and he is certainly incompetent to testify to it and I cannot see any materiality as to what he expected Mr. Golby to make in the way of an investigation under certain circumstances.

Examiner Averill: Read the question. 10209

(The question was read.)

Examiner Averill: Overruled. I think he can answer what he expected.

Mr. Bramble: Exception.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. I expected him to check up with his records and with certain of his members to ascertain whether the information that had been given me in Baltimore was founded on fact.

Q. With respect to the stores—first let me ask you this, with respect to the source of supply of these various retail dealers, Weinstein, Rice and so forth. A. Yes.

Q. At the time this letter was written in October, 1935, was E. A. Weinstein a member of the Baltimore Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is Commission's Exhibit No. 149?

Mr. Haycraft: 149.

Mr. Albert: 149?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

10211

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was he? A. Not as I recall.

Q. Did he later become a member? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when? A. Shortly after the time of this correspondence.

Q. Did Bertram S. Rice ever become a member? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever solicit them to become a member? A. I asked Mr. Rice to make application.

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor please, for the last hour and fifteen minutes we have heard a series of questions as to whether Mr. A, B, C, D were members of the Guild, without any information being 10212 elicited, in my humble opinion, as to any materiality, and may I ask that counsel be curtailed on this point unless Mr. Haycraft will state what he intends to show because if he seeks to elicit a certain type of information it may be that we can concede that certain people were members of the Guild and certain people were refused membership in the Baltimore Guild. I do not think we should be required to sit here and listen to six or seven questions on each name to no purpose at all.

Examiner Averill: I do not have the correspondence before me and I cannot say, because I do not know. I will permit the examination to continue.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Roycroft, you testified yesterday, I believe, that the agreement that you had with the Baltimore Guild—that the agreement that the Baltimore Guild had with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., rather, expired on December 31, 1935, is that correct? A. The last agreement that we had with them expired as of that date. 10214

Q. Why was it not renewed? A. It was not renewed on advice of counsel.

Q. Was there any controversy between the Baltimore Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild of America at or about December, 1935? A. I do not recall any then at that time. There was some—I do not know whether I would refer to it as a controversy, we had some correspondence or some communications, verbally or otherwise, between the Guild and the Baltimore Guild, and the Baltimore Guild had under consideration the advisability of renewing its contract. As a matter of fact, the Guild placed itself on record to renew the contract subject to the approval of, shall I say, of counsel.

Examiner Averill: You mean the Baltimore 10215 Guild?

The Witness: The Baltimore Guild it was who had it up for consideration; that is up for consideration of the renewal of the contract. The Board of Directors and subsequently, the members at a general meeting acted favorably with the proviso, however, that we would be governed by our counsel's opinion, and I think shortly thereafter, at least, possibly, it may have been within a day or so, I do not know exactly the date, the dates are not clear in my mind, but right around that time is when the Federal Trade Commission's bill of complaint, I think, was filed. With that in mind, I suppose, our counsel recommended that we defer, at least that we not renew the agreement which had expired as of December 31, 1935.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 75 for Identification, and ask you if you received this letter, Mr. Roycroft, 10217 from Mr. Golby? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I offer that letter in evidence.

(The letter, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 75, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was that statement put in the letter by reason of your knowledge that the Fashion Originators Guild would not enforce the local Guild rule with respect to price-line maintenance? A. I think the second sentence in that paragraph gives the answer. As I said, that while this would be desirable, we can appreciate your inability 10218 to enforce that provision of our schedule, meaning the schedule of the Baltimore Guild.

Q. Had the Fashion Originators Guild at that time engaged in any practice of sustaining or assisting in the maintenance of that fair trade practice of the Baltimore Guild, Inc.? A. Meaning the schedule now in effect?

Q. Right. A. I mean in effect at that time?

Q. Right, yes. A. No, sir.

Q. When did that schedule, in so far as the Baltimore Guild was concerned, cease to operate? A. Some time during April of 1936.

Q. And since that time have you in any way attempted to enforce any such schedule, or similar schedule, of cost governing retail? A. No, sir.

Q. In so far as price lining is concerned, in and of itself, as distinguished from a price line which includes cost governing retail, when was the price lining adopted by the Baltimore Guild? A. Price lining?

Examiner Averill: What is the use of going over all that again? It is all in the testimony.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor will bear with me for 10220 just a moment. I do not believe that the record is quite as clear as the explanation that has been given to your Honor as the result of all of the "off-the-record" conversations, and, while I agree that undoubtedly your Honor is familiar with what I am about to ask the witness, I do not think it is reflected in the record itself, and, if you will bear with me, I will try to make it just as short as possible, in order to fill the holes in the record properly.

Examiner Averill: All right, sir.

A. Price lining, as such, was adopted originally during September of 1933, or some time thereabouts, and continued as price lining until, I believe, some time around 10221
March of 1935.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How is it that this practice of price lining was adopted? As a result of what condition in the industry in Baltimore? A. A conglomeration of prices locally that was more or less confusing, I might say, to the consumers as a whole.

Q. Would you be a little more specific in saying what you mean by "confusing"? A. Well, I take one price line as an example, a $10.95 price line. Prior to the adoption of price lining by the Guild, there may have been as many different prices around that figure as there were retail stores in town. Now, one store is a $10.95, maybe another $10.89, another $10.50, $10.75, and numerous others. As the result of which, in my humble opinion, I do not think the average consumer, meaning customer, could be entirely clear as to whether the values of one store were better or probably more attractive than the values the other store was offering at a price line somewhere near 10223 there. Now, to eliminate that confusion is when we more or less adopted this standard schedule of price lines.

Q. Was that arbitrarily adopted, or did that result as a result of agreement amongst the local retailers?

Mr. Haycraft: That is a bit curious in form, "arbitrarily adopt." I do not know what that means.

Mr. Albert: All right, I withdraw the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I ask you, Mr. Roycroft, to produce, please, the minutes of the Board of Control, September 23, 1933.

(The witness hands paper to counsel.)

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence minutes of the 10224 Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, of the Board of Control thereof, dated September 23, 1933, signed by Mr. Roycroft as secretary, particularly the latter half.

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Examiner Averill: You have seen it?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the paper that has just been submitted, which purports to be min utes of the Board of Control of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, September 23, 1933, will be received in evidence and marked Respondents' Exhibit 76.

(The paper was marked Respondents' Exhibit 76, and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was your original price-line policy adopted pursuant to these minutes of September 23, 1933, being Respondents' Exhibit No. 76? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had the Fashion Originators Guild any hand whatsoever in the establishment of that price line? A. No, sir. 10226

Q. As a matter of fact, at that time, did they even know of the existence of it? A. No.

Q. Did the Fashion Originators Guild at any time in the establishment of your price line, in so far as the schedule was concerned, have anything to do with the fixation of the various price lines? A. No, that was purely local.

Q. Now, except for the period from April, 1935, roughly speaking, to April of 1936, your price line in no way required a retailer to sell a particular cost-price dress at any particular sale price, did it? A. No, sir.

Q. And, as a matter of fact, if a retailer purchased a dress for $2 and wanted to sell it for $50, he could do so, he could do so provided he sold it within the price line 10227 of the bracket of your lining policy; is that not so? A. Yes.

Q. And if a retailer purchased a dress for $22.75 and wished to sell it at 50 per cent. of that price, he could do so within the particular price line established by the schedule at that time, could he not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, then, you have testified with respect to the particular off-price sale as concerns the Bonwit Company, and the permission that was given to sell goods at that time. Would you mind explaining that more in detail, especially as regards the experimental nature of that permission, and the test that was made for the benefit of all the retailers of Baltimore at that time?

Examiner Averill: Is that not already in? Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

A. During November of 1933 Mr. Lester Bonwit of Bonwit-Lennon at one of our meetings raised the ques-10229 tion concerning clearance sales, and the advisability or desirability of permitting clearance merchandise when offered in clearance sales to be sold at what we term off prices. He was quite insistent, and, as the result, he was given permission to run a clearance sale, using off prices. At the same time Hutzler Brothers Company, for a time approximately thereabouts, ran a clearance sale, using regular prices. Subsequently, a comparison as to the results obtained indicated that the use of off prices by Bonwit-Lennon had been no more effective than the use of regular prices by Hutzler Brothers Company, and it was definitely decided by the Baltimore Guild that in the future all merchandise should be offered at regular prices, no exception would be made for clearances.

10230 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Has any complaint ever been made by the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc., to the Fashion Originators Guild of the failure of any member of the Baltimore Guild, Inc., to comply with the price line established by the Baltimore Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. And, of course, since no complaint was made to the Fashion Originators Guild, no action was taken by the Fashion Originators Guild on any dispute that might have arisen between the Baltimore Guild, Inc., and its local retailers? A. That is right.

Mr. Albert: May I have the minutes of April 17, 1936, please?

(The witness hands minutes to counsel.)

The Witness: You may as well take the book.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Bringing you down to the O'Neill purchase of alleged copies, Mr. Roycroft. When the existence of these copies in the O'Neill store was called to the attention of the 10232
Fashion Originators Guild what, if anything, happened, to your knowedge? A. They had insisted that notwithstanding the reasons advanced by O'Neill & Company, that under the terms of the existing contract between the two Guilds, and the declaration of co-operation which had been signed by O'Neill & Company, that the copies would have to be returned to Brenner-Suessman.

Q. Is it not a fact, to your knowledge, Mr. Roycroft, that in so far as the O'Neill Company was concerned, they purchased the originals of these dresses, and they purchased the copies of the original dress that they had formerly purchased, with no intention whatsoever of selling these copies, but with the intention of absorbing a loss thereon in order to protect their original purchase? 10233
A. That is as I understand it from Mr. Morgenthau, because when I called at O'Neill & Company the copies were not on display, but were obtained by someone in the department, at his request, producing them from behind the partition, or wherever it was they keep the merchandise.

Q. And is it not a fact that these copies were purchased by O'Neill by reason of the thought, in line with the O'Neill Company, as expressed to you by Mr. Morgenthau, that the sale of these copies of the original dress, which had been confined to O'Neill, would cut the heart out of the market of the original dress? A. That is the way he expressed himself to me.

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibits 842 and 855?

(The witness hands papers to Mr. Albert.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 855-A and B, Mr. Roycroft, and ask you if it is not a fact that there was nothing done, in so far as that letter is concerned, and 10235 that it is merely an invitation to discuss certain matters (handing exhibit to witness)? A. There was nothing done locally as the result of this letter being received in Baltimore.

Q. Directing your attention to Commission's Exhibits 843-A to G, Mr. Roycroft, I notice that that agreement is signed by some twenty-seven parties, being retailers who are members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore. Did each of those parties, to your knowledge, subscribe to the fact that consumer confusion, loss of confidence, and lack of style consciousness, had greatly been contributed to by style pirating and copying? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did all of those parties referred to subscribe to the 10236 opinion that these practices of style piracy and copying were harmful and detrimental to the consuming public, and were unethical? A. There were none expressed in my presence.

Q. Was any communication sent to the Baltimore Guild dissenting from any of the propositions or agreements set forth in Commission's Exhibits 483-A to G?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.

A. I received none.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I see. Would you be good enough, Mr. Roycroft, to explain the effect of apartment house shops upon the Baltimore market? A. I am not certain, Mr. Albert, being a non-retailer, that I am qualified to answer that.

Q. Very well.

Mr. Albert: No further questions, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: I only have about two. 10238

Mr. Bramble: I do not think I will have many, so it will not take long, Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

By Mr. Bramble.

Q. Mr. Roycroft, does the price-line schedule referred to in the several exhibits, and in the testimony, apply to anything other than interstate business of the members of the Baltimore Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. Could any merchant outside of the members of the Baltimore Guild purchase merchandise from the members of the F.O.G.A., if you know?

Mr. Haycraft: When? 10239

By Mr. Bramble.

Q. During this period that we have had the contract—that they had the contract? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you testified that you have no contract with them at this time, and that the contract was terminated December 31, 1935; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the Baltimore Guild ever a member of the F.O.G.A., or any of its members? A. No, sir.

Q. You have not answered that, Mr. Roycroft. A. The Baltimore Guild was never a member of the Fashion Originators Guild, nor was the Baltimore Guild ever a member of any of the affiliated memberships of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Who were eligible for membership in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. Any legitimate dealer operating in Baltimore.

Q. Was not the whole purpose of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore to prevent what is known as "style piracy"; principally? A. That was the principal purpose for which the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of 10241 Baltimore was formed.

Q. Were members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore restricted to the purchase of ladies' garments from members of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America, Inc., under the terms of the agreement? A. No, sir.

Q. The members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, did such members buy such garments from manufacturers other than members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America during the continuance of their agreement between the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. There is no

10242 foundation laid for this witness answering that question; this witness is not in the retail business; this witness is not a retailer; he is not in position to know what the members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore did, and, of course, anything he would say would be hearsay on that subject.

Mr. Bramble: If you know.

Examiner Averill: If he knows he may answer that; and if he does not he will say so.

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bramble.

Q. May any members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore retire from its membership at any time? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Bramble: I think that is all, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Any redirect examination, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. 10244

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibits 855-A and 855-B, you were asked if anything was done with respect to that letter. I will ask you whether or not it was not read at a meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore and discussed at the meeting? A. As I understand the question that was asked me originally, it did not have to do with more or less formal handling of the correspondence, but I understood it to mean was anything done as a result of that letter coming into Baltimore, or anything done by the Baltimore stores, members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore as a result of that letter coming into Baltimore. To such a question as I understood it my answer was no. 10245

Q. You mean with respect to the holding of August promotional sales, and so forth? A. The elimination of August promotional sales, pre-seasonal sales, and matters of that sort, in general, I would say.

Q. I take it, then, that it is your testimony that the subject-matter of the letter was spoken about, and discussed at a meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, and it was decided not to follow the suggestion of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., with respect to the elimination or restriction of the August sales as therein referred to? A. As I remember that letter, it was not directed to the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore; that is, to the Guild itself, but was directed to the individual retailers in Baltimore asking for opinions, and what not, as to the suggestions contained in it.

Q. That is true, but you have already testified, have you not, that this matter was discussed at the meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, and that those who attended knew of it, and that the contents of that 10247 letter were discussed at the meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. I am inclined to believe that it was discussed. As a matter of fact, I am reasonably certain that it was discussed by some of the representatives who had received it at one of the meetings of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore.

Q. Was a decision reached that they would not follow the situation with respect to the restriction of August coat sales? A. Yes—well, I do not recall offhand what the decision was, now that I think the matter over, but I do know that nothing happened.

Q. Then your answer is that you do not recall? A. I do not recall. In other words, August coat sales continued that year, and for that reason I say I do not recall offhand 10248 what the decision was, but as I say, I do know very definitely that nothing happened to change the situation as it then existed.

Q. Do you have Commission's Exhibits Nos. 843-A to G in front of you? A. Just a moment and I will see if I can find if. I have it.

Q. I will ask you how many of the signatures on that exhibit were made in your presence? A. All but, I would say, four or five.

Q. Did you observe that each one of them read the full text of the agreement before they signed it? A. The ones that were signed in my presence?

Q. Yes. A. There was no necessity for observing it because they were signed after a meeting at which the entire agreement was read to them.

Q. This is the agreement that was placed before them for their signature after the meeting? A. As far as I can recall, there was a special meeting held for the expressed purpose of reviewing this agreement after which the agreement was placed on a table and all of them who cared to do so, or who had authority to do so—and had authority to do so, rather—I will put it that way—and 10250 had authority to do so, signed it.

Q. And the rest of the signatures were obtained through the mail? A. No, sir. The rest of the signatures were obtained by a representative working under my jurisdiction. I spoke to the individuals in question and made a definite appointment with them for someone to bring the agreement up to their office and they carried it up and obtained the signature and brought the agreement back to me.

Q. Do you know who wrote the agreement? A. The agreement, in its present form, was prepared at a board meeting of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore on September 11, 1933.

Q. Where did the first draft of the agreement come from; did it come from the members of the Ladies' Ready- 10251 to-Wear Guild of Baltimore or from the members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., or from the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., itself? A. Speaking of the agreement that was signed?

Q. The first draft that came before that. A. The first draft of what?

Q. Of the agreement. A. Of this agreement?

Q. Between the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. A. Which was signed?

Q. No, the first agreement that came in for consideration.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as entirely immaterial and is entirely too far remote to be of any value whatsoever. Now, we are not talking about this agreement but we are talking about all sorts of papers and documents, and possibly discussions and things of that sort which led up to the agreement itself. Since the agreement is supposed to represent a meeting of the minds of the parties thereto, it seems to me that this is quite immaterial.

Mr. Bramble: I object on the same ground.

Examiner Averill: The question is this: Was the draft of an agreement which finally this became the document, the agreement which is in evidence, received from points outside of the City of Baltimore and submitted to your membership for consideration, or did it originate with your membership; that is the point. If you know, will you please say so, and if you do not know will you say so, too? In any event, will you tell us, please, what your information is in that regard?

The Witness: I do not know definitely. I do not have, or, at least, I do not know of when the original draft was presented the first time. I am not in a position to say as to that. In fact, I do not know who the original person was that presented it at the time that that occurred.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did Mr. Hutzler first present it? A. There is nothing in the minutes to indicate who presented it, and I cannot recall. That took place better than three years ago.

Q. Let us see the minute book a minute.

Mr. Albert: I have no objection to that.

(Mr. Haycraft thereupon examined the minute book for a few minutes and then presented it to the witness, who read one of the minutes therefrom.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did Mr. Mehling present the agreement originally at a meeting of September 5? A. Yes, I will have to amend my answer to the first question. I see that in the minutes of the meeting prior to the one of September 11, why, the agreement was presented by Mr. Mehling, who is the secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore. 10256

Q. You were asked about whether the rules and regulations of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore were used for intrastate business. A. I beg your pardon.

Q. You were asked on cross-examination whether or not the rules and regulations of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore were only used in the intrastate business of those firms. A. I do not think that is the exact question that I was asked.

Mr. Bramble: It was the price-line schedule that was referred to.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was your answer restricted to the price-line schedule? A. Yes, the way I thought the question was worded, and as I answered it. 10257

Q. By that do you mean that when the members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore sold goods out of the State of Maryland that they did not observe the price-line agreement? A. Sales consummated outside of the State of Maryland, why, in my opinion as secretary of the Association would not be subject to the price-line agreement that we had in effect.

Q. What do you mean, they would not be subject to it? A. The store would be free. In other words, if a store set up a show, or was selling outside of the borders of Maryland, and sold merchandise, why, they were transactions outside of the City of Baltimore and outside of the State of Maryland. We, in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, as I understand it, as secretary, why, made no effort to tell the stores about what price that merchandise ought to be sold at.

Q. How about advertising in the newspapers that went beyond the State line? A. What do you mean about advertising in newspapers that went beyond the State line?

10259 Q. I say, would you expect the rule, or would the rule be observed in the advertisements of companies in, say, the "Baltimore Sun," with respect to prices in regard to merchandise offered for sale beyond the State line? A. In other words, were any prices by members that might have advertised, would they appear under those conditions in editions of the paper going beyond the border for sales intended to be made beyond the border?

Q. Yes. A. No, if I understand your question, which I am not at all sure I do.

Q. There was no restriction on that contract, is that the idea you mean to convey? A. When you say "no restriction" you mean that the store, or, first, rather, so that I may get this correctly, rather than say what I think, would you mind being a little specific, Mr. Haycraft, and tell me 10260 what you mean?

Q. By that I am now asking you whether it would be allowed to use prices not in line with the price line in the Baltimore newspapers? A. You mean would they be allowed to advertise prices not in line with the price-line schedules, and place those advertisements in the Baltimore newspapers?

Q. Yes. A. I do not think so. I certainly do not think that the schedule would permit of that, no.

Q. So that whether anything in your rules and regulations should state that this would only apply to the City of Baltimore or the State of Maryland, that would be the case? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. So that whether there is anything in your rules and regulations which state that this would only apply to the City of Baltimore, or the State of Maryland, that would be the fact?

Mr. Bramble: I object.

Mr. Albert: I object.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft. 10262

Q. You said that merchants other than members of the Guild could buy merchandise, did you, Mr. Roycroft? A. Members of what Guild are you speaking of now?

Q. The Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore. A. The Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore?

Q. Yes. Can merchants, not members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, buy Guild merchandise? A. Yes. That is specifically stated in the contract or in the agreement between the two Guilds.

Q. Are there any members of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore that have not signed the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. None that I know of.

Q. Can a retail merchant who has not signed the so- 10263 called "Declaration of Co-operation" with the Fashion Originators Guild of America become a member of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore? A. We have had no cases along those lines that I can recall at the moment.

Mr. Albert: I should think that is an answer to that question, if your Honor please.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. Do you not restrict your membership to merchants who have signed the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation"—so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Again, I have got to repeat that that condition has never arisen as far as I can recall. As I mentioned earlier in my testimony, the primary purpose of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, when it was formed, was for style protection. If a member is not sold on style protection, or, at least, if a dealer is not sold on style protection and refuses to sign the declaration of co-operation with the 10265 Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., why, why would he want to come along with the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, so to speak, in its efforts to eliminate style piracy?

Q. What is your definition of a "legitimate dealer"?

Mr. Bramble: What?

(Question read.)

Mr. Bramble: I object to that.

Mr. Feldman: That is an unfair question. That is a very unfair question.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. The witness may answer if he knows.

Mr. Albert: If he knows.

Examiner Averill: The witness has testified that 10266 any legitimate dealer could become a member of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore.

The Witness: I might answer it by saying that the board of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore would, in all likelihood, be the proper body to determine what constitutes a "legitimate dealer," in so far as the acceptance into and for membership into the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore is concerned, rather than the secretary, so that my opinion, I do not think, would carry a great deal of weight.

Q. What did you have in mind when you made that statement on cross-examination? A. A dealer in ladies' ready-to-wear and operating along the established business lines, or accepted business lines, in Baltimore.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, we will adjourn to 10.30 o'clock to-morrow morning.

(Whereupon, at 4.15 o'clock P. M., November 11, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.) 10268

Room 401, United States
Appraisers Store Building,
Baltimore, Maryland,
November 12, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10.30 A. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(Same Appearances:)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the hearing will come to order. You may proceed.

Mr. Haycraft: I will call Mr. Hutzler. 10269

CHARLES J. HUTZLER was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you state your name? A. Charles J. Hutzler.

Q. Mr. Hutzler, you have given your full name to the reporter? A. Yes. Charles J. Hutzler.

Q. Where do you live? A. Baltimore County.

Q. Where did you say you lived? A. Pikesville, Baltimore County, Maryland.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Merchant.

Q. Merchant? A. Yes.

Q. What type of a store are you associated with? A. What?

Q. What type of a store are you associated with? A. Department store.

Q. The name of that store is what? A. Hutzler Brothers Company, Inc.

10271 Q. What position do you hold in that store? A. I am secretary of the corporation and assistant general merchandising manager.

Q. How long have you been in that position? A. Which?

Q. Secretary and assistant general merchandising manager? A. I have been assistant general merchandising manager for a little over a year, and secretary of the corporation since the first part of October.

Q. How long have you been associated with the store? A. Practically eleven years.

Q. Who is president of the company? A. Albert D. Hutzler.

Q. Albert D. Hutzler? A. Yes.

Q. Is he your brother, father, or cousin? A. Cousin.

10272 Q. Do you ever merchandise or have anything to do—in other words, before you were assistant merchandising manager or associate merchandising manager—by the way, which is it? A. Oh, did I say "associate"? I meant assistant.

Q. Assistant merchandising manager? A. Yes.

Q. Before you were assistant merchandising manager what, if anything, did you have to do with the sales of the store? A. Well, preceding my going into the general merchandising part of the business, I was divisional merchandising manager of the ready-to-wear department, which position I have held since September, 1930, and until about June, 1935.

Q. In that position you have just referred to, do you have under your supervision the ladies' ready-to-wear department in the store? A. Yes.

Q. In that position when you were in charge of the ladies' ready-to-wear department, what garments—just give us a brief description of the type of merchandise in ladies' ready-to-wear that Hutzler Brothers Company, Inc., handle in the price ranges? A. We handled dresses, I would say, silk dresses from about $4.75 cost all the way 10274 up to the top, and, of course, cotton dresses also at certain times of the year, and approximately the same relative prices in the other departments like coats, furs and sportswear. Then, we also had a basement department which went into lower prices, but those departments did not head up to me.

Q. You mean the departments that you had under your division all sell dresses costing $4.75, and what was the retail price range of them? A. We generally, I believe, we tried to get $7.95 or $8 for our $4.75 dresses that were sold in the regular way. Does that answer your question?

Q. Up to about how high do you go? A. To the top.

Q. What do you mean by "the top"? A. We have a French room, as we call it, where we have had dresses and 10275 costumes selling, maybe, as high as $400 or $500.

Q. Where do you buy the merchandise which you sell in these various departments that were under your supervision? A. In the general wholesale market.

Q. Where is that? A. Anywhere, but primarily in New York.

Q. Where, besides New York, do you buy? A. Boston, Chicago, occasionally from the West Coast. Those are the primary markets.

Q. Do you import any? A. Not in recent years we have not imported any dresses. There may be certain articles of sportswear that we imported.

Q. This French shop that you referred to a moment ago had dresses selling as high as $500. Were they all of domestic manufacture? A. Yes.

Q. They were? A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. When did you first learn of that organization? A. I think probably as far back as 1932.

Q. Do you recall what you first learned about it; that 10277 is, how it came to your attention? A. As I recall, at that time we were having a great deal of difficulty because of the style piracy situation. The existing copyright laws and patent laws did not adequately protect the originator of style merchandise, and as a matter of means, or a study to give that originator the protection afforded by the copyright and patent laws for other lines of manufacture, or for other lines of merchandise, we found, I might say in passing, that it did not give it. In other words, the existing copyright laws and patent laws did not adequate protect the originator of style merchandise, and some other lines, a means was sought to give that originator the protection afforded by the copyright and patent laws for other lines of merchandise. The Fashion Originators Guild of America was the outgrowth of that. Some handful of bet-
10278 ter manufacturers—originally, I think, determined on a program that would correct that situation.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike the answer as not responsive to the question.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor please, that answer is the most perfect answer that could possibly be given to Mr. Haycraft's question. It may be that Mr. Haycraft does not particularly like the answer to the question he got, but it is certainly a perfect answer to it.

Examiner Averill: Well, it may be that the answer is pretty long, but it is responsive to the question. The motion to strike, therefore, is denied.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the organization of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Nothing whatsoever.

Q. How did you learn as to the facts that you have just recited as to its purposes?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial. 10280
Examiner Averill: Objection overruled.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. The facts in my answer, I mean, were in discussion generally; in fact, were common discussion, really, at that time between many manufacturers and many retailers.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. My question is how you learned what the purposes of the Fashion Originators Guild of America were?

Examiner Averill: His answer is that it was a matter of common knowledge, and it came to him in that way. That is his answer boiled down. 10281

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You said that you had heard of the Fashion Originators Guild of America as early as 1932? A. Yes.

Q. Were you solicited to co-operate in any way with the Fashion Originators Guild of America in 1932, and by "you," I refer to the Hutzler Brothers Company store? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Did you at that time volunteer to, and did you voluntarily co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., in its purposes? A. No.

Q. At that time were you in sympathy with its purposes? A. Yes.

Mr. Bramble: I object to that and move to strike the answer.

Examiner Averill: He can say if he is or if he is not. That is sufficient.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10283 Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E, and ask you if you recall receiving that, which apparently is a form letter written on the letterhead of the Fashion Originators Guild of America under date of June 16, 1933?

Mr. Bramble: We would like to see that before he interrogates the witness on it.

(The witness examined the document.)

Examiner Averill: Mr. Witness, can you not answer that question one way or the other without having to read through the entire letter?

The Witness: Just what is the question now?

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question read.)

10284 A. Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did Hutzler Brothers Company, Inc., sign the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. When? A. After that letter was received; I do not recall the exact date, but it was some time after June—the middle of June, 1933.

Q. Has Hutzler Brothers store continuously since that date been co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild of America in its— A. (Interposing) Co-operating to what extent?

Q. To the extent of signing declarations of co-operation.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Back on the record.

A. No.

By Mr. Raycraft.

Q. That was the only one? 10286

Examiner Averill: What was the only one?

Mr. Raycraft: The only declaration of co-operation signed.

A. The original declaration of co-operation we signed was the only one that that store has ever signed.

Q. To the best of your recollection—I am going back to this now—did you sign the so-called declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild of America in the month of June and year of 1933? A. Yes.

Q. It may have been in July, but it was right about—is it before or after that? A. I mean, it was after June.

Examiner Averill: You see my point now, "after July"; when the fact is that the Guild was formed 10287 in September and "after July" would go on and on for years and years, so we are no better off than before.

Mr. Raycraft: I do not think he knows positively, and the only way we can tell is to get the original and find out.

Examiner Averill: He can say before or after the formation of the Guild.

Mr. Albert: How can you find it out unless you ask him.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know when it was, the exact date that you signed this declaration of co-operation? A. My recollection is between the middle of June and the first of August.

Examiner Averill: '33?

The Witness: 1933.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10289 Q. Then, if I understand your testimony correctly, you signed no further declarations, as a store, since that time?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as having been previously answered and made perfectly clear in the record.

Mr. Martin: It is not clear in the record. We are trying to clear it up for the benefit of the record and of the Examiner.

Examiner Averill: The question only makes it worse. The way Mr. Haycraft has it now it would only make the confusion worse. If Mr. Haycraft will listen to his question he will see that it only makes the confusion more complex. Read the question.

10290 (Question read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —declarations with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.; is that right? A. I think I answered this question before.

Q. You did, but apparently the Examiner did not feel that it was clear enough on the record. A. No, we did not sign any other declarations.

Examiner Averill: With the Fashion Originators Guild of America?

The Witness: With the Fashion Originators Guild of America, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: That is the point.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You were also an officer of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore; is that right? A. Yes.

Q. President? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been president? A. Since its incorporation; before that I was chairman.

Q. Will you state for the record the steps that you 10292 took—strike that out. Did you have anything to do with the formation of the Baltimore Guild, and by "Baltimore Guild" I refer to the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore?

Mr. Albert: May I ask, if your Honor please, that Mr. Haycraft differentiate between the corporation and the association?

Mr. Haycraft: I have not talked about any association so far.

Mr. Albert: The Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc., was recently incorporated, and he might have had something to do with the incorporation of that which was separate and distinct from the organization which existed prior to it, but we 10293 would like to know which one you are referring to.

Mr. Haycraft: I was asking him about the Guild.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Back on the record. The question must be made clear so the witness may know whether the question refers to his activities as chairman of the unincorporated guild, or whether it refers to his activities as president of the incorporated guild, and the evidence in the record already shows when the incorporation took place.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, at this time may I most respectfully ask your Honor to direct Mr. Haycraft to say "association" in his question if he refers to the "association" and "incorporation" if he refers to the corporation and thereby separate the two?

Examiner Averill: I am not going to tell counsel what his questions should be. I am only making suggestions because I do not think it is fair to insist upon certain things being asked by counsel, my own interest being to see that the record is clear in this regard.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, then, if your Honor thinks I am unreasonable in asking for a severance or separation I will not press it.

Examiner Averill: I think it is absolutely essential if you are going to understand the record. I agree fully with you in that regard. Nevertheless, I did not propose to be put in the position of directing counsel's question.

10296

Mr. Haycraft: The "Inc." is not on the end of that question. It is not included in the question, I think, at all.

Examiner Averill: I will let it go that way, but I do want to say on the record that except for this conversation that took place off the record the witness would not know what counsel is talking about, and it leaves the record as before.

Mr. Haycraft: I will take that chance.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Answer the question. A. What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. What did you have to do with it? A. I was chairman of the meetings at which it was discussed. As representative of Hutzler Brothers Company I approved its formation.

Q. Did you originate the idea of the organization of the first and original Baltimore Guild, or did the idea come from someone else? A. I do not think I can give a direct answer to that. I would have to go into it a little in detail. We had a group as early as 1932 in Baltimore that 10298 met informally from time to time and discussed joint problems. So that we had this nucleus of stores at the time that we all signed declarations of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. At that time we had learned that in New York, and I think, I am not sure of this, but I think in Chicago some of the retailers had signed agreements with the Fashion Originators Guild jointly. We probably discussed with them, individually—

Q. By "them," will you be a little more definite? A. In fact, Mr. Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., came to Baltimore on one occasion and discussed the thing with us, and I think the result of that whole conversation or discussion was the formation of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore. 10299

By Mr. Martin.

Q. That is, the first and original Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore?

Mr. Albert: Oh, I thought that was so perfectly clear that no reference was necessary to it. Apparently, now, it is not even clear to Commission's counsel.

Mr. Martin: I was afraid that Mr. Albert was dumb enough not to know, so I am making it so clear that anybody in the world could know.

Mr. Albert: Oh, oh! I was not the one who was asking any question about that. I asked no question about that at all, Mr. Martin.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, we will do without personalities, if you please.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, did you sign the agreement between the Baltimore Guild, as chairman—between the Fashion Originators Guild and the Baltimore Guild, as chairman of the 10301 Baltimore Guild, Commission's Exhibits 843-A to F in this case?

Mr. Albert: Is Mr. Martin trying to impeach his own agreement in evidence? This is simply delay. I am getting sick and tired with all this waste of time, if your Honor please, with nothing being elicited. It is taking ten questions to get something out which we could get if we only had one question. After all, if your Honor please, we are down here from New York and it is costing us a lot of money to stay here. I do not think that we should be subjected to this unnecessary and worthless waste of time with questions of this character.

10302 Examiner Averill: Well, now, let us be quiet a moment and I think we will get along a lot faster. He can look at it and say whether he signed it or not.

(The witness examined the document.)

(The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: What is the answer?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Bramble: What is the date of that? Is that the first one?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you draw up this agreement, or was it presented to you by Mr. Golby?

Mr. Albert: I object to the form of the question, and also on the ground, also, that both of these questions are immaterial.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled.

Mr. Bramble: Exception. I am not objecting in the first instance, your Honor, because when an objection is made it is made for both. 10304

The Witness: Mr. Golby gave us copies of the contracts that the Fashion Originators Guild of America had already signed up with the Uptown Retail Guild of New York, and I think the Michigan Avenue Guild of Chicago as a guide. We may have taken certain clauses from those contracts verbatim and added others of our own suggestion.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any personal recollection of the clauses that you added at your suggestion to this original agreement?

10305

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial.

Mr. Feldman: The agreement speaks for itself.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled. He has a right, I think, to go into the formation of the agreement.

The Witness: That is a hard question to answer definitely. I think there were one or two things that we may have objected to and changed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any present recollection of what they were? A. Well, there is one thing that I remember something about. I think that, in the rules and regulations of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, I think the rule against selling "apartment shops." We modified that rule so that, as far as the Baltimore Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild was concerned, they could sell "apartment house" shops in Baltimore under certain conditions.

Q. Now, after—strike that out. This first agreement, that is, Commission's Exhibits 843-A to F, expired, by its terms, on December 31, 1934. During that period of time 10307 did the Baltimore Guild co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild of America in carrying out the agreement, Commission's Exhibits 843-A to F? A. Yes.

Q. Now, subsequent to December, 1934, and until September 30, 1935, the date that the record in this case shows that the present Baltimore Guild, that is, the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, was formed, what was the relationship between the Baltimore Guild and the Fashion Originators Guild of America with respect to the subject-matter of the agreement that existed prior to December, 1934? A. We really overlooked the fact that the contract had expired. So until we were apprised of that, and I think for some time during the course of the year, I think probably in July or June, we were under 10308 the impression that the contract was still in force.

Q. And carried on? You had been carrying on? A. Well, yes.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. In other words, you just continued to do exactly as you had done? A. Yes.

Q. When you thought the agreement was in effect? A. Yes.

Q. Or the contract, rather, was in effect? A. Yes.

Q. In Baltimore? A. Yes.

Q. During this interval, that was the way you transacted your business as you did transact it; in other words, during this interval you transacted your business as you had transacted it prior to that time— A. Yes.

Q. —is that correct? A. It is, Judge.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. According to the terms of the agreement entered into on September 30, 1935—strike that out—I am not quite ready for that, yet. What, if anything, did you have to 10310 do with the formation of the present Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore, Inc., as organized as of September 30, 1935? A. I thought that the answer I made to the previous question as to the formation of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore answered that; that the same answer, and I now think that the same answer would apply to this question perfectly.

Q. Possibly. Can you just testify as to what the change was, or, first, why the change in the form of the organization was made?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and, in all events, certainly not binding on the Fashion Originators Guild of America. 10311

Examiner Averill: That may be all very true, but, nevertheless, there are other respondents in this case besides the Fashion Originators Guild of America. The objection is overruled. The witness may answer the question.

Mr. Bramble: Exception.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. If you will just answer the question, please.

The Witness: What is the question?

Examiner Averill: Read it.

(Question read.)

The Witness: Up to the time of the incorporation we were a membership organization composed of dealers in ready-to-wear located in Baltimore City.

We had no dues, and practically no expenses. The minimum of expenses that we did have was 10313 paid by the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore who were good enough to allow us the use of their offices.

At the time of the incorporation we found that we might have expenses and that since a number of our membership were not members of the Retail Merchants Association of Baltimore that the organization should be incorporated under—so it would be a separate and distinct organization.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did the Fashion Originators Guild of Baltimore, or any officers of the Fashion Originators Guild——

Examiner Averill: Of Baltimore?

10314 Mr. Haycraft: Question withdrawn.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did the Fashion Originators Guild of America, or any officers of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, make any suggestions to you with respect to the advisability of incorporating? A. No.

Q. What was the increased expense that you anticipated? A. So far the dues that have been collected have, primarily, been used to answer the charge of the Federal Trade Commission.

Q. Was that what you anticipated when you incorporated? A. No. As a matter of fact, we had agreed with the——

Mr. Albert (interposing): If it please the Court, may I interpose an objection here in the light of the witness' answer that the expenses that had to be met so far have been only the defense of the Federal Trade Commission's complaint that it certainly is immaterial as to what expenses were anticipated if they did not actually arise.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think the objection needs 10316
a reply.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. We will save time by going ahead.

Mr. Albert: Probably so. We have wasted enough time already.

The Witness: What is the question?

Examiner Averill: Read it.

(Question read.)

The Witness: We had agreed with the Fashion Originators Guild of America that we would like to have a shopper in Baltimore.

The Fashion Originators Guild of America, through one of your exhibits that is already in the record, had sent out a letter to the retailers 10317 throughout the country, asking for subscriptions. None of the Baltimore stores was willing to give a retail subscription either directly or through the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild of Baltimore. We did, however, feel that we should help defray at least some of the expenses of a shopper in Baltimore because we heartily approved of the idea and felt we were deriving some benefit, the same benefit as the Fashion Originators Guild of America, so that by raising funds we hoped to meet some of the expenses of that shopper.

And, I think, as Mr. Roycroft testified yesterday, or the day before, we did make one payment to the Fashion Originators Guild of America as a contribution towards the cost of the shopper's salary which was paid directly by the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. That was made before December, 1935, or since De-10319 cember, 1935? A. I cannot tell you the exact time it began, I cannot tell you the exact time the payment was made, Mr. Haycraft, but I think, however, it was made around the first of January, 1936, possibly before and possibly shortly after.

Q. What dues did you have at the beginning of the incorporation, or subsequently thereto what dues did you levy on the members of the Baltimore Guild?

Mr. Bramble: We object to that because we do not see what they have to do with the issues here, what dues they levied on their own members.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, let it go. It is already in evidence, I guess, one way or another, anyhow.

Examiner Averill: Do you withdraw the ques-
10320 tion?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

The Witness: It is in.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. This shopper that you referred to, you say she benefited you as much as the Fashion Originators Guild of America; by "you" do you mean the local Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Has that shopper continued to function in Baltimore since January, 1936? A. She is still functioning.

Q. But the Baltimore Guild, as an organization, is not contributing to her expenses? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. And the individual retailers in Baltimore are not contributing; is that correct? A. No, not to my knowledge.

Q. Your store is not doing so in any event, itself? A. No.

Q. According to the record, the agreement entered into between the Baltimore Guild, Inc., and the Fashion Originators Guild of America on September 30, 1935, expired December 31, 1935, and has not been renewed? A. Well.

Q. What has been the relationship between the Baltimore Guild, Inc., and the Fashion Originators Guild of America since that time; that is; since December 31, 1935, with respect to the subject-matter in the last agreement? A. There has been no reason for us to require anything of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., through our contract, our former contract, which has expired since that time.

Q. Will you explain what you mean by that?

Mr. Albert: May I have the answer read, I did not hear it.

Examiner Averill: Read the answer.

(Answer read.)

10323

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you explain what you mean by "no reason"? A. Well, in our own rules, regulations, by-laws, and so forth, we can function without any help from the Fashion Originators Guild of America. Our contract with them simply agreed to do certain things that we have agreed to do among ourselves, so we have not had any difficulty before or since on account of the contract expiring.

Q. Do you know whether or not, as a matter of fact, you kept the Fashion Originators Guild of America informed as to the status of your membership? A. I cannot say. Mr. Roycroft could have answered that question, but I cannot.

Q. Have you changed in any way the rules and regulations that were in existence at the time of the expiration of the contract with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. We always make changes; seasonal changes, in our, or in certain of our agreements, but of a minor nature.

Q. If you carried—strike that out. If you know, has a 10325 store, regardless of the Baltimore Guild, and I refer to your own store now, continued to co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild of America in its campaign against piracy, style piracy, and as indicated in the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" that you signed in January, 1933?

Mr. Bramble: I object to that as obviously entirely outside of the issues in this case, incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. If the witness knows, he may answer. If he does not, he can say so.

The Witness: We have been using the warranty stamp on our orders, and have been returning 10326 copies when they have been adjudged copies.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Back on the record.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you explain, please, for the record, just what you mean by "returning copies," and how they are adjudged copies? You said, "I think, when they are adjudged copies." A. Yes.

Q. Will you explain just what takes place, and how you do it? A. When we place orders with non-Guild manufacturers we reserve the right, through this warranty clause, to return them should they be copies of original designs from manufacturers who are members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America. When the merchandise comes into our stock we may have, or we may find that we have an original dress, if it is a copy, in our stock, or we may find that another retail store will notify us that we have a copy.

By Examiner Averill.

10328

Q. Just one moment. A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mean they notify you that the garment that you are displaying is a copy? A. I should qualify that.

Q. Yes. A. I would like to qualify that because they do not notify us directly.

Q. Whom do they notify? A. They notify the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Guild office through Mr. Roycroft, and also we may be notified by the shopper, from her original sketches. If the particular dress involved has been proved a copy, or has been adjudged a copy, we will return that to the manufacturer.

10329

CHARLES J. HUTZLER was thereupon recalled as a witness for the Commission, and having been previously sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Hutzler, how often do you go to New York? A. Frequently.

Q. In the course of your business you are continually traveling at various intervals between Baltimore and New York? A. Yes.

10330 Charles J. Hutzler—For Commission—Cross..
Herbert L. Bergdahl—For Commission—Direct.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

Mr. Bramble: No questions, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Any redirect? I do not suppose there is, Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: Nothing further.

Room 901, 45 Broadway.
New York, New York,
November 17, 1936.

10331 Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 o'clock A. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

E. F. HAYCRAFT, Esq., and R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

MILTON C. WEISMAN, Esq., M. A. ALBERT, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., and HERBERT S. KELLER Esq. (1450 Broadway, New York, New York), appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

STANLEY KAUFMAN, Esq. (GOLDWATER & FLYNN, 60 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y.), appearing for Textile Affiliates.

10332

HERBERT L. BERGDAHL was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. State your full name, please, Mr. Bergdahl. A. Herbert L. Bergdahl.

Q. Your residence? A. New Rochelle, New York.

Q. Your occupation? A. General merchandising manager of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, New York office.

Q. Will you describe for the record what the Associated Merchandising Corporation is? A. Well, it is a New York office of a group of twenty stores located in various cities of the United States. These twenty stores own this office. Does that answer your question?

Q. What function does the office perform, generally speaking? A. Well, the office performs various functions of services in this market for its member stores. Among other things, the office gathers information in the 10334 market for the buyers in the stores. They handle so-called open orders in the market for the member stores at their request, when such orders are received from the stores, and they gather style information for the respective stores.

Examiner Averill: Are these stores that you speak of, retail, wholesale or what?

The Witness: They are retail stores, retail department stores.

Examiner Averill: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Probably right now it would be a good idea to get this in evidence. Mr. Bergdahl, this is a list of the stores 10335 (indicating paper)?

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 860.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I ask you if you can identify this Commission's Exhibit 860 for Identification, as a list of the members of the Associated Merchandising Corporation—that is, the member stores that you referred to? A. I can.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.
Mr. Weisman: May I see it?
Examiner Averill: Let him see it.
(Mr. Haycraft hands paper to Mr. Weisman.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. As of what date is that list? A. Well, that is as of —I think that was prepared as of July of this year. That list also contains the stores that we service in other countries, in Europe and Australia and Canada.

10337

Examiner Averill: Are you offering that?
Mr. Haycraft: Yes.
Examiner Averill: Any objection?
Mr. Weisman: No.
Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the paper in question, which purports to represent a list of the members of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 860.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 860 was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

10338

The Witness: May I state that the foreign stores are merely serviced out of our office, and are not owners—are not part owners in the office itself.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Then I will ask you to name those stores, which stores you mean. A. Those stores that we served for export purposes are Harrods, Ltd., of London; Selfridge & Company, Ltd., of London; The Myer Emporium, Ltd., of Melbourne and Adelaide Australia; Farmer & Company, Ltd., of Sydney, Australia, and the Hudson's Bay Company retail stores of Canada.

Q. How long have you occupied the present position that you have testified to? A. For about five years.

Q. Before that, what did you do? A. Before that I was primarily ready-to-wear merchandise manager, garments, all ladies' apparel.

Q. Where? A. In the same office, the A.M.C., since from 1929 until about 1931 or 1932, at which time I took on additional duties in the office.

Q. Since 1929 you have been in the office of the A.M.C.? A. No, I have been in the office before that; I have been 10340 in the office since 1922.

Q. In 1922. In what capacity from 1922 to 1929? A. Well, I started in the office in one of the very lowest positions, and was moved up from time to time, from assistant buyer to buyer, to basement manager of the office, and then ready-to-wear manager of the upstairs garment departments, garment and accessory departments, after which I took on general duties, merchandising the whole buying—all the buying activities in the office.

Q. Do you have a superior officer? A. Yes.

Q. Who is he? A. Phillip J. Reilly, Col. Phillip J. Reilly.

Q. What position does he occupy? A. He is the director of the Associated Merchandising Corporation and the Retail Research Association. 10341

Q. About how many employees are employed? A. Approximately 250, more or less.

Q. In a general way, what functions do these employees perform? A. The general function of the whole office is to serve the stores in this market, that is, with the exception of the retail research division.

Q. What is the retail research division? A. That is a division which corresponds in the store to the non-merchandising departments, the non-selling departments, such as the superintendent's division, the comptroller's division, the advertising and publicity divisions—those activities are centered in what is called here as the Retail Research Association.

Q. How is the work divided—that is, how many employees do you have in the retail research division, and how many in the A.M.C. proper? A. Well, I have not counted them, but I think that they would roughly be about three to one.

Q. That is, three to— A. Three times more employees in the merchandising end of the work than in the research 10343 activities—maybe it is four to one, I would not know.

Q. During the time that you have been with the Associated Merchandising Corporation, which I think we would better call the A.M.C., in the interest of brevity—have you had occasion to call upon or meet manufacturers of ladies' ready-to-wear garments in the New York area? A. Yes, I have.

Q. To what extent have you familiarized yourself with the business of manufacturing——

Mr. Weisman: I object.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —and selling of ladies' ready-to-wear garments?

Examiner Averill: The witness may answer that 10344 question—to what extent you have familiarized yourself.

A. Well, during the first several years, say up until 1929, I was very active as a buyer in the organization, buyer of various types of merchandise, primarily coats and dresses, and, in some cases, sportswear. I was also active as manager of the basement——

Examiner Averill: Wait a moment. Who were you buying from manufacturers or wholesalers?

The Witness: Buying from the manufacturers in New York City for the—— Examiner Averill: I do not mean the names of them, I just want to know the class.

The Witness: From the manufacturers in New York City. Subsequently, as basement manager, I came in contact with the manufacturers and their problems as a manufacturer would, and afterwards as a manager of the ready-to-wear division I came in contact with the manufacturers who made merchandise for us, and from whom we purchased as 10346 an executive would, and discussed the problems that pertained to them, and to us, in connection with the merchandise that was made for us as well as other problems that might be vital to the industry.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, I respectfully move that the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the question.

Examiner Averill: Well, I cannot agree with the gentleman fully there.

Mr. Weisman: May I have an exception?

Examiner Averill: Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10347

Q. Since that time—you covered in your answer up to 1929, I believe, did you not, the time you were a buyer? A. Yes—well, yes, up to the time that my duties were enlarged. Now, in the last four or five years, of course, my activities have been spread over more divisions in the organization, and my duties have been to watch the policies of the organization and see that the general—as a general rule, the stores were getting the service that they wanted out of this market, and then, in that time, my activities, if anyhing, have been more in the nature of an executive than they were previously.

Q. When you refer to having goods manufactured for you, just what did you have in mind? A. Well, goods manufactured for our stores as against orders we placed in the market.

Q. I see. What is the custom in that respect? Will you describe that? A. In connection with the stores—in connection with the orders that are placed by store buyers themselves, we give them the information that we may have as to commenting on the market, and giving them 10349 the benefit of any advice we may have, or any facts we have found regarding the market, and they use their own judgment.

Examiner Averill: Who placed the orders with the manufacturers?

The Witness: The buyers. I said in connection with the orders the buyers placed. I prefaced my statement with that.

Examiner Averill: All right; all right.

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: The buyers placed the orders?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: That is, the individual members placed the orders?

10350 The Witness: Yes. I said there were two kinds, there were orders the buyers placed from the stores, see?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: When they come to town they place their own orders. There are also occasions when we place orders for them when they are not here, you understand?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: Now, in both instances we assist them. In one case we merely give them the information that they may want, and they act on their own judgment after that.

In the second case, when we do all the buying, or when we do the buying of the orders, and have all to do with the placing of the order, we use our own judgment. Of course, in accordance with instructions that we get from the stores.

After the orders are placed, either by the store buyer or the office, we follow those orders to see that they are carried out the way the manufacturer has agreed to do, understand. We have service organizations that follow the orders to see that they are delivered on time, and as nearly as possible in accordance with the agreement or understanding that is stated or stipulated on the order. 10352

Does that explain the——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are there other buying organizations similar to yours in the New York market?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as immaterial, not within the scope of this proceeding.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: I take it that is in connection with trying to establish some custom in the industry. You may answer that question. 10353

A. I would say that there are; yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. To your knowledge, do they perform the same or similar functions with the retail dealers that they represent out in the country? A. For all practical purposes, it is the same; yes, sir.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 92, and ask you if you can recognize the names listed thereon as being organizations somewhat similar to yours, or if they are exactly similar, say so? A. Well, the Cavendish Trading Corporation is very similar to ours, I think. The Specialty Stores Office is very similar to ours. Now, by that I mean that they are similar in management and ownership—that is, that the stores own and control the offices, and regulate the service that they want out of that office, and then there are other offices, such as offices where the office is owned by 10355 a corporation that not only owns the office but the stores as well. That is a little different, but the work done in the office is the same. Would you also——

Q. Yes. A. Do you mean that I should also tell you——

Q. Yes; also indicate those, if you recognize any of those offices? A. Did you also mean that I should indicate those other types of offices, as far as I am familiar with them?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Weisman: May I know what the witness is referring to?

Mr. Haycraft: Commission's Exhibit 92.

Examiner Averill: Commission's Exhibit 92. He is picking out certain names on that list, sir, as I understand it, which come within these different, 10356 I might say, classifications, that he is telling us about.

Mr. Haycraft: Resident buying offices.

Examiner Averill: That means New York.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

A. Fashion Originators Guild supplying resident offices signed by the Guild, there is the centrally owned offices and stores such as the Allied, the May Company, the Associated Dry Goods. There is one more, but I do not see it on here, so I won't mention it—oh, yes, the William T. Knott Company.

Now, then, there is another group, that in which the office is owned by private individuals, in New York City, who rendered a service for the stores. They render this service to any extent that the store wishes—that the respective store wishes to pay for it, and then they have various fees that they charge based on the service that they render the store.

Now, such an office would be—such offices would be Frohman & Altman, Jack Harthlay, Kirby, Block & Fischer, Felix Lilienthal, McGreevey, Werring & Howell, 10358 Mutual Buying Syndicate, Joseph K. Rosenberg, Amelia Rosenau.

Those are about all that I would care to mention.

Examiner Averill: Let me see those.

Mr. Haycraft: I wish to make a correction of the statement I made for the record a moment ago. The witness is reading from Exhibits 93-A and B.

Mr. Weisman: I did not hear you.

Mr. Haycraft: 93-A and B.

Mr. Weisman: I thought he said Exhibit 92.

Mr. Haycraft: I did say so.

Examiner Averill: He did say so, but he said he wanted to correct it.

The Witness: Perhaps I should add something 10359 to what I have said.

Examiner Averill: One moment before you add anything, now, sir.

The Witness: There is also another type of office called the commission type of buying office, that renders somewhat—practically the same service to its clients, but the service is paid for by the manufacturer. I do not know whether there are any names on there or not, because I am not so familiar with them, but there are a good many of those offices in the city who render a very similar service to ours, to that type of service we give our customer, but the manufacturer pays that office for rendering that service to the stores who are members of that office.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you testified to the firms with which you are familiar on this exhibit? A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. Is there such an organization in New York as Asso-10361 ciated Buying Offices? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of what does that consist; what is it? A. The Association of Buying Offices consists, in round numbers, I think, of approximately resident buying offices, who have grouped together to study and consider the problems that confront them, that would require discussion. I think they were formulated as a group under the N.R.A. to study the problems that came up at that time, and to consider whether or not they should formulate a code for the resident office industry.

Q. Have you had anything to do with the Associated Buying Offices organization? A. Well, the A.M.C. is not officially a member of the A.B.O., but we have worked with them, and I have in some cases acted as the chairman on 10362 their committees, and have been on their committees, merely in co-operating with them on work that they do, and problems that they consider.

Q. From this experience that you have had with your organization, the A.M.C., and your contact with other buying offices, I will ask you whether or not you are familiar with the problems of the retail dealers, merchants and ladies' ready-to-wear?

Mr. Weisman: Will you direct—well, just a moment—I think the Court will take judicial notice that a retail dealer and any other business man has multifarious problems; it has not yet been directed to one problem. Would your Honor direct that this question be limited to a specific problem? Obviously, the witness is not going to give us any dissertation on all the problems that confront the retail dealer. Is it a problem in selling, is it a problem in credit, is it a problem in mark-downs, in percentages, in mark-ups? I would like to have it more specific.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record. 10364

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In giving your answer, Mr. Bergdahl, of course, I refer to those problems that would have to do with the purchase of merchandise, and, to a limited extent, I suppose, to the sale of merchandise—merchandising problems.

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, improper, immaterial, no proper foundation laid; obviously the witness from his present testimony has not yet shown a sufficient familiarity to testify with any degree of probative force.

Examiner Averill: The question as it stands now is simply a preliminary question as to whether he is familiar with the type of activities of the retail merchant which have been described. 10365

Now, he may answer that question "yes" or "no," then we will see what further develops.

If you will kindly tell us "yes" or "no," please, Mr. Bergdahl.

The Witness: I think I am familiar with the problems pertaining to the purchasing or selling of ladies' apparel.

Examiner Averill: By the retailer?

The Witness: By the retailer, yes.

Examiner Averill: Have you answered it?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Bergdahl, are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Well, I am familiar with it from the point of view of the contacts that the A.M.C. office had with the Fashion Originators Guild, as well as many of the contacts that our individual stores had with the F.O.G.A., and also the contacts that the Associated Buying Offices had with the F.O.G.A., since—for a great part of the time I have acted as chairman of the committee that conferred with the F.O.G.A. on the problems pertaining to the F.O.G.A. issues.

10367

Q. When was your first contact with the F.O.G.A.? A. In the early spring of 1932.

Q. What was the occasion? A. The occasion was a luncheon at the Garment Center Club, called, I think, by Mr. Rentner and several of his——

Q. Maurice Rentner? A. Maurice Rentner, yes, and several of his associates, I believe such, as I recall it, I think that such people as Mr. Bass, Mr. Sondheim, Mr. Florsheimer, and——

Q. In giving those names, will you give the names of the firms that they represent? A. Well——

Q. As far as you can. A. This is according to my recollection, because I am not positive that they were present, but I know that Mr. Maurice Rentner was there, of Maurice Rentner, Inc.; William Bass, I am quite sure, of William Bass & Company, Inc.; Herbert Sondheim of Herbert Sondheim, Inc., I think at that time it went under a different name, Sondheim-Levy—I am not sure of that, also—and others. There were about fifteen, or approximately twenty people there, mostly manufacturers, but a few retailers. If my memory serves me correctly, I think John B. Sweeney was also present at the time.

Q. Who was he? A. He was the director of the Specialty Stores Association.

Q. That you named a few moments ago as a buying office? A. Similar to ourselves, yes.

Q. What transpired at that luncheon? A. Well, as I recall it, Mr. Rentner exposed for our consideration, particularly for the few retailers who were present, a plan that had been considered to improve or to build up the prestige for better merchandise, particularly dresses, and that this plan was, as I see it, a nucleus for what was called the Fashion Originators Guild—that is, it was the starting, it was the beginning thoughts of the Fashion Originators Guild. There was nothing definite about the 10370 plan that had been laid down, or, at least, it was not exposed to us as a perfected plan by any means.

Q. What was the plan that he suggested at that time? A. Well, he merely stated that they were considering—that this organization had been or was going to be formed, to further the interest of retailers and the public in better merchandise, and that as such they probably would develop a label and attach it to the merchandise, and advertise to the public regarding this organization, and its purposes and standards and so forth.

Q. Was there anything said at that time with respect to the co-operation that was expected from the retail dealers in this plan? A. No, they did ask, however, if we liked the idea, if we thought well of it. That was the purpose of having the two or three or more retailers present, who were 10371 there.

Q. Was there anything said at that time as to the nature of the plan, with respect to the co-operation from textile manufacturers of the plan? A. I do not recall if there was any such plan, or such discussion, rather.

Q. Was there anything said on that occasion with respect to red carding of retail dealers who did not cooperate with the plan? A. No, I do not believe that that had been conceived up to that time.

Q. Well, did anything go on in that first meeting that you referred to, as far as you are concerned, any further contact? A. Well, as I say, they asked us how the retailers—they asked us how the retailers of the country would react, from our knowledge of the industry, to such a plan. We told them we thought that they would react favorably to such a plan as presented to us at that time, and I think they organized and gathered members, or influenced manufacturers to become members of this association, and began to formulate plans for putting it into 10373 action. We did not hear very much about it after that for a period of several months.

Q. When did you next hear of it, or learn of its activities? A. Well, in the late fall of 1932.

Q. What occurred then? A. Well, at that time the Guild had conceived a plan, I believe, if they could get local retail guilds who would——

Examiner Averill: One moment. When you say the "Guild"——

The Witness: The Fashion Originators Guild of America, New York City.

Examiner Averill: Oh.

The Witness: Had conceived a plan that if they could set up local retail guilds all over the country,
10374 the United States——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment—Mr. Bergdahl is testifying now as to what happened in the fall of 1932.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: Beginning in the fall of the year, I began to have numerous contacts——

Examiner Averill: Oh.

The Witness: —with officials of the F.O.G.A.—

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: —and discussions with retailers from other cities, and in these conversations with the executives of the Guild——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you name them as you go along? A. What is that?

Q. Will you name them as you go along so we can be clear. A. Well, there were Mr. Maurice Rentner and Mr. Golby, and members of the board of governors, I believe they are, and primarily, however, with Mr. Rentner and Mr. Golby and Mr. Kalman.

Examiner Averill: Kolman?

The Witness: K-a-l-m-a-n.

Mr. Haycraft: Kalman, K-a-l-m-a-n; he is with the firm of——

Mr. Weisman: Now——

Mr. Haycraft: —it has gotten away from me, there is a firm there.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. With what firm is he? A. Well, I will find out and tell you at a later time.

Mr. Weisman: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

10377

Examiner Averill: On the record.

The Witness: Then in the course of these conversations I was told that it was the conclusion of the Guild that it would be—that this plan that they had conceived would be best put over through what they call local city guilds, in the various cities of the United States.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did they tell you anything else with respect to the plan which they were then— A. Well, they wrote to retailers, I believe, rather profusely, and discussed their plan, and some of which we have copies of, I think. I believe that Mr. Rentner sent out a general letter dated in December, probably the middle of December, stating the plan, discussed local guilds, so-called local guilds, in general, urging the retailers to formulate such guilds, or discussing with them how it might be done.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification 10379 Commission's Exhibits 861-A and 861-B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 861-A and B for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, this is a letter dated December 6, which was sent by Mr. Rentner to B. Forman, of Forman Company, Rochester, which was turned over to me by Mr. Forman after he had received it.

Q. Is that store a member of the A. M. C.? A. That store is a member of the A.M.C.

Mr. Feldman: What is the date of that letter?
Mr. Haycraft: December 6.
Mr. Martin: December 6, what year?
10380 The Witness: 1932.
Mr. Haycraft: 1932.
Examiner Averill: Are you offering that?
Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. It refers to F.O.G.A. matter? A. Yes, it refers to F.O.G.A. matter.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the paper in evidence.

Examiner Averill: Any objection?

Mr. Weisman: No.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the paper in question, which purports to be a letter bearing date December 6, 1932, addressed to B. Forman, B. Forman & Company, Rochester, N. Y., and signed by Maurice Rentner, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibits 861-A and 861-B, the same consisting of two sheets.

(The letter heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 861-A and 861-B, was 10382 marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Q. You said a moment ago before recess that the Guild sent out letters to retail dealers describing the plan. Now, I am asking you whether or not any action was taken by the A.M.C. with respect to that plan, or any deliberations held with respect to it? A. Well, the store owners, the store principals exchanged information in some cases as regards what was the best thing to do in connection with the plan proposed by Mr. Rentner.

Q. Was there any objection raised to the plan at that time by the stores, merchandise stores of A.M.C.?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that unless Mr. Haycraft means by his question whether an objection 10383 was raised to the Guild or to Mr. Rentner; for example, if these men met among themselves and some had objections and some did not, I do not——

Examiner Averill: First, let us see whether there were any objections. There may not have been any— Then we can find out later whether the objections were communicated. It will not take but a moment to do that. Go ahead, please, answer the question, if there were any objections.

A. There were—I would not like to call them objections—there was a statement of the problem involved in connection with going along with the Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the problem that was involved?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as immaterial.

Examiner Averill: I will have to hear it before I can tell you whether it is immaterial or not, gentlemen. For the moment I will overrule the objection, subject to motion to strike if it does not appear that it is material.

10385

The Witness: Well, may I answer it?

Examiner Averill: Yes. Exception noted for counsel, please.

A. In connection with this plan which involved formulating some contact with the Guild similar to that which the Guild had with the New York—the Uptown Retail Guild, I believe—there was discussion as to whether or not stores throughout the country, and particularly our stores, could co-operate, if they did agree to such a plan, and among themselves they brought up the question of how they could agree to co-operate in connection with the copied merchandise in the lower price lines, and that problem of the lower price lines was brought to the attention 10386 of Col. Reilly, and to my attention, in conection with our office work in the A.M.C., and also for purposes of conveying that problem to the officials of the Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you do so? A. I did.

Mr. Weisman: When?

Mr. Haycraft: I am conducting this examination.

Mr. Weisman: Well, then, I object to the question.

Examiner Averill: One moment. Let us proceed. He will probably ask him that question next, and let us see if he does; if he does not, you can bring out the date.

Mr. Weisman: Let us see if he will.

A. I did so at that time, and have ever since that time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, will you explain— A. (Resumed) Continuously and constantly, and always. 10388

Q. Now, Mr. Bergdahl, will you explain just what the problem is, and how it is a problem——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): I object——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —to the retail dealers with whom you come in contact?

Mr. Weisman: —to that as incompetent, immaterial, not within the issues of this case, and that this witness is not properly qualified, and I further ask that the prior answers which were taken subject to my motion to strike out, now be stricken.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the motion to strike is denied, and the objection is overruled; exception noted for counsel. Read the last question. 10389

(Last question read.)

A. Well, the store principals of our group felt that while it might be advisable to give co-operation, and, in fact, beneficial to themselves to give co-operation, in regard to copying—the copying of merchandise—they questioned how this could be done in the lower-price lines, inasmuch as the lower price retailers probably would not sign up with the Guild on a similar basis, and, therefore, would not be controlled by the Guild; and, as a result of their inability to control them, they could continue to carry merchandise which were copies, which the stores who would co-operate could not carry—that is, if they acted in good faith, and lived up to any such agreement that they might enter into with the Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the form of co-operation that the Guild expected the dealers to give, that you refer to? A. Well,
10391 they expected the retailers at a subsequent date to this time in December——

Q. Let us talk about December first. A. Well, at that time they hoped, or expected, that they could formulate these local city guilds, and that they could make agreements with the city guilds covering a basis of co-operative action, regarding the furthering of the program that they were inaugurating.

Q. A that time what price lines did the members of the Guild manufacture? A. I was told by Mr. Rentner himself that the Guild manufactured dresses largely from $22.50 up; in rare cases from $16.75 up.

Mr. Weisman: Now, I submit the answer be stricken out since it appears that the witness has 10392 given a wrong answer. He says in answer to the question by your Honor "I know"; then he says "I was told." I submit that is not knowledge. Anybody in the world might have told him something. If he is asked "Did Mr. Rentner tell him?" that is one thing. Now, this witness is presupposing. He is trying to give us as his knowledge something that somebody may have truthfully or untruthfully, or correctly or incorrectly told him.

Examiner Averill: My dear sir, if we were to go on that theory no information would ever be elicited. If the gentleman, whom he states is Mr. Rentner, and whom the evidence so far indicates was very active in forming the original plans and ideas, made a statement to this gentleman, which he gives as his authority for it——

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection to him stating on the authority of Mr.——

Examiner Averill: He cannot know everything. I do not actually know you are alive; I think you are.

Mr. Weisman: You have pretty good evidence of 10394 it, Judge.

Examiner Averill: But I do not know it.

Mr. Weisman: You have pretty good evidence of it, but he hasn't any evidence at all. Your evidence is direct. You are not relying on somebody telling you I am alive because I may have died five minutes after somebody saw me. He says that Mr. Rentner tells him something. You know I am alive because you see me and hear me talking.

The Witness: I qualified it further.

Examiner Averill: Really, I must overrule the objection. Go ahead, sir.

The Witness: What is the question?

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Last question read.) 10395

Mr. Weisman: May I have an exception?

Examiner Averill: Certainly, with pleasure. Read the answer.

(Answer of the witness read.)

The Witness: May I add to that, sir?

Examiner Averill: Yes, if there is anything else.

The Witness: I also have a staff of buyers who know exactly what each manufacturer is making at the time, and that confirms the information that was given to me by Mr. Rentner.

Examiner Averill: You mean your buyers reported to you?

The Witness: They did.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was there any evidence of co-operation entered into by way of agreement or otherwise, in December, 1932, between the A.M.C., or its members, and the F.O.G.A.? A. None that I know of.

Q. Well, when you discussed this problem that you re-
10397 ferred to with the gentlemen that you have named, what did they say with respect to it? What reaction did you get from it?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. With whom did you discuss it? A. Well, with the executives of the Guild, Mr. Rentner and Mr. Golby; and, as I recall it, Mr. Kalman.

Q. What did they say with respect to the problem as presented to them? A. Well, they did not say much at that time; they did not say much at that time; they listened, and, as I recall it, they thought that could be worked, but no specific solution was arrived at, since they were attempting to formulate these local guilds, and that 10398 they were going to make the agreements with those guilds, and they were going to see if they could work out their plans with the guilds respectively. I am talking now about December, or thereabouts, in that year.

Q. That is right. A. And that no specific problem arose as between our group and them at that time, since they did not enforce this thing exactly at that date.

Q. Well, then, what happened with respect to the plan of the F.O.G.A., subsequent to 1932? Was there any further development? A. No, I believe that the Guild was not entirely successful in formulating these local guilds, or, at least, they were not formulated fast enough to make the plan operative under that scheme.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you discuss the F.O.G.A. with Messrs, Rentner, Golby or Kalman during the period of time subsequent to December, 1932? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Now, may I have that question?

By Mr. Haycraft.

10400

Q. And during those discussions——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment, please.

A. Will you qualify that period of time?

Examiner Averill: One moment, please; one moment. What is the objection?

Mr. Weisman: The witness has the same trouble I have; he says, "Will you qualify that period of time?"

Mr. Haycraft: Subsequent to December, 1932.

Examiner Averill: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10401

Q. And I will restrict it to the first six months after December, 1932. A. Well, yes. As I recall it, I did have conversation with them.

Q. During those conversations did you learn anything with respect to what the Guild was doing, the F.O.G.A. was doing? A. Naturally, I think I learned something.

Q. What did they tell you as to the subject of the Guild in establishing the local guilds that you referred to a moment ago? A. Why, they explained that it was not—the plan was not progressing rapidly enough, and that they would have to—that they had another—they were planning another method to go about this.

Q. Did they disclose to you what that other method was? A. They did.

Q. What was it? A. The plan was arrived at late in the spring of 1933 to ask retailers in the country who—to ask all retailers who wished to do business with the members of the F.O.G.A., if they would not sign a declaration stating that they were for the policies of the Guild, and that they would co-operate.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E, and 10403 ask you if you can identify that exhibit. A. I can identify it.

Q. What do you know about it? A. Well, that was the letter that was sent out by Mr. Rentner explaining the new policy of the Guild, or at least the policy to ask retailers to sign the declaration——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Just a moment.

The Witness: —of co-operation.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did this letter come to your attention in the ordinary course of your duty? A. It did.

Q. How? A. Well, it came to my attention in conferences that we had with the members of the Guild, and also 10404 it came to my attention as the recipient. We received the letter after the Guild mailed it out. The stores received it, and the New York office received a copy of it.

Q. Did you have any discussions with respect to it with your members, or the A.M.C.? A. I had discussion with the members; they had discussion with me, and I passed that information on to the executives of the F.O.G.A.

Q. Was there any objection raised to the plan as set forth in that exhibit by the members of the A.M.C., in or about June, 1933? A. Yes.

Q. Were those objections transmitted to the F.O.G.A.? A. Those objections were transmitted to the F.O.G.A.

Q. To the officials, executive officers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were the objections? A. The objection was that we could not go along with their plan as it appeared—as it would apply to price lines below $10.75 cost.

Q. Will you just explain what you mean by that? A. Well, we stated that in conjunction with other of the offices in New York City working jointly together, or at least called together to discuss this subject, called together by the F.O.G.A. to discuss this subject jointly, that we represented retailers all over the country, some 1700 in number, who, for the most part, handled both better and inexpensive merchandise, ranging from a dollar up to the highest price lines, in some cases, and that most of these retailers handled merchandise in the more or less inexpensive to popular priced brackets, ranging, say, part way or halfway up to the price ranges that were handled by the Guild, and that we could go along and co-operate as it pertained to better merchandise, but we could not go along and co-operate below $10.75 costs, because copies were prevalent in the industry; and that manufacturers were not in the habit of designing, and for that reason we would have to have an exemption from the Guild on those price lines if they wished us to co-operate, and unless they would give us such an exemption we would not endorse this movement to our respective retailers. And the Guild recognized at the time—at least they said so—that they were most anxious, the thoughts and ideas of the New York office representatives, because we knew—they said that we knew the problem of the retailer.

Mr. Rentner says that he does not want to hurt anybody, to foster his own plan, and that he would like to be helpful, and we said—we repeated, or, rather, I will repeat, that we said that below $10.75 we could not go along, and Mr. Rentner said all right, he would go along with that plan, providing otherwise we would co-operate, since he could in no way see how merchandise costing less than $10.75 could in any way hurt merchandise produced by members of the F.O.G.A. at that time. He did not use the words "at that time," I am using them.

He made the statement at that time, and, therefore, I qualify it that way.

Q. Well, at that time, what price lines were the members of the Guild manufacturing? A. I have already stated the price lines, they were largely from $22.50 up, but in some cases, from $16.50 up.

Q. Well, as a result of the discussion that you had with the executives of the Guild, of the F.O.G.A.—strike that out. Did you recommend to the members of the A.M.C. 10409 that they should sign up the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" as submitted to them by the Guild? A. I did so recommend.

Q. Did you also, as an executive of the A.M.C., or did officials of the A.M.C., sign the agreement with the F.O.G.A., submitted to them? A. Yes, the A.M.C. did sign the regular agreement furnished by the F.O.G.A. for such purpose.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 92 and ask you if you recognize that as the agreement, copy of the agreement, which was signed by the A.M.C.—that is, similar to the one, if that is not the exact language? A. No, this is not the one that we signed.

Q. Do you have a copy of the one you signed in your 10410 office? A. I think I have a copy—no, I do not have a copy. We sent our only copy to the Guild, and they could furnish you with a copy of the one we signed; but I know it was the regular form provided for in the spring of 1933.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 99-E, and ask you if that is the——

Examiner Averill: What?

A. As I recall it——

Mr. Haycraft: The paper.

A. As I recall it, this is the copy of the agreement that we signed.

Examiner Averill: Is that the same agreement again?

Mr. Haycraft: No, it is attached to this letter, Commission's Exhibit 99.

Examiner Averill: Will you gentlemen bear with me if I would ask the reporter to read me the last part, not of this last question, but the other; it seems to me there is a conflict.

(The record was read.) 10412

Mr. Haycraft: I told him there were two different letters.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Back on the record.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When was it that you had this discussion with the officials of the Guild, and they granted the exemption that you requested? A. That was in the latter part of May and early June of 1933, at the time this letter was being prepared for mailing to the membership, the proposed membership.

Examiner Averill: When the witness says "this letter," he refers to Commission's Exhibits 99-A, B? 10413

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Averill: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, did you have any further discussion with the A.M.C., members of the A.M.C., with respect to the letter itself, and the memorandum on the Guild's resolution, and the declaration of co-operation in anti-piracy attached to the letter— A. Yes.

Q. —Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E, after June 16, 1933? A. Yes, I did, before and after.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you have a discussion with the members of the A.M.C. subsequent to June, 1933, with respect to a plan of the F.O.G.A. as expressed in Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E?

10415 Mr. Weisman: Now, your Honor, before the witness answers that question, I object to it unless he will specify in his answer the names of the people with whom he had the conversation, so that we may on our direct case examine them and, if necessary, cross-examine them to see whether he is truthful in his testimony.

Examiner Averill: First ask the witness to simply answer "yes" or "no" to that particular question, and then counsel may ask him other questions.

A. I did.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10416 Q. With whom did you discuss this matter? A. I discussed this whole situation primarily with the garment merchandise managers of the stores who were in the stores at that time.

Mr. Weisman: May I ask——

A. (Resumed.) Also with Col. Reilly, and with some of the store principals, not many, mostly garment merchandise managers.

Q. Where did you have this discussion? A. Why, I had the discussion in the New York office primarily.

Examiner Averill: Yours?

The Witness: Our New York office, yes.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. When? A. When these people would visit New York and come here on business; I mean, we discussed the subject quite frequently, and as much as this subject required, and that was quite a good deal.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record. Mr. Witness, 10418 will you please state whether about this time, and about this matter, did you have any discussions with any of the officials of the Guild?

The Witness: I did.

Examiner Averill: Where were such discussions held?

The Witness: I did hold these discussions with the Guild on their premises, in the office, at the time, located on Seventh Avenue, I think 5——

Mr. Albert: —12.

The Witness: —12.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, may we have the time fixed?

The Witness: I stated the time previously, May and June of 1933, that is in connection with this 10419 particular letter here.

Examiner Averill: That is what we are talking about.

Mr. Weisman: May I know what letter he is referring to? He says "this particular letter."

The Witness: June 16, 1933.

Examiner Averill: Commission's Exhibits 99-A and B.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In those discussions, did you present to the officials of the Guild the opinions and objections of the members of the A.M.C., as they were transmitted to you? A. I did.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did the executives of the Guild tell you with respect to the objections and opinions of the members of the A.M.C. that you transmitted to them? A. I have already told you that it stated—that Mr. Rentner acknowledged the condition that prevailed as far as we were concerned, and agreed to an exemption on the co-operation in 10421 connection with merchandise below $10.75 cost.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I notice that there is no such exemption in the written declaration of co-operation, or in the letter, Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E. A. That is right.

Q. Did Mr. Rentner make any explanation of that?

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. I object to the attempt to vary the terms of a written instrument which they themselves have put into evidence. The exhibit is complete on its face, and full, and is an exhibit offered by the Commission. Now, they are seeking, obviously, in an effort to anticipate cross-10422 examination, to impeach their own document, and in an obviously improper manner.

Examiner Averill: One moment, gentlemen, until I read these exhibits that he speaks of. Did he add anything, or make any explanation?

(Last question read.)

The Witness: He did.

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment.

Examiner Averill: One moment, please, sir; there is an objection.

Mr. Haycraft: Explanation of that fact—those things he has just now testified to, with respect to them.

Examiner Averill: You mean Mr. Rentner, give an explanation of why the oral agreement to which the witness has testified, namely, that the members of the A.M.C. were to be exempt from co-operation in merchandise of a value of less than either $10.75 or $10—some places it is stated as $10, other places as $10.75. That is what you mean, is it not?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Averill: With that explanation of the question in mind, if any other declaration was made 10424 to you later by Mr. Rentner as to why there was no reference to any such exemption in behalf of the A.M.C., in the form of documents which are covered by this exhibit, Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E, inclusive, and you have seen what they are?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: If he did make any, why, say so; if he did not, say so.

Mr. Weisman: May I make my objection first?

Examiner Averill: Certainly, I thought you had made it.

Mr. Weisman: Well, a new question has been propounded for the purpose of the record; these 10425 documents are documents which have been offered in evidence by the Commission. They are documents that are signed not by us, but by the A.M.C.

Examiner Averill: They are not signed by anybody.

Mr. Weisman: Well, if they are not signed, the purpose of having them in evidence is merely to show the type—the exact context of documents that were signed.

Examiner Averill: But there is nothing in here as far as this exhibit goes to show that any member of the A.M.C. ever signed the declaration of co-operation in anti-piracy, as it is headed, which is in here as Commission's Exhibit 99-E.

Mr. Weisman: Except——

Examiner Averill: That being the case——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Well, that is not the case.

Examiner Averill: That is all it appears, may I say?

Mr. Weisman: May I refresh your recollection—

10427 except that this witness this morning testified that Commission's Exhibit 99-E was an exact copy of a document that A.M.C. signed. Am I correct about that, Mr. Bergdahl?

The Witness: As I recall it.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: That is an exact copy.

Mr. Weisman: That is an exact copy.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

A. Mr. Rentner told me, in the presence of other resident office managers, that he was giving us an exemption on merchandise below $10, but would not make this as a general condition to all retailers, since the retailers that were not asking for it—he was not worrying about—he 10428 would take care of us but he did not care about the others particularly, since they were not asking for it, why bring it up, and, therefore, he wanted nothing in writing to this effect, and it was a gentleman's agreement between us, and we agreed to that, and that was all right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you say you wished to correct a statement? A. Yes.

Q. What was the statement? A. Yes, I did. He stated here, I think inadvertently, that the stores had signed Exhibit 99-A and B, and that the office had signed 99-E. E is the last one here. Now, the stores and the offices, as I recall it, signed 99-E, or unless they—that was, they had the privilege of making a—of writing it in their own words, if they wished. The letter in which $10 is mentioned—I do not know that the $10 is not mentioned in 99-E at all, it is merely mentioned in Mr. Rentner's letter, to which is attached 99-E, but in connection with the New York offices, I doubt whether very many of us ever got 99-A and B, that was verbally understood, that is, 99-A went out to the stores, that was generally circulated in the trade, 10430 and that was what contained the $10 quotation.

Q. Well, Mr. Bergdahl, if you had not had this understanding or agreement with Mr. Rentner just described, would you have recommended to the A.M.C. stores that they sign the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation," or would you have signed the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation"?

Mr. Weisman: I object to the question as incompetent, irelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

A. I——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. 10431

Examiner Averill: Wait a moment. He has made an objection.

The Witness: I am sorry.

Examiner Averill: I would like, with permission of counsel, to ask this witness if this paper, Commission's Exhibit 99-C— Show it to Mr. Weisman, too, so that he can see what I am referring to.

(Witness hands paper to Mr. Weisman.)

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: If that paper—here is what I am after especially—if that paper was before him at the time that he recommended, as he says he did recommend, the signing of the declaration of co-operation, Commission's Exhibit 99-C.

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection to your Honor asking him that question.

Examiner Averill: I would like to know. You can both see the——

Mr. Weisman: —the relevancy.

Examiner Averill: —the relevancy of it.

10433 Mr. Haycraft: I was going to take that up next.

Mr. Weisman: I would like, your Honor, to ask for an explanation of that.

Mr. Haycraft: I am going to take that up next.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: I should think that in fairness to the witness before he answers that question that his attention should be directed to Commission's Exhibits 99-C and 99-E.

Mr. Haycraft: C, D and E, all three.

Examiner Averill: And see if he had that paper before him or knew of its existence when he recommended it.

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

10434

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 99-C and D, and ask you if you received that in your office, or were you familiar with that paper at the time that you signed the so-called "Declaration" similar to Exhibit 99-E? A. I don't recall ever having seen these.

Examiner Averill: You mean 99-C?

The Witness: 99-C.

Examiner Averill: Go ahead now and answer the question.

The Witness: In fact, I can state definitely that I never saw it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, will you answer my other question?

Mr. Weisman: Now, wait a moment, I have an objection to the other question. It has not been ruled upon. He asked him a question.

Examiner Averill: Yes, I know, but now that 10436
the witness has been shown those papers I am going to let him answer the question.

Mr. Weisman: May I respectfully object on the ground that that question is two questions in one, in the first place, and, in the second place, whether or not this grand A.M.C., or Mr. Bergdahl, while it may seem to him important, whether or not he recommended it, there is no testimony in this case to that effect that it would have made one iota of difference to these stores, and, as a matter of fact, it is in evidence that half of the stores, or at least three fourths of them, have repudiated Mr. Bergdahl and the A.M.C., and are now co-operating with Guild. 10437

So I mean it is entirely unimportant. There is no proper foundation laid for the question, would he have recommended it. The significance——

Examiner Averill: I think counsel will later thank me for overruling him. Note an exception.

A. Why, I should not have recommended this, and so told Mr. Rentner at the time, and——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): I ask that the latter part of the answer be stricken out, and I ask that this witness be directed by the Court to confine himself to the questions.

That question was perfectly plain, would he have recommended it, and when he answered "I would not," that was the end of that answer, and he knows it. We have here an intelligent witness.

Examiner Averill: Read the answer.

(Answer read.)

Examiner Averill: Strike everything from that answer after his statement "I should not."

10439 Counsel may bring out further questions about the matter, but as far as that question is concerned, that is the answer to it.

Mr. Haycraft: Is it stricken out, "that he would not have recommended it"?

Examiner Averill: "Would not have recommended it" is not stricken out.

Mr. Haycraft: Read his answer.

(Answer read as follows: "A. Why, I should not have recommended this——")

Mr. Haycraft: Strike out beginning "—and so told"?

Examiner Averill: Yes; my opinion is that is a sufficient answer to the question.

10440 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you to answer the second part of the question, would you have signed the so-called "Declaration" yourself, recommending the A.M.C., if you had not had such an agreement with Mr. Rentner?

Examiner Averill: Is that not the same question?

Mr. Haycraft: No. One is as to his recommending it to his members, and then the other, himself.

Mr. Weisman: In other words, Mr. Haycraft, notwithstanding your Honor's ruling, sees the vice of his question and is attempting to correct it after he has been permitted to answer it. My objection to it was that there were two questions in one.

Examiner Averill: Now, then, he has split them, we have had the witness' answer as to what he should have done in connection with his members recommending to them. Now he is asked about himself.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: He may answer that question. Go ahead. 10442

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would you have signed it yourself? A. I would have signed it if the stores had first signed, because we are governed by the stores' instructions.

Q. Did you transmit to Mr. Rentner your position with respect to requiring such an agreement from him before you would recommend the signing of the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" to the member stores of the A.M.C.? A. Yes.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a moment. I object to that as being already twice answered.

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Examiner Averill: If it has already been answered, why, I do not know. The objection is overruled. 10443

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I may say in fairness to Mr. Haycraft, I expect to move to strike all this testimony out when he gets through with this line, as to Mr. Rentner. Mr. Rentner was not the Guild. Mr. Rentner was a member of the Guild—any more than Mr. Bergdahl is the A.M.C.

Examiner Averill: What I am anxious to know from you gentlemen—off the record, if you please.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who was Maurice Rentner at this time, Mr. Bergdahl? A. He was the director of the Guild, as far as I know.

Mr. Weisman: I ask——

The Witness: The chairman, or the head of it, anyway.

10445

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out. It is his guess. It is a poor one, I might say; it is a poor one.

The Witness: I think it is on the stationery.

Examiner Averill: Let me see some of those letters. That exhibit may show it there. That is the one from Mr. Rentner (referring to paper on the table).

Mr. Weisman: Yes, that is from him personally.

The Witness: It does not say on there. Some of those letters may show it.

Mr. Haycraft: Where is the one we just had?

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, let us not waste time. I guess it can be admitted what he was. I believe you would not deny what he was, if he was anything. I do not know whether he is president, or what.

Mr. Weisman: There will be no question in this case. Mr. Rentner was one of our directors. He was a very active man in our affairs.

Examiner Averill: All right.

Mr. Weisman: But we deny his right to do what is contrary——

Examiner Averill: Of course.

Mr. Weisman: —to our written letters. We object to having this witness come in and say, willy nilly, "Yes, we signed this," and say, "We took the word of Mr. Rentner for this."

The Witness: Your Honor, could I——

Examiner Averill: No, no.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask him this.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Rentner is chairman—apparently appears as chairman from the various letters.

Examiner Averill: Counsel admits he was one of 10448 their directors.

Mr. Haycraft: It is not a question of one of the directors, he was the executive, the director——

Mr. Weisman: No, he was not. When you are ready to take the stand and testify, I will subject you to cross-examination and show up your complete knowledge in this case.

Mr. Haycraft: I might do the same thing.

Mr. Weisman: You call me and try to.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, we will have it established later as to what Mr. Rentner was, what his position was.

Mr. Haycraft: He was the Guild, no question about it. 10449

Mr. Weisman: Like you are the Federal Trade Commision—making a statement like that, that he was t' Guild.

Mr. Feldman: Is Mr. Bergdahl the A.M.C.?

The Witness: What do you think?

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, let us go on. The next question, please.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Subsequent to June, 1933, did you, in your official capacity with the A.M.C., co-operate with the F.O.G.A., in carrying out the agreement that you had signed? A. We did carry out our agreement with the Guild as far as it applied to merchandise from $10.75 up is concerned.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How long after June 16, 1933, did you first acquaint the members of the A.M.C. with the agreement that you had with Mr. Rentner? A. Well, I would have to look up to see my letters that went out on that to determine just 10451 the exact date that I did send out such word.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. During the year 1933, say from June on to the end of the year, did you have any further contacts with the officials of the F.O.G.A. with respect to their plan of anti-style piracy? A. Well, I recall that we had conversation with the F.O.G.A. They called certain meetings in which they apprised the resident officers of things that they were planning, and I attended such meetings during that year.

Q. Was there anything done by the F.O.G.A. during that period of time, with respect to checking up on retail dealers, members of your A.M.C., to determine whether or not they were co-operating with the Guild in the return 10452 of copies to manufacturers? A. I do not——

Q. By "copies" I mean copies adjudged to be copies of Guild dresses. A. I do not recall that any agressive action was taken to find out whether or not anybody was——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Cheating.

A. (Resumed).—was living up to the agreement.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know whether or not during that period of time any retail dealer was red carded, so to speak, by the Guild?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as immaterial.

Examiner Averill: You mean any retail dealer, member of their association?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Of the A.M.C.?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: Well, how would that be material?

Examiner Averill: I do not know. Let us see. 10454

Mr. Weisman: All right.

A. I would not know.

Mr. Weisman: All right, I withdraw the objection, he would not know.

The Witness: I do not know, in fact. You had reference to the year 1933?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes, that is right, all 1933. Are you familiar with any efforts that were made by the Guild during the balance of the year 1933, that is, from June until December, to enforce their plan, or to carry out their plan of anti-piracy? A. Well, I do not know that the Guild did anything to carry it out as an organization here from New York, no. 10455

Q. It did not come to your attention? A. It did not come to my attention.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you received copy of letter from Mr. Golby under date of January 5, 1934, and accompanying papers which are in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 621-A to G? A. I did receive them.

Q. On or about the time— A. On or about January.
Q. On or about that time?

Examiner Averill: What date is that?

Mr. Haycraft: January 5, 1934.

Mr. Weisman: May we have a recess? We are about half-way through the afternoon session—a recess of five minutes?

Examiner Averill: I was going to let you out at ten minutes to four.

Mr. Weisman: I have received a telephone call.

Examiner Averill: All right.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

10457 Examiner Averill: All right, gentlemen.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit 621-A to G, I will ask you whether or not the subject-matter of this letter, and the accompanying documents, were called to your attention by officials of the Guild, prior to the issuance of this letter? A. As I recall it, we had—they called the resident officers to a meeting at the headquarters of the F.O.G.A. to discuss these particular practices here.

Q. At or about that time or before? A. Well, it was before this was issued. As I recall it, this was a meeting in which these were discussed.

10458 Q. Was there any discussion of these various practices on the part of the A.M.C. at or about that time? A. No, we thought as a whole—I mean, concurred, that they were reasonable, as far as I recall it. I stated whatever objections I personally had at the meeting and I think they were jointly arrived at as they are now, more or less.

Q. During the year 1934, do you recall there having been brought to your attention any complaints from the Guild as to whether or not the members of the A.M.C.

were co-operating in the plan, in the anti-piracy plan? A. Well, I don't recall any particular citations that we were not co-operating. I recall getting a letter, I think, from the Guild, stating that we were co-operating.

Q. Was it that year or the following year? A. Well, I am not sure, I do not know just exactly when, but I do not recall any—I do not recall that very much went on as far as the differences of opinion, or otherwise, during the year 193—the balance of the year 1933 and 1934, inasmuch as the Guild recognized, or at least it worked out that way, that the exemptions——

By Mr. Haycraft. 10460

Q. During the year 1934 do you have any recollection of being requested to co-operate, requested by the Guild, to co-operate in getting the Code Authority to recognize—A. To recognize what?

Q. To curb style piracy?

Examiner Averill: To recognize it?
Mr. Haycraft: To curb style piracy.
Examiner Averill. Oh, to curb. Excuse me.
Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

A. Why, as I recall it, the Guild expressed a desire to get into the code such a clause governing copying of merchandise.

By Mr. Haycraft. 10461

Q. Did you co-operate any in that effort on the part of the Guild? A. I think I would say I assisted materially in doing so.

Q. What did you do? A. I helped to frame the clause that was presented to the Government for approval——

Examiner Averill: When you say "Government" you mean "Code Authorities"?

The Witness: Well, the Code Authorities.

Mr. Weisman: Ha, ha!

The Witness: I understood it had Federal endorsement.

Examiner Averill: I know, sir, but the Government is so huge that unles we have some idea as to what particular branch, we have no idea what you have reference to.

The Witness: I see.

Examiner Averill: It might have been some other branch, Department of Justice, or something else.

The Witness: I am sorry.

10463 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who served with you on that committee? A. As I recall it, representing the retailers a Mr. Irving Fox, and someone from Macy's.

Mr. Weisman: Will you tell us who Mr. Irving Fox, was, or do you want to keep that dark?

The Witness: No, I do not want to keep that dark at all.

Mr. Weisman: Tell us.

The Witness: He is counsel for the N.R.D.G.A.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. National Retail Dry Goods Association, is that it?

10464 A. Yes.

Q. And someone from Macy's, did you say? A. A gentleman from Macy's, whose name I do not recall. Mr. Fox and I met at the N.R.D.G.A., possibly with one or two others, but I do not recall—to discuss the advisability of retail participation in the clause, in trying to get a clause into the code, and subsequently we had a meeting, at the Dress Code Authority headquarters at 1440 Broadway, at which were present retailers as well as manufacturers, manufacturers representing higher-priced makers, as well as low-priced makers, but not so many low-priced, mostly the better end, I think from $10.75 up; probably, as far as the manufacturers were concerned, were represented at that meeting—the Code Authority executives, and a few retailers.

Q. Did anything come out of that by way of a code legislation? A. Yes, a clause governing copying of merchandise was framed, which was intended to be presented as an amendment to the Dress Code Authority.

Q. Coming now into the year 1935, Mr. Bergdahl, did you have any discussions with the executives of the F.O.G.A. during the first six months of that year, with 10466 respect to the policy of the Guild and the extent of co-operation on the part of the retail dealers, members of A.M.C.? A. Yes, I did.

Q. When did those discussions take place? A. Well, early in the year 1935, as I recall it, Mr. Post called at an A.B.O. meeting.

Q. First tell us who Mr. Post was, so far as you knew him? A. Mr. Al Post at that time director—executive director of the F.O.G.A., having been appointed in the fall of 1934, as I recall it, called on us to invite our co-operation, and further strengthening the Guild program to control copying. Does that answer the question?

Q. What did he have to say with respect to the Guild program as to copying? A. Well, he invited our additional 10467 co-operation and asked our ideas about it at the time, and we told him we could go along if and when the conditions that we had previously stated had been met by the Guild and by the situation in the industry, by conditions in the industry; namely, that we could go along and co-operate below $10.75 cost when the chain stores would be a part of the Guild, and when the industry in the low-priced brackets would have learned how to create so-called "original" designs.

Q. Well, what was the proposition that they were making to you at that time that caused you to make that statement? A. Well, I do not recall that there was a concrete proposition made, that was to be subject to further discussion.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 862 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify it?

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 862.)

10469 A. That is a letter for the most part dictated by the writer—by myself—and sent by the Association of Buying Offices, signed by Mr. H. I. Kleinhaus, Executive Secretary, explaining the——

Q. Let us not go into that. A. I understand.

Q. What is the date of that? A. March 30, 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: May I see it?

(Mr. Haycraft hands Commission's Exhibit 862 for Identilcation to Mr. Weisman.)

Mr. Weisman: All right, then, I will not object if you will let the answer go in.

Examiner Averill: All right.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

10470 Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At the time that letter was written, did you have anything to do with the F.D.O.? A. I was chairman of their F.O.G.A. committee; I think that is what they were.

Q. About March 30, 1935?

Mr. Weisman: Does the record show clearly that the last remaining answer that I objected to was stricken out?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I want to be sure.

Examiner Averill: It was stricken out. The reporter has the language that was stated.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I asked you whether you had a meeting of this committee on or about March 30, 1935. A. Yes, we did, a meeting of the committee as well as the Association. That was a weekly meeting, if I recall, a weekly meeting. 10472

Q. Who called the meeting? A. This subject was discussed at a meeting, a weekly meeting of the offices, called by the president at that time, Mr. John Bloch.

Q. President of what? A. The Association of Buying Offices.

Q. At this meeting, what was the subject of discussion? A. Well, one of the subjects of discussion was an article that we had read in the "Women's Wear Daily," a short article which stated that the Guild had decided to invite the $10.75 manufacturers to register their merchandise for protection.

Q. Was that matter discussed at that meeting? A. That matter was discussed that day, and this letter was dictated and sent to the Guild.

Q. All right. 10473

Examiner Averill: Who was the Guild?

The Witness: The Association of Buying Offices.

Mr. Haycraft: I made a mistake.

Examiner Averill: Oh, A.B.O.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Subsequent to the date of this letter, March, 1935, did you have, or attend, a joint meeting of the Association of Buying Office and the F.O.G.A.? A. As I recall it.

Q. Where this matter was discussed? A. As I recall it, this letter resulted in a joint meeting, if I recall correctly.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 863.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 863 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that (showing paper 10475 to witness)? A. Yes, that is the letter as the result of the joint meeting, summing up the understanding.

Q. Who wrote it? A. Written by Mr. Kleinhaus, secretary of the Association of Buying Offices, to Mr. Maurice Rentner, chairman of the F.O.G.A., dated April 5, 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Examiner Averill: Any objection?

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection if Mr. Haycraft would like to stipulate that the answer to this may go in.

Mr. Haycraft: I expect to offer it.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the paper that has been marked for identification Commission's 10476 Exhibit 863, which appears to be a mimeographed copy of a letter dated April 5, 1935, addressed to Maurice Rentner, chairman, F.O.G.A., New York, from the secretary of the A.B.O., Inc., will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 863.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 863 was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 864.)

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 865.)

Mr. Weisman: Are you going to offer the reply?

Mr. Haycraft: I am coming to that.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, the answer to this is here.

Examiner Averill: It cannot go in all at once.

Mr. Weisman: But I think obviously the time to put it in is with the original letter. I am not going to fight about it. I am going to insist. He might as well get it now. 10478

Examiner Averill: Be a little patient.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask if you can identify this letter, Commission's Exhibit 864 for Identification? A. Yes, I can identify that.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 866.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you send this out to garment merchandise managers of the A.M.C.? A. I did.

Q. Does that relate to the subject-matter of the exhibit just received in evidence? A. That does. 10479

Examiner Averill: Commission's Exhibit 863?

Mr. Haycraft: Exhibit 863. I offer this in evidence, dated April 10, to garment merchandise managers, entitled "Developments in F.O.G.A.," from the witness, Commission's Exhibit 864 for Identification.

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the paper heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit 864 for Identification, bearing date April 10, 1935, and headed "Developments in F.O.G.A.," apparently sent to garment merchandise managers, addressed to merchandise managers, and from H. L. Bergdahl, merchandise manager, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 864.

(The paper, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 864, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

10481 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The merchandise managers referred to in that exhibit are merchandise managers of whom? A. Merchandise managers of ready-to-wear in our stores.

Q. That is the A.M.C. stores? A. A.M.C. stores.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 865 for Identification, an original letter from Albert M. Post to the Association of Buying Offices, Inc., dated April 23, 1935, and ask you if you can identify that as a reply to Commission's Exhibit 863? A. I can, sir. That is a reply to a letter dated April 5. That letter read, it being a typographical error, "We have your letter of April 6th."

Q. But it is a reply to this letter (showing paper to witness)? A. It is a reply to this letter.

10482

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Examiner Averill: In other words, the witness when he makes that statement means the letter bearing date April 5th, now in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 863?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, the first line just read says, "We have your letter of April 6th."

Examiner Averill: I see.

Mr. Weisman: You are offering this letter in evidence, to which I have no objection.

Examiner Averill: No objection?

Mr. Weisman: I would ask your Honor to read this paragraph.

Examiner Averill: Just a moment.

Mr. Haycraft: And as soon as he reads that read the next one.

Examiner Averill: Wait a moment, I have not put this in yet.

Mr. Haycraft: Pardon me.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, there being no objection, a letter heretofore marked Commission's 10484
Exhibit 865 for Identification, consisting of two sheets firmly attached, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 865, the same being a letter dated April 23, 1935, addressed to Association of Buying Offices, Inc., New York City, and signed "Albert M. Post, Executive Director." The evidence shows Mr. Post is of the F.O.G.A.

(The paper, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 865, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Upon receipt of this letter, Commission's Exhibit 865, was there a meeting of your committee held? A. 10485
Upon the receipt of——

Q. Mr. Post's letter. A. —Mr. Post's letter, dated April 23?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, we had a meeting upon receipt of this; I do not say just because of this, but we had a weekly meeting at which this letter was discussed.

Q. Did you address a letter to Mr. Post in reply to that? A. We did.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 866 for Identification, and ask— A. When I say "we," in this case it means the A.B.O., the Association of Buying Offices.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 866, and ask you if you can identify that as a carbon copy of a letter from H. I. Kleinhaus, executive secretary of the Association of Buying Offices, Inc., addressed to Mr. Maurice Rentner, chairman of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, also attention of Mr. A. M. Post, dated April 27, 1935, and a reply to Mr. Post's letter of April 23, 1935, which is in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 865 (handing paper to witness)? A. This is the reply to Mr.
10487 Post's letter of April 23, 1935.

Q. I will ask you whether or not the letter which you just identified represents the judgment and opinions and attitude of the members of the A.B.O. meeting held on April 26, 1935?

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. I would like for you to read that prize question to his Honor. We now have a letter in evidence——

Examiner Averill: One moment.

Mr. Weisman: Now, just——

Examiner Averill: Wait. Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Mr. Weisman: The letter is in evidence and it means what it says, and this statement whether it 10488 represents the attitude, and so forth, and so on, ad nauseum, does not add to or detract from the letter, and I submit the question is wholly improper and incompetent. He offers a letter in evidence and the letter speaks for itself.

Examiner Averill: One moment, please, before you answer. I will have to sustain that objection, gentlemen. I think the letter, so far as it goes, speaks for itself, in regard to the feelings of the members of the Association, of the A.B.O.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, if that is conceded——

Examiner Averill: It has not been received in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: I am offering it in evidence.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Of course, I want to point out that the letter does not bear the witness' signature, and I am asking the witness as to whether or not the statement contains, as he recalls, what was the attitude of the members of the meeting.

Mr. Weisman: If you are going to take that attitude, then I will object to the witness putting this letter in evidence, and ask you to bring Mr. Kleinhaus in and ask to submit Mr. Kleinhaus to cross-examination. 10490

Examiner Averill: I have no objection to him asking the witness, apart from his letter, if he was present at a meeting, to which this letter may have referred, and what took place at that meeting, if he wants to.

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

Examiner Averill: But it is all here in the letter, and I do not see why it is necessary to go into it again.

Mr. Haycraft: I merely want to show that what is in the letter is in evidence.

Examiner Averill: It is already in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: The letter is in evidence. 10491

Examiner Averill: It is going to be received in evidence—I have not got it in yet but it will be. The copy of the letter bearing date April 27, 1935, from the Association of Buying Offices, Inc., by H. I. Kleinhaus, executive secretary, to Maurice Rentner, chairman, F.O.G.A., New York City, and heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit 866 for 10492 Herbert L. Bergdahl—For Commission—Direct.

Identification, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 866.

(The paper, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 866, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(Whereupon, at 3:50 o'clock P. M., November 17, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Averill: This is a reconvening of Docket No. 2769. Gentlemen, we will proceed when you are ready.

10494 Mr. Haycraft: All right, Mr. Bergdahl.

HERBERT L. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, the last matter that I called to your attention, Mr. Bergdahl, was a letter from the Association of Buying Offices to Maurice Rentner, chairman of the F.O.G.A., under date of April 27, 1935, in reply to Mr. Post's letter of April 23. Did you have any further discussion with the officials of the F.O.G.A. with respect to the subject-matter of these two letters? A. Well, I think we did have some discussion; yes, sir; shortly after April 27—they were the very first part of May.

Q. Was anyone else besides you in on the discussion? A. Yes, there was a committee designated from the Association of Buying Offices, consisting of, as I recall it, Mr. Greenebaum, Milton Greenebaum, Mr. John B. Sweeney, myself, and Mr. Post, Mr. Reinitz—Mr. Post representing the F.O.G.A., and Mr. Reinitz representing the $10.75 manufacturers, and I think Mr. Kleinhaus of the Association of Buying Offices. 10496

Q. Where was this meeting held? A. This was held at the Office of the Specialty Stores Association, at 1441 Broadway, I think that is. I am not sure about that.

Q. When was it held? A. I believe the date was May 4.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this paper be marked for identification.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 867.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 867 for Identification and ask you if you can identify it? A. Yes, sir. These are the minutes that we agreed—— 10497

Mr. Weisman: No. The answer to that question is either "yes" or "no."

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is it? A. These are the minutes——

Mr. Weisman: I object to that. I object to the witness describing the document until it goes into evidence. He is now going to testify as to what it is. I am entitled to see it before he refers to the contents of it, and before a witness begins to read from its contents and place them into the record. I think that he should identify it and then it should be offered into evidence before anything further is done.

Mr. Haycraft: I want to get some further identification.

Examiner Averill: He said the date was so and so. He can state whatever it is, a letter, minutes, and so on.

10499

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. These are the minutes of the meeting held on May 4, 1935.

Q. Meeting of who? A. These several gentlemen that I have just mentioned representing the organizations that I have just mentioned.

Q. Who prepared the minutes, this paper? A. I am not sure.

Q. Where did you get it? A. They were prepared at the time when we were in the meeting, but who prepared this particular copy I cannot say whether it was Mr. Kleinhaus or Mr. Reinitz; I cannot say.

10500

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 868 for Identification and ask you if you can identify it? A. This is, as I recall——

Mr. Weisman: I think the answer to that question should be either "yes" or "no" if he can identify it.

A. I can. I recall it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is it? A. It is a copy prepared by Mr. Reinitz at the time that this meeting was in session, that we were in session at this meeting.

Q. Where did you get it? A. I believe that Mr. Reinitz made one copy at the time for himself and gave us one copy and he kept one copy.

Q. Is this the copy that he gave you? A. This is the copy that he gave this committee that was there.

Q. Does that—where did you get it? A. I got it from the files of the Association of Buying Offices.

Q. Where did you get 867 for Identification? A. Same place. 10502

Q. Can you testify whether or not either 867 for Identification, or 868 for Identification, correctly sets forth what transpired at this meeting, what occurred at this meeting?

Mr. Weisman: I object.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any independent recollection of what occurred at that meeting? A. I do.

Q. Will you testify as to what that recollection is? A. Well, we spent a whole lot of the session—in fact, we spent the whole of the session, or, at least, the better part of the session more or less on a discussion of the question of taking in the $10.75 price groups as members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, particularly the problems that were involved as far as the retailers were concerned. We pointed out that the condition was no different that time than had prevailed in 1933 when the Fashion Originators Guild of America asked us to sign the original agreement, and that unless some provision could be made for leniency in the enforcement of the policy we could not agree to recommend to the retailers, rather, who repre- 10503 sented—the retailers whom we represented that they should go along and take in the $10.75 manufacturers. We particularly came down to two points that until such time as the chain store operators had become a partner in this program, or signed up with the Guild, and until such time as the low-end manufacturers were—and until such time as the low-end manufacturers would have become prepared with designing staffs to take care of the retailers' requirements we would have to expect, as I said before, leniency as to the enforcement of the piracy law on low-end merchandise. We further agreed, or at least, discussed, and I think that there was an agreement down there between us that the Fashion Originators Guild of 10505 America was to send out a letter to the retailers containing the gist of what I have just explained as to our discussion at this meeting, and to convey to them that there was to be some leniency while this program was being developed so that the retailers could go along, at least to convey to our membership that there was an understanding that they would have an exemption or leniency on low-end merchandise. We went into that at some length at the meeting to define what leniency should mean. All of this was to be put in a letter which was to go out to retailers from the Fashion Originators Guild of America prior to taking up the $10.75 manufacturers into the Guild.

Q. Was such a letter ever sent? A. As far as I know, no such letter was ever sent.

10506 Q. Did Mr. Reinitz ever submit to you a draft of such a letter?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant as to what he did or did no do. I submit that the question is obviously incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant for the reason that he is now calling on this witness for an answer to corroborate or bolster up his own testimony.

He says that he does not know of any letter ever being sent. That closes that line of inquiry.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled. He may answer that question.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

A. Mr. Reinitz did submit a letter to us as a proposed letter to be sent to retailers. The letter was a letter that would come up for consideration at their governing body or board, and it was the one that it was proposed to send out.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this document be marked Commission's Exhibit 870 for Identification. 10508

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 870.)

Examiner Averill: Now, I want to get the status of these exhibits because I think we are getting considerably confused on the record as to just what they are. We have 867 for Identification.

Mr. Haycraft: 867 for Identification, the witness has identified as being the minutes of a meeting he attended.

Mr. Weisman: Do not describe them.

Mr. Haycraft: 868, draft of minutes by Reinitz.

Mr. Weisman: I object to that. 10509

Examiner Averill: I do not want that. I just want to know what the numbers are at present.

Mr. Haycraft: 869 has not been identified by the witness.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 869 for Identification——

Examiner Averill: For identification.

10510 Herbert L. Bergdahl—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. For identification, and ask you if you know what it is? A. This is a letter from Mr. Reinitz.

Mr. Weisman: I object to him describing it.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the date?

Mr. Weisman: I object. He has identified it sufficiently.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. Proceed.

10511

A. This is a letter from Mr. Reinitz dated May 9, 1933.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 870 for Identification, and ask you if you know what it is, and if you can identify it? A. This is an attachment to Mr. Reinitz' letters of May 9.

Q. How did these papers come in your possession? A. Well, from the Association of Buying Offices.

Q. I will ask you whether or not Commission's Exhibit 870 for Identification, purports to be a proposed Guild letter.

10512

Mr. Weisman: I object to what anything proposes to be, especially a description of any paper. It is certainly highly improper.

Mr. Haycraft: I am entitled to that description.

Mr. Weisman: I submit that he is not entitled to any proposals. Many proposals are made, and disposals are sometimes few.

Examiner Averill: If the paper does not state it and clearly on its face, you are entitled to some further identification.

Mr. Haycraft: He says a Guild letter to retailers. I am asking whether this is one that he referred to in his testimony.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. He has not testified to that paper as I recall it. The moment you offer it you can go into that further.

Mr. Weisman: Then you will have to show it to me.

Examiner Averill: If the paper does not show on its face what it was, who it is from, and to whom it is addressed, or what it is, it is proper to ask what the paper is but not its contents. There is a clear line of distinction there. If it does show on its face what it is, why, it speaks for itself and that is not proper. 10514

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this paper be marked for identification.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 871-A and 871-B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 871-A and B for Identification, and ask you if you can identify it? A. This particular paper is——

Mr. Weisman: I object.

Examiner Averill: Sustained. 10515

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you identify that? A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. That was an approval.

Mr. Weisman: I object.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. No. I do not want to know what that is, but I want to know what the paper is. A. This is a letter from the Association of Buying Offices.

Examiner Averill: And to whom does it go?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. To whom is it addressed? A. It is a copy of a letter from the Association of Buying Offices to Mr. Bert Reinitz.

Q. Of what date? A. It is dated May 13, 1935.

10517 Mr. Haycraft: I ask that these papers be marked for identification.

(Papers were thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 872-A and 872-B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 872-A and 872-B for Identification, and ask you to state what it is? A. This is my letter to our stores with regard to the agreement between the merchandise managers in our stores, explaining my understanding——

Mr. Weisman: I object, your Honor. You see the vice of this.

10518 Examiner Averill: No, no. Sustained. Do not say that.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. No. Under what date is it? A. Under date of May 13, 1935.

Q. Did you send this letter out of May 13, 1935, after you had— A. What is that?

Q. Before you sent this letter out on May 13, 1935, had you had any further discussions with the officials— I show you Commission's Exhibit 873 for Identification, being an original letter, signed by Albert M. Post, addressed to the Associated Buying Offices, and dated June 21, 1935, and ask you if you identify that (handing paper to witness)?

Mr. Albert: Your Honor please, Mr. Weisman is paying no attention to the question; he is reading previous exhibits, and now Mr. Haycraft commences——

Examiner Averill: I know he is, but you can pay attention to this hearing. I am going to save any rights Mr. Weisman has, and he knows it.

Mr. Weisman: Indeed I do, your Honor; thank 10520 you.

A. What is that?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you identify that?

Examiner Averill: Do you identify that?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you receive that? A. Yes, the Association of Buying Offices received it.

Q. That is where you got it? A. Yes.

Q. Who was Mr. Reinitz at the time that this correspondence and meeting took place in May and June of 10521 1935?

Mr. Weisman: If he knows.

A. Bert Reinitz is the publicity relations man, and runs his own office, an office of that nature, and he is, as I understand, and as I have been told by Mr. Reinitz as well as by Mr. Post and Mr. Rentner, that he represents the $10.75 manufacturers as publicity agent as well as the Guild.

Examiner Averill: What guild?

The Witness: The Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask to have this document marked for identification.

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 874.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

10523 Q. I show you a letter from the Guild to yourself, dated July 1, 1935. Did you receive that? A. I did.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this be marked for identification.

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 875.)

Mr. Weisman: This is one which is already in.

Mr. Post: It is in a couple of times, I think.

Mr. Weisman: I would like for your Honor to read it. It is in already. I think it went in at Philadelphia.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10524 Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 875 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify it? A. This is a letter dated July 3, 1935, which I sent to our garment merchandise managers, a copy to our general merchandise managers in our stores of the A.M.C.

Q. Did you also send a copy of it to Mr. A. M. Post? A. I did.

Q. Of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I did.

Q. Did you put that on as a result of the N.R.A. decision? A. I did.

Mr. Weisman: Then I want it to stay on. I want it to appear. I will ask you a few questions about that later on.

The Witness: I will be glad to answer them.

Examiner Averill: If you want it on there we will put it on, and if you do not want it on there, there is no objection to it going off, I suppose.

Mr. Haycraft: Not under the circumstances.

Mr. Weisman: We have a question to ask about this next one.

10526

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I notice there is something in red pencil on here, and also underscoring in the body. I do not suppose that was on the letter when you got it? A. No.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 876, Mr. Bergdahl, purporting to be an original letter from Mr. Post to yourself, dated July 22, 1933, and ask you if you received this letter? A. Right.

Q. I call your attention to the pencil and pen and red pencil notations in the upper left-hand corner. Were those notations on the letter when you received it? A. No, sir. I placed them on there. 10527

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the letter in evidence without the notations.

Mr. Weisman: May I see it?

Mr. Haycraft: Here it is. I ask that this be marked for identification.

(A letter was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 877.)

Mr. Weisman: With regard to Commission's Exhibit 876 for Identification, now offered in evidence, Judge, I have not got any serious objection. To me it is not anything that is material or competent in this proceeding. I would like your Honor to read it, and if you think it will help you in determining the issues—it is a personal letter—I will withdraw my objection. I shall look to your Honor for guidance in this matter.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to ask a question before you rule, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Certainly.

10529 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is that letter in reply to your comment referred to in Commission's Exhibit 875? A. This is in reply to that letter, if that is what you mean.

Mr. Weisman: Except that it appears that it is not. If you will read the letter, it says that it is not. That is the trouble with questions of this kind where the witness simply flies right off the handle and says that this letter is in reply to it because this definitely says that the other letter was in reply to it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10530 Q. I will ask the witness if you have any such letter? A. I do not have it; at least, it does not specify the date, and it may be that Mr. Post can produce it. I do not know where it is. I cannot. I do not know what it refers to.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, now, about this paper. The paper heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit 876 for Identification, the same being a letter bearing date July 22, 1935, a form letter from Albert M. Post, Executive Secretary, Fashion Originators Guild of America, to Mr. H. O. Bergdahl, New York City, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 876.

(The document heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 876, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 877 for Identification, and ask you if that is the original of the letter which—rather, I ask you if the original of that letter was sent to Mr. Post under the date shown thereon? A. I did send him such an original letter under that date, July 22. 10532

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the letter in evidence.
Mr. Weisman: May I see it?
Mr. Haycraft: Here it is.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. This is a carbon copy of the letter? A. This is a carbon copy of the letter under date of July 22, which I sent to Mr. Post.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence.
Mr. Weisman: Let me look at it.
Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this be marked for identification. 10533

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 878.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. This will be the next one. You can be looking this one over. A. All right.

Mr. Weisman: Is this the answer to this?

Mr. Haycraft: I wish you would not do that.

The Witness: The witness was reading it.

Mr. Haycraft: I am not offering it in evidence. I am offering this one in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: I do not think it is proper to show the witness these letters when they are not offered, or properly handed to them.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, a paper which has heretofore been marked Commission's Exhibit 877 for Identification, and which appears to be a copy of a letter bearing date of July 22, 1935, in two 10535 sheets firmly fastened together, the same being written by Mr. H. O. Bergdahl to Mr. Albert M. Post of the F.O.G.A., New York City, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 877.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification, Commission's Exhibit 877, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 878 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that as the original letter received by you from Albert M. Post of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes. That is Mr. Post's reply to the letter I sent him under the date of this other 10536 one.

Q. That is Commission's Exhibit 877? A. That is right.

Q. I notice there are certain pencil notations in this letter both in black pencil and in red pencil. Were they on the letter when you received it? A. No.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 879, and ask you if you received that from Mr. Post, being a letter dated August 12, 1935? A. Yes.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 881, which purports to be a carbon copy of a letter from Mr. Post, and ask you where that was? A. That was attached to Commission's Exhibit 879.;

Q. When you received it? A. Yes.

Q. I also show you Commission's Exhibit 880— A. It was not attached—it was enclosed when I received it.

Q. —carbon copy of a letter from Mr. Post to Bulloks, under date of August 12, 1935? A. That was enclosed with 879 when I received it, both of them.

Q. I notice that there are certain pencil notations on these papers; were they on there when you received them? A. Yes. That is, some were and some were not on there 10538 when I received them. These were not on there.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 882, which purports to be an original letter from Mr. Post to yourself, under date of August 21, 1935, and ask you if you received that letter (handing paper to witness)? A. I did.

Q. I notice certain lead pencil notations at the bottom, "P. S.," in whose handwriting is that? A. Those were on the letter when I received it, and I recognize that as similar to Al Post's; the ones in the upper left-hand corner are my own, and were not on there when the letter was received.

Q. And the same with reference to the red pencil mark- 10539 ings? A. Yes, that is right, that is my writing.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you hold any discussions, or meetings, with merchandise managers, or members of the A.M.C., between August and December of 1935, where the subject of returns of garments to manufacturers was discussed? A. Well, I would have to refresh my memory to say for sure what dates we held the meetings on, but we did hold meetings and this subject was discussed.

Q. Did you, as representing the A.M.C., also discuss this matter at meetings of the A.B.O.? A. Yes, we did.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 885 for Identification, and ask you if you can state what that is?

Mr. Weisman: Now, I am objecting to him stating what it is.

Examiner Averill: Just state if you can identify it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10541 Q. Can you?

Examiner Averill: That is what he means.

A. I can identify it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is it? A. That was a summary of the problems that pertained to co-operation on low-end merchandise presented at a meeting held at the Associated Dry Goods Corporation offices on Fifth Avenue, New York City, Fifth Avenue and 34th Street, at McCreery's, at which was discussed——

Mr. Weisman: No, no, no, do not tell us what 10542 was discussed.

The Witness: I am sorry.

Mr. Weisman: I submit he has told us.

The Witness: I think I have covered it.

Examiner Averill: That is all right; he has stopped.

(The paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 885.)

10543

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where did you get this? A. I was at the meeting when it was handed out by Mr. DuBrois, I believe.

Q. Well, were the subjects listed here all discussed? A. Yes, they were.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Examiner Averill: Any objections?

IRVING E. PLAUT was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

10544

Examiner Averill: Give the reporter your name, please.

The Witness: Irving E. Plaut.

Mr. Goldman: If your Honor please, I would like to state my name is Robert P. Goldman. I am a member of the firm of Paxten & Seasongood, attorneys of Cincinnati, who are attorneys for the John Shillito Company, of which Mr. Plaut is an employee. I am here simply as the personal attorney of Mr. Plaut. The Shillito Company is not a party to these proceedings, and is not appearing in any way.

10545

Examiner Averill: I see. Delighted to have you, sir, and any assistance we can give you we extend to you with pleasure.

Mr. Goldman: Thank you.

Mr. Weisman: We shall be delighted to join in the extension of any courtesies to Mr. Goldman. I would like to have a statement from you, Mr. Goldman, whether or not this witness has been subpoenaed, or comes here voluntarily from Cincinnati to aid the Commission?

Mr. Goldman: The witness has been subpoenaed, sir.

Mr. Weisman: You have a subpoena?

Mr. Goldman: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: All right, sir, that will make the record complete.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: That discussion is off the record. The witness has given his name as Irving E. Plaut, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

10547 Q. What is your residence, Mr. Plaut? A. Cincinnati, Ohio.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Divisional merchandise manager, ready-to-wear.

Q. For whom? A. John Shillito Company of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Examiner Averill: The name of that firm, please?

The Witness: Shillito.

Examiner Averill: How do you spell that?

The Witness: S-h-i-l-l-i-t-o.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. How long have you been in the employ of John 10548 Shillito Company? A. Over three years.

Q. Do you recall just when you went with them? A. Around July, 1933.

Q. And have you occupied your present position at all times since you came in their employ? A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever heard of an organization called the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I have.

Q. Do you know whether or not at the time you entered the employ of the John Shillito Company, the Shillito Company had signed a declaration of co-operation in anti-piracy with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I believe they had prior to my coming there.

Q. What are your duties as divisional merchandise manager? A. Having a group of buyers under me in the ready-to-wear, and I supervised them, and most times go to the market with them.

Q. Mr. Plaut, you have already testified that you entered the employ of the John Shillito Company in July, 1933. Now, since that time has the John Shillito Company co-operated with the Fashion Originators Guild of America in accordance with their signed declaration in anti-piracy? A. To the best of my knowledge, they have. 10550

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 99-C, the last paragraph thereof, and ask you if since you have been in the employ of the John Shillito Company that stamp—that clause, rather, was placed on your orders for ready-to-wear garments? A. To the best of my knowledge, it has been put on every order.

Mr. Weisman: What did he refer to?

Mr. Albert: 99-C.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, did the Guild shopper ever visit your store? A. She did.

Q. What was the name of the shopper in Cincinnati? A. There were two, but the one that has been there the longest time has been Mrs. Levy. 10551

Q. Did she visit your store? A. Frequently.

Q. All right, sir. Go ahead. What was the other one's name? A. I do not recall.

Q. But there was another? A. Prior to Mrs. Levy.

Q. Did the other one visit the store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when it was that these shoppers visited your store?

Mr. Weisman: He has not testified that they visited the store co-jointly. In other words, it was seriatim, they had one shopper and then that shopper was discontinued, and they had another.

Q. Do you recall when Mrs. Levy first visited your store? A. I do not recall the exact date.

Q. The year? A. During the year 1935.

Q. Did the other shopper visit your store prior to that date? A. I believe she did.

Q. Did the John Shillito Company, at the request of one shopper, or at the request of the Fashion Originators Guild, return garments which the John Shillito Company 10553 was advised were copies of garments registered by the Fashion Originators Guild members?

Mr. Weisman: I object to the form of that question. I object because counsel is leading this witness, and I think, in fact, that counsel has made an unconscious error in this matter because we have stipulated in this case that the only garments returned were garments that were ordered—were not garments, first, let me say, that were ordered returned, but were garments which had been prior thereto adjudged copies. Now, you are leading up to this question with the fact that they were garments returned merely because they were thereafter adjudged copies.

10554 Mr. Martin: If the question is not plain I would like to have it be made plain.

Mr. Weisman: Adjudged copies of originals manufactured by the Fashion Originators Guild of America members.

Mr. Martin: I will take your amendment, because I think it makes it very exact.

A. We co-operated with them, and we returned the copies.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, do you know whether or not the John Shillito Company has ever been red carded? A. Yes.

Q. Before I go to that, did you ever refuse to return garments which had been adjudicated or adjudged copies? A. What do you mean by that?

Q. Which had been adjudged copies? A. Not to my knowledge, with the exception of having one when it was advertised and the shopper came in and happened to see 10556 it and we asked permission to hold it to cover the advertisement, which permission was granted.

Q. Now, do you recall when it was that the John Shillito Company was red carded? A. I believe in the month of February.

Q. What part of the month? A. Early part of February, if I am correct.

Q. February of what year? A. 1936.

Q. How did that come to your attention? What was the first notice that you had? A. The first and only and final notice was when I saw it in "Women's Wear."

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, at the time that the John Shillite Company was red carded, did you have any orders out- 10557 standing for goods, or for garments, rather, with manufacturers who were members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. We did.

Q. Do you recall who those members, or, rather, who those manufacturers were? A. Some of them I do.

Q. Will you name some of them? A. Witlin Schneider.

Q. All right. A. C. H. D. Robbins.

Q. All right. A. If I can, I would like to refresh my memory. I have a memorandum.

Q. All right, sir.

Examiner Averill: What was the name of the last one?

The Witness: C. H. D. Robbins.

Examiner Averill: C. H. D. Robbinson?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Next? A. Starr-Friedlander.

Q. All right? A. Lyttle Brothers.

Q. All right. A. E. N. Marcus.

Q. All right. A. Lewis Cohen.

10559 Q. All right——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Just a minute. I am trying to write these down. You see, you did not give me a list like you did, Mr. Martin, so I have to write them down, and I would like for you to go a little more slowly. You see, all Mr. Martin has to do is to check them off of his list. What was that last name again?

The Witness: E. N.——

Mr. Weisman: E. M.?

The Witness: No, E. N. Marcus.

By Mr. Martin.

10560 Q. And the next? A. Lewis Cohen.

Q. The next one? A. Parnes Levinson.

Q. All right. A. Junior Guild.

Q. All right. A. Aywon Dress.

Q. All right. A. Joanne Junior.

Q. Yes. A. Reich & Goldfarb.

Q. Yes. A. Louise Mulligan.

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, what did you do when you found that your store had been red carded with reference to seeing about orders which you had outstanding with manufacturers who were members of the Guild? A. We sent them all telegrams asking them when they were going to ship the merchandise because we were going to have a spring opening.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. In that part of your answer in which you spoke of the spring opening, was that one of the things that you stated to the manufacturers in your telegram? A. Yes.

Q. It was? A. It was, your Honor.

Q. And that telegram went out to the several manufacturers? A. It did, your Honor. 10562

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, I hand you Commission's Exhibit 886 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that paper? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. A telegram sent to Starr-Friedlander on March 3.

Q. By whom? A. By me.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 887 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is that? A. "Regarding telegram"——

Q. Do not say what is in it. Just say if you can identify it. A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is an answer to the telegram we sent to manufacturers. 10563

Q. Who is it from? A. This is from Starr-Friedlander.

Q. To whom? A. John Shillito Company.

Q. Where? A. Cincinnati.

Q. Ohio? A. Yes.

Q. Under what date? A. March 3, 1936.

Q. Was that received by you in answer to the telegrams which is marked Commission's Exhibit 886 for Identification? A. That is correct.

Mr. Martin: I offer these in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Weisman: No objection.

Mr. Weisman: It will be stipulated by the respondent that similar telegrams were sent to Witlin & Schneider, Joanne Junior, Aywon Dress, Reich Goldfarb, Honnel Brothers, Louise Mulligan. It is also stipulated that a telegram was sent to C. H. D. Robbins and the reply was sent as follows: "Can make part shipment next week upon receipt of new Guild signed declaration." It is also stipulated that a similar telegram was 10565 sent to Louise Mulligan and a similar answer was received from Louise Mulligan. It is likewise stipulated that a telegram was sent to Junior Guild and a reply by Junior Guild and a like answer was received.

Mr. Martin: It is further stipulated that a similar telegram was sent to Lewis Cohen Company and a similar answer received from them.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I cannot—this answer is a little different.

Mr. Martin: Do you want to put that in?

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Can you not make your difference in your stipulation?

Mr. Weisman: Yes. And that the letter—the 10566 notice to Lewis Cohen, was answered by a letter from Lewis Cohen, acknowledging receipt of the telegram, and stating: "We have been advised by our attorneys that a repudiation of your signed declaration of co-operation constitutes a breach of your basic agreement with the Fashion Originators Guild of which we are a member, and therefore with us, and they were justified in refusing to ship merchandise to you based upon such repudiation until such time as you enter into a new agreement with the Guild and its members."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, when you received these replies from the F.O.G.A. members stating that they could not fill your orders, what did you do next? A. I left for New York that afternoon with our dress buyer, Mr. Fishel.

Q. Well, what did you do when you got to New York? A. When I got to New York, went to the dress houses with Mr. Fishel, and Mr. Rosensweig, and asked them about the merchandise that they owed us. 10568

Examiner Averill: When you say the "dress houses," do you mean those houses located in New York to whom you had sent telegrams?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Rather than other people.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you call on C. H. D. Robbins? A. We did.

Q. Who did you see there? A. I would like to have permission to refresh my memory——

Q. Certainly, go ahead. A. About the——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Wait a moment. Let us hear what he wants to refresh his memory from. 10569

The Witness: To refresh my memory on interviews we had with these manufacturers.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you have anything there that will refresh you, notes?

Mr. Weisman: What, have you got? Did you make notes at the time?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

(Witness withdraws paper from pocket and refers to same.)

Mr. Feldman: At that time?

Mr. Weisman: At that time?

The Witness: In their showrooms.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who did you see at Robbins? A. Mr. Joe Lagowitz
10571 and Mr. Nate Hyman.

Q. Well, what did they tell you? A. I asked Mr. Lagowitz, "How are our orders coming along?" Mr. Lagowitz said, "All of your dresses are in work, and will be ready next week." I said, "Fine, and then will you ship about the middle of the week?" Mr. Lagowitz: "No, you know we cannot ship a dress until you are signed up with the Guild."

I said, "Can we see the goods which you owe us?" Mr. Lagowitz: "You know exactly what you bought." I said, "Will you ship us these goods in any way, shape, or form? In other words, "ship through someone else?" Mr. Lagowitz: "We will not ship anything to you either directly or through anyone else until and unless you sign 10572 up with the Guild."

I said, "But after all at the time that we purchased this merchandise there was nothing to prevent you from showing, selling, or shipping to us."

Mr. Lagowitz said, "That's right, but you knew at that time that we were not showing or shipping to White's." I said, "What has White's got to do with Shillito's? We were not red carded, and the order was placed by us and accepted by you in good faith."

Mr. Lagowitz said, "I am sorry, but there is nothing we can do for you." I said, "Will other Cincinnati stores have your merchandise?" Mr. Lagowitz said, "Yes, they have already received their merchandise." I said, "When you wired me you referred to the new Guild declaration." Mr. Lagowitz said, "Yes." I said, "And this declaration reads substantially as the first except that it carries a stronger enforcement clause." Mr. Lagowitz said, "Right." "Mr. Plaut: Do you realize"—I withdraw that. I said, "Do you realize that by our adherence to the Guild program we would be chasing our customers into chain stores like Lerner's, Grayson's, and Maugle's, and others whom the Guild cannot control and who are all stocked 10574 up with Guild copies?" Mr. Lagowitz said, "We suggest that you comply with the Guild. With the help of Shillito's and all other stores the Guild can stop Lerner's." I said, "Have we ever copied any of your dresses?" And Mr. Lagowitz said, "I don't know."

Mr. Fishel said, "Neither we nor you knew anything about this matter turning up at the time the purchases were made, so I cannot see how you can make it retroactive to apply to back orders."

Mr. Lagowitz said, "I myself elect not to ship any back orders to you; I am acting entirely on my own." During the——

Q. Now, what happened——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Let him finish. 10575

A. During the course——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. All right. A. —of the conversation, a model came over to show a new style. Mr. Lagowitz said to the girl, "Don't show here." Mr. Lagowitz also stated that thirty-seven dresses were reordered by Maybelle and reorders were also received from Pogue's.

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, who is Mr. Lagowitz? A. To my knowledge, Mr. Lagowitz is a member of C. H. D. Robbins.

Q. A member of the firm? A. Member of the firm.

Q. Who are those other two firms, Maybelle and Pogue's? A. Both stores are in Cincinnati.

Q. Retail department stores? A. Retail stores.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Martin.

10577 Q. Mr. Plaut, there is a reference in your testimony that Mr. Lagowitz told you that you knew at the time that they were not shipping to White's; what was he referring to there? A. At the time that we purchased the goods from C. H. D. Robbins, White's were in the showroom at the same time that I was.

Q. Now, just who—what White's? A. R. H. White's of Boston.

Examiner Averill: I see.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Is that a retail department store? A. Retail department store, and, to my knowledge, White's were already red carded and we were not.

10578 Q. All right, sir.

Examiner Averill: Is that a Cincinnati concern?

The Witness: No, R. H. White is of Boston.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Is White's a member of the A.M.C. group? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. After you left Robbins', where did you go then? A. To Witlin & Schneider.

Q. Well, who did you see there? A. Mr. Witlin and Mr. Al Marks.

Q. Who was with you—who went with you? A. Mr. Fishel and Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. Well, what did Witlin & Schneider tell you? A. When we arrived Mr. Marks was busy waiting on customers. Models were displaying goods, and were not told not to show us. We took numbers of the display dresses. Mr. Marks spoke to Mr. Plaut and told him that although they were more than anxious to co-operate, his hands were tied. He suggested that Mr. Plaut return——

Q. Referring to you, he suggested that you— A. Yes, return along later that day and discuss the matter per- 10580 sonally with Mr. Witlin. He mentioned during the conversation that Pogue's ordered 120 dresses, and Horne's bought 150.

Q. Well, did you go back to see him? A. I returned to Witlin & Schneider later in the afternoon alone and spoke to Mr. Witlin, and he later stated he would do nothing—he would do everything in his power to ship merchandise to us, but that in view of the Guild's restrictions he did not see how he could do it.

Q. Did you go to see anybody else? A. Louise Mulligan.

Q. Who went with you? A. Mr. Rosensweig and myself.

Q. Who did you see there? A. Mr. John Irwin.

Q. Who is Mr. John Irwin? A. I am not sure if he is a 10581 partner of that concern or not, but as far as we were concerned we always had our dealings with Mr. Irwin.

Q. All right, sir. A. They are a Chicago concern, but they were showing their goods at the New Yorker Hotel.

Q. All right, sir, what did they tell you? A. I said to Mr. Irwin, "How do we stand with your firm? Mr. Irwin said, "I am sorry, but we know we cannot do anything. I am terribly upset about the whole thing. I only wish there would be something I could do, but we are not permitted to show or ship you any new goods." I said, "Do you owe us any goods?" Mr. Irwin said, "I think we shipped you everything on back order. If there is still anything on back order we will ship it unless we are instructed to the contrary."

Q. What else did he tell you? A. "Instructions were issued to all Chicago firms not to ship any merchandise whether on back order or otherwise."

Examiner Averill: You mean he told you that?

The Witness: That is right; have a note. (Witness refers to notes.) Mr. Irwin said, "There is one 10583 thing"—Mr. Irwin said, "There is one thing I will say, you know we can confine our line to one store in the town even though we are not permitted to ship red carded stores, we are not going after any other accounts in those cities."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who else did you go to see? A. Junior Guild.

Q. Who went with you there? A. Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. Who did you see there? A. Mr. Harry Cohen, representing Junior Guild, which is their salesman.

Q. All right, what did they tell you? A. I said to Mr. Cohen: "What are you doing about the merchandise you owe us?" Mr. Cohen said: "Originally we shipped all 10584 back orders and reorders on numbers you have already had in stock, but yesterday I received this wire."

Q. Did he show you the wire? A. Showed me the wire. "We can neither ship nor show to red carded stores (witness reading from paper). Shows wire reading as follows, 'Mr. Harry Cohen, Room 821, Hotel New Yorker, New York: Absolutely cannot accept any orders from red carded accounts.' A. O. Gilder."

Q. What else did he tell you? A. Mr. Cohen said: "At the beginning of this controversy all Chicago manufacturers met with the approval of their attorneys. They decided to ship back orders and reorders. However, now that instructions from the Guild were issued to the effect that we are not permitted to ship any more we have to abide by their instructions. I will say that this controversy is interfering with business from this room to the extent of fully 25 per cent. However, I look for a quick settlement and, therefore, we are not soliciting new business in your town."

Q. Is Junior Guild a Chicago house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right, who next did you see? A. Joanne Junior. 10586

Q. Who did you see there? A. Mr. Martin Zinn and Mr. Rosensweig was with me.

Q. Who was Mr. Martin Zinn? A. One of the partners of Joanne Junior.

Q. All right. What did they tell you? A. I said, "Mr. Zinn, what are you doing about our back orders and reorders?" Mr. Zinn said, "I wish I could do some thing. I am just about at my wit's end. You know I have always co-operated with the A.M.C. since the first day I have been in business, and they have always worked with me, but there is nothing I can do about it.

Examiner Averill: Who are they?

The Witness: A.M.C.

Examiner Averill: Oh, yes, I know. 10587

A. (Resumed) Mr. Zinn said, "I have been to see Mr. Golby of the Guild several times in an effort to arrive at some solution for my firm, but he has always been very abrupt, had little time to speak to me, and told me not to worry that this mess would be over in a few days, but he is not telling me how to cover my expense on loss of the A.M.C. business. (Witness continuing to refer to paper.) "Mr. Plaut pointed to some suits"——

Q. All right, sir. A. (Witness again refers to paper) I, pointing to some suits: "You know I can use at least fifty of those suits." Mr. Zinn said, "I know it, I can book at least 300 from the A.M.C. to-day, but I am afraid of the Guild. You know, if they penalize me they can prevent me from obtaining any piece goods, and that would just about ruin the firm."

Q. All right. Did you go to see anybody else? A. Frank Starr-Friedlander.

Q. Who was with you? A. Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. Who did you see there? A. Mr. Frank Starr.

Q. Anybody else? A. And Mr. S. Friedlander.

10589 Q. All right. What did they tell you? A. I said, "How about the goods we have on orders?" Mr. Friedlander said, "We cannot ship or show to you. After all, you realize we are subject to a fine and punishment by the Guild. I said, "But didn't we place these orders prior to this controversy?" Mr. Starr said, "Yes, but we cannot do a thing. One mistake the Guild made was to prohibit shipments of back orders. They should have permitted us to ship all merchandise on order, then if they wanted to do so could have red carded your account and we would have refused to ship you any new merchandise, but as matters now stand we cannot ship you a dress until the Guild tells us to do so."

Q. All right. Where did you go next? A. To Lewis Cohen.

10590 Q. Who went with you there? A. Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. Who did you see there? A. Miss Corelli.

Q. Who is she? A. From what she told me, she was interested in the concern.

Q. All right, what did she tell you? A. I said, "How about some dresses from you?" Miss Corelli said, "We wish we could ship to you, but we cannot do a thing. The red card prevents our doing so. It really is too bad, because I don't know when we ever had a better line than we have now, and it is certainly a shame that I cannot ship you the goods that you bought, or show you any of the new things.

Examiner Averill: Then you had back orders?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: Had orders with all of these places, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: I see.

A. (Resumed) It now seems to be a question of dog eat dog. I said, "Yes, but we bought these goods before anything turned up, and, after all, a contract is a contract, and an order is a contract." Miss Corelli said, "I know, 10592 but it can't be helped. I blame the A.M.C. for not receiving the back orders." "Miss Corelli, it seems that they threatened to make a football of all the garments they received from Guild houses, and that is why the Guild stopped shipments on all back orders."

Mr. Weisman: Who said that?

The Witness: Miss Corelli.

By Mr. Martin:

Q. Who did you go to see next?

Mr. Weisman: Have you got a copy of what he is reading there, Mr. Martin? I notice you quoted. Have you got a copy of what he is reading? 10593

Mr. Martin: What business is it of yours?

Mr. Weisman: I want to know if you are quoting him correctly.

Mr. Martin: I am not quoting him at all. I am going to ask him a question.

Mr. Weisman: You just quoted him.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who did you go to see next? A. Reich & Goldfarb.

Q. Who went with you there? A. Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. Who did you see there? A. Mr. Reich, Mr. Goldfarb and Mr. Grettinger.

Q. All right, what did they tell you? A. I said, "What about our goods on order?" Mr. Reich said, "I don't know what to do, I can't ship to you because of the Guild instructions. I will do anything in the world to be able to ship, but I am afraid of the consequences. You see, it is not only the 5,000 of the fine, but it is the silks, the Guild silk people will refuse to ship me, and then where 10595 am I? I only wish I knew how to get out of the Guild. About six months ago I resigned, and then I let them talk me into getting back again. Now, I tried to resign, and I can't do so. I only wish I had stayed out when I was out." I said, "Can we see any of your new things?" Mr. Reich said, "You know we can't do that."

Q. Were any of these orders which you had outstanding with Guild manufacturers filled—were any of these orders which you had outstanding with Guild manufacturers, at the time you were red carded, were any of them subsequently filled by the manufacturers? A. They were not.

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Examiner Averill: Will you tell me, before you go, any further, what this reference to A. O. Gilder 10596 is?

The Witness: He is the owner of Junior Guild of Chicago.

(Witness folds paper and makes motion to place same in pocket.)

Mr. Weisman: Do not put that away.

The Witness: Mr. Gilder signed that telegram, Judge; he is the owner of that firm.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Cross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. You just read off a little resume, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. And you put that resume back in your pocket, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. Now, will you please take it out of your pocket and put it on the table in front of you? Will you?

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, I object to that.

Examiner Averill: No, there is nothing unusual about that.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

Examiner Averill: He has a perfect right to do 10598
that.

(Witness removes paper from pocket.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, before you came to court that resume was prepared, was it not? A. It was prepared.

Q. By whom was it prepared? A. By Mr. Rosensweig and myself.

Q. When was that paper prepared? A. March 4, 1936.

Q. Who told you to prepare it? A. On the advice of our counsel.

Q. Who was your counsel who told you to prepare it? A. Mr. Bob Goldman.

Q. The gentleman who appeared in court to-day? A. 10599
Yes.

Q. How many copies of it did you prepare? A. I cannot recall.

Q. More than one? A. More than one.

Q. Well, are you certain that it was more than one copy of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that in the form that you prepared it on March 4? A. My——

Q. Or did you first draw a draft of it and then correct it, after your lawyer had seen it? A. The lawyer did not see it until we wrote this all up on March 4 in New York City.

Q. Well, was that written up in New York City? A. That is right.

Q. Well, who told you—was Mr. Goldman in New York City with you? A. He was not.

Q. Well, did you not tell me a moment ago that you prepared that at the request of your attorney, or at his direction? A. That is right.

Q. Well, what did you do, call him up on the long-10601 distance phone? A. No, before I left Cincinnati.

Q. Well, let us see, then, before you left Cincinnati your attorney told you that you should go in and see these people and make a record of what they said and what you said? A. That is right.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, how long were you in New York?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as immaterial.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, no.

Examiner Averill: He may inquire; he has the right to attack——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): —the credibility.

Examiner Averill: —the weight or credibility of the witness' statement.

10602 Mr. Martin: All right.

Examiner Averill: Go ahead.

Mr. Martin: I have no particular objection; go ahead.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How long were you in New York? A. I believe four or five days.

Q. When did you leave for New York from Cincinnati? A. March 3.

Q. Then, when did you prepare this, at the close of your visit, or during your visit, or before your visit commenced? A. Going into each manufacturer, we closed it, as we were in the showroom, or outside the showroom, individually.

Q. Well, you did not walk around with a typewriter in your hand, did you? A. No, we did not.

Q. You made notes, did you not? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Have you got these notes? A. No, I have not.

Q. When you were in New York, you made this up in New York in its present form—you have just stated that; is that not so? A. This is the substance of our interviews with these manufacturers. 10604

Q. Do you not understand English? Did you not understand my question?

Mr. Martin: I object; the witness answered the question.

Examiner Averill: One moment, just one moment. I will look out to see that the witness is protected. Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: The question is, is this in its present form?

Mr. Weisman: The question is——

Examiner Averill: Read the question again.

(Previous question read as follows: "Q. Now, when you were in New York, you made this up in New York in its present form—you have just stated that, is that not so?") 10605

Examiner Averill: No, he did not state that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, did you not?

Examiner Averill: He stated clearly that he made the memorandum either in the showroom or before they left the merchandising house, or wherever it was they had the interviews. That later in the day, or evening, then he read it over and prepared this paper.

Mr. Weisman: That is right.

Examiner Averill: Which was later reduced to typewritten form.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: That is his testimony.

Mr. Weisman: That is what I want.

By Mr. Weisman.

10607 Q. And that was done in New York? A. That is right.

Q. And that was done ultimately in New York in the form you have it before you; is that not so? A. Make that question clear?

Mr. Weisman: May I mark this for identification (having reference to the paper that the witness has been reading from)?

(Witness draws paper closer to himself.)

Mr. Weisman: You are not afraid that I will mark it for identification?

The Witness: No.

Mr. Weisman: Will your Honor direct him to have it marked?

Examiner Averill: I do not know what you are 10608 trying to do. I do not understand the procedure.

Mr. Weisman: I want to mark this for identification so that I may refer to it, so that he may not——

Examiner Averill: Let me see this paper. What is all this after? I do not know. I do not see what it is leading up to. As I understand, gentlemen, the witness has stated very clearly about this thing; of course, this particular writing here was not done in the stores where he went or the showrooms, or whatever they were where he went to see the different people with whom he had placed orders for goods, but either were made, I presume, either by pencil or by some kind of memoranda——

The Witness: That is right.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Suppose I ask you a few questions about that. These were made up from pencil memoranda, or data, which later, when you went to the hotel— A. To the A.M.C. office. 10610

Q. The A.M.C. office? A. A.M.C. office.

Q. Were prepared then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was there reduced to a typewritten form? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This which you have is the typewritten form in which it was prepared by you, which was finally delivered to you after you had finished reducing your notes to writing? A. After they were reduced to writing.

Examiner Averill: It seems to me that there is no trouble there. I think the thing is now beginning to clear up very nicely, Mr. Weisman.

Mr. Weisman: There is no trouble. I simply want to get the facts.

10611

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Plaut, as a matter of fact, was not that statement that you have read from prepared in the office of the A.M.C.? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: He said so.

The Witness: This is the one that we made up when we came back from the manufacturers.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What was the necessity of preparing it in the A.M.C.?

Mr. Martin: I object to that as entirely immaterial.

Mr. Weisman: Let us see whether it was or not.

Mr. Martin: The witness has testified that his store was a member of the A.M.C., and it was made up in the A.M.C. office.

Examiner Averill: I know, but he may have a very simple explanation for that.

10613 Mr. Weisman: Let us find out what the explanation is, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: He can state why he went there instead of going somewhere else.

Mr. Martin: Naturally he would go to his own office.

Mr. Weisman: After you have so kindly prompted the witness, let us see what he has to say.

A. Mr. Rosensweig and Mr. Fishel were both connected with the A.M.C. office and that is why it was prepared there.

By Mr. Weisman.

10614 Q. Did you not say that Mr. Rosensweig and Mr. Fishel came to New York with you? A. Mr. Fishel only.

Q. Only? A. Only.

Q. What is Mr. Fishel's connection with your store—Mr. Fishel only is connected with your store, I believe you said? A. That is right.

Q. What did you mean when you said he was connected with the A.M.C.? A. The A.M.C. is the—the John Shillito Company is in the A.M.C. office. That is their office.

Q. What hotel did you stop at?

Mr. Martin: I object to that as immaterial.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. He has the right to find that out.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Answer. A. The New Yorker Hotel.

Q. Hotel New Yorker? A. Yes.

Q. You say you got here about March 4? A. Yes.

Q. Did you register in your own name? A. Yes.

Q. With whom? A. Alone.

Q. Why did you not register with Mr. Fishel? Did you? A. No. 10616

Q. Why? A. He did not stop at that hotel.

Q. What did you do with the notes from which you made up this paper; from which you read on your direct examination?

Mr. Martin: He has not testified that he made up this paper.

Examiner Averill: Let us not get too technical about that. Let us get the facts. Let us get the testimony. I think the testimony is very clear on that point now. I will let him answer that question. Objection overruled; exception noted. Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Averill: How long was that afterwards? 10617

The Witness: The same day.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Answer the question, please. A. What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. Mr. Rosensweig made up the notes and I did not.

Q. Then I understand that you have this paper from which you have read—it is a paper which has been made up from notes which you did not make up at all, and which you did not have at all, but that Mr. Rosensweig made up; is that so?

Examiner Averill: No, which he did not make up; who did make them up?

The Witness: Mr. Rosensweig.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Rosensweig? A. Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. You are absolutely certain of that? A. Well.

10619 Q. Are you? A. Well.

Q. Can you answer the question? A. I would like to have the question repeated.

(Question read.)

Mr. Weisman: That is all the answer that I want to know.

The Witness: I did not give you an answer. I have not given you an answer yet.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

Mr. Weisman: I would like to have the question read, and also my question and the answer you gave, and the following question and the answer you gave down to where you were asked if you were absolutely certain of that.

10620 (The questions and answers referred to were read.)

Examiner Averill: Is that clear?

The Witness: It is not clear.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, I will try to make the question clear with you. You have just stated a moment ago, have you not, that the matter appearing on this paper from which you read was made up from notes which had been made up by Mr. Rosensweig; is that so? A. That is so.

Q. So that it now appears that you did not make up the notes at all and Mr. Rosensweig made them up? A. He wrote down the notes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, let me ask you a simple question. You say you were in New York for five days? A. Four or five days.

Q. Four or five days? A. Yes.

Q. During these four or five days you visited these various manufacturers concerning which you have testified; is 10622 that correct? A. On March 4.

Examiner Averill: You testified that you did that on March 4?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You visited all these people in one day? A. Yes.

Q. What time did you get into New York City? A. Around 8.15 or 8.30.

Q. These people that you have testified you visited, you visited them all in one day, that day? A. That is correct.

Q. After visiting them I want you to just try to give us the picture of what you did; correct me if I am incorrect: You went into the showroom and you saw them and you 10623 had certain conferences with them; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, after you had those conferences you did not make these notes that you had in the presence of these people, did you? A. One house.

Q. Which house? A. C. H. D. Robbins.

Q. C. H. D. Robbins? A. Right in the showroom.

Q. As to the others, did you make them outside? A. Outside their showroom waiting for the elevator.

Q. Waiting for the elevator? A. Yes.

Q. You did not write all of it in each case, did you? A. No. Mr. Rosensweig did all the writing, I——

Q. And you, we will say, did the prompting? A. We were all there at one time.

Q. You said that Mr. Rosensweig did the writing; what did you do? A. I did the talking as these interviews took place in the showrooms.

Q. No, no, no, I mean what did you do while you were waiting for the elevator while you and Mr. Rosensweig 10625 were there, and while Mr. Rosensweig was writing up these notes? A. The conversation we had in the showroom.

Q. You reviewed it with him? A. Correct.

Q. Right? A. Right.

Q. You yourself did not make a single note? A. That is correct.

Q. There can be no question of that? A. No.

Q. No question? A. No.

Q. Why did you hesitate so long? A. That is correct.

Q. Why did you go to the A.M.C. to transcribe those notes into their present form. First, what time did you go there? A. What is the question?

Q. What time, first, did you go to the A.M.C. to transcribe these notes into their present form as they appear 10626 here? A. Around 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. Whom did you see there? A. I was just with Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. Did you see anybody else when you wrote them up? A. I did not.

Q. Did anybody else aid or assist you? A. No.

Q. You gave it to a stenographer there? A. Mr. Rosensweig dictated to a stenographer.

Q. From what? A. From the memorandums that he made.

Q. And then you left the A.M.C.? A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk to anybody that afternoon? A. I cannot recall.

Q. Try to fix your memory of this a little bit, tax it as far as you safely may and see whether or not you can recall talking either to Mr. Bergdahl or to Col. Reilly that afternoon. A. None whatsoever.

Q. You mean you cannot recall it, or that you did not talk to them, or that you do r t remember; which is it, or what is it? A. I do not remember talking to anyone but Mr. Rosensweig the balance of that afternoon.

Q. When did you go back, yourself, from the A.M.C. office and get this? In other words, when did you get this memoranda back from the A.M.C. office? A. I got it back from Mr. Rosensweig, I believe at the latest the next morning, March 5.

Q. What time? A. Some time during that morning.

Q. Where did you see him? A. At the A.M.C. office.

Q. Did you meet him there by appointment? A. No, he is employed there.

Q. How many copies did he give you? A. I do not recall.

Q. No? A. I do not recall.

Q. More than one? A. I do not recall.

Q. Well, you know that you gave one of them to your lawyer, do you not know that? A. I still cannot recall 10629 how many copies were made.

Q. I did not ask you how many copies were made. A. No?

Q. You listen to my question. A. O.K.

Q. I asked you how many copies he gave you? A. I do not recall.

Q. I asked you whether he gave you more than one. Do you recall that? A. I do not recall that.

Q. Well, now, when you got it back did you read it? A. I did.

Q. When did you read it? A. The morning of March 5.

Q. Where? A. At the A.M.C. office.

Q. Who was present then? A. To the best of my knowledge, Mr. Rosensweig.

Q. Then, what did you do with the copies there that he gave you? A. I took it back to Cincinnati with me that week.

Q. When did you first show it to Mr. Goldman? A. To the best of my knowledge, the time I arrived back, the very day I arrived back in Cincinnati, Ohio.

10631 Q. What day did you get back to Cincinnati, Ohio? A. I usually get back on a Saturday of the same week.

Q. Offhand, can you recall as to this particular Saturday? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. So this particular occasion you do not know whether it was on a Saturday? A. I do not recall.

Q. Were you in New York over a week-end?

Examiner Averill: You mean on that occasion?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. On this occasion were you in New York over the week-end? A. I would not know.

10632 Q. Did you not state—are you certain you did not stay in New York over Saturday and Sunday? A. I do not recall, but I am quite sure I have not.

Q. What makes you sure you have not? A. Because I know in over three years working in Cincinnati on trips to New York I am yet to spend more than two or three weeks—two or three week-ends in New York.

Q. And this was not one of them? A. I doubt it very much.

Q. On this occasion? A. No.

Q. Was it not a fact that March 4 was on a Wednesday, and with that knowledge would that change your opinion as to whether or not you spent that week-end in New York City? A. I doubt it very much.

Q. Would it change your opinion as to whether or not you were in New York four or five days? A. I said about four or five days.

Q. About? A. About.

Q. When you say about four or five days, do you mean about two or three days? A. It may have been, it may develop to be that.

Q. What do you mean by four or five days, then? A. It may develop that we spent only two or three days on that trip. 10634

Q. When you testified under oath—

Mr. Weisman: By the way, has this witness been sworn?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you testify under oath, when you mean two or three days you say four or five days; is that correct? A. To the best of my knowledge, as I can recall now.

Q. Now on this trip you learned all about the difficulty between the A.M.C. and the F.O.G.A., did you?

Mr. Martin: I object to that as not proper cross-examination. 10635

Examiner Averill: If the question was not so all-embracing I think I would allow it.

Mr. Weisman: I will withdraw it and I will make it more specific. I will ask this question now:

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When did you first tell Mr. Bergdahl that you had—if you did tell Mr. Bergdahl—about you having been red carded?

Mr. Martin: I object. Improper cross-examination. There is no testimony in the record that he ever told Mr. Bergdahl that he had been red carded.

Mr. Weisman: Very well. I will ask the question in another way.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Bergdahl about this little dossier that you had written up on the day that you came into New York? I will ask you that first.

Mr. Martin: I object as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and having no bearing on the issues 10637 in this case, and improper cross-examination. Certainly, that has nothing to do with the previous question which was about red carding, and now he is going to something else and it is even more improper.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is quite proper.

Examiner Averill: No, I think he has a right to ask that. He says he has been in the A.M.C. office, and I think he has a right to ask him what he told Mr. Bergdahl, and why.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you? A. I do not remember.

10638 Q. Well, cogitate about it for a moment and see whether or not you can remember after thinking a moment or two very hard.

Mr. Martin: I suggest that the witness has answered the question. He said that he does not remember.

Examiner Averill: I will let him answer the question. I do not see any harm in having him pause for a moment to consider the matter a little further.

Mr. Martin: I have no objection if he did or did not show it to Mr. Bergdahl, but I want to speed this thing up.

Mr. Weisman: You could not possibly do that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Answer the question. A. I still do not remember.

Q. You still do not remember? A. No.

Q. Do you remember whether you showed that to the august personage, none other than Col. Reilly? A. I did not.

10640

Q. You remember clearly that you did not show it to him, do you? A. Also to Mr. Bergdahl.

Q. What makes it now so clear when only a moment ago you did not recall? A. What is that?

Q. What makes it now clear? Only a moment ago you said you did not know whether you showed it to Bergdahl or not, and also that you say now you are quite positive you did not show it to Col. Reilly when just a moment ago before this question you said you could not remember; in other words, what suddenly called it up to your recollection that you had not shown it to Mr. Bergdahl? A. I saw Mr. Bergdahl more often than I saw Col. Reilly. I did not see Mr. Col. Reilly more than once in three months, and when I am in New York I see Mr. Bergdahl every day I am in the office.

Q. While you were in the office three or four times because you were in the office three or four days that you were in New York, were you not? A. I did not catch your question.

Q. You were in that office three or four times that week, were you not? A. I believe that is correct.

Q. You were there on very important matters, were you not? Is that so? A. I was there trying to get goods.

Q. Was the getting of goods unimportant to you? A. We wanted the goods.

Q. Was it in your mind important or unimportant for you to get the goods?

Examiner Averill: Just answer the question, Mr. Witness. You know whether it was important or whether it was not to you; there is no sinister implication in that.

A. All right. It was important to get the goods.

By Mr. Weisman.

10643 Q. Why did you not say so in the first place? You do not choose to answer that? A. No.

Q. You knew, did you not, that these goods were being held up because of a controversy between the A.M.C., or, rather, to which the A.M.C. and the Fashion Originators Guild were parties, did you not? A. I knew about it.

Q. What did you know about this controversy? Tell us about it. A. That we were red carded, and being one of the A.M.C. stores, and that is about all I knew.

Q. I did not ask you how you came to know about it, but you said you knew there was a controversy between the A.M.C. and the Fashion Originators Guild of America; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. You are divisional merchandise manager of John 10644 Shillito & Company? A. Yes.

Q. Is that so? A. Yes.

Q. That means in large degree you are responsible for all the merchandise in your division; is that so? A. That is so.

Q. What? A. That is so.

Q. Now, as divisional merchandise manager, and I assume your division was the ladies' ready-to-wear division, did you not know what were the conditions that had arisen, and the differences that had come up between the Fashion Originators Guild of America, and the A.M.C.? A. I do not recall.

Q. I did not ask you if you recalled it. I asked you did you then know that? A. I knew about the controversy that was then going on.

Q. You knew there was a controversy? A. I knew there was a controversy.

Q. Did you know what was the subject matter of the controversy? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. You came on to New York and you spent your time, and you were at least once a day in the office of the A.M.C.; 10646 is that so? A. That is right.

Q. And you knew Mr. Bergdahl; is that so? A. That is right.

Q. You were worried about now getting your goods; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In this whole time that you were in New York did you ever say to Mr. Bergdahl, in words or in substance, "What is this quarrel between the A.M.C. and the Fashion Originators Guild of America?" Did you ever ask him that? A. I did not.

Q. Were you not interested in finding out?

(Whereupon, at 3.50 o'clock P. M., November 18, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

10647

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, New York,
November 19, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 o'clock A. M.
Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Weisman: Shall we proceed, Judge?

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, whenever you are ready you may proceed. This gentleman was on the stand at the time that we adjourned.

10649

IRVING E. PLAUT resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Plaut, you came with the John Shillito Company in 1933? A. That is correct.

Q. What had you done before that? A. Before I was connected with John Shillito Company?

Q. Yes. A. Is that the question?

10650 Q. Yes. A. I was with Joske Brothers in San Antonio.

Q. And in what capacity? A. Ready-to-wear.

Q. I did not say what field. I assume it was the ready-to-wear field. In what capacity were you with that last named concern? A. Buyer of dresses, coats and suits.

Mr. Weisman: I paraphrased the wording used; he said "in accordance with."

Examiner Averill: No, no.

Mr. Weisman: To me when a man says "I did something in accordance with the contract," that means I fully complied with the terms as the contract provided.

Examiner Averill: You call it a contract, it is not a contract, either.

Mr. Weisman: A declaration of co-operation, I accept the correction. And I think I am entitled to know what he is talking about, what his experiences are, what he knows about the ready-to-wear, whether or not he was justified in his direct statement, in saying that he performed in accordance therewith. 10652

Examiner Averill: I cannot agree with you, sir. I do not think the witness has been qualified so far, and certainly has not been questioned along an expert line at all. He has only been questioned in regard to certain facts in connection with the subject of his examination, and I do not think that his past experiences are relevant at this time.

Mr. Weisman: I will accept the ruling of the Court.

Examiner Averill: I wish you would desist from that.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. As divisional merchandise manager of Shillito, or Shillito, what were your duties? A. As I explained that to you yesterday, gave you the answer on that. 10653

Q. Now, will you please answer my question? Do you not know to-day? A. I do.

Q. Well, tell us. A. I told you I had a group of buyers, merchandise them at home, go into the market with them frequently, work with them on their advertising.

Q. Yes. A. Consult with them, go over their merchandise and their stocks in the marking room when the goods are received, go over their orders.

Q. Have you finished? A. I have.

Q. Now, you were divisional merchandise manager; is that not so? A. Of ready-to-wear.

Q. Of ready-to-wear? A. Yes.

Q. And you had a superior, did you not, a direct superior who was the merchandise manager, from whom you in turn received orders and directions; is that not so? A. That is so.

Q. And who was that? A. Mr. Jeffery Lazarus.

10655 Q. A Mr. Jeffery Lazarus, and he in turn was responsible to the executives; is that not so? A. That is so.

Q. Let me ask you this: In the exercise of your duties as divisional merchandise manager, the policy of the store, was that fixed by you or by your superiors? A. By my superiors.

Q. And you received your orders from them? A. That is correct.

Q. And carried them out to the best of your ability? A. That is correct.

Q. In the course of the exercise of your duties, when you came there, after 1933, did any of your superiors advise you that it was the policy of Shillito Company that they would not knowingly purchase copies of original garments where those originations had been made by members of 10656 the Fashion Originators Guild? A. That is correct.

Q. And did they at any time down to March 4, advise you that they had changed their policy?

Mr. Martin: March 4 of what year?

Mr. Weisman: March 4, that he testified to, 1935.

Mr. Martin: He has not testified——

Mr. Weisman: 1936, I mean.

Examiner Averill: Yes, this is 1936.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question, as amended, read as follows: "Q. And did they at any time down to March 4, 1936, advise you that they had changed their policy?")

A. I cannot recall that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, you now will tell us that when you came to the New York market to see these manufacturers on March 4, 1936, you do not recall whether or not Shillito had changed its position with regard to the dealing in copies by it? A. When I left for the market, and here on March 4, knew we were red carded, and went to these manufacturers to get that merchandise, that was on order——

10658

Examiner Averill: But the question is whether you knew at that time that there had been, if there was a change of policy on the part of your superiors in connection with their dealings with the F.O.G.A., and its regulations and rules?

The Witness: I cannot answer for the policy of the store.

Examiner Averill: Did they advise you?

The Witness: But I know our declaration was originally $10.75 and up cost.

10659

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How do you know that? A. I was told that during my time with Shillito Company.

Q. Who told you that? A. The officers of Shillito and—

Q. Did you ever ask for and see the declaration? A. I did not.

Q. Have you ever seen it? A. No, I have not.

Q. Now, is it your testimony that from the time you came to Shillito Company, in July, 1933, down to March, 1936, you understood that the declaration of co-operation only applied to merchandise which cost $10.75 or up? A. That is correct.

Q. And is it your statement also that Shillito Company told you that that was contained in their declaration of co-operation? A. I believe that is correct.

Q. Do you know a Mr. Hile? A. Mr. Heiby.

Examiner Averill: Hiby?

10661 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How do you spell it? A. H-e-i-b-y.

Q. Do you know him? A. He is connected with Shillito.

Q. Well, do you know him? A. I know him.

Q. Who is he? A. Comptroller.

Q. Was he connected with Shillito Company on July 1, 1933? A. I believe so.

Mr. Weisman: I offer the declaration of co-operation signed by John Shillito Company in evidence.

Voice: What is his first initial, Mr. Heiby?

Mr. Weisman: C. J. Heiby.

Mr. Martin: I have no objection if it is properly identified.

10662 Mr. Weisman: Well, do you want me to identify it further?

Mr. Martin: I think that would be a very good idea.

Examiner Averill: All right, go ahead.

Mr. Weisman: Will you mark this?

(A paper was thereupon marked for Identification Respondents' Exhibit 77.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I now show you Respondents' Exhibit 77——

Examiner Averill: 77 for Identification.

Mr. Weisman: For identification; thank you.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I now show you Respondents' Exhibit 77 for Identification, and ask you whether or not you recognize that as the letterhead of the John Shillito Company? A. I do.

Q. Who signed it? A. I assume Mr. Heiby signed it.

Q. Well, you recognize that as his signature, do you not? A. I am not completely sure; I don't know definitely 10664 if that is Mr. Heiby himself.

Q. What do you believe it to me, his signature? A. I believe it to be his signature.

Q. Have you seen him sign his name? A. No, I have not.

Q. Have you seen papers signed with his name? A. I have.

Q. And from having seen these papers signed from time to time with his name, you believe this to be his signature? You are not certain, but you believe it to be? A. I am not certain.

Q. But you believe it to be? A. That is correct.

Mr. Weisman: I now offer this in evidence (counsel referring to Respondents' Exhibit 77 for Identification). 10665

(The document heretofore marked for Identification Respondents' Exhibit 77, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Examiner Averill: One second, gentlemen, I want to read this paper, because there may be some talk about it, and I want to know what you are talking about.

The Witness: Can I read it?

Mr. Martin: You want to read it?

The Witness: I would like to.

Mr. Martin: Let him see it.

Mr. Weisman: We will give it to you in due time.

Examiner Averill: All right, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, at the time that your superiors told you that they had adopted a policy of anti-style piracy, did they tell you whether or not they deemed the adoption of such policy to the benefit of the store?

10667 Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the paper itself shows.

Mr. Weisman: What?

Examiner Averill: The paper speaks for itself.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I want to know what they told him, Judge.

Examiner Averill: Pardon me.

Mr. Weisman: I did not ask him about the paper.

Examiner Averill: That is correct.

A. I cannot recall.

By Mr. Weisman.

10668 Q. When you came to Shillito Company, they told you that they had signed a declaration of co-operation; that is so, is it not? A. That is so.

Q. Yes. A. On $10.75 and up.

Q. That is what they told you? A. That is right.

Q. And they did not show you that declaration of co-operation? A. That is correct.

Q. Reading from Respondents' Exhibit 77, I see that this exhibit reads, among other things, as follows: "Believing the principle declared by your members to be proper for the protection of the public, the retailer and the manufacturer, we wish to go on record as stating our fixed policy." Now, did you understand at any time what the principle declared by the members of the Fashion Originators Guild was?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant, and not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.

A. Read the question.

Q. (Last question read.) A. The purpose of it was, to the best of my knowledge, by dresses from $10.75 and up, they were not copies. 10670

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Before you left for New York, did you speak with any of your superiors? A. The superiors spoke to me and instructed me to come to New York.

Q. What did he tell you to do? A. When I left on March 3rd for New York, 1936, I was instructed to get the manufacturers to ship our merchandise.

Q. Well, did they tell you at any time, in words or substance, that they had changed their policy, or no longer thought it proper for the protection of the public, the retailer, and the manufacturer, to support the principle of design—the protection of design origination?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. 10671

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.

A. The original agreement was from $10.75 and up——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. No, no, no, no, no. Now, listen to my question and please try to answer it. If you do not understand it I will try to make it so plain that even you can understand it.

Mr. Weisman: Now, read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: You can answer that "yes" or "no," they either did or did not.

A. Willing to support it from the $10.75 and up, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. They told you that? A. That is right.

Q. When you went to these manufacturers you went 10673 and saw them with the belief that John Shillito Company was still willing to protect original designs of these manufacturers? A. That is true.

Q. They had not told you, either in words or substance, had they, that they had communicated with the Fashion Originators Guild and advised the Guild that they would no longer protect style originations? A. I don't——

Q. How? A. I do not.

Q. You mean—well, that question was not susceptible of an answer "I do not."

Mr. Weisman: Will you please read the question? See if you cannot make an intelligent answer to it.

(Previous question read.)

10674

A. Only on the original agreement from $10.75 and up.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, they had not told you that they had changed their policy? A. That is correct.

Q. You knew, did you not, that when these orders were taken and accepted by the manufacturer they were taken and accepted by the manufacturer by reason of the fact that Shillito Company had expressed, directly or indirectly, to the manufacturer, that they would protect the original designs of these manufacturers with whom you had placed orders; is that not a fact?

(Question read, as amended, as follows: Q. Did you not know from the exercise of your duties in the New York market, that none of the members of the Fashion Originators Guild, with whom you dealt, the manufacturing members, were willing to sell their merchandise to retailers who would not protect their styles?")

By Mr. Weisman. 10676

Q. Answer that.

Mr. Martin: Just a second—off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Read the question again.

(Question, as amended, reread.)

Examiner Averill: If he does not know, then he may say so. If he does know it, he may answer it. That is easy, if the matter is within his knowledge.

A. That is correct.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not the executives who had sent you on to New York were also aware of the practice you have just told us about on the part of the manufacturing members of the Fashion Originators Guild with whom you dealt? A. I don't know. 10677

Examiner Averill: It is the same answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not know it was the practice of these manufacturers who were members of the Fashion Originators

Guild to refuse to deal with retailers who would not protect their style originations?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Averill: He has told us that already.

Mr. Weisman: Let him tell it to us again. I cannot see—I am lost in this score of speeches by my adversary and I want to make sure the record is straight in so far as I can see it.

Examiner Averill: He may answer the question.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: He may answer that ques-
10679 tion.

A. That is correct.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, you testified on your direct examination, did you not, that you were acquainted with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. That is correct.

Q. What did you mean on your direct examination when you stated that you were acquainted with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. The protection of their styles from $10.75 and up, and buying from these houses, it had been very pleasant; they never said we could not get any of their merchandise.

10680 Q. Do you know a Mr. Minster? A. I do.

Q. Who is Mr. Minster? A. Vice-president of John Shillito.

Q. One of your superiors? A. That is correct.

Q. An executive? A. That is correct.

Q. And fixes the policy to some degree of Shillito Company, which you carry out? A. That is correct.

Q. Before you left for New York on March 3 did you talk with Mr. Minster at all? A. I cannot recall.

Q. Well, would you say that you did not talk with him? A. I would not say that.

Q. Do you remember whether Mr. Minster ever told you, in words or substance, that he had notified the Guild that they were through with the Guild? A. He mentioned to me that he was resigning from the Guild because he was not going to sign that other declaration, dresses below $10.75 in cost.

Q. I see. Do you mean—let us see. He told you that he was resigning from the Guild. Did he tell you whether he had resigned? A. I can't recall that.

Q. Well, let me ask you this: Is this a letterhead of John Shillito & Company (showing paper to witness)? Do you recognize that? A. I do. 10682

Q. Do you recognize Mr. Minster's signature? A. I do.

Mr. Weisman: I now offer this in evidence.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

(Whereupon the letter was marked Respondents' Exhibit 78 and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. So I take it that when you came yourself to New York you did not know that your company had advised the Fashion Originators Guild of America that they severed all connection with them? A. I did not.

Q. I take it you regularly read the "Women's Wear Daily"? A. That is correct. 10683

Q. I take it you think that it is an authentic periodical and contains authentic statements of the doings in the industry in which you are interested?

Mr. Martin: I object. We do not mind boosting the "Women's Wear Daily" a little, but I do not see what that has to do with the issues in this case.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you saw the statement in "Women's Wear" that your store was red carded, what did you understand by that?

The Witness: Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. Nothing more than just reading about it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you read about it, what did it convey to your 10685 mind? A. That we were red carded by the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Q. What did that mean to you?

Examiner Averill: He means, "What does red carding mean to you?"

A. That we could not get any merchandise from the Fashion Originators Guild of America houses, houses connected with the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did this article state why you had been red carded? A. If I recall correctly, we would not sign any declaration of dresses regardless of prices.

10686 Q. Did you, when you saw this statement in "Women's Wear," discuss it with any of your superiors? A. I do not recall.

Q. What is your best recollection?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Averill: What is the materiality of whether he discussed it with his superiors or not? I cannot see it at the moment.

Mr. Weisman: I will not urge it if your Honor does not think it material.

Examiner Averill: It does not seem to me to be so at the moment.

Mr. Weisman: Withdrawn.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you ever discussed with Mr. Post the protection of merchandise below $10.75? A. That is not the case here. I never discussed it with Mr. Post.

Q. Did you ever write him about it? A. I may or I may not have.

Q. What is your best recollection? A. That is the best 10688 recollection I have.

Q. When would you say for the first time that you understood that the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., was protecting merchandise that cost below $10.75?

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I must record a strenuous objection to that. It is absolutely immaterial.

Examiner Averill: I am not going to permit that any further. I am sorry, but I simply cannot do it. I will have to stop the examination along that line.

Mr. Weisman: I respectfully note an exception. If your Honor please, I ask to have this particular document marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 79 for 10689 Identification.

Examiner Averill: It may be so marked.

(A letter was thereupon marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 79.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you a copy of a letter dated May 1, 1935, and which has just been marked Respondents' Exhibit 79 for Identification and ask you whether or not you received the original of that letter from Mr. Post? A. Yes, I received this.

Q. Will you read that letter? A. Yes.

Q. Have you read it? A. Yes.

Q. Referring to Respondents' Exhibit 79 for Identification, would you say that you received that letter on or about May 21, 1935? A. I assume around those dates.

Mr. Weisman: I offer the document in evidence.

(The document heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 79 was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

10691

Examiner Averill: You may proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you received Respondents' Exhibit 79 in evidence, did you call the subject matter thereof to the attention of your superiors?

Mr. Martin: I object as not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled.

A. I do not believe I did.

Mr. Martin: Exception noted.

Examiner Averill: Exception granted.

10692

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you notice in this letter which is dated May 1, 1935, the following statement: "Obviously the purpose of our new program is to equalize style protection and make it universal for all stores by taking on membership among the $10.75 dress manufacturers and consider the $6.75 dress group for the late fall"? Did you notice those words in the letter? A. I do not recall them right well.

Q. Did you read them when you read the letter? A. I suppose I did.

Q. Do you know what you do when you read a letter? A. Oh, yes; I read it.

Q. Did you not think and did that not indicate to your mind something different from the co-operation that your superiors had told you about? A. Yes.

Q. Why did you not then discuss it with your superiors if you found there was reference to a different kind of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: I object as not within the scope of the direct examination.

Mr. Weisman: I feel it is very directly in it; 10694
it goes to the discussion that he referred to on his direct examination: it goes to the credibility of the witness; it goes to the reasonableness of his acts; it goes to the statement that he made that the store co-operated, as indicating what he knew about the co-operation, which was certainly brought out, over strong objection, on direct.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted. Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Back on the record.

Mr. Weisman: To save time, I will withdraw the question and I may come back to it later on after 10695
I have brought out other matters in connection with the examination.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. On your direct testimony you testified you could not get the goods from these people; do you remember that? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you not forget to tell us something about that? A. I I do not recall.

Q. Did you not forget to tell us that shortly thereafter you were offered all these goods and you did not want to take them? A. Long after.

Q. Long after? A. Long after.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

Q. When you were in New York you spoke to Mr. Bergdahl on your visit of March 4? A. I said I saw him in the office.

Q. When you saw him did you just look at him or did 10697 you also talk to him? A. I said "Good morning" to him.

Q. So that the limit of your discussion was the two words "Good morning," was it? A. It may have been that.

Q. Did you not discuss this difference that you had had with the Fashion Originators Guild of America at that time? A. I do not recall.

Q. Was Mr. Bergdahl your representative in New York on all matters of that kind? A. I do not know that.

Q. You mean you do not know that? Did you not read about it and, in fact, did you not yourself write that he was such? Did you not write so over your own signature? A. I do not recall whether I did or not.

Q. You do not recall? A. I may have.

10698 Q. I did not ask you whether you may have. Do you not remember doing that? Do you not remember that you did? A. There is a possibility.

Q. I did not ask you whether there is a possibility. We all know what possibilities are. I am asking you, as the divisional merchandise manager of John Shillito Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, did you not advise the Fashion Originators Guild of America by means of a letter over your own personal signature and in the name of your company,

John Shillito Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, that Mr. Bergdahl, the gentleman from the particular division with the A.M.C. and the witness who just preceded you, was authorized to represent you in the dealings with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I may have.

Q. I asked you whether you did or not?

Examiner Averill: I suppose you have a letter in regard to the subject. Show him the letter and we will get along faster.

Mr. Weisman: I want to show it by the witness' own testimony as to just what he knew, if your Honor please.

Examiner Averill: You may do so. 10700

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, do you not know that you did write them about that? A. I do not recall. I may have been—I may have been the one that wrote the letter, or it may have come from the executives, if it were written.

Q. You knew that your store put on all of its letterheads the words "Associated Merchandise Corporation Member"; did you not know that? A. "Member of the Associated Merchandise Corporation." That is correct, yes.

Q. Did Mr. Bergdahl tell you what was the A.M.C. policy with regard to this controversy between John Shillito Company and the Fashion Originators Guild of America? 10701

Mr. Martin: I object. It is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant for any purpose whatsoever, if your Honor please.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did Mr. Bergdahl ever tell you in words or in substance that by reason of the fact that the A.M.C. represented a large number of stores, that the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., and its members would not dare to refuse to bow down to its dictates and would not dare to refuse to do its bidding?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Averill: The objection is sustained, gentlemen.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

10703 Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did Mr. Bergdahl ever tell you in words or in substance that the A.M.C. would succeed in breaking the Guild and its members if its members stood together and refused to buy merchandise from the members of the Guild—the members of the A.M.C.—under the declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I think it is perfectly competent to show whether they really wanted this merchandise. When you take these questions and

10704 link them up with their refusal to take the merchandise which was offered to them within three days, I say to your Honor that it illuminates the whole situation and shows that he came on to New York and he took all of the testimony down and he wrote it all down as to their conversations, and that this was all part and parcel of a fraudulent conspiracy entered into between these various stores and the A.M.C. to destroy these manufacturers in the program that they had theretofore gone along with, and I say it is perfectly competent in view of the prior testimony because it shows that they did not want the merchandise at all and this was simply a ruse to accomplish their purposes.

Mr. Martin: I move that that tirade be stricken from the record.

Examiner Averill: As a part of the affirmative defense it may be correct, but as a part of the cross-examination I do not think it is pertinent; and therefore I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. If your Honor please, it is now 12.30 and I should like to take the noon adjournment now if your Honor doesn't have any objection. 10706

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, it is 12.30, so we will adjourn until 2 o'clock for lunch.

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Averill: Well, gentlemen, when you are ready, you may proceed.

IRVING E. PLAUT resumed the stand and testified further as follows: 10707

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Plaut, have you at any time since February refreshed your recollection as to whether or not you saw a notice in the "Women's Wear Daily" of the red carding of Shillito Company? A. I remember seeing it in "Women's Wear."

Q. Are you certain of that? A. Yes.

Q. Are you certain that you saw it in the month of February? A. I believe that is correct.

Q. Well, it could not be any other time, could it, if that was the first you learned of it? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, would it surprise you to learn that no such notice ever appeared in any issue of the "Women's Wear Daily" for February? Then what would you say, where you learned for the first time of the red carding? A. Then show me the date when it appeared.

Q. You show it to me. I did not say it ever appeared. A. Yes.

10709 Q. What I want to know from you now is whether anybody prior to your taking the stand here refreshed your recollection by telling you that such an item appeared in the "Women's Wear Daily" during the month of February?

The Witness: Repeat that question, please.

(Last question read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. 1936. A. No, they did not.

Q. Did you prior to taking the stand discuss the matter that you thought such a notice appeared in the "Women's Wear Daily" for the month of February, 1936? A. No.

Q. Well, now, if such notice did not appear, or such 10710 reference did not appear in the "Women's Wear Daily" during the month of February, 1936, can you offer us any explanation as to where you really heard of the fact that the Shillito Company had been red carded? A. I can't recall.

Q. Is it possible that one of the executives of the store might have told that to you and that you never saw it in any paper? A. I can't recall that.

Q. Well, a few moments ago you recalled that you saw it in a paper. Now you say you cannot remember whether you saw it in a paper or not. A. You did not ask me that.

Q. Well, I am asking you. I do not want to quarrel with you. I want to get it very plain. Are you absolutely certain that you saw it in the "Women's Wear Daily" during the month of February, 1936, a statement setting forth, in words or substance, that Shillito had been what we have referred to here as red carded by the F.O.G.A.? A. To the best of my knowledge I saw it in the "Women's Wear" in February.

Q. If it should appear that there was no such item in 10712 the "Women's Wear" for the month of February, 1936, where would you then say that you learned this? A. Manufacturers not shipping us the merchandise.

Q. What would your explanation be for having told us here that you saw it in the "Women's Wear"? Well, what do you say? A. I said I recalled seeing it in February in the "Women's Wear"——

Q. Now, that is not what the Judge said to you. A. See?

Q. I said to you, if it did not appear in "Women's Wear," what would your explanation be to us and to the Court of your statement now that you think you saw it in "Women's Wear"? What would have led you to that belief? A. I cannot answer that.

Q. Did anybody ever tell you to say that you saw it 10713 in "Women's Wear"? A. They did not.

Q. You said a moment ago that you might have learned of the red carding from the manufacturers. Do you remember saying that to me only two minutes ago? A. Correct.

Q. Well, how could that be possible when you stated that after you saw the red carding you came to New York on March 4? I will withdraw that. After the middle of February, when was the first time that you saw the manufacturers about this goods? A. March 4 we saw them in New York.

Q. Well, what did you do between February 17—that is about the middle of the month, when you were red carded—and March 4? Did you not come to New York at all? A. I cannot recall that we came to New York between those dates. Might have been there prior to that.

Q. No. Were you there between those dates? A. I can't recall——

Q. Well, look— . A. —if we have or we have not.

Q. What? A. I can't recall if we have or if we have 10715 not.

Q. Well, that is perfectly apparent, you either have or you have not. A. During those times.

Q. I understood you to testify this morning that you supervised all advertising in connection with your department; is that so? A. That is correct.

Mr. Weisman: Mark this, please.

(A paper was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 82.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 82 for Identification and ask you whether or not you recognize that (handing paper to witness)? A. I do.

10716 Q. What is it? A. Dresses with the F.O.G.A.——

Q. No, what is this, the exhibit? A. A copy of Shillito's ad.

Q. That was run in the paper? A. That is correct.

Q. Pursuant to your directions? A. That is correct.

Mr. Weisman: I now offer this in evidence.

Examiner Averill: We will admit the paper in evidence and mark it Respondents' Exhibit No. 82.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 82 was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: Would it be out of order, Mr. Examiner, to inquire as to what issue in this case, or what statement of the witness as to this exhibit, is intended to be referred to as relevant? I cannot figure it out.

Examiner Averill: Only this: the witness said he prepared advertisements; he was asked whether he prepared this, and he said he did. That is the one statement, except that the general trend of the witness' testimony is in connection with their policy. 10718
Now, this goes to show that at the time of its inception, namely, in October——

Mr. Haycraft: November.

Examiner Averill: In November, on November 6, 1935, which, as you recognize, antedates the matters for which he came to New York, that at that time, at any rate, they were in accord up to a certain point, at any rate, with the policies of the F.O.G.A.

Mr. Haycraft: Then it substantiates his testimony on direct examination.

Examiner Averill: Absolutely; that is all.

Mr. Haycraft: I just wanted to get——

Examiner Averill: It is that part of his testimony, understand—off the record. 10719

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: I want to clear up something that I think perhaps is not clear in your Honor's mind.

Examiner Averill: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is your average mark-up——

Mr. Martin: Objected to——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. —in the dress department? A. Costing $10.75 and up?

Q. Yes. A. Around 38 per cent.

Q. When you say around 38 per cent., do you mean 38 per cent. of the selling price or of the cost? A. Cost.

Q. Well, what would you say that your average sales price for a garment costing $10.75 was? A. $16.95.

Q. And it is your opinion that the difference between $10.75 and $16.95 is 38 per cent. of $10.75? A. How?

Q. Is that correct? A. You said an average from $10.75 cost and up, not on one price line.

10721

Mr. Weisman: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that correct? A. Read the question again, please.

(Question re-read.)

A. I am talking about cost on retail.

Q. No, is that correct what you have just said? A. On the retail, the difference.

Q. It is 38 per cent. on the retail? A. Approximately.

Q. Well, then, why did you tell me a few moments ago that your 38 per cent. was 38 per cent. of the cost?

10722

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I am going to interpose another objection here, that all of this entire line of cross-examination is irrelevant and immaterial and outside of the scope of the direct examination.

Examiner Averill: There is not a shadow of doubt on that part of it.

Mr. Weisman: Well, then——

Examiner Averill: But, as I stated when I admitted it, I admitted it and gave the reason for its admission. If he wants to find out that one little thing, I do not know why he should not find it out.

Mr. Haycraft: He has told you about cost and now he wants to do something else.

Mr. Weisman: No.

Mr. Haycraft: He has told us that $10.75 was the cost of these garments at $16.95.

Examiner Averill: He also gave us a percentage.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: He also gave a percentage on an average.

10724

Mr. Weisman: No, but you——

Examiner Averill: He did not say that was mark-up on an average.

Mr. Weisman: No, he said $10.75 was cost.

Examiner Averill: Then I do not see why——

Mr. Haycraft: That is what this whole cross-examination is going to.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor—please do not take this.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Weisman.

10725

Q. Now, Mr. Plaut, you believed this advertisement which is Respondents' Exhibit 82 to be truthful, did you not?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained, gentlemen.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, I want to show that the very things he says were a fact are by this advertisement shown not to be a fact, if you let me go along and show it.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, there is the thing that speaks for itself. You have his testimony that it speaks for itself and we can compare the two without asking him.

Mr. Weisman: No, we cannot, your Honor, because your Honor has not seen the point I am asking him——

Mr. Martin: I do not see it.

Mr. Weisman: You certainly would not. That is not surprising.

10727 Mr. Martin: How did you guess?

Mr. Weisman: I do not have to guess; I have been around the circuit with you.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

Mr. Weisman: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record. The last question was withdrawn—either overruled or withdrawn.

Mr. Weisman: I do not care, we will take it as withdrawn and we will have this in the record (showing paper marked Respondents' Exhibit 82 to the Trial Examiner).

Examiner Averill: That is all right; give it to me.

10728

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Just one question. Prior to 1936 was Shillito Company, while co-operating with the Guild in its policy of anti-piracy of original designs, in the habit of returning merchandise which was copied if the merchandise cost less than $10.75 wholesale?

Mr. Martin: If he knows.

Mr. Weisman: If you know.

The Witness: Read the question, please.

(Last question read.)

A. We did.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you do that in accordance with your declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He does not know.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a moment. He knew a great deal when he testified for you; he knew—— 10730

Examiner Averill: How?

Mr. Weisman: The question is, "Did you perform in accordance with the issuing of this declaration?"

Examiner Averill: But now, if you are going to ask him, you will have to permit it "in accordance with your understanding."

(Question, as amended, read as follows: "Q. Did you do that in accordance with your understanding of your declaration of co-operation?")

A. Dresses was returned——

By Mr. Weisman. 10731

Q. Dresses were returned. A. Were returned when the Guild shopper came into our department and identified them.

Q. As copies?

Mr. Martin: Now, let him answer. He will——

Examiner Averill: Oh, no, but that is what he means.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.
Examiner Averill: Just to identify them.
Mr. Weisman: That is it.
Examiner Averill: That is correct?
The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Yes, and if she identified a dress which cost $6.75 or $4.75 as a copy, you would return it; is that not correct? A. We were co-operative.

Q. Yes. A. In returning.

Q. Yes, and you returned it? A. Yes.

10733 Q. And would you so return it in accordance with your understanding of what your declaration of co-operation called upon you to do?

The Witness: Read that question, please?
(Question read.)

A. Correct.

Q. I did not hear you. A. Correct.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 83.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is that? A. Dress ad.

10734 Q. Look at it. A. Dress ad.

Examiner Averill: Dress ad of whom?
The Witness: Shillito Company dress ad.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. It was caused to be inserted by Shillito Company? A. Correct.

Q. In the Cincinnati "Times" of April 2, 1936? A. "Times-Star," to be correct.

Q. What? A. "Times-Star," to be correct.

Q. Cincinnati "Times-Star" of Thursday, April 2, 1936?

Examiner Averill: He said yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Was that done under your direction? A. And advertising department.

Q. Yes. A. Dresses in my division.

Q. These dresses are all in your division? A. That is right.

Mr. Weisman: I now offer this ad.

Mr. Martin: I now object to this, your Honor, on the ground it is irrelevant and immaterial and in no way germane to the testimony of this witness and contrary to the prior ruling of the Trial Examiner, and it is further outside of the scope of direct examination and has no bearing on the issues in this case. 10736

Mr. Feldman: In the case of——

Examiner Averill: How?

Mr. Weisman: Just an echo, Judge.

(Mr. Feldman confers with Mr. Weisman at this point.)

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record. Gentlemen, the objection will be sustained for the reasons that we have stated off the record, and the paper which has been identified by the witness as an advertisement of the Shillito Company of dress goods which are in his department and the same bearing date of April 2, 1936, will be marked Respondents' Exhibit 83 for Identification and returned to counsel for such use as he may desire in the future to make of the paper. 10737

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you this paper and ask you if you recognize that (handing paper to witness)?

Examiner Averill: Mark it.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 84.)

A. I recognize it as a Shillito ad, but I don't have anything to do with the basement.

10739 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You recognize it as a Shillito Company ad? A. Yes.

Q. In what paper would you say it was run? A. It says there Cincinnati "Post."

Q. And what date? A. Friday, April 10.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record. Gentlemen, the advertising appearing in the Cincinnati "Post" for April 10, 1936, which is testified to by the witness as being a Shillito Company basement ad, but not in his department, will be marked Respondents' Exhibit 84 for Identification and returned to counsel for respondent for such use as he may desire.

10740 All right, sir.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 85.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you this telegram, dated November 4, 1935, marked Respondents' Exhibit 85 for Identification, and ask you did you cause that to be sent to Mr. Post (handing paper to witness)? A. That is correct.

Mr. Weisman: I offer this telegram in evidence.

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant, immaterial, having nothing to do with the issues in this case and outside of the scope of the witness' testimony and not proper subject of cross-examination.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I must sustain that.

Mr. Weisman: Just wait a moment, Judge, before you sustain this. You better let me tell you what the purpose of it is. We will show now, having laid the foundation with this, that the houses referred to here, which we have a list of, were such houses as made goods down at $4.75 and $6.75, 10742 showing that at this time they were handling goods at $4.75 and $6.75, so obviously the story about $10.75 protection could not be correct.

Examiner Averill: All right. No, sir, I cannot receive it. If you want to show those things, you may show them on direct, maybe. I do not know what good they would be on direct, but I cannot admit that.

Mr. Weisman: Your Honor please——

Examiner Averill: Does not cover the testimony of the witness. You cannot open the doors any further along that line.

By Mr. Weisman.

10743

Q. During the year 1935 were you doing business with the International Dress Company at 1400 Broadway?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Weisman: I am entitled to ask him who he did business with.

Examiner Averill: In what year?

Mr. Weisman: 1935, prior to his red carding.

Mr. Martin: Clearly not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I think that objection is sound. It is certainly not part—not proper cross-examination under the direct and I have gone too far that way now; I cannot go any further.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I make this offer of proof: If I had been permitted to have pursued the inquiry, he would have stated he was; I would thereupon 10745 be in a position to show that the International Dress Company manufactured dresses and sold them at a price below $10.75.

The Witness: In the summertime.

Examiner Averill: Do not testify.

Mr. Weisman: And I would have shown the same with regard to the Casino Dresses and the same with regard to Henry Gans.

Examiner Averill: You may offer those in your own——

Mr. Martin: I move, your Honor, that the offer to prove be stricken.

Examiner Averill: That is granted, because that is a part of your direct. If you wish to put those things in, you would perhaps be permitted to do 10746 that. I do not know how it will be then.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you got with you the memorandum from which you testified yesterday? A. I have.

Q. Will you turn to it, please?

Examiner Averill: Has anybody got a copy of yesterday's?

Mr. Martin: I will give you a copy of it, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Mr. Bergdahl had a copy of it a while ago.

Mr. Haycraft: You mean of the record?

Examiner Averill: Yes. I mean what he testified to yesterday. 10748

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. All right, sir, you may have it (handing record to the Trial Examiner).

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you called upon these people at that time, did you or did you not know that they had an agreement among themselves that they would not sell to any retailers who were refusing to protect style originations? A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Plaut, when you called upon Robbins and you saw Mr. Lagowitz there, did you not? A. That is correct.

Q. How do you know it is correct? A. I saw Mr. Lagowitz there.

Q. Well, do you remember that? A. I do. 10749

Q. Or do you say it is correct because it is on that paper in front of you? Which is it? A. Both is correct—both are correct.

Q. If you did not have the paper, would you know it was Mr. Lagowitz that you saw? A. I have known him for years.

Q. Then you know him? A. Yes.

Q. Now, when you saw Mr. Lagowitz, you asked him, did you not, whether or not he would ship you this merchandise through somebody else? A. That is correct.

Q. What did you mean by that? A. Just what I said.

Q. Well, tell us. I do not understand exactly what you mean. A. Well——

Q. Did you mean that he should seek through some subterfuge to ship you these goods contrary to his arrangement with the other members of the Guild, by consigning them to someone else, which consignee would in turn send them to you? That is what you meant, was it not? A. Read that question.

10751 Q. (Last question read.) A. Just asked him a question, if he would ship goods through someone else.

Q. Well, what did you mean by that question? A. It is a simple question, it answers for itself—it speaks for itself.

Q. You answer it for us now. A. O.K.

Q. Mr. Divisional Merchandise Manager of Shillito Company. A. Said, "Will you ship to anyone else?" He said, "No."

Q. Well, what did you mean? A. To ship through someone else than ship to Shillito. I asked him——

Q. Why did you want him to ship these goods through somebody else for you? A. I do not understand that.

Q. What was in your mind? A. What?

Q. What was in your mind? A. I do not get the ques-
10752 tion.

Q. What was in your mind? A. Me?

Q. You. A. Oh, I meant merchandise.

Q. Whom did you think he was going to ship them to so you could get them? A. I have no idea.

Q. No idea? A. No idea.

Q. What was the difference between shipping it to you and shipping it to someone else for and on your account?

Mr. Martin: I object to all of this as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant for any purpose whatsoever.

Examiner Averill: You have already probed him enough on that.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you mean that this man, on behalf of C. H. D. Robbins, caused these dresses to be shipped to you surreptitiously?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Averill: Sustained. 10754

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I make the offer to prove that had I been permitted to have the answer to that question the witness would have so testified.

Mr. Martin: I move that the offer to prove be stricken from the record.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Feldman: How can you strike an offer to prove?

Mr. Albert: Never heard of such a thing.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Were you anxious to get those dresses by hook or crook?

10755

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Averill: The witness may answer the question. I will let him go a little further into that.

A. I would not say that. I said through someone else.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That was by crook. You mean that you were not anxious to get them by hook, but you wanted to get them by crook; is that the idea?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Averill: I think we all understand about it. Let us go to something else.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I just have one other further question. You testified yesterday that there was a shopper by the name of Mrs.
10757 Levy? A. That is correct.

Q. In Cincinnati? A. Yes.

Q. That is correct, that you so testified? A. Yes, and I also knew you had a shopper by the name of Mrs. Levy.

Q. This shopper came into your store quite frequently? A. She did.

Q. She came in openly and notoriously and there was nothing furtive about her visits, was there? A. No.

Q. You knew she came? A. Oh, I knew she came in, yes. She came in on the floor and looked around.

Q. You knew her? A. We did.

Q. And the help knew her? A. I do not believe the help knew her.

Q. Some of your help? A. Possibly the buyers.

10758 Q. She came into the store for the first time, did she not, and she came up to you and told you who she was? A. I believe she did.

Q. Naturally, you would not let a stranger come in and go over your stocks, would you? A. A public institution like that, we have thousands of customers coming in and looking over our stocks and we do not know who they are. They come in and we do not know whether they come in to buy goods or what they come in for. We could not possibly know that.

Q. How did you find out that she was a shopper, then? A. She came down and visited me and told me that she was.

Q. Oh, she told you she was? A. She did.

Examiner Averill: A recess will be taken for five minutes.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Averill: Back on the record. Proceed.

Redirect examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Plaut, on cross-examination Mr. Weisman asked you as to when you came to New York on or about March 4 and when you left? A. Yes. 10760

Q. Did you check it up with the hotel to find out, the Hotel New Yorker? A. I did.

Q. What did you do and what did you find? A. I asked about it, I checked it up last night at the New Yorker Hotel and I have that verified, that I got in New York Tuesday night, March 3, by plane from Cincinnati, Ohio.

Q. When did you leave— A. May I finish?

Q. Go ahead. I did not mean to interrupt you. A. I had that verified by the New Yorker Hotel. I can refresh my memory——

Mr. Martin: All right.

Mr. Weisman: I object to his refreshing his memory unless he says his memory has need to be refreshed. He has not—this witness has not said yet that his memory needed to be refreshed. I think that he should go ahead until his memory needs to be refreshed. Certainly there is no necessity for him reading from a document until he says he cannot remember. 10761

Examiner Averill: In this particular matter I do not think there will be any harm in the witness going ahead and stating it that way.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. When did you leave? A. I left on March 6, Friday night, and was back in Cincinnati Saturday morning.

Mr. Albert: That is correct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Respondents' Exhibit 81, and ask what 10763 was that telegram—in other words, why was that telegram sent to the F.O.G.A.— A. I do not understand.

Q. Handing you Respondents' Exhibit 81, Mr. Plaut, I will ask you why was that telegram sent to the Fashion Originators Guild of America by your store, if you know?

Mr. Weisman: I object to why it was sent. The telegram speaks for itself. He cannot say that he sent the telegram for some reason when the telegram might indicate another.

Examiner Averill: This does not show the reason.

Mr. Weisman: I do not think that would be testimony of any value, if your Honor please. He might have sent that because he expected his wife to 10764 have twins.

Examiner Averill: On the other hand, he might have had a telegram from someone else and sent it in reply thereto.

Mr. Weisman: I submit that the question should be asked in a different form.

Examiner Averill: He has asked his reason. Objection overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Why was that telegram sent? What was your reason for sending it?' A. Louise Mulligan wired John Shillito Company to authorize the F.O.G.A. for them to ship us merchandise.

Mr. Martin: I ask to have this document marked as Commission's Exhibit 888 for Identification.

(The document was marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 888.)

Mr. Weisman: I do not understand the answer, I think, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Let him see the telegram and you will understand. There is no great deep dark secret about this matter. 10766

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 888 for Identification. A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. Telegram to the John Shillito Company attention of Miss Doris Wood from Louise Mulligan.

Q. What is the date? A. March 17, 1936—I beg your pardon, March 12, 1936.

Examiner Averill: Who from?

The Witness: Louise Mulligan. The wire——

By Mr. Martin. 10767

Q. Do not say what it is. Do not state its contents. Was this received by the John Shillito Company? A. That is correct.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: No objection.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, the telegram in question which has just been identified by the witness and to which there has been no objection, and which is a telegram to the John Shillito Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, signed Louise Mulligan, Inc., and from Chicago, Ill., under date of March 12, 1936, will be received in evidence and marked Commission's Exhibit 888, having heretofore been marked Commission's Exhibit 888 for Identification.

(The document heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 888, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

10769 Q. Did this telegram prompt you to send a telegram which is Respondents' Exhibit No. 81? A. That is correct.

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Recross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did not the desire to get the goods prompt you to send a telegram, or did you not want the goods? A. We wanted the goods.

Q. Then was it the wanting of the goods that prompted you to send the telegram?

Examiner Averill: You asked him what prompted him. What prompted him was the lasting moving thing before him before he sent the telegram, and 10770 that does not mean because he needed the goods that he sent the telegram, but he told you he sent it because he received this telegram, the underlying motive is not inquired for. There may have been an undercurrent of desire back of the whole thing, but this seeks the prime motivation.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, if you did not get that telegram from Louise Mulligan you would not have wired the Fashion Originators Guild of America; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Why did you wire the Fashion Originators Guild of America with regard to the other people? You did not have any telegram in those cases.

Examiner Averill: What?

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: I object. He has already answered that. The facts are not as he has stated them there. I object to an improper premise being the basis of the question. 10772

Examiner Averill: Let the reporter read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: I object. He has already answered that.

Mr. Weisman: There is no prompting to the others.

The Witness: Louise Mulligan's line was a confined line to the Shillito Company in Cincinnati, Ohio.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you say that you got this telegram from Louise Mulligan? A. Miss Doris Wood got the telegram from them, Miss Doris Wood of the John Shillito Company, and she turned it over to me. 10773

Q. Did you answer it? A. I believe one of the executives of the John Shillito Company answered this wire.

Q. How do you know that? A. Is that telegram shown here?

Q. Did you say a moment ago that you answered that telegram? A. I will correct that statement and say a member of the firm answered the telegram.

Q. How do you know a member of the firm answered the telegram? Are you sure you did not answer it? A. A telegram was answered there.

Q. No, no, no. Answer my question. In answer to a question by Mr. Martin you said that you answered that telegram.

Mr. Martin: No, sir; I did not ask him did he answer the question.

Mr. Weisman: Will you please keep still and 10775 make a legal objection instead of trying to prompt the witness.

Mr. Martin: I just want to try to keep you straight.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you remember seeing that telegram—do you remember receiving that telegram? A. There is no question about it.

Q. You, personally? A. Miss Doris Wood received it.

Q. What did Miss Wood do with it so far as you know when she received it? A. She turned it over to me.

Q. What did you do with it? A. I took it up with Mr. Minster of the John Shillito Company.

10776 Q. What did Mr. Minster of the John Shillito Company do with it? A. If I recall correctly, he wired the Fashion Originators Guild of America to authorize Louise Mulligan to ship the merchandise to us.

Q. That was the same day that you received the telegram? A. That I do not recall.

Q. Well, it appears so. Did you not testify that this was a copy of the telegram (indicating)?

Examiner Averill: He did not.

Mr. Weisman: He said it came.

Examiner Averill: No, because you got it in by way of agreement. You did not press the witness with those questions because you did not know what his answers might be, and so it was put in by agreement between you and Mr. Martin, and he let it go in, and I permitted it to go in, and I am not quite sure that I did wisely in doing so in view of later developments.

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, New York, 10778
November 20, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(Same appearances.)

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

10779

Q: At the last session at which you testified, or in your former testimony, Mr. Bergdahl, you were asked to look in your files to see if you could find the correspondence with members of the A.M.C. who were advised, or advising them with respect to the understanding you had with Mr. Rentner in the summer of 1933. Do you recall the papers to which I have reference? A. Yes. I know what you are talking about.

Q. Have you made a search of your files for that purpose? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is this sheaf of papers which I am now handing you? A. These are letters between our stores—between executives in our stores and Mr. Reilly, our director.

Q. In what month and in what year? A. All of them seem to be, or are, in the last week of June, 1933.

Q. Do they relate to the subject matter I asked you to inquire about? A. They do.

(The paper heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 900, was marked as an exhibit 10781 and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, I call your attention to the following language in this letter, Commission's Exhibit 900: "This is to inform you that the members of the Association of Buying Offices, Inc., will endorse this movement on your part to its member retailers. It is understood, of course, that we are doing this based upon the conclusions arrived at through the many conferences we have had in which we have stated our problems." A. (Witness referring to paper.) The conclusions were that it would not be advisable for Mr. Rentner and Mr. Post openly to admit that we had exemptions, but they would grant verbally those 10782 exemptions to us, since they recognized that leniency would be required until such time as the chains were members of the Guild; and, furthermore, they recognized that leniency was necessary until such time as the low-end manufacturers would be equipped with designing staffs to take care of retailers' requirements. Are those conclusions, sir?

Examiner Averill: That is enough.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How did you arrive at those conclusions?

Examiner Averill: That is a fair statement.

Mr. Weisman: Now, I object to the next question.

Examiner Averill: What is it?

Mr. Weisman: "How did you arrive at those conclusions?" Now, they are going into the operation of his mind. He has given his conclusion. Having given us the ultimate, it is perfectly incompetent for this witness to keep on spraining his wrist by patting himself on the back. He has given us his conclusions, and until such time—— 10784

Examiner Averill: I think the objection is sound, gentlemen!

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

Examiner Averill: He has told us his conclusions, now. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the basis for those conclusions?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to.

The Witness: May I answer that one?

Examiner Averill: What was the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Weisman: I object. 10785

Examiner Averill: Has he not told us?

Mr. Haycraft: I will put it this way——

Examiner Averill: Now, his conclusion is drawn. Read the question.

(Question again read.)

Examiner Averill: Now, off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Haycraft: I haven't any further question. I withdraw the question.

Examiner Averill: I think that answers it. I do not see that there is anything further to go on.

The Witness: May I add anything further about that paragraph?

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I am going to ask you——

The Witness: I am sorry.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: All right, gentlemen, let us go forward.

Mr. Weisman: By the way, you were not even right about that, one of your usual exaggerations.

10787 Examiner Averill: Have you not finished with this (referring to Commission's Exhibit 900)?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The reference to the many conferences in which we have stated our problems refers to what conference (handing Commission's Exhibit 900 to witness)?

Mr. Weisman: May I have that last question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is, conference with whom, or between whom.

Mr. Weisman: May I have the question.

(Question again read.)

10788 A. Conferences between members of the A.B.O. and members, or executives of the F.O.G.A.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What members of the A.B.O.?

Mr. Weisman: If you remember.

A. I do remember.

Mr. Weisman: I know, I can see it by your joy.

A. Mr. Greenebaum and myself, particularly, as well as Mr. Rentner and Mr. Golby of the Guild, particularly, of the F.O.G.A., your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Yes. Where and when.

A. Conferences—many conferences between the date of May 4 and the date of this letter.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where? A. At the offices of the Guild; Mr. Greenebaum's office, I think, and in luncheons over the table. I 10790 remember one in particular between Mr. Golby, Mr. Rentner and myself at the—at the Ritz, I think it was.

Mr. Post: Do you not mean Post?

The Witness: I am sorry, Mr. Post and Mr. Rentner.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a moment——

The Witness: At the—at the Ritz-Carleton, I think it was.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, at these conferences, did either Mr. Rentner, Mr. Post, or Mr. Golby—? A. It was not Mr. Golby.

Q. —any three of them, give any explanation why the arrangement or agreement that you had with them with 10791 respect to leniency was not to be made public?

Mr. Weisman: No, no. He said "in words or substance."

The Witness: Thank you, sir—said in words or substance that the Guild had now signed several thousand retailers. I do not know whether he had said six, seven or eight, but in the neighborhood of several thousand—and that obviously since we only represented 1,700 retailers he did not want to have anything appearing on the records anywhere that he had ever agreed, at least in that year, that there should be any exemption for low price merchandise. Is that complete? Does that answer it?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes. I want to make clear on the record, if I can, Mr. Examiner, what, how——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): "What, how"?

Mr. Haycraft: I will strike that out.

10793

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I would like to ask the witness to explain to the Examiner, and for the record, as to what would be needed in the way of protection on a $10.75 cost line——

Mr. Weisman: Objected to——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. $10.75 manufacture cost line.

Mr. Weisman: It is incompetent.

The Witness (continuing): If $10.75 manufacturers are to be given protection by the F.O.G.A., complete protection, as they propose to do, it would

10794 be necessary for retailers to return copies at all price lines even down to a dollar or less——

Mr. Feldman: 50 cents.

The Witness: 50 cents.

Examiner Averill: Now, wait a moment, let the witness testify.

The Witness (continuing): —in order to cooperate properly. And that was impossible at the time, and that is why leniency was asked for of the Guild, the leniency that I have been talking about ever since——

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: —the meeting of May 4.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Why is that so?

Mr. Weisman: I object to this. He just said why.

Examiner Averill: What he means is this—one moment. You mean by saying it was impossible to 10796 get that, that the low-price retailers——

The Witness: The low-price manufacturers.

Examiner Averill: The low-price manufacturers——

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: —would not be willing to do so?

The Witness: The low-price manufacturers were not equipped to do so with designing staffs, see?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: Were not equipped to do so.

Examiner Averill: Well——

The Witness: They did not have it, but retailers had to have merchandise, you see, so that here we 10707 would be in a position of having to buy merchandise that we knew we would be asked to return, because there was none other than that type of merchandise offered, do you not see?

Examiner Averill: In the low prices?

The Witness: In the low prices. Practically everything is a copy of something that is better, emulated, or copied, or adopted, or something, from something that is better, in the low-price ranges, and they were not equipped in any way whatsoever, see, to give us merchandise that were not copies, or, I should add to that, except in a very slight degree. You see, they were not equipped to give us copies—

Examiner Averill: Which could be sold at the low prices?

The Witness: Which could be sold at the low prices, in those brackets where 83 per cent. of the piece units of the merchandise manufactured in the United States is sold, 83 per cent. of the total production of the United States, on or about the year 1935 was below $6.75 cost, most of which were copies, and produced for the mass consumption in this country. Does that explain it, your Honor?

Examiner Averill: It gives us your views; that is what I was trying to get.

The Witness: That is right, those are my views.

Examiner Averill: That is right; yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, with respect to cost lines above $10.75.

Mr. Weisman: Judge, is this not a good time to adjourn, it is 12.30.

Examiner Averill: Is it 12.30? Well, let us finish with this subject.

10800

The Witness: What is that?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the situation with respect to cost lines above $10.75, as the plan originally started when you first co-operated with the Guild? A. Well, for the price lines above $10.75, we felt—I felt that we could co-operate down to and including $10.75, and that was originally, and in the year 1935, I felt that we could co-operate down to and including $7.75, since $7 and $8.75 had been added subsequent to the prior—as price lines in the market—they had been added as price lines in the market subsequent to June, 1933. That is, there may have been a very few, but very few price lines at $7 and $8 during 1933; but in 1935 quite a few had been added, and we felt—I felt that retailers can go along down to and including $7.75; that is, to return copies down to $7.75, but not to co-operate, that is, on returning copies of $7.75. Is that clear?

Examiner Averill: Yes, I see what you mean.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In other words, if a garment was sold to you, to one 10802 of your member stores, at a cost of $8.75, and it was a copy of a dress manufactured by a Guild manufacturer, of, say, wholesale cost of $20, did you believe that the $8.75 garment should be returned as a copy? A. Yes, we felt—we felt that it was practical, because the market was more equipped with designing staffs at that price, you see, than in the lower brackets, and, for that reason, the instances would be less, because in above $6.75 the relative volume of pieces sold in the United States is small, see? And the number of instances that we would be called upon to make returns are relatively few; but when you go below $7.75 you get into a tremendous volume of transactions where the mass population of the United States are served, and with whom we do business. 10803

Q. That would include the basement stores? A. Basement stores, upstairs stores, budget shops, and all of that type, chain stores, mail order chains, and all of that category who previously did their business in merchandise, or did their business, up to this year, in merchandise costing up to $6.75.

Mr. Haycraft: Do you want to take a little recess?

Examiner Averill: Yes, sir. Gentlemen, it is now half-past twelve. We will adjourn until 2 o'clock, unless you want to come back sooner?

Mr. Martin: No, sir; 2 o'clock will be fine.

Examiner Averill: All right.

(Whereupon, at 12.32 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

10805

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, did you present your views and your opinions to Mr. Rentner and other officials of the Fashion Originators Guild of America at the time you had the discussions with respect to the activities of the Guild during 1933, 1934 and 1935?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as having already been answered three or four times on three or four different occasions.

10806

Examiner Averill: I am rather inclined to think it is already in evidence, but he may say so again.

A. Yes, I did, from the beginning to the end, as I have stated previously.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When did you first meet Mr. Post, or know Mr. Albert M. Post, the present executive director of the Guild? A. Well, I could not tell you. I have known Mr. Post for several years, not intimately until the last three or four, but for several years I have known him in the industry from his retail activities.

Q. Did you have any conversation with him in June, 1933, with respect to the Guild particularly?

Mr. Weisman: I object.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, let me call your Honor's attention to the fact of the inherent vice in this question, because the evidence clearly shows that Mr. Post was not with the Guild in June, 1933. 10808

Examiner Averill: They may have discussed it, anyhow.

Mr. Weisman: Suppose they did, what relevancy or competency has it on direct examination?

Examiner Averill: I do not know, but we will see what he says. Objection overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

The Witness: I would like to be specific in answering the question. Will you please read the question again?

(Question read.) 10809

A. As I recall it, I did.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you give me the approximate date? A. On or about June or July 1, somewhere in that neighborhood, if my memory serves me correctly, I discussed with Al Post—in 1933.

Mr. Weisman: I object to what he said.

10810 Herbert L. Bergdahl—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did Mr. Post do at that time? A. At that time he was merchandise manager for Mandel Brothers, Chicago, Illinois.

Q. Will you state the circumstances of that conversation and the substance of it?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as immaterial. Suppose he did have a talk with anybody. Suppose he talked with somebody connected with the Emporium in San Francisco, or with Mr. Weber of Hudson Brothers in Detroit, Michigan, this witness is speaking with somebody who is unconnected with 10811 us. It would not be pertinent. He has done so, and now he wants to know the circumstances of that conversation and how this could be under any kind of circumstances used against us I cannot see.

Examiner Averill: If Mr. Post at that time was not connected with or affiliated with the Fashion Originators Guild of America I do not see that it has anything to do with this particular case. Objection sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Even Mr. Haycraft knows that.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At that time were you active in the committee work of the A.B.O.?

10812

Mr. Weisman: I object.

Examiner Averill: This question is what this witness did. He has a right, a perfect right to ask him that. He just asked what this witness did at that time.

Mr. Weisman: We do not want to deal with "activities." If that is the purpose of this testimony he should tell us what he did because his statement that he was "active" means nothing. That is a conclusion. One man might think that he was doing so much and was being quite active, when another might think that a different set of movements constituted activity, and the third one might think that was not active at all on the part of either one of them, and it gives you no consensus as to what might actually mean "activity" as being anything definite. What this man did is one thing. If he will tell us what he did then we can tell whether that is active or not.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. 10814

A. Well, I was still chairman of the committee. As such, I was active in conversations with the Guild, the F.O.G.A. You have reference to 1935?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. 1933. A. No, I was not. There was no A.B.O. at that time.

(The letter heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 906, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, what was the occasion of sending out that letter? 10815

Mr. Weisman: I object to that. Now, after we have gotten through getting this in, the vice of this becomes more particularly apparent because after he gets this letter in, which in itself is incompetent, he is not satisfied with the letter and we must assume that all, under our theory of law, that antedates the letter is entered into the letter, and the reason for the entry into evidence of the document is, I still think, are very dubious of probity, and I think we all know that after he gets the letter in he should stop there, but no, he is not satisfied with that, but he now tries to get in crabwise information now which he says was the occasion for sending out the letter. This is certainly a pari patetic presentation of words and letters and things of that sort in evidence, and I think it is highly improper.

10817 Examiner Averill: I am inclined to agree with you. The paper on its face states the occasion for sending out the letter. There is no use of his repeating what is contained in the first paragraph of the letter. That shows the occasion and what it arose from.

Mr. Haycraft: I desire to know beyond that.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you have any discussions with any official of the F.O.G.A. with respect to sending out this letter to the members of the A.M.C.? A. May I refresh my memory from looking at that letter?

Q. Yes. A. I did.

Q. What was it?

10818 Mr. Weisman: I object as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. I discussed the subject of returns at that time with both Mr. Post and Mr. Rentner.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What about the letter? Did you say anything to them about sending out this letter to members of the A.M.C.? A. No, I do not recall that I did. I do not know whether I did or not.

Mr. Weisman: May I ask that the prior question and answer be stricken.

Examiner Averill: Denied.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 907 for Identification and ask if you can identify that as an original letter 10820 from Mr. Post to yourself under date of October 8, 1935? A. I can.

Q. I will show you Commission's Exhibit 908 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that as an original letter from Mr. Post to yourself under date of October 9, 1935? A. Yes.

Q. The pencil notations in the upper lefthand corner, were they on it when you received it? A. No, they were placed on there by myself afterwards.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 909 for Identification and ask if you can identify that as a letter and form attached to Commission's Exhibit 908 for Identification, when you received it? A. They were on there; yes, sir.

Q. Dated October 4, is it not? A. It is. 10821

Q. Did you receive these exhibits for identification in the ordinary regular course of business? A. I did.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibits for Identification, 907, 908 and 909.

Mr. Weisman: No objection.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 909, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit 907, reference is made to the Retailers Research in the first paragraph; what is the Retailers Research? A. I identified and defined it as being one branch of the A.M.C., the non-selling activities in the department stores of the retailers—it heads up in New York in the general status of the non-merchandising activities.

Q. It is a part of the A.M.C.? A. It is the A.M.C.

Q. Had you had any conversation with Mr. Post prior to October 8, 1935, that prompted him to send you that list, sir? A. Well, I think Mr. Post volunteered this in-10823 formation to me as the result of conversations on returns.

Q. In other words, you had no previous conversation about any specific returns? A. We had plenty of conversations about returns, I did with Mr. Post, especially as to the amount of them because I did not know how much they were, anyway, and he said he would show me, he said he would prove it to me that they were not very much, and he sent it to me so that I would know about it. I think it was voluntary on his part as the result of our conversations.

Q. What action, if any, did you take upon receipt of this October 9, 1935, either in the capacity as merchandising manager of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, or chairman of the F.O.G.A. committee of the 10824 A.B.O.? A. We discussed this at our weekly meeting.

Q. Who is "we"? A. The A.B.O., Associated Buying Office members.

Q. Did you take any other action?

Examiner Averill: What was the action?

The Witness: We agreed among ourselves that this group was fairly representative of the market in which Mr. Post, or of which Mr. Post discusses in that letter, and that we should help to get these manufacturers into the Guild. It was part of the program of getting them all together so we could force them to come along. We were guilty of forcing it just as much as they were, and I will admit it freely.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you do in order to bring that about? A. Why, I think I went so far as to go with Mr. reenebaum, I believe at the invitation of some of these manufacturers here to a dinner meeting to express my personal views to these people, and as far as I understand it, and Mr. Greenebaum understood it, the views of the A.B.O., re- 10826 garding the question of this group becoming members of the Guild.

Q. What did you tell them at that time at that dinner meeting?

Mr. Weisman: I object. He has told us his views. He has told us what his views were. He probably told the meeting his views. Did you give the meeting the benefit of your views on this subject?

The Witness: I expressed to that group the opinions I had regarding the F.O.G.A. on the question of membership, and as far as I could see what the retailers were thinking about it. I, however, expressly stated that we could not commit the re- 10827 tailers but we could state what we thought that they believed, or would do.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you tell them your views were and why did you tell them that you thought the retailer knew about it—I withdraw that. What did you tell them that you thought the retailer would do?

Mr. Weisman: It does not do me any harm. I am glad to hear that Mr. Bergdahl was in favor of this.

The Witness: You knew it. You knew it.

Examiner Averill: That is all right.

Mr. Weisman: I had always gathered that he was against this particular thing, and I am delighted to know that he was for it.

The Witness: You must have known it.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10829 Q. Mr. Bergdahl, in this letter from Mr. Post to you October 9, 1935, he states: "Will you kindly present this matter to your membership and advise us when it will be convenient to go into the matter more thoroughly?" Did you do that? A. We took it up with our membership and advised the Guild, I believe, verbally. I cannot say that we wrote a letter.

Q. What did you advise the Guild? A. We advised them, as I have already stated, that we thought this list of manufacturers was fairly representatives of that part of the industry, and I—that they thought—and I thought that they ought to go ahead and try to take them in as members, and that we should help them to do so because then it had reached this stage of the game where we felt 10830 we had to get these low-end manufacturers in if we were going to survive, and if our business was going to live in the low end we had to get all of the others in with us. We were in a miserable state of affairs and liked to have some company, if you please.

Q. What was done, Mr. Bergdahl, with respect to the agreement between you and Mr. Rentner as to the matter of leniency in return of goods on the part of retail dealers after the $6.75 group of manufacturers became members of the Guild in October, 1935?

Mr. Weisman: I object to this question as having already been answered at least once, and possibly twice, and I object to its being answered again on the ground that it unnecessarily adds cost to the respondents in this case, and it is simply a reiteration of the same thing over and over again, and it seems to me that we are just chasing ourselves around in a circle.

Mr. Haycraft: Is it necessary to answer that?

Examiner Averill: What is the situation?

Mr. Haycraft: It has not come up to this point in my examination. I have taken this as a historical presentation of this whole situation. I have come now for the first time to October, 1935, and I have not been there before.

10832

Examiner Averill: Are you referring in this question to these parties whose names are shown on Commission's Exhibit 909.

Mr. Haycraft: Except those parties that became members of the Guild.

Examiner Averill: Such of them as became members.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, up to this time there was a return of goods, and I am asking whether there was any variation in it.

Mr. Weisman: Why don't you ask him the conversation as he had it between so and so, and what he said and what the other fellow said, and I will have something concrete. These omnibus shotgun explosions out of the window in the hope of hitting a butterfly are impossible to properly cross-examine upon. I have no objection to putting the facts before the Court.

10833

Examiner Averill: Mr. Bergdahl, please tell us in regard to the particular firms you know what they may have told you about, or can you give us your knowledge as to the entire situation——.

The Witness: I do not quite catch that, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Mr. Bergdahl, tell us, please, now—let me state this so you will understand it. In regard to the particular form, that you know what he is talking about now, what, if any, action was taken, and if so, what action it was after this list, Commission's Exhibit 909, of parties had become members, or such of them as had become members, what was the action, if any, that was taken?

10835

The Witness: I do not understand the question, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: Go ahead.

The Witness: I understand the problem very well, your Honor, and I think you misunderstood the question, your Honor, that Mr. Haycraft had in mind. I understand the problem so well, your Honor, that I can penetrate it, I believe.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the question be properly reframed so that I can understand it, because I do not understand it, and the witness says that your Honor does not understand, and I am sure that we do not either of us understand it and something should be done about it. I must object to the present situation. I, therefore, object to the witness answering a question which neither the Court nor counsel for the respondent understands.

Examiner Averill: I think that the witness can tell us what the facts are, and after all, all that we want are the facts, and after he gives us the answer I will strike it out if necessary. I think that would be the best way to proceed.

Mr. Weisman: In the difficulty that we are faced with now, it would seem to be one possible way out of this maze.

The Witness: I will try to enumerate as briefly as possible the events which followed the taking in of these manufacturers.

Examiner Averill: Go ahead.

The Witness: The admission of these manufacturers into the Guild.

Examiner Averill: That is, those on this list, Commission's Exhibit 909, who later actually became members.

The Witness: Yes, sir. Where was I, then? 10838

Q. (Answer read.) A. —entered into a mutual understanding that there should be more stringent returns, or more enforcement of the return policy on the low end as far as retailers were concerned; that shoppers would become more watchful of low-end merchandise, and more and more, as time went along, no period or no limit date was set, but increasingly as time went along there was to be a greater degree of co-operation by the retailers who handled low-end merchandise with the Guild policy.

Now, that resulted in some stores feeling this policy established by the Guild more than others, particularly those who were more aggressive in the sale of low-end merchandise, and particularly those who had smart buyers who knew how to fix so-called "hot numbers" that were 10839 near or somewhere similar to copies of styles that were manufactured by the Guild members, and one such store I remember in particular which called for some help——

The Witness: Just cross out that last statement, beginning with "one such store." One of the problems—when these return requests were made, as far as A.M.C. stores were concerned I could call up Al Post on the phone, or Jack Goldston or Mr. Golby and talk it out with them and sometimes they would see my point, and other times they did not, and generally we could get together on something and there was an understanding. They would either return the dresses or they would state what could be done. However, Mr. Post said: "You know this had to be more and more strengthened, and there has to be more and more returns, you cannot get too many excuses in here, or too many exceptions." I said, "I understand that." And then Mr. DuBriell called me on the telephone, 10841 he is the vice president of the Associated Dry Goods Corporation, and he was at that time in charge of their New York office and they were members of the A.M.C., and he said, "Bergdahl, you have got to help me. I cannot live under this policy of returning all that the Guild shoppers are asking us to do, particularly in McCreery's. They have good buyers down there and they have a lot of hot numbers, and they are asking us to return them." So, "Will you see," he said, "if you cannot get Mr. Post and Mr. Rentner and let's sit down and talk this out," so we did and Mr. Post was kind enough to come over to our office with Mr. Golby, I believe, or Mr. Goldston, I am not sure which one it was, but I feel quite sure it was 10842 not Mr. Rentner, but I know Mr Post came over, and Mr. DuBriell and myself, and I think Mr. Greenebaum was there, and we decided that the returns should be limited to an extent since all stores could not be asked to return too much even if it were true at that date. So Mr. Post agreed with me in good faith, and I think Mr. Rentner approved it subsequently, and the board approved it subsequently that if any store returned in any given month 5 per cent. of the stock it had in any given department, that would be considered sufficient co-operation. If, on the other hand, they wanted to consider their whole dress stock consisting of all departments, including the inexpensive as well as the better dress departments in the store, the figure of 3 per cent. would be figured substantial co-operation, and once that figure had been reached, or either of those figures, whichever the store wanted to take as its basis in any given month, then that store would be given, or would be giving sufficient co-operation that month, and would not have to return any more dresses unless 10844 they chose to do so. That was the spirit of leniency that existed between us at that time.

Mr. Weisman: What time was that?

The Witness: October, 1935.

(Whereupon, at 4.20 o'clock P. M., November 20, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, New York,
November 23, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M. 10845

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, subsequent to December 5, 1935, did you have any further conversations with the executives of the F.O.G.A. with respect to the policy discussed in Commission's Exhibits 918 and 920?

Mr. Weisman: Now, just a moment. We have had it once, Judge, before these exhibits went in. He told us at length.

Mr. Haycraft: I said any more from now on.

Mr. Weisman: Then ask him, in addition to what he has already told us, whether there is any more. You have asked him subsequent to December 4, and he has testified fully and at length already as to conversations. Now, what you mean, if he has anything further to add. If that is it, I have no objection; but I do object to a reiteration.

10847

Mr. Haycraft: I have not asked for a reiteration.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, yes, you have.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I call attention to the word "further," Mr Examiner.

Examiner Averill: It is all right. The objection is overruled. Just say "yes" or "no" first.

A. Yes, I think so. I recall that we had conversations, Mr. Post and I did.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10848 Q. What was the——

Mr. Weisman: May we have the date?

The Witness: I could not give you the date, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the substance of those conversations? A. Well, it is hard for me to state exactly what they were, except that I told Mr. Post that I thought he should not press the returns issue too much, too strongly, since, if he did, it would precipitate a break in our relationships, since we could not possibly go along any more than we were.

Q. What did he say? A. At that time—at least, at that time.

Q. What did he say as to that? A. Well, he let me know that it was the Guild's policy to expect increased co-operation. This was a—I think I have repeated this before, but this was a progressive co-operation that was supposed to increase as the months went by, and every time we had a return to adjust, that we had some objection to, in conversation with Mr. Post this whole subject would come 10850 up, and even—if I was called over to the office on a style piracy hearing, the subject has come up, and, as I recall it, we did have one conversation in particular in the office. I think it was in January.

Q. 1936? A. 1936.

Q. What— A. In which I stated my views to Mr. Post and he stated his.

Q. Did he, during those conversations, tell you that if the stores did not co-operate as he expected them to, that they would be red carded? A. Well——

Mr. Weisman: I object to the form of the question. There is not any testimony that Mr. Post expected them to co-operate "as he expected them to." The witness has said that Mr. Post expected 10851 increasing co-operation on the matter of returns, and that was all the testimony that we have had on that.

Mr. Haycraft: That is what I refer to.

Mr. Weisman: Well, then, the question should be made to refer to it, not to the co-operation that Mr. Post affixes.

Mr. Haycraft: The question is plain enough.

Mr. Weisman: All right, I think it is now.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: He may answer that question. Exception noted. Go ahead.

A. He told me specifically that Mr. Charles Taylor was a bad actor, or a bad boy, or words to that effect; that he was—he was watching him.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. With what store is Mr. Taylor connected? A. Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia.

Q. Did he tell you at any time that he was going to red card Strawbridge & Clothier before he did it? A. He did say he was going to red card—he was going to red card Strawbridge & Clothier.

Q. When did he say that? A. When the—the night that the F.O.G.A.-N.R.D.G.A. had had a meeting in the N.R.D.G.A. offices Post called me at his home—at my home, and I was not there, so I called him late in the evening, and he said, "I have decided to send a letter to Strawbridge & Clothier telling them that if they don't sign the new contract, the new agreement, they are going to be red carded."

Q. What did you say to that? A. I said, "Well, Mr. Post, it is your business; you are doing it, I am not. What do you want me to do about it?" He said, "Well, I am just telling you." I said, "All right, I guess there is nothing I can do about it." Says, "O.K."

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How long after this first conversation did you learn that Strawbridge & Clothier was red carded? A. I do not have anything here that calls it to my mind.

Q. Do you have anything you can refresh your recollection from now? A. As I said before the recess, I think I have in the papers of the firm, the papers from Strawbridge & Clothier, indicating that there was such a meeting and I believe it was about February 4. I had intended looking that up during the luncheon hour so that I could 10856 tell you, but I have not been able to do so; but as I recall it, it was about February 4.

Q. At that time and on that occasion did Mr. Post tell you why the Strawbridge & Clothier store was to be red carded? A. Yes, he did tell me so.

Q. Why did he say they were to be red carded? A. Because Mr. Taylor had refused to divulge the name of a manufacturer at the Guild shopper's request. I should say he had refused to divulge the manufacturer, the manufacturer of an alleged copy or copy's name.

Q. Did you have any further conversation with Mr. Post with respect to red carding any member of the A.M.C.? A. No—well, at about this same time Mr. Post, in February—not February, but in January, Mr. Post did tell 10857 me that the J. L. Hudson Company was——

Mr. Weisman: Chiseling?
The Witness: Not chiseling.
Mr. Weisman: Cheating?
The Witness: Not cheating.
Mr. Haycraft: I object.
Examiner Averill: Proceed.

A. That the J. L. Hudson Company seemed to misunderstand the agreement that existed between Mr. Post and myself and that they wanted so many exemptions, as he stated it, that something would have to be done about it.

Examiner Averill: This was in 1936, January and February, 1936.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you later learn that other members of the A.M.C. had been red carded?

Mr. Weisman: We have now a statement of 10859 February 4, and now we have jumped back to January, and another time in December, and may I ask what is referred to by this "later"?

(Question read.)

A. I did.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. I have an objection. I do not know what this "later" refers to.

Examiner Averill: I think it would be well to give some date. It is all mixed up now. We do not know when it refers to.

Mr. Haycraft: My previous question referred to that date, and therefore we have to be accurate.

The Witness: May I explain my last answer——

10860 Mr. Weisman: Wait for a question.

Examiner Averill: You may explain it.

The Witness: The Examiner asked what year, so I said these conferences—he asked me about year what I said these conferences about red carding took place, and I will say that they were all in January and February, 1936.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. You testified, as I recall your conversation, that on or about February 4, 1936— A. Yes, one of them then.

Q. The next conversation you referred to was in January, 1936? A. No, no—oh, yes; oh, yes; he asked me about another conversation.

Q. Yes. A. I said on or about the same time. You know I had no calendar, so I am trying to be honest and explicit and I said on or about the same time.

Q. You then went back to January, 1936? A. Yes.

Examiner Averill: Now I want to ask counsel when this last question was directed to the witness did you refer to January, 1936, or did you refer to February, 1936, or tell us what date you are talking about. 10862

Mr. Haycraft: He made the statement February 4, so it would have to be after that. I do not see what wrong there is in the question, or what harm there is.

Examiner Averill: There is no harm in it, but it would save a lot of time if we would go ahead and state when it was.

Mr. Haycraft: He certainly would be talking about that. Certainly it would be subsequent to January or February, so there is nothing particularly wrong with it.

Examiner Averill: I certainly did not say there was anything particularly wrong with it, but certainly if it were more explicit, if you will just state the date you mean, it would save a lot of time. 10863

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. After February 4, 1936.

(Previous question read.)

The Witness: I do not understand.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. After February 4 1936, did you learn that other members of the A.M.C. had been red carded? A. Yes.

Q. How did you learn of it? A. I read it in "Women's Wear."

Q. You read it in "Women's Wear"? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to February 10 or February 11, 1936, did you know that Strawbridge & Clothier had actually been red carded? A. We learned it on February 10, I believe, 10 or 11. I had been told that they would be if they did not sign a new declaration, but we did not know that they were told—we did not know this definitely until this 10865 announcement came out.

Q. Had you been informed by anybody from the Guild, or the F.O.G.A., that the R. H. White Company had been red carded? A. No.

Q. Had you been told that they would be red carded? A. I cannot say that I was told that, no.

Q. Did you learn of any other stores of the A.M.C. being red carded or that were to be red carded?

Mr. Weisman: Do you mean on or about that time, or when do you refer to?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Subsequent to that time. A. Did we learn?

Q. Yes. A. We learned through announcements in the 10866 press that they were red carded.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this be marked for identification.

(The paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 922.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 922 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that as an announcement in the press referred to in your last testimony? A. No, it is not the one I had in mind. I think I had in mind the one of February 18.

Q. You did not have this one in mind? A. No, I think this is not the one I had reference to, but the one I had reference to is the one in which all the stores were red carded, which I think is dated February 18.

Q. This is dated February 14. A. Yes. There were one or two, and then there were three or four more afterwards, and finally the whole group of sixteen. 10868

Q. When did you learn that Bloomingdale's, Hudson's, Kern's, the Hub of Baltimore, were red carded? A. When we read it in the press.

Q. On or about February 14, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Between February 10 and/or February 11, 1936, and February 18, 1936, did the A.M.C. stores take any action which was communicated to the Fashion Originators Guild of America with respect to further co-operation with the Guild? A. Between February 11 and February 18; is that your question?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, we did.

Q. Was there any meeting of the A.M.C. held, officials of the A.M.C.? A. No, not that I recall.

Q. Subsequent to February 18, 1936, had your organization, the A.M.C., made any attempt to secure merchandise from the members of the F.O.G.A. with whom you had been dealing prior to that date? 10869

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, irrelevant, what somebody else did. The best testimony would be as to the people who did it.

Mr. Feldman: They did testify.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Yes, we did attempt to get merchandise for our stores.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken as irresponsive.
Examiner Averill: The motion is denied.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What success did you have in your attempts?

10871

Mr. Weisman: Objected to, as to the form of the question, on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, calling for a conclusion of the witness.
Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Yes.
Mr. Weisman: May I have my exception, Judge?
Examiner Averill: Certainly, certainly, to all of it.

A. Why, we did not get any merchandise.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, have you had occasion in your line of duty to make a study of the market for ready-to-wear garments, dresses, women's and misses' dresses, coats and suits, to ascertain the available sources of supply in the various lines of manufacture, of members of the Guild and non-members of the Guild, to enable you to testify as to the percentage of the market that is controlled by members of the Guild as compared with non-members of the Guild?

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. I object to that question on the ground it is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, no proper foundation laid, calls for a conclusion of the witness, is not in proper form and—I think that is enough.

Examiner Averill: Mr. Bergdahl, will you kindly answer the question, because the objection is overruled and exception noted for counsel? You may answer that question as to whether you think you can express an opinion in regard to these matters.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. First, whether he made a study.

Examiner Averill: Made a study of them. 10874

A. I did make a study——

Examiner Averill: Yes.

A. —of the market, to find out where we could get merchandise for our stores.

Examiner Averill: From both members of the Guild and non-members?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: That is part of that question. That is why I asked it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now the second part of it. 10875

Examiner Averill: Now, did you make a study of the percentages?

Mr. Feldman: Has he made previous studies of that character?

A. Well, as a result of our study of the market——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. I object to that, "our study." He was asked about his study.

Examiner Averill: Just use it as yourself, please.

Mr. Weisman: Well, if he did it himself, Judge.

Examiner Averill: Well, I——

A. I did not do it myself, Judge. I am in charge of a division of people whose work it is to give me information regarding the market, if I want it, and give our stores information regarding the market, and they—I discussed this subject with them to find out where we could get merchandise for our stores in the market.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

10877 The Witness: And from them—from knowledge, discussions and from the work and effort we made to get merchandise for our stores I think I can give an opinion as to percentages.

Examiner Averill: I see.

The Witness: Maybe——

Examiner Averill: That is all right. What is the next question?

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 941.)

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

10878 Q. Have you prepared a memorandum for showing the comparative 1935 dollar volume of members, affiliates and protective affiliates, of the F.O.G.A. as against the entire industry?

Mr. Weisman: I object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial unless he shows what he bases that upon. A man comes in and says, "I prepared something, I wrote up a fairy tale and I am now putting it in evidence"; the fact that he made this up, that he wrote himself a nice story, whatever it is—I have not seen it—would not make him competent.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record. Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled to that question. You may answer that question.

A. I prepared this memorandum.

10880

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 941 for Identification and ask you if that is the memorandum? A. That is.

Q. What was the basis of fact upon which you prepared this memorandum? A. Why, this is the result of collaboration between myself and information I gathered in the office and information gathered by Harris & Serwer.

Examiner Averill: Who?

The Witness: Harris & Serwer.

Examiner Averill: Who is he?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Spell that name. A. Harris & Serwer, H-a-r-r-i-s & S-e-r-w-e-r. 10881

Q. Who are they? A. They are the agency that does publicity work, investigations, and so forth.

Mr. Weisman: It is an advertising——

The Witness: Research.

Mr. Weisman: It is an advertising agency.

The Witness: Research. I think they have been quoted by the F.O.G.A. as an authority, and so forth.

Mr. Weisman: You are mistaken about that like you are about a great many other things. I ask that this be stricken out from this witness' answer, that he thinks we have quoted them. We have quoted them as showing that they do not know what they are talking about.

Examiner Averill: Just a moment. This firm you speak of, are they accountants, public accountants?

The Witness: No, they are not.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10883 Q. Research bureau, are they not?

Mr. Weisman: They are nothing of the kind, Judge.

Examiner Averill: Let him answer.

A. They are a research bureau and I think they have a very good knowledge of the industry.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that that be stricken out.

Examiner Averill: No. I am trying now—this is not evidence we are receiving now; we are trying to establish—it is in an endeavor to show that the sources upon which the witness relied and the sources to which he went to gain the information which enabled him to compare the statement that 10884 has been shown him. That is all we are after right now.

Mr. Weisman: But, Judge, it is clearly incompetent. You cannot pile hearsay on hearsay.

Examiner Averill: Not piling hearsay on hearsay. A man has a right to say how he gathered the information, and if it does not prove to be competent, why, then the paper will be thrown out.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

Examiner Averill: But he certainly has a right to state. You cannot possibly ascertain until you ask him.

Mr. Weisman: All right, all right.

Examiner Averill: He may have gone to the very best firm of accountants in the United States.

Mr. Weisman: Suppose he did——

Examiner Averill: That is all right. Please answer the question.

Mr. Weisman: —and that these accountants——

Examiner Averill: But he has a right to say so.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, but that would not make it competent, if these accountants did not have access to our books. 10886

Examiner Averill: I do not know what they had. That is another matter; but you cannot do everything at once.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Averill: You want to work the impossible. It cannot be done. If he did it the other way, you would say that was wrong.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Averill: And you know it.

Mr. Weisman: I will restrain myself.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 942.) 10887

Examiner Averill: Let us go on a little further to see what develops. To my mind that is sufficient.

Mr. Haycraft: I am coming to that.

Examiner Averill: All right, I do not want to hurry you.

10888 Herbert L. Bergdahl—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you a paper marked Commission's Exhibit 942 for Identification——

Examiner Averill: The same paper you are talking about?

Mr. Haycraft: No, that is the next one, Commission's Exhibit 942. In other words, it is the basis for this, one of the papers he used in preparing that Commission's Exhibit 941.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

10889 Examiner Averill: Read the last answer.

(Last answer read as follows: "A. They are a research bureau and I think they have a very good knowledge of the industry.")

(Thereupon the motion was read as follows: "Mr. Weisman: I ask that that be stricken out.")

Examiner Averill: The motion to strike is denied because this is not being received as testimony now; it is only being received as information that would enable us to determine whether the paper when offered, if offered, is competent. I do not know. I cannot tell until I know how it was prepared.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10890 Q. Do you know the way in which——

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Bergdahl, where you obtained the information upon which you base your estimate in this Commission's Exhibit 941 for Identification, under the column entitled "Members of affiliates and protective affiliates"? A. Well, I took the F.O.G.A. membership as of the time this was started, from the 1st of March, or thereabouts.

Mr. Weisman: What year?

The Witness: 1936.

A. (Resumed) And asked Mr. Serwer to prepare a statement, if he could, on what the volume of business was for the respective categories in the industry. He told me he could give me that, and prepared it, and this is the summation of the figures that he gave me.

10892

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you make any check of it from your own standpoint? A. Yes, I have checked it, spot checked it, with manufacturers—with members of the F.O.G.A.

Examiner Averill: What do you mean by "spot checked"?

The Witness: Well, I mean that I have taken members of the F.O.G.A. whom I know and asked them whether or not they did so much business. I personally asked them.

Examiner Averill: Do you have with you or have available the papers, if any, that were submitted— 10893
I suppose they were in writing—by this firm you speak of to you, showing the detail?

The Witness: I have not got them with me, no. These are copies here.

Examiner Averill: You mean they are copies here?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Might I look at one of those a moment?

Mr. Haycraft: Surely.

Examiner Averill: Just to see the form of it and let Mr. Weisman see the form of it.

Mr. Haycraft: I will be glad to turn these all over to Mr. Weisman and let him check it against his own records if he wishes. I am satisfied they have been having the same sort of a check made.

Mr. Weisman: No, we made an honest check—

Examiner Averill: No, please.

Mr. Weisman: We made a proper check. This is what we did. Do not take this on the record.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

10895 (There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, do you know Mr. Jack Goldston of the F.O.G.A.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As far as you know in your contact with the F.O.G.A., what is the position he holds and what does he do? A. He is in charge of the style policy and enforcement activities, as far as I know.

Q. Have you had any contacts or conversations or conferences with him with respect to style piracy enforcement on the part of the Guild? A. When?

Q. During the year 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first have any contacts or conversations or conferences with him with respect to style piracy 10896 enforcement and under what circumstances were you first contacted by him or did you first contact Mr. Goldston? A. You mean Mr. Goldston?

Q. Yes. A. Why, when he first began the work. I think that was the early part of 1935 or late part of 1934. I cannot tell you exactly.

Q. What was the occasion of your contact with him? A. The occasion was the settlement of these disputes or differences as regards copies, and so forth, between the A.M.C. stores and the Guild, and also when he would call me and ask me to sit on style piracy meetings, style piracy judging committee meetings.

Q. Did you co-operate with Mr. Goldston when called upon to do so? A. Yes.

Q. What was the machinery that was set up by the Guild to determine whether or not an alleged copy was a copy? A. Well, should I go back to the beginning?

Q. Well, first. A. Well, when the retailers—at first, before there were shoppers, the Guild depended upon retailers to make complaints against each other on copies and bring them to the attention of the Guild, of the F.O.G.A., 10898 which would then investigate in some way to ascertain whether or not they were such copies and ask the offending retailers to make returns. Subsequently, they employed Mr. Goldston and shoppers, retail shoppers. They shopped retail shops in several of the cities of the United States, beginning with the largest cities first, and then working down into the smaller cities whose duty it was to watch the style piracy activities. It was the duty of these shoppers to write the F.O.G.A. in the respective cities when they found such things, to represent the F.O.G.A. in the respective cities, as their representative, and to shop the retailers for copies and make reports to the local office of Mr. Goldston in New York here. Mr. Goldston would, when copies were called to his attention by complaining retailers, or through the shoppers, or both, 10899 would investigate and if he thought it was a copy, after examining it, ask the retailers to return those copies. At that time Mr. Goldston may have had some assistance from the manufacturers on these piracy committees before these committees were changed, but it was my understanding that Mr. Goldston did the work pretty much alone. In other words, he judged whether or not it was a copy but he may have had some assistance from the members of the

Guild, the F.O.G.A. It was my suggestion, because of the complaints that I had from retailers from our A.M.C. retailers as well as complaints that I heard from the A.B.O. that the Guild should attempt to set up some kind of a piracy committee that would not be entirely of Guild executives or Guild members. I told Mr. Post at the time that I thought retailers were fair in objecting to having Mr. Goldston make decisions as to whether or not dresses were copies since no matter how unbiased Mr. Goldston might be, retailers would have the valid reason for having an alibi or for excusing themselves, and for finding a reason to differ with Mr. Goldston since he was paid by the 10901 Guild to do his work. I suggested that a style piracy committee should be composed entirely of retailers; and that there should be no F.O.G.A. members on these committees. Mr. Post agreed with me that that was a good idea and he submitted it to his membership. I think they were reluctant to give assent to that type of judging because they felt the retailers—a committee composed solely of retailers might be unfair to the Guild, but he finally did convince them that it would be worth a try—at least, Mr. Post told me that he convinced the members that this should be done. As a consequence, machinery was set up by which the F.O.G.A. could call upon some 200 or 250 buyers and merchandise men in New York department stores and New York resident offices for a revolving, so-called revolving style piracy committees. Does that answer your ques-
10902 tion?

Q. I think so.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, I do not know if you followed that. I did not object, but it clearly shows it is not responsive, but if your Honor thinks it will help you to see the whole history of the matter, I am not objecting to letting the answer stand as it is.

Examiner Averill: I think it just goes to the history, it probably is not altogether responsive, but I think that it is to a certain degree responsive.

Mr. Weisman: May we have Mr. Haycraft ask when this arrangement was concluded?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Please answer that. A. I asked if I should start at the beginning.

Q. Yes. A. This brings up to the fall of 1935 when this finally went into effect; I do not know just when in the fall, but some time during the fall.

Q. Did you serve on any of these piracy committees? 10904
A. Yes, on two or three occasions I did.

Q. Did any of your employees serve on those committees? A. Yes, they served from time to time.

Q. From your observation and your experience and the reports that you have from your own employees, has the Piracy Committee of the Guild, as it is now selected and constituted—I mean now since December, since the fall of 1935—an impartial and unbiased committee? A. I am sorry to say that I——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. May I have that question read?

(Question read.)

Mr. Weisman: I submit the question is wholly incompetent. I call your Honor's attention to the 10905 fact that the method of getting those committees together was suggested by this man. He is asking for a time, furthermore, when this man has not been working upon them as he has heretofore; there has not been that spirit of co-operation and he is too biased to make a fair statement. It is not Guild members; it is retailers. It is retailers who are used to judge.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question again read.)

Mr. Weisman: I submit that the question is incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and calls for the conclusion of the witness.

Examiner Averill: He has been asked for his opinion, which is a conclusion, of course, and that is what we have to give on matters of this kind. I will overrule the objection; exception noted.

(Question again read.)

A. Why, they may be, but I think generally they are not.

10907 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What are the facts on which you base that conclusion? A. Well, when my buyers come back I always asked them what the dispute was about, if I was not at the F.O.G.A. office myself, and from those reports I learned certain things about this during the fall of 1935 because there were any of these hostilities, and Mr. Weisman talked about. I learned, for example——

Mr. Weisman: I submit that all of this is hearsay. That the witness has ably demonstrated that what he is testifying to is not first hand. I now ask that all his answer be stricken out.

Examiner Averill: He has not reached the answer. He is now giving the date upon which he has 10908 based his opinion and upon which his opinion, therefore, is given. Certainly, counsel has a right to ask upon which basis his opinion is given.

A. I find that there were, or, rather, I found that there were two—in other words, if there were two better dress buyers, for example, on a committee of three, as against one inexpensive dress buyer, that the two better dress buyers might and frequently were inclined to favor their better end—that is, the F.O.G.A. manufacturer, and that they would be tempted to vote against the non-Guild manufacturer, particularly if they had the dress in stock, it would be hard for them to be fair even to a near copy. Now, if there were two inexpensive dress buyers on the committee, they very frequently——

Mr. Weisman: May I now object? I think it is now clear what the situation is to your Honor.

Examiner Averill: All of this thing is going in, as repetition, because I think it has already gone in here, and I think I can put my finger on the record at the point where it has gone in heretofore.

Mr. Weisman: He has been asked the question as to what he based his opinion upon, and he has gone far beyond that. 10910

Examiner Averill: He is telling us so.

Mr. Weisman: May I most respectfully differ with your Honor in regard to that? I am sorry to differ with you, Judge, because the answer to that question would have to be "My buyers came back and told me so and so." And I say that would be hearsay because he is telling what they came back and told him, and we ought to have the buyers here to tell us what they came back and told him, and then we can interrogate them in regard to the matter. This completely shuts me off from any fair kind of cross-examination upon the matter.

Examiner Averill: But he is asking what was the information that influenced this witness. 10911

Mr. Weisman: It would be clearly incompetent. You would have to bring the buyers here.

Examiner Averill: What the buyers told him is what affected his opinion. It is the effect produced upon the minds of the people; it is the effect produced upon the mental attitude, and he is giving us that, although I think it is all in, my objection to this is that this is all repetitious, this is all right in there already about the buyers on this committee, and how they sometimes came from different businesses and represented the low end or the high end, and that sometimes there were two of the better, and one of the lower, and they would vote one way and the other one would vote the other way, and then vice versa whether there were two of the low end on there and one of the better dresses, they would vote just the opposite. I do not mean to say that those are the facts, but that is in here just how the committee is made up from time to time, and you stated yourself that it differed every day.

10913 Mr. Haycraft: Let the witness finish the answer, if your Honor please.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled; exception noted. What was the question?

(Question read.)

The Witness: What was my answer to it?

(Answer read.)

A. As against one better dress buyer they would be inclined to favor the copy since it would be to their interest to do so. At least, that was my experience with these committees.

By Mr. Haycraft.

10914 Q. Where did these committees hold their meetings? A. At the F.O.G.A. office generally, but not always. I believe at times they were held out of town, although that was not the original plan as it was originally arrived at.

Q. When they were held in New York where were they held? A. As far as that is concerned, I think they were all held at the office of the F.O.G.A.; every one that I ever heard of, anyhow.

Q. Who selected the committee? A. The F.O.G.A. executives selected the committee.

Q. Who attended the meetings? A. Who attended the committee meetings?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Weisman: At this time, I would like to address myself to a motion to strike. The witness has finished his answer and I would like to make a motion to strike the entire answer and the questions relating thereto since he is now on a new query.

Examiner Averill: I think he is still continuing on the same thing, is he not?

Mr. Haycraft: I am still on the piracy commit- 10916 tees and on the facts on which he based his opinion.

Examiner Averill: Counsel says he is still on the question of supporting his reason for his feelings as he has expressed himself in that regard.

Mr. Haycraft: That is correct, your Honor.

Mr. Weisman: Very well. Let us get over with it as soon as possible.

A. They were attended by the retail members of the Guild as well as the executives of the F.O.G.A. who were in the office; it was held in their office, and manufacturers, the interested manufacturers could be present if they wanted to; not always at the committee meetings, but they were present——

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the latter part be stricken. He was asked who was present and now he is telling who can be present and he should be kept to those who were present, it seems to me under the question that was asked him.

Examiner Averill: He is saying that some of them were present, but not always. You know some classes of people might be there at a certain meeting, and not others, and others be there at a certain meeting and others be absent; in other words, it changed around from time to time, as I understand it.

Mr. Weisman: Quite true, but this man said he attended altogether two or three and where he gets the knowledge to testify as to all of this I cannot understand. I know that he has testified that on one or two or three occasions he was there. Now, he is describing all of the meetings of these committees which were held, and they were held very frequently.

Examiner Averill: He is giving his general pic-10919 ture upon which he has stated his previous impression.

Mr. Weisman: I do not see how he can say what happened when he was not there.

Examiner Averill: He is telling us what ones were present, and, of course, different ones would be there on different days.

Mr. Weisman: Of course, if anybody reads this record they would think that this man sat in on each and every one of these hearings, and that he knows what he is talking about, but unfortunately it is obvious that he has not been there, and it is simply a question of a witness who is only too willing to testify.

Examiner Averill: I think the whole thing to 10920 me is as clear as the noon day sun. I understand it very well.

The Witness: But they were——

Examiner Averill: Was the person from whom the alleged copy was taken present at the hearing?

The Witness: I said the interested manufacturers—from the retailer?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: No, the retailer frequently was not present, I mean the particular retailer that made the accusation, I do not recall that they ever were present, but they may have been; there was no proscription against anybody, anybody could be there, I guess, that wanted; they were held out in the open.

Examiner Averill: How about the retailer that was accused of having the copy—was he present?

The Witness: Retailers were not accused, but manufacturers.

Examiner Averill: The retailer where the garment may have been found.

10922

The Witness: No, they could be, but if they were out of town, they would not be or could not be, physically.

Examiner Averill: What officials of the F.O.G.A. were present?

The Witness: Any of them that were in the office could be present. They sometimes were held in Mr. Post's office, at which time he might be present if he happened to be there.

Examiner Averill: And how about the rest of the officials of the F.O.G.A.?

The Witness: Mr. Golby might be there, or Mr. Goldston, or any of the three might be there, or all three, or any two of them.

Examiner Averill: That is all I wanted to ask. 10923 I think I have it cleared up as far as I am concerned.

Mr. Haycraft: Shall I continue?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the procedure that took place? A. The procedure was to ask the committee to look over the—the retail committee to look over the dresses in question, or copies, whatever the case might be, or the suit or coat, and render a decision as to whether or not they thought one was a copy of the other. The committee would reach its decision and tell the F.O.G.A., or Mr. Goldston, what the decision was.

Q. To your knowledge, were those decisions ever changed by officials of the F.O.G.A.? A. Why, not to my personal knowledge, but some of my buyers——

Q. Reported to you such? A. Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I object to what was reported to him.

10925 Examiner Averill: I think that is going too far. The people who reported anything of that sort should be the witness in this case. That is going too far. I have stretched it a good deal, but I cannot go quite that far.

The Witness: Of course, I have one instance where I discussed the matter with Mr. Goldston in some detail, and the decision was changed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In what instance was that? A. It was in connection with some dress company versus somebody else; I do not think of the name just now. This particular Guild member—that was before they became members of the 10926 Guild, and it was a case in which a given committee went the other way and in which one of our buyers was a member, and the Committee made the decision that the dress was a copy. The manufacturer brought it to my attention, or, at least, it came to my attention, and I called up Jack Goldston, and I said, "Jack, in your own honest opinion, is that a copy of the dress in question?" And he said, "Well, frankly, I do not think it is." I said, "Very well, why do you send it out as a copy, then?" He said,

"Well, I do not know, but that is the decision of the committee." I said, "Well, you had better see that that is changed because obviously this is unfair, and I am going to make an issue of it because it is not right." I think as the result of that there was some change in the decision. However, prior to that when the committee was in action they made two different decisions on that particular dress, which was subsequently brought to my attention.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, it is now 4.20, and counsel having asked for an adjournment at that hour in order that he may be present in New York before the United States Circuit Court, we will now adjourn to reconvene at 10 o'clock to- 10928 morrow morning in this room.

(Whereupon, at 4.20 o'clock P. M., November 23, 1936, the hearing was adjourned.)

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, New York,
November 24, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M. E.S.T.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(SAME APPEARANCES:) 10929

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, whenever you are ready, you may proceed.

Mr. Haycraft: All right, Mr. Bergdahl, will you resume the stand.

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, based upon your experience and knowledge of the merchandising problems of the retail dealers in women's and misses' ready-to-wear garments, and, in your capacity as general merchandising manager of the A.M.C., and as chairman of the F.O.G.A. committee of the A.B.O., and taking into consideration all the facts that you have related in this proceeding as to the operations of the F.O.G.A. program, to curb so-called style 10931 piracy, please state your opinion of the effect of that program upon the retail dealers of women's and misses' ready-to-wear garments from the standpoint of their ability to obtain a supply of merchandise, and ability to sell that merchandise in competition with other dealers in the industry, confining your answer, first, to so-called specialty shops handling women's and misses' ready-to-wear garments, who are co-operating with the Guild by returning to manufacturers garments that are alleged to be copies of garments manufactured by the members of the Guild?

Examiner Averill: That is quite clear.

Mr. Weisman: That is all right. I have no objection.

10932 Examiner Averill: Now, then, Mr. Bergdahl, you may tell us.

A. Well, specialty stores of the type you have referred to in the question, are for the most part those who deal in better merchandise——

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor——

Examiner Averill: Now, wait.

Mr. Weisman: No, no.

Examiner Averill: He has to do this in order to answer the question.

Mr. Weisman: No, he says that——

Examiner Averill: As to ability to obtain supplies.

Mr. Weisman: But, Judge——

Examiner Averill: He must first state what kind of supplies they have to obtain.

Mr. Weisman: I submit that he does not. I want my objection to appear on the record.

Examiner Averill: All right.

Mr. Weisman: He is asked for his opinion. 10934

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: He is not asked to argue his opinion; and I submit that a hypothetical question given to a witness, the courts have again and again said if after the witness is qualified, and based on something, he can then give his opinion. Now, this man has been asked his opinion, that in the ordinary and regular procedure requires an answer, in my opinion, thus and thus is the fact, not a long exhortation upon why he thinks it is, or argumentatively presenting his knowledge of it. He is asked for his opinion, and I submit we should have his opinion in answer to such a question.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. 10935

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: May I have an exception?

Examiner Averill: Surely.

The Witness: Now, may I have my answer read?

Q. (Answer read.) A. (Resumed) In my opinion, therefore, they do not have any trouble getting merchandise, because the whole market is open to them, not only the non-Guild market, but the Guild market as well. As far as selling merchandise is concerned, they are materially assisted by the F.O.G.A. program because of the fact that the program itself tends to eliminate competition; it will eliminate competition on copies, and mere copies of better merchandise made by Guild manufacturers which is handled by these specialty shops.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, to that same question, I will ask you to confine your answer to those speciality shops that are not co-
10937 operating with the Guild, and do not return garments to manufacturers that are alleged to be copies of garments sold by members of the Guild. A. All right. Such shops, in my opinion, or, as I understand them, are, for the most part, those shops who handled merchandise in the low-end brackets, primarily up to $6.75 cost, but in rare cases possibly a little higher. These shops have had very little difficulty obtaining merchandise, because they were doing business in brackets where the Guild had very few members, and, furthermore, had very few members— Cross the last out. —as far as selling the merchandise is concerned, they were materially assisted by the Guild program since that program tended to eliminate some competition of these low-end specialty shops who are not co-operating with the 10938 Guild, those signatories to the Guild program, or, rather, those retailers signed up with the Guild program who previously had handled copies and near copies, and adaptations of merchandise manufactured by Guild members, and there might materially assist these specialty shops in disposing of their merchandise with less competition.

Q. With this same question, this same foundation question, I will ask you for your opinion of the effect of the Guild program upon department stores handling both high- and low-priced garments— A. Is the question finished, sir?

Q. —first co-operating with the Guild program by returning to manufacturers garments that are alleged to be copies of garments manufactured by the Guild manufacturers.

Mr. Weisman: Just wait a minute. I assume that when we are speaking of the Guild program in this query, and in all these lines, this line of queries, my learned adversary is referring to the Guild program, as it was at some particular point. Unfortunately, that point has not been fixed in these questions. Obviously, the program has been 10940 a different one all along. I assume, therefore, if Mr. Haycraft concurs therein, that the question projects itself to the Guild program as it was in February, 1936, and these answers shall be deemed as of that date.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I think that will aid the record materially.

Mr. Haycraft: Correct.

Examiner Averill: Is that correct?

Mr. Haycraft: That is my intention.

Examiner Averill: That is how you understood it, Mr. Bergdahl?

The Witness: Yes. 10941

Examiner Averill: I just want to know if he understands that as to his answers—he said he did —so that will be all right. Read the last question —or do you know what it was?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: You know what it was?

The Witness: I understood it; yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: But now off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: Would you like the question read again?

The Witness: No, I am just trying to think—

Mr. Weisman: Oh.

The Witness: —think about the answer. In my opinion, and according to my experience, most department stores handle a range of merchandise, generally, from the very lowest up to price lines that are controlled by the Guild. Many department stores also have budget shops and basements where they specialize in low-end merchandise.

10943 Such department stores co-operating with the Guild could only do so from the beginning with a leniency consideration, as has been described here, and those stores, even with the leniency consideration, which got more stringent as time went along, up to February 1, 1926, when——

Examiner Averill: 1926?

The Witness: 1936.

Examiner Averill: Surely.

A. (Resumed) —when it was withdrawn entirely, I mean, the leniency consideration. And those stores would, when that leniency consideration is withdrawn entirely, find it very difficult to maintain a competitive position in their respective localities. If they chose to co-operate 10911 with the Guild on the complete program, without leniency consideration, they would have to return merchandise in the low end that the specialty shops, who were not co-operating with the Guild, could keep and sell. If they chose not to go along with the Guild, they are then faced with the situation of trying to be competitive with the better specialty stores who handle Guild merchandise and have a free and open market on all price lines, without having the benefit of buying and handling merchandise that is manufactured by Guild resources—by F.O.G.A. resources.

This would prove, in my opinion, very difficult for most department stores, since most department stores in the United States to-day have been in business for a number of years, and in accordance with the laws of the land have been permitted to grow, invest money, put capital into the business, on handling merchandise whether they were copies or not, without infringing on laws of the land——

The Witness: Whether they were copies or not without infringing the laws of the land. Now, as I understand it, these department stores have 10946
(have been) permitted in accordance with the directors of the industry to handle copies——

Examiner Averill: You mean "have been permitted"?

The Witness: —have been permitted in past business practices, and without infringing on any laws, as I understand it, have been permitted to handle these copies as were made by the industry, and ', after they have built up a big business, or a considerable business, according to their ability, to ask them not to continue handling such merchandise——

Examiner Averill: When you say "such merchandise," you mean copies? 10947

The Witness: I mean copies. —affects their whole tempo and their investment and everything that has been built up by them in their respective communities, so that to some it would be very difficult—to sum it up, it would be very difficult for a department store to sign up with the Guild program, and honestly live up to it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now— A. Particularly if they handle low-end merchandise.

Q. Have you completed your answer? A. I think I have, sir.

Cross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, as executive director of the A.M.C., who is your immediate superior?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question because the witness has not said that he was executive director.

10949

Mr. Weisman: Very well. I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is your position with the A.M.C.? What are you? A. At the present time, I am general merchandise manager.

Q. Thank you. The mistake was mine. A. O.K.

Q. As such general merchandise manager, who is your immediate superior? A. Col. Reilly.

Q. What is Col. Reilly's full name? A. Phillip J. Reilly.

Q. From Col. Phillip J. Reilly you take your orders?

10950 A. He is my superior.

Q. Well, what does that mean when you say he is your superior? Do you not take orders from him if he sees fit to give you them? A. That is right. I do.

Q. Now, who is, in turn, the person or persons to whom Mr. Reilly reports to? A. I am sorry, I did not get the question.

Q. Who is, in turn, those to whom Col. Reilly reports? A. Store principals.

Q. You mean, the executive committee of the A.M.C.? A. Yes, if you wish.

Q. No, I do not wish it as I wish; I want it as the facts are. A. Well, it is the same thing, but if you want to call it the executive committee, all right.

Q. It is not what I want to call it. You might be surprised what I really would like to call it. Do you people call it the executive committee? A. Yes.

Q. I just want to get a sketchy picture of the organization for which you work. In other words, does this organization which is composed of, in the main, these eighteen stores, and the executives of these eighteen stores, do they composed the executive committee of the A.M.C.? A. 10952.
That is right.

Q. I said eighteen, but I meant to say twenty. There are twenty of these stores? A. Yes.

Q. Does the executive committee function as the board of directors, you might say, of a corporation, in that it directs the policies and affairs, generally, of the A.M.C.? A. That is right.

Q. The direct executive officer to carry out the directions and policies and fiats of the executive committee is Col. Reilly, Col. Phillip J. Reilly? A. He is.

Q. And you are under him? A. Yes.

Q. As such merchandise manager, have you made any study of the markets, the retail market, and the problems thereto, aside from your direct experience? A. How do 10953 you mean?

Q. Well, I mean, sometimes executives are known to read brochures on the subject which they are concerned with. There are economic professors of various colleges and universities who write on these things, and who conduct researches. Have you made it your business to keep yourself well informed as to who are recognized in the industry, and in the merchandising field, as authorities in this business in which you are engaged?

Examiner Averill: Are there any such?

Mr. Weisman: Yes, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: You mean theorists?

Mr. Weisman: Well, they are not alone theorists, but there are a number of well-known economic advisers who have made great research into these problems, collated the evidence and facts, and presented them to the public. As a matter of fact, I believe it is not secret that the A.M.C. employed one of those, to wit, Prof. Paul H. Nystrom.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question read.)

10955 Examiner Averill: The question may be answered.

The Witness: What was the question before that?

(The prior question was read.)

The Witness: I do not understand.

Examiner Averill: He means, have you conducted any investigations or read into the literature of the so-called experts or theorists and college professors. A. As I understand the question, I cannot say that I have.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In the exercise of your duties, did you ever hear that 10956 there were pamphlets or books put out by the Department of Commerce of the United States, let us say, upon these problems of style piracy? A. No. I cannot say that I have.

Q. Did you ever hear that the advisory council of the N.R.A., after the N.R.A. had been declared unconstitutional, had made a coliation of all the facts which had been made available to it, and had written on this subject of style piracy as applied to the general merchandising of ladies' ready-to-wear? A. I did not know that they had made such a thesis on style piracy.

Q. Did you ever hear of Professor Nystrom? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Professor Paul H. Nystrom, PhD., Professor of Marketing, School of Business, Columbia University, formerly director of the Retail Research Association, and the Associated Merchandising Corporation. That is the A.M.C., the last one, is it? A. Yes.

Q. When Professor Nystrom was with the A.M.C., was he the head of the A.M.C. at that time? A. He was the director.

Q. Yes. He was in the place that your superior, Mr. 10958
Reilly, now is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you, in the exercise of your duties, ever learn that Professor Nystrom had written books wherein—a book known as "Fashion Merchandising," based upon his experience as head of the A.M.C., and based upon independent investigations and researches that he had made? A. Well, I knew that he had written books.

Q. Did you know that he had written the book that I have just referred to, "Fashion Merchandising"? A. I have heard of it, but I have never read it.

Q. Did you ever feel that, as an expert in this line or engaged in this business, as you have testified—because we will see what sort of an expert you are as we go along—you should, or that part of your duties would be, to inform yourself with what other seemingly well-informed people 10959 had to say and think about these problems?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Martin: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Answer the question. A. Why, I think I know what Dr. Nystrom thinks pretty well without reading his books.

Q. You mean you know what he thinks because you have met him? A. Met him and talked to him.

Q. And talked with him about these things? A. Yes.

Q. At great length? A. Yes.

Q. Do you agree generally with Dr. Nystrom's conclusions, or do you differ from them?

Mr. Haycraft: With respect to what? I object to the question in the present form as too broad.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. With respect to the problems incident to fashion merchandising in ladies' ready-to-wear.

10961

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that unless it is restricted to the subject matter of this case.

Examiner Averill: I think it is too broad.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. With regard to style piracy. A. Why, if you will tell me what he wrote at one time or another I will try to answer you.

Q. All right.

Mr. Haycraft: I want to make this plain, that I shall object to any question that will refer to whether or not style piracy is good or is not good as a thing that should be done. That is not an issue in this case. It has not been made an issue in this case. The witness has not testified to that. The witness has testified to the effect that he felt so-and-so about the activities of this particular guild. I wish to object to any generalizations.

10962

Examiner Averill: I would like to ask if any question has been directly raised as to style piracy per se, and when I say "style piracy" I mean the copying of designs put out first by certain people and then other people copying them?

Mr. Haycraft: That is not an issue in this case.

Mr. Weisman: As I understand it, there is no allegation that that per se is an unfair thing or that the efforts to curb it per se is unfair.

Mr. Haycraft: No. That is not an issue in this case.

Examiner Averill: It is the methods used in an attempt to curb it that is the issue?

Mr. Haycraft: This effort made by this Guild.

Examiner Averill: Therefore, unless Mr. Weisman sees some good reason, I do not know that it 10964 is essential to go into the question as to the wisdom of the economic set-up or the economic reasons for endeavoring to protect your own designs. It seems to me there is no allegation that that per se is unfair.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, do I understand that counsel for the Commission will at this time be willing to and will stipulate that there is a right in a manufacturer of an original design to attempt to protect that original design from copying?

Mr. Haycraft: No, I make no stipulation with respect to that question whatever. It is not an issue in this case.

Examiner Averill: He will stipulate that there 10965 is no issue in this case, I imagine, as to that.

Mr. Haycraft: That question has never arisen in this case.

Examiner Averill: As to the individual right to attempt, by any fair means, to protect your own designs. That is not an issue in this case?

Mr. Haycraft: That is not an issue in this case.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. On page 218 of Dr. Nystrom's book "Fashion Merchandising," he says: "No sooner does a new design of any excellence appear upon the market than goods also appear, usually in poorer materials and workmanship, and almost invariably at lower prices." Do you agree with that?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Weisman: If your Honor please, that is a foundation question. I cannot ask all of my questions at once.

10967 Examiner Averill: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you agree with that, from your experience? A. I would say so.

Q. Dr. Nystrom then goes on and says: "Consumers are confused, and are naturally unwilling to pay higher prices when apparently the same goods are available at lower prices." Do you agree with that?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

10968 A. Not entirely.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Tell me wherein you differ. A. Well, in my experience, we have had a number of instances where merchandise is sold in the better priced lines long after it was copied.

Q. Dr. Nystrom——

Examiner Averill: He did not say that that was not so. I do not think the witness has fairly answered the question.

Mr. Weisman: I do not think so, either. I ask the question be read to the witness.

(Question read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. May I also say, when I ask you "Do you agree with that?" that I do not mean do you know of any specific instances where the situation has been different, but I mean: Is that a fair general statement?

10970

Mr. Haycraft: Of course, I am objecting to all of this as not proper.

Examiner Averill: Oh, this is proper cross-examination; he has a right, when you offer this man as an expert, he has a right to ask him what other men have thought about the matter who have written on the subject. My only idea is—and there seems to be such a confusion among counsel that I do not desire at the present moment to express a definite view upon it—I do not think, from my reading of the complaint, I do not think there is any issue in this case in connection with the efforts to check style piracy, so-called, but that the case is centered upon the methods used in the attempt to——

Mr. Weisman: Exactly.

Examiner Averill: —check style piracy, resulting with or dealing with, rather, the things that may have been done by this Guild in its efforts to check style piracy, as the copying of the original designs of others is referred to in this case.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, sir; and also as to whether or not style piracy may or may not be to an extent, and, also, as to what extent an evil in the industry, and that is the reason I am declining to stipulate with Mr. Weisman on that; and, furthermore, I am making these objections to these questions.

Examiner Averill: That is not a direct issue, as I see it, but I can see that collaterally it would have some effect because of the fact that you are asked to stop something which may be, per se, a beneficial thing; obviously, it would be entirely different from the situation if the thing which you might be attempting to stop was an evil. Obvi-10973 ously, if two automobiles are rushing down the street at great speed, and in excess of that speed usually adopted by vehicles moving down the street, and one of them is an ambulance upon a message of mercy, and the other is loaded with racketeers or bandits fleeing from the scene of a villainous crime, the actions of officers in stopping the two cars would be considered in a different light.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, then, of course I disagree with the Examiner in the light of the recent decision of the Supreme Court——

Examiner Averill: I do not happen to see it.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think it makes a bit of difference as to whether the subject-matter of the thing to be stopped is an evil, or not an evil.

10974 Mr. Weisman: That is a wrong interpretation of the——

Examiner Averill: One moment, one moment, gentlemen.

Mr. Haycraft: The contention of the Commission is that regardless of whether it is an evil or a benefit, that you cannot use a boycott to stop it, and that is the issue in this case.

Mr. Weisman: Well, this——

Examiner Averill: One moment——

Mr. Haycraft: In numerous cases where boycotts have been used to protect a beneficial thing, the courts say you cannot do it.

Mr. Weisman: That is not so.

Mr. Haycraft: And that is where the issue is in this case.

Mr. Weisman: Justices Brandeis, Roberts and Stone, those are the respective people who disagree with my friend's statements, and I do not want to add myself to those august presences, it would be presumptuous.

Examiner Averill: Go ahead, and I am going to 10976 let you go into it a little.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

Examiner Averill: Not too much, though.

Mr. Weisman: Well, just off the record, please.

(Prolonged discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: Now, back on the record. Read the last question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: I am going to overrule the objection, gentlemen, and let it go on, although I do not think that at this stage, as I have stated off the record, that at this stage the question as to whether the style piracy is an evil or a good is an issue in this case, but I can see where it might be 10977
an issue, or for the affirmative defense, but I am going to let you proceed for a little while on that, and then possibly you——

Mr. Haycraft: I wish to have an exception, Mr Examiner, to that ruling.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you please answer, Mr. Bergdahl? A. Well, it would be pretty hard for me to testify as to whether or not customers were confused; I have not heard of any confusion among customers on this plan, on this copying business. I think customers are aware that there is copying.

Q. Well, let me ask you this: Is it your statement that these—that when you find a copy—is it not generally a fact that the copy sells at lower price than the original? A. A copy generally sells at a lower price than the original.

10979 Q. And is it not one of the great contributing factors to that lower price that the manufacturer of the copy takes the benefit of the experimentation, designing, and so forth, of the manufacturer, or the originator, and just takes it over, without the expense of the original manufacturer—the manufacturer of the original had, with regard thereto? A. In the first place, I cannot quite agree that there are originals. I used the word "original" because I think I know what you mean, original with the so-called Guild manufacturers, but that does not mean that it is entirely original, you understand.

Q. We understand what we mean. We mean origination of design, and not of style. A. Now, will you—after I made that statement—what was the question?

10980 (Last question read.)

A. Well, if he takes—if he copies another man's dress, he takes it over, at whatever it costs him, to do that. Now——

Q. Well, is that the best answer you can make, Mr. Expert? A. Why, if a man copies another man's dress, I will——

Examiner Averill: His point is this——

The Witness: —I will agree that he does not share that other man's expense, if that is what he wants me to say.

Examiner Averill: That is what he meant.

The Witness: He does not go over to the man and say, "Here, I will contribute to your expense of doing business"——

Examiner Averill: Oh, no, no.

The Witness: I will agree——

Examiner Averill: Not the expense of doing business, that is not the point. Here is the point: Is there not some expense formed by the man who 10982 puts out what is termed to be an original design, in designing, in having it designed? Is there not some expense in that connection, which expense would not be attached to it who, seeing that design, used it and made a copy of it?

The Witness: That is right.

Examiner Averill: Do you see what I mean?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Is there not something of that sort?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: That is what he meant.

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Weisman. 10983

Q. Professor Nystrom further says: "No sooner than a new design of any excellence appears on the market, that copies also appear usually in poorer materials and workmanship." Is that not true? A. Well, new ideas are copies, and they are usually copied into lower-price lines.

Q. Well, no, and is it not usually in poorer materials?

A. Oh——

Q. And with poorer workmanship? A. Not always.

Q. No, I did not say "always." It is usually, we know that— A. Well, I beg your pardon, I wish it were usually.

Q. That is different. Do you differ— A. —generally, and many times, the low-end merchandise is better than the better merchandise——

Q. Wait a moment— A. —so let us get it very clear.

Q. Then you differ from Professor Nystrom's statement? A. Undoubtedly; many times I would differ with what he would say, and I think he would agree with me if I would talk to him on the subject, too, because we have had many chats on the subject, and he has admitted many times that I have new slants on things that he did not have.

Q. I see. A. I am not criticizing him any, see; he has the right to his opinion; but I have a line of work that he never has, and maybe I have a different——

Q. So, let us see. So, then, it is your statement, is it, that usually these copies at lesser prices are in merchandise, that is, in goods, that are equally as good, with equally good workmanship— A. It depends.

Q. —is that your statement? A. It depends on too many things.

Q. Would you then say— A. I will answer it: There are copies—there are copies which are as good, if not better, than the so-called "original"; at lower prices; and there are copies that are inferior, have inferior material and workmanship, at lower prices. There are both.

Q. Well, now, since this is so, would you not say, then, that by your very answer you have demonstrated that Professor Nystrom's statement, which I read to you before to the effect that consumer influence arises from this, is correct? A. No.

Q. No. All right. Now— A. I think the public knows what is going on. I think I know they are copies, and I think they can tell what they are. I do not think there is any confusion about it whatsoever.

Q. All right. Professor Nystrom further goes on to say: "As a consequence"—referring to the copying—"it is voluntarily impossible for any creator or originator to recover even the cost of his efforts to prepare new designs, to say nothing of making a net profit from any new designs." You differ with that, too, I take it? A. Is that the whole statement?

Q. That is, that ends the paragraph. A. That ends the paragraph, eh? What does that say again? You mean you have read the first two sentences of the paragraph previously?

Q. Yes. A. And now you are reading the entire other subject-matter of that paragraph; is that right? 10988

Mr. Haycraft: I suggest that the witness be allowed to read the sentence, and that portion of it.

Examiner Averill: You might let him see it.

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Would you like to see it? A. Yes.

(Counsel indicates in book to witness.)

Q. I just read you the last sentence of the paragraph starting here—I want you to read it—"As a consequence, it is voluntarily impossible for any creator or originator"—I ask you now, do you differ with that statement? A. Just a moment. 10989

Q. All right.

Mr. Haycraft: Of course, Mr. Examiner, I wish to make this observation, as part of my general objection to this question—this witness is not, in my opinion, prepared to testify, or an expert, as to the problems of manufacturers.

Mr. Weisman: Will you so stipulate? Did you not offer him?

Mr. Haycraft: Wait a moment until I get finished. I attempted to qualify him, and, in my humble opinion, I did not do so.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, well, all right, maybe I do not want to ask that question.

The Witness: Wait a moment.

Examiner Averill: Well, now, there is a question pending—if you want to withdraw it, all right.

Mr. Weisman: I withdraw that question in view of the statement made by Mr. Haycraft.

The Witness: What was the statement; may I hear it?

10991 Mr. Weisman: That you were not any expert as to manufacturers' problems.

Mr. Haycraft: I recall my hypothetical question that I placed with him was as to the retail problems, and I object to go into the manufacturers' problems.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Professor Nystrom says, referring to concerns which originate their designs: "Such concerns find their designs promptly imitated in a wholesale way as soon as placed upon the market." Now, do you agree or differ with that statement? A. Well, there are certainly exceptions to his statement.

10992 Q. No, I am asking you as a general proposition—do you agree with or differ from that statement? A. Well, I—I will agree with that, with the exceptions I noted.

Q. Now, Dr. Nystrom also says, referring to the industry as a whole: "Almost everyone deplores design copying in principle, but lacking any effective legal check, copying continues openly and brazenly." Do you agree with that statement, or do you differ from it?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to unless the time is indicated there, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I do not think—I think you have gone far enough.

Mr. Weisman: Your Honor——

Examiner Averill: "Openly and brazenly" are two words—if you want to make it whether copying are assuming larger and larger proportions, all right, ask him that.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: But when you talk about openly and brazenly, we do not know what the witness means by that, or what the learned author meant. 10994

Mr. Weisman: Well, I withdraw that and say:

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Professor Nystrom tells us that almost everyone deplores design copying in principle, but lacking any legal check copying continues——

Mr. Haycraft: Your Honor understands, of course, I have an objection to all of this line of examination.

Examiner Averill: All this line, yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you agree with that? A. May I read it? May I look at it myself? You said you had no objections. I would just as soon look at it. 10995

Q. Well, here I have no—it is a very simple question; there it is (handing book to witness). I do not want to hide anything from you, Bergdahl. A. Well, I would agree with Dr. Nystrom that copying is a very difficult problem to solve, and it does continue, but I do not want to use the same adjectives.

Q. No. A. I do not know what he meant by that.

Q. That is all right; I am trying—Now, he also says as follows: "Indeed, there seems to be scarcely any industry in the fashion field in which one may not now find producers who not only copy, but who systematically make up their lines by imitation of the best selling numbers of the leading creators in their respective industries." In your opinion, is that true, with regard to the dress market? A. When?

Q. Before the Fashion Originators Guild started its program? A. Well, I think there were many manufacturers—are many manufacturers who do that at the present time.

Q. In other words, then, I understand you would say that from your experience, that at the time that the Fashion Originators Guild was organized, there were a number of people engaged in this business who did no origination but merely copied the best selling numbers of the leading creators in the ready-to-wear business; is that not so? A. There were, including members of the F.O.G.A.

Q. Now, will you——

Mr. Weisman: I move that the latter part of the answer be stricken out.

Examiner Averill: Why?

Mr. Weisman: Well, because I think it is not responsive, and I will come to the question—I will give him the opportunity to say that immediately after, but I want it to appear very plain; I do not want to cover anything up.

10998

Examiner Averill: I know.

Mr. Weisman: See?

Examiner Averill: But I do not see why counsel——

Mr. Weisman: All right, I will let it stand, if your Honor thinks it should.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You said in answer to my question, "Yes, and that is true as to some of the people who are now members of the F.O.G.A." Is that correct? A. Yes, "including."

Q. —"some of the members of the F.O.G.A."? A. That is right.

Q. In other words, some of the members of the F.O.G.A., before the formation of the F.O.G.A., made their living by imitating the best selling numbers created by others?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Weisman.

11000

Q. Is that not so? A. I am not sure whether they did make their living that way or not.

Q. Do you remember at the time that the Guild was formed that copying or pirating of original designs had become very rampant—was on the increase?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "pirating."

Mr. Weisman: Well, I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You understand that the copying of designs, original designs, by these copyists, is generally referred to in the industry as pirating of designs—or is that something new to you? A. Well, I do not know that it is used any more than copying is, it——

11001

Q. Well, do you know whether or not— A. Since the Guild have come into existence they have used that word more than it was used before. Before that it was copying, as I recall it, copying.

11002 Q. You think that the Guild influenced Professor Nystrom to use the word "pirating"? A. I did not——

Q. Is that it? A. I did not say that.

Q. How do you explain— A. I said that——

Q. How do you explain that Professor Nystrom in his book, which was published before the formation of the Guild, refers to this practice as pirating? A. I could not explain it.

Q. You think it is a mere coincidence? A. I could not explain it, how he came to use certain words.

Q. But you understand that to-day in the dress industry there is a well-defined and customary term known as pirat-11003 ing designs, do you not know that? A. I know that.

Q. Do you or do you not?

Examiner Averill: Let the man answer the question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. "Yes" or "no," Mr. Bergdahl?

Examiner Averill: No, it is not a "yes" or "no" question; go ahead.

Mr. Weisman: Excuse me.

A. I know that that term has come to mean something in the industry since the F.O.G.A.—I mean, commonly among the people in the industry—retailers like myself, 11004 and buyers, and so forth, since the F.O.G.A. has become active, primarily with their piracy committees, that word "piracy" has been used more than before.

Examiner Averill: And has it not come to be in the industry synonymous with copying, the term "piracy," "pirating"?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Synonymous with copying?

The Witness: Now it has.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Would you say that at or about the time that the Guild was formed there was a great deal of piracy in the ladies' ready-to-wear field?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled.

A. Well, not any more than in the years preceding that. I have been in the business now for—what is it—fifteen years, or thereabouts, and, as I recall it, it was no different 11006 in 1932 than it was in the ten years preceding it.

Q. Well, do you not— A. Mr. Weisman got through saying that he has been in it seventeen years, and he has known it for seventeen years, that it has been business that this has gone on.

Q. No, I did not say anything of the kind. I said I knew the business for seventeen years. Do you not know about when style piracy, as such, commenced? A. Yes, when the ready-to-wear industry began in this country.

Q. When, in your opinion, as an expert, did the ready-to-wear industry begin in this country? A. Oh, I suppose—I should say about seventy-five years ago, as an industry.

Q. That is your opinion? A. Well, it became a sizable business; it began to be around that time, maybe a few 11007 years before that. I think prior to that time it was mostly a private tailoring business.

Q. Do you not know that the ready-to-wear industry in America has only an age as such, in the ladies' field, of about twenty-two years, do you not know that? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you not know that before that——

Mr. Weisman: We will prove it, Judge; that may sound strange to you—here is an expert that ought to know it, but your Honor does not know it.

The Witness: I——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not know that before then the ladies' ready-to-wear industry was carried on by the dressmakers, and there was not really a ladies' ready-to-wear industry? A. Prior to twenty-two years ago?

Q. Yes. A. That is not so.

Q. Let me ask you who, in your opinion, was the first 11009 manufacturer of ladies' ready-to-wear in the City of New York—do you know? A. No, I could not tell you.

Q. Did you ever hear of the firm of Jesse Wolf & Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would it surprise you to learn that it was Jesse Wolf who formed the ladies' ready-to—laid the foundation of the ladies' ready-to-wear industry in the City of New York, and that before the formation of his company we had no ladies' ready-to-wear industry? A. No, it would not surprise me.

Q. Well, then you think that may be a fact? A. Is that twenty-two years ago?

Q. What do you think? You are the expert. A. You are, for that information.

11010 Q. Well, do you not know, as a matter of fact, is it not common knowledge— A. The thing—I will say this—I do not know exactly when it began, but I know that the industry was in existence prior to 1900, that it was an industry, and it has been an industry for some time.

Q. How do you know that? A. Well, I have talked to a good many people who were active in it before I was.

Q. And they told you? A. Yes.

Q. That it was an industry? A. They have been in the business since they were children, and so forth, and it must be an industry that has been going on here for some years.

Q. Do you now say that when the ladies' ready-to-wear industry was formed there was immediately copying, or do you not know, as an expert, that copying first became noticeable in this industry in or about the year 1924? A. Well, now, I have been active in this industry since 1922, and it was very—it was thriving then.

Q. Well, would you say it was thriving to the same degree that you found it thriving in 1929? A. Yes.

Q. In your opinion, this copying, in the dress industry, 11012 then, was not a progressive evil that was growing each year by leaps and bounds——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "evil."

Mr. Weisman: Well, I will withdraw it. I want to make it very plain. I do not want to argue.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In your opinion as an expert, would you say that copying, as such, in and by itself, is an evil in the industry, or is generally regarded as an evil in the industry?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to unless the question carries with it what is meant by copying, whether 11013 he means exact copying, adapting, or coming as near to it as possible.

Mr. Weisman: Pirating, pirating.

Mr. Haycraft: No one knows what copying is exactly, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Weisman: Nobody but you.

Mr. Haycraft: We have not had a definition yet. I do not think anybody knows what copying is, and I object to the form of the question.

The Witness: I will tell you, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: Wait until I get a ruling.

Examiner Averill: Have you not already gone into that with the same witness, this same question asked?

Mr. Weisman: I assumed that that was the basis of the objection, and I did not want to press it, your Honor. I thought to make it plain. Of course, he said it was an evil.

Mr. Haycraft: No, he has not.

Examiner Averill: No, I did not say he testified it was an evil; I said he testified as to it in the early 11015 part of his examination.

The Witness: Will you read the last question to me again?

Mr. Weisman: What?

The Witness: May I have the last question read to me again?

Mr. Weisman: Surely.

Examiner Averill: Let us not go into that again.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. This matter of copying, or pirating, would you deny that from the year 1922, and thereon upwards, that it was getting progressively greater, and worse? A. I will 11016 answer that for you.

Q. Well, I want you to, I want your answer. A. But I cannot answer "yes" or "no"; if you want it that way I will decline from answering, but I will try to explain it, and I won't hide anything.

Q. I do not think you would. I think you want to be fair. A. I do not think copying changed any, or the practice of copying, as long as I have been in the business, but all production facilities may have increased, or made copying a little different than it was before, but the practice itself of copying merchandise has been going on just as aggressively all the time that I have been in business. I mean—since the first day I put my foot into this, I knew that that was the way that the mass of the industry made its living, by copying, by doing something else that the other fellow was doing, whether it was from Paris, or New York, here, or some place else. That is the way they did their business. That is the way the industry grew to be the biggest industry——

Examiner Averill: He also means, I understand, of course, that by reason of the large increase in population—— 11018

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: —the increase in the number of manufacturers, and the increase in retail stores—

The Witness: And production.

Examiner Averill: —that necessarily there was more copying or more occasion——

The Witness: There was more production.

Examiner Averill: —or more opportunity——

The Witness: There was more production, you see.

Examiner Averill: That is right.

The Witness: I used the words "there was production and copying" but not more copying, because I think that was just the same as it was before. In 11019 fact, when the industry was young, I think they knew so little that all they did was copying, see? I mean, they got all their ideas from Paris, or somewhere else, when it was a young industry—all they did was copying, they knew so little, and, if anything, since, the industry has been going the other way, and, without our so-called good intentions—what we try to tell them to put over—because I think I helped that little matter——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You mean you helped the Guild in this program? A. I surely tried to.

Q. And you did that because you thought that the program, when you were helping it, was a good program? A. At the time.

Q. Let me finish? A. At the time I did.

Q. Yes. A. At the time I did; at that time, though, I want to qualify it——

Q. My question qualified it, Mr. Bergdahl. A. Thank you.

Q. You say when you helped you thought that the pro-
11021 gram— A. I was sincere about it at that time.

Q. And you are not most sincere now? A. Well, I have learned a little about it in the meantime.

Q. No, answer it "yes" or "no."

Examiner Averill: He cannot answer "most sincere" now. That is not a question of sincerity. As I understand it, his views have changed.

Mr. Weisman: I want to find out what he said.

Examiner Averill: He might still be just as sincere.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you this: As an expert, and with the 11022 knowledge that you have testified to here, can you tell us generally whether or not in your opinion in a large number of instances the methods resorted to by the pirate, or the copyist, whichever you prefer, to obtain copies are ethical means or unethical means?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Mr. Weisman: I want his opinion.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

Mr. Weisman: In his opinion as an expert.

Mr. Haycraft: No place in this.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: An exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As an expert, has it ever come to your attention that a great deal of this copying is done by obtaining the original through unethical means?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "ethical."

Examiner Averill: Let him finish his question.

Mr. Weisman: I have finished.

Examiner Averill: You have finished? 11024

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: The objection is sustained.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Has it ever come to your attention that the copyist, or the pirate, in an effort to obtain the original would cause the original to be purchased by false representations that it was for resale?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Averill: Same ruling.

Mr. Weisman: May I understand?

Examiner Averill: The same line of questions; it is the same line, and the objection is sustained. 11025

Mr. Weisman: May I show what these copyists did? A. I mean, that he knows as an expert that these copies were obtained frequently through theft, through misrepresentation, through fraud.

Examiner Averill: I know, but that does not add anything to it.

Mr. Weisman: How?

Examiner Averill: I do not think that adds anything to the issues in this case, as I see them.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, is it your opinion that if retailers were to agree to refuse to handle copies the control and protection of design might be complete and effective?

11027

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Averill: That is proper cross-examination. Objection overruled.

A. If the retailers—what is that?

Q. If retailers would agree to refuse to handle copies, do you then believe the control and protection of design would be complete and effective? A. Do you mean all retailers?

Q. Yes. A. Every retailer in the United States?

Q. Yes. Well, I mean if we had 5,000 or 10,000 retailers, I mean that I do not mean that you have to get 10,000, I mean as we understand, substantially all. A. I would definitely disagree with you.

Q. No, no, not with me. I have not expressed any opinion. A. I understand.

Examiner Averill: He has not expressed any opinion. He desires an opinion from you.

A. I could not, if that question means that—if you will ask me, or if you are asking me that if a substantial number of retailers would agree to refuse to handle copies, then my answer would be no, that that would not solve the problem.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I did not ask you that, did I? You knew I did not ask you that, did you not? A. No. I am trying to answer you.

Q. Suppose we read the question. A. Yes.

Q. And you and I want to get along here. A. Yes.

Q. So, if you cannot answer my question, please, just say so, but if you can, please do so. A. I am trying.

Mr. Weisman: Will you read the question again, please? 11030

(The question was read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you understand that question? A. If you will qualify that as to how many retailers.

Q. I mean substantially all or those substantially who constitute all, we all know that you cannot reach or approach perfection in this life, but if substantially all of the retailers would agree to refuse to handle goods, do you or do you not believe that that would solve this problem? A. No, I honestly do not.

Q. In other words, you differ with Professor Nystrom where he says as follows—reading from page 233 of his book "Fashion Merchandising"—if retailers were to agree 11031 to refuse to handle goods—"if retailers were to agree to refuse to handle copies the control and protection of design might be complete and effective," do you disagree with that, or do you not? A. I disagree with that.

Q. Is that not exactly what I asked you a moment ago? A. Well——

Q. Wherein do you find any difference between my previous question and this answer that you have just given when you say "no"? A. Because Dr. Nystrom says if retailers—and he does not clarify that and therefore I am assuming—I would like to ask him about that, but I am assuming that the sentence means all retailers.

Q. You mean 100 per cent? A. No.

Q. In other words— A. No.

Q. In other words, when you read a statement like that appearing in Dr. Nystrom's book from which I have read it, with your experience and knowledge of this industry, and your expert and intellectual approach to it that means 11033 to your mind that not a single one would not agree; is that so? A. I am giving you my interpretation of the question that, I, I—of my interpretation of that statement that you read there.

Q. I think we have enough on that, and I thank you for what you have given us and I will stand and not spend any more time on that, I will stand on that as it is. A. It is on the record that I do agree with Dr. Nystrom in that particular sentence, but I disagreed on the first.

Q. Oh, now, you want to answer that second one "yes"? A. I thought I did answer it "yes."

Q. I understood you answered it "no." Do you mean your answer to that second question to be "yes"? A. I do.

Q. Oh, then I am glad you said so, because I understood you said "no" to it.

11034

Examiner Averill: Yes, I think you did say "no." Did you mean to say "yes"?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor, I meant to say "yes."

Mr. Weisman: At least, we have it straight, now, your Honor.

Examiner Averill: I think so.

The Witness: I want to be sure; it is on the record that I do agree with Dr. Nystrom in that particular sentence, but I disagree to the first.

Mr. Weisman: I think that is clear, your Honor.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Is it? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. If, however, a degree of trade co-operation, such as was theretofore unknown in the fashion industry, would be brought about between retailers and manufacturers, such co-operation would be effective in controlling this design piracy; is that so? 11036

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Averill: That is so obvious. Let the witness answer that. Objection overruled.

A. If all retail distributors?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That is not what I asked you. A. I mean—I will—I——

Q. If you cannot answer, Mr. Bergdahl, you just say so to me and I think that will answer the question. A. I cannot answer it yes or no.

Q. All right. Well, we will not press you. A. Thank you. 11037

Q. Because I would just as soon find out from you that you cannot answer it yes or no, as otherwise. A. O.K.

Q. In your opinion is design protection, properly planned and executed, a necessity to the sound establishment of industries in the fashion field?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you whether or not you are of this opinion, first: "Design protection is as necessary to the designer and the manufacturer of new designs as it is to the inventor of new machines or to the writer of books or music"? Would you agree with that, in your opinion, as an expert, or would you not say that?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. What possible relevancy can this have to it?

The Witness: Are you reading Dr. Nystrom's book?

11039 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Aside from whether I am reading from his book or not, what is your answer to that? A. I would like to know what you are reading from before I answer the question.

Examiner Averill: Just tell him if he wants to know. He has the right to inquire of that.

Mr. Weisman: If your Honor please, I made no reference to any reading from a book, and I simply asked the flat question which I think I am entitled to do. However, I have no objection to telling the witness, in order to satiate his ungovernable curiosity, and I will say that I am reading from the book. I used the book to help me frame the question.

11040

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. However, I will tell you that in my question, I used Dr. Nystrom's magnus opus. A. It does not make much difference, but I would just like to know. Will you read it now the way it is?

Q. (Question read.) A. I have not.

Q. If Dr. Nystrom so holds, you would differ with him? A. I would, yes.

Q. Dr. Nystrom tells us that in his opinion—at page 243 of his book—"Design protection is to the fashion industries what rules of the game are to the major sports." Would you agree with that, or is that an erroneous conclusion, in your opinion?

Mr. Haycraft: Objection.

Examiner Averill: Sustained—no, I think I will let him answer that.

The Witness: What is the question?

By Mr. Weisman. 11042

Q. "Design protection is to the fashion industries what rules of the game are to the major sports"? A. No, and decidedly no.

Q. You would disagree with that? A. Yes.

Q. I also see that Dr. Nystrom says, and I would like to know in your opinion whether you agree with or differ from Dr. Nystrom in this regard: "The present system permitting widespread unauthorized copying of designs created by others is essentially and morally, though not yet legally, as unfair and as wrong as the theft of merchandise." Do you agree with that?

Mr. Haycraft: The same objection.

Examiner Averill: The same ruling.

11043

A. I think not. I do not agree. At least, I would want to qualify it if I did answer it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In your opinion, do: "Most of the copyists find it much easier and less expensive and, on the whole, more profitable to take designs to which others have given great energy and ability, and which already have obtained a certain degree of popular approval, and reproduce them, if possible, at lower prices and sell them in competition with their originators rather than to attempt to create and design for themselves." Do you find that to be the fact? A. Are you putting that in the form of a question?

Mr. Weisman: Let me read it.

Examiner Averill: No, no, no.

The Witness: I would like to look at it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What was that? A. I say, I would like to look at it.

Q. No, I want the reporter to read it back, and I want 11045 to hold the book and check it up and see whether the record is right, and then if you can answer my question, all right, and if you cannot, all right, too.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I submit, Mr. Examiner, the witness is entitled to see the book.

Mr. Weisman: I submit he is not entitled to see the book, but he is entitled to the question that was asked him, or to say whether he can or not.

Mr. Haycraft: I think he is entitled to see the book.

Examiner Averill: The question as put to him can be considered by the witness, and he can either say that he cannot answer it, or that he can answer is as it is put to him, and if he cannot, say so, but 11046 he is not entitled to see the book.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask for an exception to your Honor's ruling.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

Q. Now, will the reporter read the question, and if he finds he cannot answer it, just say so, and if you can answer it, just answer it the best you can. A. It is rather long, and that is the reason I wanted to look at it in the book.

Examiner Averill: The reporter can read the question to you again.

Q. (Question read.) A. It is a statement put in a form that I do not believe I can answer, but I could answer it if I am allowed to answer it in my own way, but I cannot answer that "yes" or "no"; that is what I mean. I think I would like to hear the question again.

Examiner Averill: Read the question again, Mr. Reporter.

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as having five or six questions in one. Furthermore, the witness is 11048 not qualified to pass upon the possibilities of a profitable return to the manufacturer, or to know what their capacities are, or otherwise, as the case may be.

Mr. Weisman: He can either say yes he knows, or he does not know.

Examiner Averill: I think the question, the complexity of the question is one which the witness can take into his own consideration if he desires. The objection is overruled, and if the witness finds the question is too involved, and he cannot answer it, he may say so, but otherwise he may answer it.

A. I would like to answer that if it were broken down 11049 into—it seems to me there are three or four divisions of it, because I know that I can see three or four in there myself.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you agree with this statement as a general statement of fact concerning the industry——

Mr. Weisman: Read the question again?

Q. (Question read) A. No, I would not like to agree to that in a blanket form. If you will break it down, all right, and I will agree or disagree with it. I am not trying to be evasive, but I am really trying to answer these things.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you this: In your experience, is it not your opinion that these copyists or pirating manufacturers find it much easier and less expensive to reproduce an original and sell them in competition with the originators rather than to attempt to create or design for themselves?

11051 Mr. Haycraft: I object as entirely incompetent for any purpose whatsoever.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

A. There are two or three questions there. If you will break it down, if it is cheaper to reproduce when they copy, if it is cheaper to reproduce, then I can answer that and then I will take up the other part.

Mr. Weisman: May I have the question read again?

Examiner Averill: Oh, no, no, no. If you have it read again and again where will we get?

Mr. Weisman: He says he cannot answer it in that form, and that is the reason I wanted to have 11052 the question read.

Examiner Averill: You have the books right in front of you and you know what you read from.

Mr. Weisman: I tried to break it up.

Examiner Averill: I do not blame him if he cannot answer it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In this form, you, as an expert, say you cannot answer that question? A. No, sir; I cannot.

Q. All right, then, just tell us so. In your experience in this business, have you from time to time met copyists who would state to you that their lines contained copies of the best selling numbers of the best creators in the particular field? A. Oh, I have met copyists. I do not recall that the comments have ever been qualified as being copies of the best creators in the field.

Q. Is it not a common practice for these copyists to make known that their copies are copies of the leading designers and originators in the business? A. They do 11054 not say, they do not usually say that in so many words, but they do generally say that they have copied them, as to whether it is made in Paris or locally.

Q. Speaking locally, do they not generally tell you that they have copied these people so that you might—so that the one who was to purchase might know that he is getting copies of a particular designer that they refer to, or originator? A. Well, they make a statement that they have copies of other people's merchandise, whether it is retail or wholesale; they make a statement of that kind.

Q. Those statements are usually made to induce the purchaser to purchase from them rather than from the originator; is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of that ques- 11055
tion.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: How can this witness know what the other man is trying to do?

Examiner Averill: He is giving his opinion. All of this is opinion evidence.

A. It is given as a part of their selling talk.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That is the best answer that you are willing to give? A. That is the answer.

Q. I want to know whether that is the best answer you can give. A. I do not know, if I spent a lot of time I could probably answer you better; I do not know; it seems to me that is a good answer.

Q. Dr. Nystrom advises us of his opinion as follows, and I would like to know whether or not you agree with this: "The present lack of a design registration law an effect of copying is considered a lawful activity by the courts amounts to the right to despoil the business of others. It 11057 is entirely illogical that this condition should be allowed to continue." Would you agree with or differ from that statement? A. I differ from it. Why do you not ask me why?

Examiner Averill: I do not see how we can go much further with this type of interrogation.

Mr. Weisman: I only have three more questions.

Examiner Averill: I do not see where we are getting anywhere with it.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Speaking of design protection, Dr. Nystrom states: "Design protection would help to establish order in what 11058 is now chaos." Do you agree that design protection would help to establish order in what is now chaos?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as not being established; and, furthermore, we do not know what he means by chaos.

Mr. Weisman: I want to know what he thinks about that. This man is an expert.

Mr. Haycraft: He did not read the book.

Mr. Weisman: His boss wrote it. This man was his superior in the A.M.C., and he is the man who wrote it.

Examiner Averill: I overrule that objection, but I am not going to let this go on any further. Answer if you can and then we will quit.

A. I disagree with it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That is all. A. I am not, I, I, I, I, I will be glad to qualify my statement if I answered it, see?

Q. Dr. Nystrom states that in his opinion the tidal wave of copying that has characterized the fashion industry during the past years—— 11060

Examiner Averill: When was this book written?

Mr. Weisman: This book was—it is the edition of 1932.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. —came since the World War. Would you agree with that? A. No.

Q. In other words, you differ with that statement? A. Yes. Ask me why, will you?

Q. I will ask you to keep still or I will ask the Court to punish you as a recalcitrant, obstreperous and pugnacious witness. A. That is your privilege. 11061

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I understood you to say that it was a part of your duties to see that the stores got the service out of this market they wanted; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. In connection with such service, do you fix what service they want, or do they tell you what service they want? A. They tell me.

Q. And you carry out those orders; is that correct? A. What do you mean by "orders"?

Q. Well, I do not mean it in any bad sense. They come in and tell you what they want you to do for them, and you do the best you can, and do it for them? A. Yes, if the individual store's request comes within the broad policies of the organization, why, I do.

Q. Yes, within the broad policy of your organization, do you include the getting for your customers of special dis-

11063 counts?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled. I think he has a right to show what services he attempts to render his clientele. Go ahead, sir.

A. Well, we certainly assist our accounts in trading with the manufacturers, and many of the orders we place ourselves. We do trade with the manufacturers in the industry for the best price possible.

Q. What form? What do you do to get these, in connection with this trading?

By Mr. Weisman.

11064

Q. To your knowledge, do you know the discounts that generally prevail in the ready-to-wear industry? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. What are those discounts in the ladies' ready-to-wear? When we say that, we mean dresses.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled for the moment.

A. You mean—at what period are you talking about?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, in 1935. A. Eight per cent.

Q. Well, is that all, 8 per cent.? Do you not want to add something to that? A. I don't know of any other——

Q. All right, if you do not. A. —of any other prevailing discounts to the industry.

Q. All right, if you do not. Now, then, in coats and suits, what was it? A. What period? 11066

Q. Same period. A. Eight per cent, 1935.

Q. All right. Now, during 1935, did you ever obtain for your customers, in line with getting this special service out of the market, a discount from the manufacturers or sellers, which was greater than that regular usual customer's discount?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. On your direct testimony at page 6093 of the record, you stated that it was part of your duties to see that the stores were getting the service out of the market that they wanted. Do you remember so testifying? A. I remember in substance so testifying.

Q. Now, is part of the service that these stores were 11067 getting, or wanted to get out of the market, the granting to them of special discounts and rebates?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Was part of these special services the obtainment, by you, in the ladies' ready-to-wear market of advertising rebates from the customers that you do business with?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained for the same reason.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Was part of these special services that you sought to get out of this market the confinement of a particular manufacturer's copies to a particular party, a member of the A.M.C.A., making him the sole person who could 11069 handle those goods in that city?

Mr. Haycraft: I object for the reasons heretofore urged and also the use of the phrase "special services," as no foundation has been laid for that.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you, in attempting to get the services out of the New York market, attempt to get services for your client, or consideration for your client over and beyond that which was customarily and ordinarily given by the manufacturers to the regular and ordinary purchasers in that 11070 market?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Averill: The same ruling.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Was part of the services that you sought to obtain for your clients out of this market a preferential shipment of merchandise to your accounts?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.
Examiner Averill: Overruled—sustained, I mean.
Mr. Weisman: Sustained?
Examiner Averill: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Was part of the services that you sought to get out of this market for your members, the right of cancellation in connection with orders of which was not generally or usually extended to other purchasers in the ordinary course and conduct of the business? 11072

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.
Examiner Averill: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Was part of the special services that you sought to get for your members out of this market the right to have merchandise which was manufactured by the manufacturers sent to your members on consignment? 11073

Mr. Martin: The same objection.
Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.
Examiner Averill: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl— A. Yes.

Mr. Weisman: May I have Respondents' Exhibit 920?

Mr. Martin: You mean Commission's Exhibit 920.

Mr. Weisman: Is that it?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In a letter written by you and marked here as Com-
11075 mission's Exhibit 920, you stated, Mr. Bergdahl, the following: "We have repeatedly suggested to the Guild executives that they could obtain better co-operation from retailers if they would declare themselves, as an organization, existing solely for the purpose of style piracy elimination and that they would not be interested in assuming trade association activities." Do you remember that? A. Did they say "we"?

Q. They did say "we." A. That is right.

Q. When you said that what trade association activities were you referring to? A. May I see the letter?

Q. Certainly.

(Counsel hands letter to the witness.)

11076 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you see it? A. Well, I do not know.

Q. No? A. I do not see that particular quotation on the letter.

Q. You do not see it? A. I cannot find it immediately.

Q. I will show it to you. A. Will you?

Q. It is right here. A. What?

Q. "We have repeatedly suggested to the Guild executives" and so forth; do you see it now? A. Yes.

Q. Answer the question. A. Now, what is the question?

Mr. Weisman: Let the question be read, please.

Examiner Averill: The question may be read.

(The question was read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Please answer the question. A. I was—I was—I was—I was referring to, first, trade association activities in general.

Examiner Averill: Let me ask him a few questions here and I think I can clear this up. 11078

By Examiner Averill.

Q. What one, any particular one? If you had any one in particular, would you name it? A. Well, could I just explain my background?

Q. Yes. A. When the F.O.G.A. started, the resident officers asked——

Q. No, no, any one particular trade association activity that you had in mind. A. Well, now, I was a member of this group, I have had to explain exactly——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Just a moment.

The Witness: —just what happened.

Mr. Weisman: If you will wait just a moment, please, I am addressing the Court and not you. I object to that, Mr. Examiner, as not responsive. Here is a question that is very clear. This witness wrote a letter on December 4, and in that he referred to trade association activities and I am asking him the direct question, what trade association activities do you refer to. 11079

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Yes, that is the question, Mr. Witness. If you will kindly address your reply to that question: What trade association activities do you refer to? The letter refers to some trade association activities, at least it calls them trade association activities. Tell us what activities you refer to. That is all. A. Well, trade association activities in particular.

Q. What are the trade association activities? I do not know. A. Well, they may be anything that a trade association wants them to be.

Q. I know, but you must have had in mind some activi-
11081 ties to which you referred. A. Well, I had in mind all—all those—you see this was a marriage between retailers and manufacturers, if you please; that is, the F.O.G.A. and if they were—we had no objection to trade association activities because we have admitted that, because we have admitted the fact that certain trade association activities were taken up with us in 1934 and they were taken up with us and we agreed to them, the retailers agreed to them.

But, since this was a marriage, if you please, between the retailer and the manufacturer, we told Mr. Rentner that there should be no trade association activities made entirely by the Guild and enforced on the retailers without the retailers' consent. And from the beginning, the 11082 very beginning, Mr. Rentner told me and told the members of the A.B.O. particularly that that was the understanding and this was never going to be a trade association because we had enough trade associations in the field already. I think there were three in the industry.

Q. That does not answer the question yet, sir. A. No?

Q. You have gotten away from the question. A. Have I?

Q. There must have been some activities you had in mind. Tell us what they were, if you know. A. Well, I think that—I think, in particular, that the dress industry took over all of the trade practices of the—of the N.R.A. without asking the retailers at all, maybe more or less of those—without asking the retailers at all whether that would be O.K.

The retailers have never said they could not have trade association activities. But, inasmuch as this was a combined retail and manufacturer organization, they should not do all of the dictating on trade practices, that we ought to have some meeting of minds on the trade practices, and that is what I had reference to.

The A.B.O. repeatedly told Mr. Rentner and Mr. Golby that they had really never agreed to all of those trade 11084 association activities, but not that they objected to them, but they did not think that they should be subjected to them without consideration, upon the Guild, without having some consideration.

Q. As I recall it, it was all through your testimony, you never referred to any trade association activities other than the piracy question which the F.O.G.A. attempted in any way to enforce against you or your members, is that not so?

Mr. Haycraft: There is the letter of July 1, 1935, which gives us a list of certain practices which the F.O.G.A. sent out.

Examiner Averill: If that is so, let the witness read the letter, because he does not seem to know. 11085

Mr. Haycraft: That is a letter from the Guild.

The Witness: I think we put in that letter. They took over the N.R.A. trade practices and I think I made a notation on the letter to that effect that was put in evidence here. In fact, I think I have written on it "As a result of the N.R.A." It is in there among those letters somewhere.

Examiner Averill: You mean the recent ones?

Mr. Weisman: No, no. I do not think Mr. Haycraft has reference to that one.

Mr. Haycraft: It is one of those in this group (indicating a group of exhibits).

Examiner Averill: If it is in there, let us get it and let the witness refresh his recollection because he does not seem to have any recollection in regard to it.

Mr. Weisman: I think I can refresh his recollection if he really wants to be refreshed.

Mr. Haycraft: I think it is in there.

The Witness: If I need it, I will tell you.

11087 Mr. Weisman: Do not be bashful.

Mr. Haycraft: It had on it "as a result of the N.R.A.," as I recall.

Mr. Weisman: I do not think we need go into that. I think I can carry on more rapidly by asking him another question.

Examiner Averill: Do so.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You still have not told me what you meant when you wrote, referring to the Guild—and I think they should not be interested in assuming trade association activities, referring to the phrase "trade association activities," what trade association activities did you have reference to by the Guild? A. Well, all of the activities that are performed 11088 by a trade association.

Q. You did not have any particular one in mind? A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. In the course of your statement, you stated to the Court a few moments ago that the Guild, meaning the Fashion Originators Guild of America, took over the fair trade practices as they were contained in the code, and made them a part of their fair trade practices; is that so; did you say that? A. In substance, I think that is correct.

Q. Do you not know that the Guild was formed prior to the passage of the National Industrial Recovery Act? A. Yes, sir; I recall that.

Q. Do you not know, as an expert with all of your knowledge, that it was not the N.R.A. from which we took up certain fair practices, but the N.R.A. took the fair trade practices from the F.O.G.A. as they had formulated them? A. No, I did not.

Q. You never learned that? A. No, sir; I never did.

Q. All right. You may have been ignorant on that. A. And I was active in it, too.

Q. Was one of the trade practices that you had reference to in your letter, Commission's Exhibit No. 920, the 11090 trade practice which had reference to trade discount, and which read as follows: "No discount shall be given to any retailer in excess of the terms 8 per cent. 10 days E.O.M." A. I never did. I just got through telling you that I did not have reference to any particular discount, or those things, and I am not trying to evade anything. I did not mean that, but I had in mind, Judge, trade association activities, as such, as affecting retailers, that there should be no such of those without consulting us.

Q. In other words, your objection was not to the— A. What is that?

Q. In other words, your objection was not to the anti-piracy, but your main and chief objection, as evidenced by that letter of December 4, is the trade association activities of the Guild? A. No, sir. 11091

Q. What did you mean when you wrote: "We can get better co-operation if the Guild would declare itself as an organization existing solely for the purpose of style piracy elimination, and that they would not be interested in assuming trade association activities." What did you mean to convey by that? Did you not mean to convey the idea that you had told the Guild executives that your objection was to the trade association activities? A. What was that question?

Mr. Weisman: Let the question be read.

(Question read.)

The Witness: I did not get it.

Mr. Weisman: Read it to him again.

(Question again read.)

The Witness: I do not get it.

Mr. Weisman: Give it to him again.

(Question again read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

11093 Q. Can you answer it now? A. Yes. Well, that was one of the things that we had told them was wrong with their machinery from the beginning—from the beginning—not at the end or any other time, but from the beginning of the Guild's program we told them that we——

Q. Who is "we"? A. "We" refers to the A.B.O.

Q. Did you ever refer to that before December 4, to that? A. I am not sure that I wrote to them.

Q. Well, we will take that up. Did you ever write to them prior to December 4 about that? A. I am not sure.

Q. Did you ever see a letter in that regard? A. Wait a minute. I am not sure whether some of the letters do not contain something about that.

Q. Can you produce a single letter that has it in it? A.

11094 I may be able to.

Q. No, no, no. Will you go over your correspondence between now and to-morrow morning and see if you can bring us a single letter to that effect? A. I will try.

Q. Now, will you? A. I will try.

Q. No, will you go through the correspondence to see? A. Positively.

Mr. Haycraft: What is that?

Mr. Weisman: I asked the witness if he would go through his correspondence and see if he could find a single letter in regard to trade association activities prior to the letter of December 4, and if so bring it down here to-morrow morning, and he has stated that he would. Any objection?

Mr. Haycraft: I just wanted to hear the question and the answer.

A. I said I might be able to and I will try to. I can definitely well substantiate it in person, and with other witnesses.

By Mr. Weisman. 11096

Q. You tell that to Mr. Haycraft. A. I think he knows it.

Q. He does? A. Yes.

Q. Have you any recollection at this time as to when the break definitely came between the Guild and the A.M.C.? A. If I know?

Q. Yes. A. I think the break came in February, about the second week in February.

Q. What year? A. 1936.

Examiner Averill: '36?

The Witness: 1936.

By Mr. Weisman. 11097

Q. Have you any idea of any break in, or, rather, any break—but before I get to that, have you any idea of any particular thing, or, to put it in another way, any particular communication which immediately preceded that break in relations? A. Why, yes, I think so. There were several communications, I guess, or telephone calls, and so forth, in connection with the matter.

Q. Do you remember the famous Reilly letter? A. I did not know it was famous, but I remember it.

Q. Would you say it was infamous? A. No. I would not. I do not think that either one of those terms would be applicable.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as an improper characterization of the letter.

Mr. Weisman: He knows what I am talking about.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the characterization.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

11099 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, we will come back to that in a moment. A. All right.

Q. But you remember the Reilly letter that was sent out in February, was it—about what date? A. Well, the date is on it, it is the second week in February, I think.

Q. Was it February 16? A. I do not recall.

Q. Or February 17? A. Look at it and see.

Q. You remember the substance of that letter? A. I think I do.

Q. What was the substance of that letter, as you remember it? A. The substance of the letter, as I recall it, was that, as to members of the Guild, that we could get along with them only—or perhaps I should say that we 11100 could go along with them—I will say, definitely, that we could go along with them only as originally agreed upon; namely, that we would co-operate in making returns down to and including $10.75. We stated, furthermore, that it was never our understanding that we were to be obligated by the trade practices that the Guild might adopt without consulting us. I do not know that that is in there, but that is the extent of the letter.

Q. That is right. Now, when you sent that letter which is—you saw it before it was sent, did you? A. I do not recall, but I think I did.

Q. And you wrote in there the following: "We have been authorized by the store principals of eighteen member stores of this association to inform you that from this day on we would like to be put on record as being willing to co-operate with the F.O.G.A. only on the matter of style piracy elimination, as originally agreed." A. Uh-huh.

Q. Uh-huh. What do you mean by "uh-huh?" A. Yes.

Q. Did you not expect that after that letter was written the members of the F.O.G.A. would no longer be willing to deal with those eighteen member stores? A. We did 11102 not know what they would do. We hoped that they would see it our way and that they would not act precipitantly and that they would reconsider the action they had already taken.

Q. Did you ever say to anybody in words or substance that the F.O.G.A. would not dare red card a member of the A.M.C.? A. I do not recall it.

Q. Might you have said that? A. I may have.

Q. As a matter of fact, wasn't it your belief at the time that letter was sent to the F.O.G.A. that by reason of the huge volume of purchasers which were controlled by the A.M.C. that the members of the F.O.G.A. would not have sufficient courage to red card any non-co-operating A.M.C. member? A. That was not my interpretation. I can give you my interpretation. 11103

Mr. Weisman: Just read the question to the witness. He either does not understand, or will not understand.

The Witness: That is not my interpretation.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I did not ask you for your interpretation. A. No. Do you—but you can have my thoughts in my mind on it, if you want.

Q. No, I do not want that, I want to get an answer to the question. You can either answer it "yes" or "no."

Mr. Weisman: I will ask that the question be read again.

Q. (The question was read.) A. I would like to have it again.

Mr. Weisman: Again.

Q. (The question was read.) A. That was not my reasoning process at all.

11105 Examiner Averill: The letter to which counsel refers was a letter, a copy of which is now in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 924.

Mr. Haycraft: Also Respondents' Exhibit No. 37.

Mr. Weisman: It is Respondents' Exhibit 37?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Averill: And it is also Commission's Exhibit No. 924.

Mr. Weisman: Well.

Mr. Haycraft: Apparently both.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not prior to the formation
11106 of the Guild and the co-operation with it by retail stores that retailers, themselves, had frequently resorted to copying; that is, that they caused articles that they received, originals to come in their hands and then sent them out to special manufacturers to be copied? A. Do I know anything of such transactions?

Q. Yes. A. No, but I have heard of such.

Q. Did you ever, personally, take part in such? A. No, sir.

Q. You are certain about that? A. Positively.

Q. Do you remember an occasion when Abraham & Straus had sent out some linens and had them made up into copies? A. No, sir. I remember the transaction, but not as you said it.

Q. Do you remember the action when the Guild complained that Abraham & Straus had ordered some goods? A. Yes.

Q. Will you give us your recollection of what the facts incident to that transaction were?

Examiner Averill: Yes, if you will just do so. Now, that is a very clear and direct question, and I am going to ask you to answer it. I am afraid 11108 the witness did not understand the previous question.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, he understood it perfectly well. He is dodging for a little time.

A. May I tell it in my own words?

Examiner Averill: That is what he asked you to do. Go on. Go on. Go on.

The Witness: As I recall it, someone from Abraham & Straus, Miss Kirpel, called me and said that Mr. Post had talked to her or called her and asked her to take off some dresses "off sale" that they had featured in a Sunday advertisement in which they had stated that they were copies of 11109
"Miami fashions," I think it was, Miami or Palm Beach, or something like that.

So I said what price were they, and she said $5.95 or $6.95 retail. I said, "Well, I will talk to Mr. Post about it." So, I called up Mr. Post and said, "What about this Abraham & Straus transaction?" As I recall it, he said, "Oh, you are going to tell me that they get an exemption, is it, because of the price line?"

I said, "Yes, that is the idea." And he said, "Well, in this case, I will be honest with you, I will be frank with you about the matter, I am going to give you a red card on this," so I said, "Oh, I do not think you will, and maybe you will, but if you do we do not think you ought to handle us individually as individuals because you are a big organization and can lick any individual retailer, and so if you want to send a red card to Abraham & Straus"—no, he did not say "send a red card," he said, "if you want to, we will return the agreement or declaration to you of Abraham & Straus."

I think I said, "No, if you send it to them that is your business, but if you do you had better send back all of our agreements and we will probably talk it over." And I said, "Furthermore, I would like to discuss this with the A.B.O. because they know what the understanding is, and they might want to ask me about the matter and take me up on this, because you are not going to handle retailers as individuals."

"Well," he said, "you do not need to burn up, Burgie, let us talk this over." I said, "All right, you know I have got that kind of an agreement with you on low-end merchandise, and while it is too bad the advertisement ran that way, still, it ran, and that is the way the industry is doing it, the retail industry," and I said, "I do not see that they done anything wrong." Well, it was his next move, and I guess Mr. Post reconsidered because nothing more came of the transaction. And that is as far as I know the truth about it.

Q. Let me see if I can help you refresh your recollection a little bit. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember from which company the original of the dress advertised was obtained? A. Well, I was subsequently informed that the originals, I believe, were from Goodsteins. Is that right?

Q. I am asking you. Do you remember who had ordered the goods to be made up? A. No, sir; I do not know.

Q. Who is Miss Dean? A. She is one of my buyers.

Q. She works under you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that bring any association—does that name bring anything to your mind in connection with this? A. Just how do you mean?

Q. I want to know whether or not the name "Dean" associated with the Abraham & Straus transaction, brings 11114 anything to your mind? A. I know that that is her department.

Q. Do you not know, and do you not remember that it was Miss Dean, your buyer, who ordered these goods made up for Abraham & Straus? A. No, sir; I do not.

Q. You do not remember that? A. No, I do not.

Q. That comes as a total surprise to you? A. No, it does not come as a surprise. She may have done so. I will not deny it, but I do not know.

Q. Let us see whether this is a fair statement of what happened at that time— A. If I know I will tell you——

Q. Let us see if this refreshes your recollection; that the advertisement appeared in a paper wherein these copies were flagrantly advertised as copies——

11115

Mr. Haycraft: I object to "flagrantly."

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, openly; do you remember that? A. I do not think I ever saw the advertisement, but I will take your word for it.

Q. You can do so safely. Do you remember Mr. Post telling you that upon seeing the advertisement, and this matter being brought to his attention, that he communicated with Abraham & Straus before he spoke with you? A. In the conversation he told me he had called Abraham & Straus about the matter.

Q. Do you remember him saying that to you, in words or substance, that Neil Morse of Abraham & Straus had stated that the position of the Guild was fair and correct? A. No, I did not understand it that way.

Q. And did he tell you at any time that A. & S., through their representatives, did not claim that they had an exemption, but stated to Mr. Post that they wished an exception to be made in this case because the merchandise—

11117 that is, the linen, which went into the copies, had been specially ordered, and that if they did not take it in it would be a complete loss? Does that refresh your recollection to any degree? A. No.

Q. You never— A. No.

Q. You never heard about that before? A. No, I did not, and Mr. Post did not tell me in that conversation anything of that kind.

Q. Did he tell you anything of that kind in any other conversation? A. We never had any other conversation about that, that I recall.

Q. Now, your recollection is that Mr. Post said that if you do not stop the copies, I will send back the declaration of co-operation? A. The way we did to Franklin Simons.

11118 Q. The way we did to Franklin Simons, and you said well, if you do that, you had better send back all the agreements for the member stores; is that it? A. Because you are not going to handle us——

Q. Yes. A. —as individuals.

Q. Yes. A. We are too big and powerful, we would win with every fight.

Q. Did you tell him that, too? A. Yes, yes, sir.

Q. And, therefore, if any member of yours did something which the Guild thought was wrong you had made up your mind that all the A.M.C. stores would act in concert to prevent the Guild from taking such punitive action as it, the Guild, thought was proper; is that it? A. I had made up my mind that our stores would get a fair deal, if I could help them get it.

Q. And you thought that they would get such a fair deal by, in every case, the stores acting in concert? A. Why, I thought it would be a little bit better chance of having a fair deal.

Q. I see. A. Than if we were entirely in the hands of the F.O.G.A.

11120

Q. I see. And did you talk this over with the various store heads to ask them whether or not they acquiesced in such a program on your part? A. Well, I had a lot of discussion with store owners.

Q. Well, let us see. A. They trusted me, I will say that; they thought I understood the situation, and they thought that I was trying to work it out fairly for them, and for the Guild.

Q. And — A. And they knew I was working for the Guild. They certainly knew that. My letters are evidence of that.

Q. And your idea of working it out fairly was that any time the Guild would threaten, or state that an action on the part of one of your stores was a failure to co-operate, and they would therefore seek to return your declaration, that you would say to them, in words or substance, you better send them all on. A. Yes, sir; I felt——

Q. All right, you have answered. A. That is not an answer.

Q. It is quite sufficient for me.

Examiner Averill: No.

Mr. Haycraft: Let him explain his answer.

Examiner Averill: He can explain his answer, sir.

Mr. Weisman: All right, Judge.

Examiner Averill: Yes, go ahead.

A. I felt that it would be unfair to precipitately send back a declaration on an individual retailer at any time without a hearing; in other words, to convict him, and hang him, and throw him out in the dump without giving him a chance to explain himself. I always thought that was——

11123 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How often— A. I always thought——

Q. How often have you convicted and hung and thrown out onto the dump hundreds of retailers by your co-operative action, can you tell me that?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He has not finished his answer.

A. You point it out and I will answer.

Examiner Averill: Had you finished?

The Witness: I think.

By Mr. Weisman.

11124 Q. What retailer has been convicted and hung and thrown out into the dumps? A. We were.

Q. Who is on the dumps? A. By the F.O.G.A.

Q. Who is on the dumps? A. As far as we were concerned, we were certainly not permitted in your place of business, and we never got a hearing to explain why, or anything else.

Q. In other words, then, you would state that these stores representing a buying power in ladies' ready-to-wear, as you have stated it, which purchase each year about $50,000,000? A. That is coats, dresses, skirts——

Q. Yes. A. —sportswear——

Q. Yes. A.—that's a lot of lines that are not pertaining to dresses.

Q. Yes. A. I want to make it clear that it covers upstairs and downstairs.

Q. Yes, you have— A. Coats, dresses, sportswear and millinery and a lot of other things.

Q. So now a little bit for a moment about this A.M.C. This A.M.C., how is it governed?

Examiner Averill; He has told you that; he has told you that. 11126

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, that has been told.

Examiner Averill: He has told us that on——

Mr. Weisman: I want to make it very plain.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to further interrogation on it.

Examiner Averill: Sustained. It has been told. Any specific point in connection with its government, you may have that.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: But it has been told. He has told Mr. Haycraft and told you at the opening——

Mr. Weisman: I do not think he told Mr. Haycraft.

Examiner Averill: Yes, and then he told you, at the opening of the examination. 11127

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is this correct, that the executives of these twenty stores, concerning whose purchasing power in the ladies' ready-to-wear and misses' and juniors' you have testified to, constitute the governing body of this A.M.C.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as having already been answered.

Examiner Averill: It has been answered, but it is easier for him to say "yes" and go on.

A. The store principals constitute—the store owners constitute the governing body of the A.M.C.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Yes. A. They own the office and it is their office.

Q. Well, a number of these stores of yours send in their orders to your office? A. Most of them do send in 11129 orders to the office.

Q. Yes. A. Not all their orders, but they send in orders.

Q. They send in orders? A. Yes.

Q. And you have buyers in various departments? A. We have what we call representatives, market representatives, they are buyers.

Q. Then, why do you not say "yes." A. No, but we call them representatives and that is exactly what we mean; they are representatives for the store buyers in this market.

Q. Yes. A. And they not only buy, they do all kinds of things; they give information, and they just do——

Q. Miss Dean is one of those, is she not? A. Yes, I told you that before.

11130 Q. Suppose you get a lot of orders in, is it the practice, from time to time, of the A.M.C. to take a large number of orders, and place these orders with the manufacturers? A. Well, that may happen, but that is not the common practice, I mean. You mean bulk them?

Q. Yes, you know what I mean. A. Yes, but that does not happen very often.

Q. Well— A. It may happen, but it is not the common practice, I will say—I will put it that way.

Q. Do you have collections to gather in your place, weekly? A. No—how do you mean, collections?

Q. Well, what did you mean when you said, "No"? A. Well, I did not quite understand you, what do you mean, collections?

Q. Well, if you did not understand me, what did you say——

Examiner Averill: What do you mean by collections, please. Tell us what you mean?

Mr. Weisman: I want to find out what he said, "No" to.

Examiner Averill: He told you he just said that in haste. Now, he is asking what you mean: I do not know what you mean. I thought maybe they passed the hat, I thought maybe they passed the hat. 11132

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Collection of merchandise. A. Collection of merchandise? Why, no, we do not have that.

Q. Is it— A. We do not have that as weekly; the merchandise men themselves come up to our office every morning and exhibit merchandise for our consideration.

Q. Do you know what the term "collection" means in the dress industry? A. Why, I never—why I never——

Q. You never heard of it? A. I never used it in connection with my work.

Q. No, but did you ever hear it? A. A manufacturer's collection? 11133

Q. Yes. A. Why, yes, it is his line of merchandise.

Q. That is what it is, and it is generally understood as that? A. We do not have any collection in our office.

Q. Oh, no, but in the business, is there not a custom of usage that the word "collection" refers to—not to the passing of a hat—but a manufacturer's line; is that not it? A. Yes, yes.

Q. And did you know when I asked you that question a moment ago that that is what I was referring to? A. No, I did not.

Q. I see. A. No, I did not.

Q. I see, you— A. I thought you might have meant group meetings, or buying meetings.

Q. Now— A. Or other meetings. I am not——

Q. I see. Now—do you sit in with the executive committee? A. Why, I have, once or twice, but generally not.

Q. Well, did you sit in with the executive committee of the A.M.C. when they voted $250,000—I will withdraw that. Did you ever hear that the executive committee of 11135 the A.M.C. voted the sum of $250,000, to subsidize dress manufacturers? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

Mr. Feldman: He said no. Let him answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever hear that they had voted a sum to subsidize dress manufacturers?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, unless I know what 11136 he is talking about.

Mr. Weisman: It is a very plain question. You know what I am talking about. It is right in the evidence here. One of the subsidizers testified to it.

Mr. Haycraft: You said so.

Mr. Weisman: Well, do you deny it? Turn to Dr. Tily's testimony. What do you mean "I said so"?

Mr. Haycraft: That is what I mean.

Mr. Weisman: Do you deny he said it?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to you characterizing this evidence to suit yourself.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: Then, may I make a statement for the record?

Examiner Averill: I do not want it to appear on the record. All I want you to do is go on with your questioning of the witness.

(Last question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "subsidize" unless the witness knows about it. 11138

Examiner Averill: The witness may answer the question. Go ahead and answer it if you can.

A. We never did subsidize any manufacturers.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, did you ever get a fund together, since February, the A.M.C., to which members, your member stores, contributed equally?

Examiner Averill: What year, please?

Mr. Weisman: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Averill: What year?

Mr. Weisman: In this year, since February, 1936. 11139

Examiner Averill: 1936?

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner; not proper cross-examination; irrelevant and immaterial. I carried the direct examination down to the time of the red carding and no further.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, yes, you did.

Examiner Averill: I have no objection to him going a little farther. Go ahead. We will see what this was. The objection is overruled; exception noted.

The Witness: Read the question.

Q. (Last question read.) A. No, we never got a fund together. I do not mean to convey by that that we did not finance the manufacturers, but we never got a fund together, or anything like that.

By Mr. Weisman.

11141 Q. Let me ask you this question: From your knowledge of the workings of the executive committee, is Mr. Tily, of Strawbridge & Clothier, a member of the executive committee? A. Would you let me look and see.

Q. Certainly, by all means. A. I think I can find it.

(The witness refers to papers.)

The Witness: What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. Yes, he is.

11142

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, N. Y.,
November 25, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M. E.S.T.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(SAME APPEARANCES:)

PROCEEDINGS.

11144

Examiner Averill: All right, gentlemen, you may proceed.

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Weisman (continued).

Q. Mr. Bergdahl— A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Off the record. Please do not take this.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

11145

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You remember at the adjournment yesterday I asked you, in words or substance, whether or not if Mr. Tily of Strawbridge & Clothier had, in these proceedings, testified that the members of the A.M.C. had gotten together to subsidize manufacturers, whether you agreed with that and I told you that I would seek, over the adjournment, to find in his testimony where he s stated? Do you recall that? A. I recall in substance that.

Q. Yes. A. I do not——

Q. Now— A. I do not recall saying that I agreed that there was a subsidy.

Q. No, I did not say that you did say that. A. Oh, I am sorry.

Q. As a matter of fact, I asked you whether you differed from that. A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Tily, who is president, is he not, of Strawbridge & Clothier— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —and which firm of Strawbridge & Clothier is a 11147 member of your A.M.C., one of your member stores— A. Yes.

Q. —made this statement in the record at page 1764: "We"—speaking of Strawbridge & Clothier—"have been obliged already to make effort from time to time to develop our own resources by subsidizing, by giving them funds, interesting ourselves, indirectly; making loans to them so that they can supply us with these goods * * *." Now, did the A.M.C. do that? A. We made loans.

Q. Mr. Tily also testified as follows, referring to such words of subsidize, or whatever it was—"A. Well, Strawbridge & Clothier in connection"——

Mr. Haycraft: What page?

Mr. Weisman: Page 1861——

11148

Q. "A. Well, Strawbridge & Clothier in connection with the A.M.C. are doing it." Did Strawbridge & Clothier, in connection with the A.M.C., do it?

Mr. Haycraft: Do what?

Mr. Weisman: "What"—give money to manufacturers, or subsidize them, or, as you say, lend it to them.

A. Well, the A.M.C. handled the transactions for the stores.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. And the way the A.M.C. handled the transaction was that the A.M.C. called these stores together, or the store executives, and got together the sum of $50,000; is that correct? A. No, they did not.

Q. Well— A. They did not get together, but they said we could use that amount of money. It was not gotten together, because, after all, we have the money.

Q. Then, I read you this question as entered at page 1862 of this record: "Q. In other words, I"—meaning 11150
Mr. Weisman—"am then to understand that the A.M.C., acting on your behalf"—meaning Strawbridge & Clothier—"and acting on behalf of other stores who are members of the A.M.C., have advanced to manufacturers of ladies' dresses the sum of $50,000? A. That is my recollection of the total, I am not sure that that is the exact amount." Now, do you say—do you say that $50,000 was not the exact amount?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.
Examiner Averill: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman. 11151

Q. Will you tell us to whom this money was advanced?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.
Mr. Martin: I object.
Examiner Averill: Sustained; I am not going into that line.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I will not argue it any further.
Examiner Averill: Thank you.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. With regard to this money that you state was advanced to various dress manufacturers, was any note taken as evidence of the advance?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.
Examiner Averill: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Exception noted.

11153 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What evidence of the advance did you take from the —did the A.M.C. receive from the borrower?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, and I object to any further examination along this line, Mr. Examiner.
Examiner Averill: Objection sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Objection sustained to any examination along this line.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Exception noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

11154 Q. Now, Mr. Bergdahl, will you tell us what is the correct name of the organization you have referred to as the A.B.O.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, he has already stated that.

A. Association of Buying Officers.

Examiner Averill: Offices, is it not?
The Witness: Offices, yes.
Examiner Averill: Yes, offices.
The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is the A.M.C. a member of that association? A. No.

Q. Are you a member of that association? A. No, I am not a member of the association.

Q. What is that A.B.O. made up of? A. I testified to that; if you want me to repeat it, I shall do so.

Q. What is the A.B.O. made up of? A. It is an organization of between twenty-five and thirty of what I consider the leading resident offices in this city, leading and representative resident offices in this city. 11156

Q. When you say "leading resident offices in this city," you mean resident buying offices? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this association, is it an association made up of the executives of these resident buying offices? A. Yes.

Q. And the purpose is for the clearance of ideas? A. The purpose is for the discussion of problems pertaining to that particular branch of the industry.

Q. Where are the offices of the A.B.O.? A. They have no offices, as I recall it.

Q. Well, where do they meet? A. They generally meet at the—in Gimbel Brothers Restaurant, or at the Pennsylvania Hotel, or they may have meetings at any one of the resident offices. I recall—I recall that they have had a meeting at Cavendish Trading. 11157

Q. Was Mr. John Block, of Kirby, Block & Fischer, connected with that association? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was his connection in the year 1935? A. He was president.

Q. When was that association formed? A. I believe it was the fall of 1933; August, or thereabouts.

Q. Is that a dues-paying organization?. A. They contribute toward expenses.

Q. How? A. By paying—paying toward the expenses. I don't—I don't know exactly how they do it.

Q. Well, did the A.M.C. at any time contribute to their expenses? A. I think they have.

Q. And when? A. I could not tell you; I do not know.

Q. How recently, do you know? Have you any idea on the subject? A. No, sir; I could not tell you.

Q. Have you any idea how much? A. Well, I think they have contributed around a hundred dollars.

Q. And that is the limit of their contribution? A. That 11159 is all that I know of.

Q. When the F.O.G.A. was first organized, or prior to its organization, before any organization was made, Mr. Rentner, I understand, discussed and disclosed his purposes and his plans as they then were in connection with this association, to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at that time he told you, in words or in substance, did he not, that he believed that the piracy of style was injurious to the retailer and public, as well as to the manufacturer, did he not? A. I recall he made such statements.

Q. And he presented for your consideration a proposed plan or an idea, which ultimately found its way into the formation of the Fashion Originators Guild; is that not so? A. Yes, sir.

11160 Q. And at that time you either, acting on your own behalf or acting on behalf of the A.M.C.—no, I will withdraw that question. And then you had a discussion with Mr. Rentner about this matter, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you had this discussion— A. I should say many discussions, I think.

Q. Well, you had the first one, at all events. A. Yes.

Q. Did you then take it up with your superiors? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you present to them Mr. Rentner's thoughts? A. I am not sure that I can say I did exactly present Mr. Rentner's thoughts.

Q. Well, I do not mean exactly; I mean, did you convey to them the subject matter of the conference between Mr. Rentner and such other men as were present, and yourself? A. That is right.

Q. And after you had presented these thoughts to the various officials, or the executive committee of the A.M.C., or your superior, Mr. Reilly, you then had further discussions with Mr. Rentner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In these discussions with Mr. Rentner, Mr. Rentner was seeking to get your ideas, and the ideas of your association, on this subject, as a whole; was he not? A. I thought he was. 11162

Q. Well, I mean, did he not—I mean, do you not still think he was, at that time? A. Well, subsequent events have led me to believe that he just did not care about my thoughts.

Q. I see. A. But I mean, I thought at that time——

Q. Yes, I mean— A. —that he definitely was interested.

Q. I see. And as a result of these thoughts that were expressed and exchanged between Rentner and yourself, you gave Rentner to understand, did you not, or such other men who came with Rentner—there were Bass, I understood you to say, or Sondheim, and some others— that the plan of protection against style piracy was a laudable one? A. In what year? 11163

Q. In 1932, or the latter part of 1932, or the latter part —or the early part of 1933, you have told us that these discussions consumed some time. A. Well, in 1933, I recall that we—I recall that I conveyed my impressions to Mr. Rentner, and that I was sympathetic to this thing.

Q. Well, you were a little more than sympathetic, were you not? A. Yes, I would say that I was at that time.

Q. Yes. A. I was.

Q. As a matter of fact, at that time, were you not, to some degree, enthusiastic about this plan? A. Well, I would not say just exactly enthusiastic, but I——

Q. Would you say you thought well of the plan? A. Yes, I was definitely sympathetic with what they were trying to do.

Q. And, of course, you were sympathetic—when you were sympathetic, you were at that time engaged in furthering the interest of the retailer in this market, were you not? A. Well, I do not understand that question.

Q. Well, I mean that you understood you were being 11165 paid, and that it was one of your duties, in this market to do that which would best serve the interest of the retailer; is that not so? A. I was being paid to work for the A.M.C.

Q. Yes, and you were loyal to your job and to your duties, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. And your duties were to do those things which would further the interest of the retailer? A. Well, if you will explain what you have reference to, I will—I will answer that; but that is a big question there. I know that my superiors at times differed with me, very much so, on this program——

Q. Do you fail to understand that question? A. I was working for the A.M.C. at the time; I was working for them; I was serving them in this market.

11166 Q. Yes. A. That was my job to take care of service for them in this market.

Q. Yes. A. I have explained that in my testimony.

Q. Are you afraid to tell it to me? A. No, sir; I will tell it to you as many times as you want.

Q. All right, then. Was it not your job at that time to further those interests of the retailer as they appeared to you in connection with this ready-to-wear market? A. I am—I don't know the point of it.

Q. I do not care whether you know the point of it or not. A. I was here to work for the A.M.C. Stores. That is what I was doing every day, all the time.

Q. Did you not yourself say to Mr. Haycraft in answer to his question to you, that it was your job to serve the best interests of the retailer in this market? A. No.

Q. That that was your duty? A. No, no, no, that I did not say—if you will read what I said——

Q. Well, what— A. —it is different from that.

Q. What do you think you said? A. I said we—I said the A.M.C. serves its member stores in any way that they want, within the broad policies of the organization.

Q. All right. A. Of the corporation. 11168

Q. In 1932, when you had these discussions with Mr. Rentner, you told him—and others— A. Yes.

Q. —you told him, did you not, in words or substance, that in your opinion the retailers throughout the country would be in favor of this proposed—of a proposed plan, such as he in substance disclosed to you at that time, for the curbing of style piracy; is that not so? A. In 1932, I don't think I expressed myself as in favor of any plan to curb style piracy; I don't recall that I did.

Q. Did you not— A. I have previously stated that I was in sympathy, and said so at a meeting in 1932, with the plan to improve, or to—to improve the conditions of better dresses, as described by Mr. Rentner, and at that time he certainly did not describe anything about the plan in detail, or red carding, or anything else. I mean that. 11169

Q. Well, that is not what I asked you. I am going to ask you this question again— A. Go ahead.

Q. —in another form to see whether I can make you understand it. In or about the time that the Guild was formed— A. Yes, sir; 1932.

Q. Yes . —or shortly before it was formed— A. Yes.

Q. —did you state to Mr. Rentner, in words or sub stance, that it was your opinion that the retailers through out the country would be generally in favor of the plai to curb style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: I object; he did not say that i his original testimony.

Mr. Weisman: I am asking him whether or no he did.

A. I do not recall that I ever did, Mr. Weisman.

By Mr. Weisman.

11171 Q. Well, if you said it, was it correct and true?

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say that.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, you cannot pull that stuff.

Examiner Averill: Answer the question, if you know.

A. I do not recall that I said it. If you will read it to me I will answer your question, if I ever said that; I won't deny I said it, I will tell you that, if I said it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, if you said it was it true?

Mr. Haycraft: I object; he did not say that.

11172 Mr. Weisman: You only said it the other day.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

A. I just got through telling you I did not say it the other day.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, what do you think you said the other day?

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, do you now deny that when you were testifying on your direct examination, that you testified, in words or substances, that Mr. Rentner asked you how you thought the retailers of the country would react to such plan as he disclosed to you? A. I recall testifying that Mr. Rentner—that I said Mr. Rentner asked me, and I recall testifying that I told him——

Q. You told him, did you not— A. —my opinion.

Q. —that in your opinion, such retailers—that the retailers would react favorably, did you not? A. I told him that I thought the retailers would react favorably to the plan he outlined at the luncheon meeting. 11174

Q. Well, that is what I am asking. A. That is right.

Q. Then why do you not say yes? A. No, that is not what you have asked me; you have not asked me that at any time.

Q. The record will clearly show. A. I have asked you to read what I have said, and put it on the record, if you want it there; I won't deny anything that——

Q. I want to see what kind of miserable memory you may or may not have; see?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

The Witness: Go ahead.

Examiner Averill: Do not answer.

By Mr. Weisman. 11175

Q. In any event, you now state that you told him that you believed it was your opinion that the retailers of the country would react favorably to such a plan as he then presented to you? A. I don't recall that I answered—I don't recall that I said other retailers; I recall that I gave my opinion that—and that I liked the plan; but if I included other retailers, then I will stand by it.

Q. No, I do not care what you will stand by. I want to find out what is the truth. A. You read it to me and I will tell you.

Q. You have just stated that you now remember, that without stating whether you failed to recollect anything else, but that there is one thing that you do remember, to wit, that you told him you were in favor of the plan at some time, you told him that, did you not?

By Examiner Averill.

Q. If you can, I would appreciate it very much. A. I understand the time to be—— 11177 Q. Exactly. A. —before or immediately after the Guild was formed. I think he prefaced his question with that.

Q. All right. A. And I have stated in words or substance to the effect that I was at that first meeting, at which this was discussed, and that I said that I—that I thought that we, myself, and—I probably mentioned retailers, but I cannot say exactly, were in favor—or would be in favor of the plan that Mr. Rentner outlined at that time, to foster better merchandise, through publicity, and a label, and things like that, as he outlined at that meeting that day.

Q. All right.

11178 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did Mr. Rentner at that day which you refer to—and what is your recollection of the time that that day was? A. I should say it was in the first quarter of 1933; which day, I couldn't tell you.

Q. No. All right. Now, we have got the time.

Mr. Haycraft: 1933 or 1932?

The Witness: 1932, I am sorry, 1932.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now we have got the time fixed in the first quarter of 1932, that Mr. Rentner came to you, or sent for you, or had a meeting with you, and others, and disclosed to you this plan that you just immediately talked about. A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have also testified that Rentner disclosed to you at that time that this plan was to be directed to the curbing of style piracy; is that not a fact? A. I don't recall that I ever said that.

Q. Well, if you do not recall it, do you now recall it? A. No.

Q. In other words, it is your statement now that when Rentner first discussed this with you, there wasn't any 11180 talk by him with relation to the curbing of style piracy? A. There may have been.

Q. Well, what is your recollection of it? A. I said I don't recall any such substance, or words, at that meeting.

Q. All right. Now, subsequently, and after this meeting in the early quarter of 1932, you learned, did you not, at some time, that it was part of this plan to curb or ameliorate the conditions which had grown up by reason of style piracy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first find that out? A. I would say in 1932.

Q. Well, what part of 1932, or our friend, Mr. Haycraft, will object. A. Oh, I cannot say exactly, Mr. Weisman; it is——

Q. Well, what is your best recollection? A. You want 11181 me to recollect something that I don't recollect—it was 1932—I was told at that time that that was the plan, whether it was March, April, May, or June, or September, or October, I cannot say——

Q. All right. A. —definitely.

Q. That is all right. I mean, I understand your situation, but my friend on the other side does not.

Mr. Haycraft: Do not worry about me. I will take care of myself, perfectly capable of it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. After this first meeting, you had numerous meetings with Mr. Rentner, did you not, and his associates? A. Yes, we had quite a few meetings.

Q. Then ultimately you did state to Mr. Rentner, in words or in substance, that you were in favor of such plan, one of the elements of which plan you understood to be the curbing of style piracy; did you not? A. Yes, I would say so.

11183 Q. Now, when, would you say, that was done? A. When the—as we were told by Mr. Rentner——

Q. Yes. A. —what his plans were——

Q. Yes. A. —we reacted to them.

Q. Yes. A. And I should say it was 19—let us see, now—the latter part of 1932 and early 1933, that his plans took more shape than they had been in previously.

Q. Yes, that is right. So that we have in the early part—in the latter part of 1932, or the early part of 1933, a sort of crystallization of thought on the part of Rentner, and you, is that right—it took form? A. Yes.

Q. It is another way of saying it. And during this time, from the first quarter of 1932 to the early part of 1933, had you discussed this matter which Rentner, and his 11184 associates, had disclosed to you, with your retailers? A. Why, I think we had, yes.

Q. Well, your A.M.C., and you, yourself, were acting in more or less of a representative capacity, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. And it was the usual and customary thing for you to ascertain the wishes and desires of your principals? A. Yes.

Q. And those principals were the retailers? A. They were the A.M.C. stores.

Q. Yes. Well, the A.M.C. stores are retail stores? A. Yes.

Q. So, then, would you say, in words or substance, that in 1933 when you advised that you were in favor of the plan as it was then disclosed—mind you, not as you claim it was ultimately developed—but as it was then disclosed, you were in favor of it—that by that the natural and reasonable implication was that the stores you represented were generally in favor of it? A. I did not state it to them in that way.

Q. Well— A. Will you let me answer it? A. Wait a moment, just a moment, and I will try to refresh your recollection.

Q. —that you advised them the retailers would react favorably? A. When?

Q. I want to know if you did advise them? A. Mr. Weisman, I have testified about four years' contacts with the Guild. If you will name the place and time when I testified I will say whether or not I did.

Q. All right. Now, I thought your mind was directed to the early part of 1933. A. As many conferences——

Q. Now, at these many conferences, did you state to Mr. Rentner, or his associates, or whoever was present on his behalf, or their behalf, that you believed the retailers would react favorably to the plan that had then been disclosed to you? A. No.

Q. You never told them prior— A. I don't——

11187

Q. —prior to 1933. A. I don't recall—I said prior, but I did not say in 1933.

Q. Did you prior to 1933? A. I have told you that I did to the——

Q. When? A. I have told you.

Q. When? A. To the plan that Mr. Rentner outlined at the first luncheon meeting.

Q. Well— A. I told you to that plan——

Q. Yes. A. —I said we would react favorably.

Q. Now, that was in the early part of 1932. A. That is right.

Q. Then I asked you, you went along and had further conferences with Rentner. A. And the plan developed——

Q. And the plan developed. A. —took shape.

Q. Now, when it took shape, it took shape in conference with you? A. No, not always.

Q. Well, was the shape not disclosed to you? A. Yes.

Q. And you— A. After the shape was formed.

Q. And you knew it prior to 1933? A. I told you in my direct testimony——

11189 Q. Oh, no, no, no— A. —and I——

Q. Now——

Mr. Weisman: May we have an answer to that question?

Examiner Averill: Well, now——

The Witness: I knew what prior to 1933?

Mr. Weisman: What?

The Witness: Make it specific.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: What is your answer?

The Witness: What prior to 1933? What did I know? Say it.

11190 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You knew the shape that the plan had taken? A. Well, yes, I knew of—I think I knew part of the shape it had taken. They were forming local retail guilds.

Q. Oh, look— A. That is what I said.

Q. I am asking you a very simple question. Didn't you and Mr. Rentner, and the rest of these people, have a great many conferences wherein Mr. Rentner disclosed to you the terms of this plan prior to 1933? A. No, no; in my direct testimony I did not say that.

Q. You did not say what?— A. I said——

Q. —What you said on your direct testimony, because I did not believe you then, and I want to know what you said.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike that question.

Examiner Averill: It is stricken, gentlemen.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I want to know what you now say: Do you now say that prior to 1933 Rentner, or his associates, did not disclose to you that one of the—if not the main point of the plan—was that they were seeking to curb style piracy, or 11192 to ameliorate the conditions which existed as a result thereof? A. You mean you want me to answer "yes" or "no" to that?

Q. Yes; that is right. A. I won't do it.

Q. All right. You mean when you say "You won't" that you cannot? A. That's right, can't, shouldn't, wouldn't.

Q. Well, if you cannot, I am not interested in anything further. You are certain that you cannot answer that "yes" or "no"? A. That is right.

Q. That is all I want to know from you on that score. Now, in 1933—did not Rentner, shortly prior to 1933, in a conference with you, or in numerous conferences with you, seek to give you ideas generally about this plan— 11193
A. Not——

Q. —to curb style piracy. A. Not prior to 1933. Now, during 1933 he did.

Q. Well, now, when in 1933 did he first seek to obtain your ideas, would you say? A. Oh, in January or February.

Q. In January or February? A. Yes.

Q. Then, did he disclose to you, in words or in substance, that one of the purposes of this plan was to curb style piracy? A. Well, he wanted to hire me at the time, and we discussed all kinds of things, and he wanted my ideas about how to run the Guild, and inasmuch as he wanted his own—he wanted to employ me at the time, and he was very anxious to have my ideas—he was not at the time exactly conveying his, but he wanted me to state what my thoughts about the Guild were.

Q. Oh, that is not the question that I asked you. A. Well——

Q. You had certain conferences with Mr. Rentner in 11195 the early part of 1933, and when I say "Rentner," I mean Rentner and/or his associates, whom you have heretofore described. A. Yes; we had these conferences.

Q. All right. A. Primarily around May and June, primarily, but——

Q. May and June of when? A. 1933.

Q. All right. A. But we had conferences and conversations that were personal and otherwise. I have tried to avoid bringing them in here. You know that I have. I never mentioned them.

Q. I am not a mind reader.

Mr. Haycraft: Oh, I thought you were.

A. If you would like me to explain——

11196 Examiner Averill: One moment, please; please, now, not for the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, I asked you a question about conferences, and you said you had many conferences.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You remember saying that a moment ago? A. Um-huh.

Q. If you shake your head— A. Yes.

Examiner Averill: He said "yes," at least I heard——

Mr. Weisman: I did not know whether the reporter heard it.

The Reporter: He said "Um-huh."

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. At any of these conferences which you have men- 11198
tioned, as being in May or June, 1933, was it disclosed to you, or did you know that the purpose of the Fashion Originators Guild was to ameliorate or curb style piracy? A. To curb style piracy?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first find that out? A. Now——

Examiner Averill: What?

Mr. Weisman: That it was the purpose of the Guild to curb style piracy.

A. I think I have made an explanation, and that—

Q. I want to know what you found out. A. That I found out in 1932, I mentioned it a little ago, in 1932.

Q. In other words, we now have you stating that in 11199
1932 you found out that it was the purpose of the Fashion Originators Guild to curb style piracy? A. I so said a little while ago.

Q. I do not care what you said a little while ago. I want to know if you now state? A. Yes.

Q. Please tell us, as nearly as you can, when you found that out. A. Do you want me to state that again?

Examiner Averill: If you can, tell us.

The Witness: A little while ago I said——

Examiner Averill: Do not say what you said a little while ago.

The Witness: I will repeat what I said. I don't know whether it was May, June, July, August or September, it was in those months of 1932 that I found out they were going to go after style piracy.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, when you found it out, and you say it was in either May, June, July, August or September of 1932, you do not know which month any better than that, did you 11201 communicate to your store principals that that was the purpose of the—one of the purposes of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I do not recall whether I did or not. I have looked to see if I did, and I cannot find that I have, I cannot find any record of such correspondence.

Q. Well, when you found it out, did you tell Rentner, or his associates, that you were in favor of such a program or purpose? A. As then outlined, I think I did.

Q. That is all right. Now, did you tell Mr. Rentner also, when you found that out, that you believed your store principals would be in favor of such a program? A. I don't think that I said that, but I think I said that I was.

Q. In other words, your best recollection is that when you gave approval to such a program you gave it per-11202 sonally and not on behalf of the people you represented?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "approval" in that question.

Mr. Weisman: I said such approval as he testified to.

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say he did approve, that is my objection.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(The last question was read.)

Examiner Averill: I see no objection to that question; the objection is overruled.

A. I cannot answer it "yes" or "no."

Q. All right.

Examiner Averill: Then do not attempt to.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you this: When you discussed this program with Rentner, during this period from May to September of 1932— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —were you of the opinion that Rentner was seeking your personal reaction to this plan which he discussed 11204 with you, or that he sought your personal reaction and the reaction of the retail stores you represented? A. I think he was seeking my personal reaction based on my knowledge of—of our retail temperament, especially as it applied to our stores.

Q. I see. And at that time he did not seek to find out from you directly or indirectly how your stores, which you represented, would react to this plan? A. No.

Q. Did you, before you gave Rentner your personal ideas during that period, May to September, 1932, ascertain in any fashion what were the opinions of your store principals toward such a plan? A. No.

Q. Well, did you not testify on your direct examination that before you gave Rentner your opinion, you wrote out 11205 to the stores to get their ideas? A. No, not—if you will specify when——

Q. No, no. A. I said at times I wrote, and at times I did not.

Q. All right, the record will speak for itself.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not Rentner or the Guild—by the way, I will withdraw that question. By the way, do you know when the Guild was organized? A. I think it was January or February, 1932.

Q. So that all the conversations that you had with Mr. Rentner were all subsequent to the organization of the F.O.G.A.? A. Apparently.

Q. Well, actually, were they not? A. Actually.

Q. During this time you knew, did you not, that the F.O.G.A. was constantly—I will withdraw that—was profusely writing out to retailers to get their opinions upon 11207 the matter of the advisability of curbing style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question unless the time is specified.

Examiner Averill: He says during that period, that is the same period he is speaking of.

Mr. Haycraft: You mean May until August?

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Yes, 1933.

Mr. Haycraft: 1932.

Examiner Averill: 1932, I meant to say.

Mr. Weisman: 1932.

The Witness: Read the question.

Q. (The last question was read.) A. I knew that they 11208 were writing, but not to get opinions.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, were they writing to urge upon retailers the advantages as they, the Guild, believed them to be? A. Yes.

Q. In this program? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And these letters came to you from your retailers? A. On occasions, yes.

Q. And you saw them? A. Yes.

Q. And you discussed them? A. Some of them.

Q. Naturally— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —you saw the ones that were brought to your attention? A. That is right.

Q. And there were a large number of them brought to your attention? A. Yes.

Q. And in these letters the Guild, among other things, did they not, sought to make it plain to the retailer that the curbing of style piracy was of a benefit to the retailer? A. Yes.

Q. And at that time, that is, we are still in 1932, you agreed with that idea to the extent that it had been disclosed to you? A. Did you say 1932? 11210

Q. Yes. A. The letters that came to my attention were mostly from December on.

Q. All right. A. December, 1932 on, and there were not many in early 1932, or since 1932, I mean, as I recall it.

Q. Well, the date is not important. A. All right.

Q. If it is 1932, or the early—you say it is December, 1932? A. They began.

Q. The date is unimportant. I just want to find out, and if you are mistaken I promise to make no point of it. A. All right.

Q. Now, you saw these letters? A. I saw some of them, yes, sir.

Q. And you even produced one of them here? A. Yes, sir. 11211

Q. And the one that you produced was brought to you, or sent to you, by the retailer to whom the Guild had sent it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you have produced Commission's Exhibit 861 in evidence; you got that from Mr. Forman? A. I think so.

Q. And who is Mr. Forman? A. He is the owner of B. Forman & Company of Rochester, New York.

Q. And that is one of your member stores? A. That is right.

Q. And when Mr. Forman got this letter, he brought it in to you? A. Yes, sir, as I recall it.

Q. And he brought it in around the time he received it, or shortly thereafter? A. As I recall it, approximately.

Q. Yes, the letter was marked received by them, December 8, 1932, and so then he brought it in, let us say, within a period of thirty days thereafter; is that fair? A. As I recall it; yes, sir.

Q. And when Mr. Forman showed you this communication, you then learned what was therein? A. Yes, sir.

11213 Q. And you saw many other such communications of similar nature and character? A. At that time.

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did that not give you any idea of what the Guild program was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And reading from this exhibit I notice it says as follows: "What the Guild is trying to accomplish is that there should be no copies bought by any legitimate store in the United States regardless of what price store it might be." Did you see that in the letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, did you not, when you saw this written in the letter to Forman, and in other letters, believe that that was one of the purposes of the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that in December of 1933, or in the early part of—— 11214

Mr. Haycraft: 1932.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. December of 1932, or in the early part of 1933, you, and certainly some of your stores, knew that it was the purpose of the Guild that no copies should be bought by any legitimate store in the United States regardless of what the price might be? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, subsequently to the receipt by the Forman store of that letter, from the representative of the Guild, the Forman store agreed—or I will withdraw that—signed a declaration of co-operation; is that not so? A. Six months later, I believe.

Q. Yes, and since you say six months later, I assume that you saw the declaration. A. I—yes—I have seen a copy of their declaration.

Q. Yes. A. I do not recall that I ever saw their declaration, Mr. Weisman.

Q. Yes. Have you got a copy of it? A. I haven't it with me.

Q. In any event, there can be no doubt in your mind, 11216 can there, that the Forman Declaration, or the letter, a copy of which you saw, was sent in by Forman subsequently to the receipt by them of Commission's Exhibit 861? A. And subsequent to my——

Q. Well, never mind any more. I just want to make sure. A. It was subsequent.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And it was also sent in subsequent to their showing to you the letter, Commission's Exhibit 861? A. And my talking to them about it.

Q. And your talking to them? A. Yes.

Q. Yes. And I show you this letter dated December 29, 1932——

Mr. Weisman: First, may I mark this for iden- 11217
tification.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 86.)

Examiner Averill: Respondents' Exhibit 86, all right, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 86 for Identification and ask you whether or not this is the original of the copy of the letter which you saw and which you referred to as a copy of the declaration of co-operation (handing paper to witness)? A. That is not the one to which I had reference a moment ago.

Q. Did you ever see a copy of Respondents' Exhibit 86——

Mr. Haycraft: —for identification.

Mr. Weisman: For identification, thank you, Mr. Haycraft.

11219

Examiner Averill: That is that letter he just showed you.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Did you ever see a copy of it, that one?

The Witness: I was apprised of its contents, but never saw a copy.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You say you were apprised of its contents? A. Yes.

Q. Who apprised you of its contents? A. One of the Formans, either Eddie Forman, or his father, B. Forman.

Q. So that you knew, did you not, that after the receipt by the B. Forman Company of Commission's Exhibit 861 and after they had spoken to you, they had sent to the Guild a letter, the substance of which letter they told you about and which you now say is fully contained in Respondents' Exhibit 86 for Identification?

11220

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of it, also.

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled. I see no objection to the form. The witness can answer that readily.

A. The substance came—I wish I could, your Honor—I am probably very dumb about this proceeding——

Examiner Averill: No.

The Witness: —and I am sorry, if that is the case. The substance of this, forming a local guild, was told to me, and that they had made that decision up there——

Examiner Averill: Then you were asked whether the letter which has now been shown to you, Respondents' Exhibit 86 for Identification, covers the matters which were told to you.

The Witness: It does.

Examiner Averill: That is all. 11222

The Witness: That is right.

Examiner Averill: That is all you were asked.

Mr. Weisman: I now offer this letter in evidence, Respondents' Exhibit 86.

Examiner Averill: Show it to our friend.

(Mr. Weisman hands Respondents' Exhibit 86 for Identification to Mr. Haycraft.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you recognize Mr. Forman's signature on this letter, Mr. Bergdahl?

Examiner Averill: Show it to him.

11223

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show it to you (handing paper to witness). A. I cannot say that I recognize it as Mr. Forman's signature, no.

Q. Well, from looking at this letter, and the context of it, do you have any doubt as to whether or not that is the original letter from Mr. Forman to the Guild? A. No, I don't.

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

The Witness: I would like to make a statement, if your Honor please, because I want to make a correction in something I said this morning.

Examiner Averill: You may proceed.

The Witness: Well, I should like to make the correction in this regard, that I think I testified, 11225 if not in these words, in substance that it was my understanding that I had seen a copy of a declaration signed by R. Forman & Company subsequent to this contract, or this agreement, which was shown to me.

I have referred to my files in my office, or had my secretary do so, and find that in the mail or correspondence that Mr. Post sent me in the fall of last year, 1935, that he made the statement that R. Forman & Company, and one other store, were registered under the agreement, of a local agreement, of Rochester local guild. He did not say whether they subsequently signed the contract or not, and therefore while I was under the impression that they had, they apparently had not.

11226 Examiner Averill: Is that all that you want to say in that regard?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. So that this Respondents' Exhibit No. 86 would be, to your knowledge, the only declaration that Forman & Company had actually signed? A. As far as I know.

Q. As far as you know? A. As far as I know.

Q. During this period, from the first quarter in 1932 until the early part of 1933, the Guild had sent out, had it not, numerous letters and/or bulletins and/or communications, call them whatever you will, to the various retailers advising them of the purposes of the Guild; you do know that, do you not? A. I became familiar with such policies at the end of 1932; yes, sir.

Q. You saw them? A. I saw them.

Q. Then you became familiar with the physical bulletins, did you not? A. I would be willing to say that; yes, sir. I did become familiar with such bulletins at or about the end of 1932.

11228

Q. These bulletins, did they not set forth in general, and in lay language, the aims and/or purposes and/or intentions of the Guild, or purported so to do; is that so? A. As they developed.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And when your member stores would receive these bulletins from time to time, or these letters, or these communications, or whatever you called them, they would send some of them, at least, on to you, or discuss them with you, or discuss the contents of them with you, the contents thereof with you; would they not? A. They would.

Q. These bulletins were sent to your member stores as well as to others? A. I think so.

11229

Q. Your member stores, in so far as you know, were treated the same at that time as anybody else? A. As far as I know.

Q. I show you a copy of Commission's Exhibit 454, No. 454, a letter of December 16. A. Yes.

Q. Disregarding the pencil notations on there, did you ever see that before—referring to Commission's Exhibit 454? A. Why, I cannot say—I do not recall that I saw it at the time, but I have seen this.

Q. You have? A. Yes.

Q. To the best of your recollection, what would you say— A. What is that?

Q. It is dated, as you will notice, December 16, 1932, and did you see it at or about the time that it was sent out? I do not mean on that day, but I mean within sixty days or ten days or thirty days or so. A. I am not sure, but I will say that I think I saw it at that time. It certainly has come to my attention because I knew of it.

Q. How did it come to your attention? A. I think it came to my attention by stores asking me what I thought about local guilds.

11231 Q. When you saw this did you notice therein paragraph 3, which, referring to the Guild program, and stating to the retailer: "The point we wish to stress is that when the consumer sees in a legitimate dress shop a dress that appeals to her, she will have confidence that the price asked for this dress represents its true value, and she will either buy it at that price or if she prefers to spend less money than that price, she will select another style dress to suit her purposes, she will understand that by waiting a week or two longer she will not be able to purchase this dress or an inferior copy of the original of that, or similar to it at a fraction of the original." Do you notice that—would you like to see it? A. Why, I have told you.

11232 Q. No, no, no. I asked you, do you notice that, and did you notice that at the time? A. Why, I have told you—

Q. Would you like to see it? A. No.

Examiner Averill: You can answer whether you noticed it or not.

The Witness: I cannot recollect, but I have told you——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, Mr. Bergdahl, I call your attention to it, and since I have called your attention to it, would you say that in or about December 16, 1932, that you knew from this communication to others, and/or from others, if not from this alone, or from others alone, that that was one of the substantial purposes of the Guild? A. Yes, I knew that that was one of the substantial purposes of the Guild.

Q. I call your attention to this matter contained in this communication which says——

Examiner Averill: Is that the same exhibit?

By Mr. Weisman. 11234

Q. Still referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 454: "We wish to record with all possible emphasis the fact that it is not the Guild's intention to interfere with or to impede in any way whatever the individual retailer's complete control over their business"—I beg your pardon—"complete control over every phase of the operation of his own business. We would not be a party to any compact that would be in reality, or might be construed as designed to regulate prices, or to hamper the free play of competition. All we can—we cannot consider any relationship with merchants which would deprive them of conducting their enterprise in any ethical manner that they may see fit. Needless to say, the acceptance of the Guild proposals 11235 does not limit the retailer's purchases to any group of resources. The only condition stipulated and upon which frank comment of merchants is invited is that they shall not buy copied or pirated merchandise on the principle that this plagiarism has been, definitely been proved to be detrimental to the best interests of the manufacturer, retailer and consumer." You say that at or about the date that it was sent out, did you not? A. I think so.

Q. You knew then that in December, 1932, the only condition stipulated by the Guild was that they should not buy copies or pirated merchandise, did you not? A. I did not know that.

Q. Did you not know that the Guild was urging the acceptance of this principle; that is, that merchants, retail merchants, should not buy pirated merchandise upon the ground that they believed—referring to the Guild, I mean—and said that they, the Guild, believed that the purchasing of pirated merchandise had proved to be detrimental to the best interests of the manufacturer, retailer and consumer? A. I recall such.

11237 Q. You do recall such. Do you recall that such was the claim, plan and position of the Guild in 1932, as evidenced by Commission's Exhibit No. 454? A. I recall such.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, you have testified that you saw certain notices in "Women's Wear Daily"; is that correct? A. When?

Examiner Averill: You testified that you saw notices. Say "Yes."

A. Yes, yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The "Women's Wear Daily," was that a paper that was regularly read by you? A. Yes.

11238 Q. Did you in 1932 read it regularly? A. Yes.

Q. While in or about 1932— A. What is that?

Q. I withdraw that question. A. O.K.

Q. Did you not know that in or about the month of May, 1935, at a meeting attended by certain executive members of the A.M.C., or members of the A.M.C., in or about that time, requested—that is, these members of the A.M.C. in or about that time requested, either in words or in substance, that the Guild extend its program to and take in the $10.75 manufacturers? I refer to May, 1933. I said, erroneously, May, 1935 in my question. A. Do I know that members of the A.M.C. made such a request?

Q. Yes. A. No. No, I do not recall any such request.

Q. Let me ask you if up to May, 1933, the Guild——

Examiner Averill: 1933?

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Your previous question was for 1935.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, but I corrected it to 1933.

Examiner Averill: You corrected it to 1933?

Mr. Weisman: Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: I just want to keep the record straight. Proceed. 11240

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You understood my correction to 1933? A. Yes, sir.

Q. We have the formation of the Guild and we have your co-operation, in any event, up to May, 1933; that is correct, is it? A. Yes.

Q. When I say "your co-operation," you have testified that to be a period that is already in evidence that your member stores co-operated? A. Yes.

Q. Was that up to 1933, and particularly 1933, or, I will put it this way: That, in fact, up to 1933, in the month of May, your stores of the A.M.C. and the A.M.C. itself were co-operating with the F.O.G.A. in its program as it was being exercised; is that correct? 11241

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. May, 1933, there had not been a single one signed up by then.

Mr. Weisman: All of these signed prior to that, every declaration of co-operation you have in evidence was signed prior to May, 1933.

Examiner Averill: There is nothing in the evidence to warrant that, obviously. Objection overruled. You may answer the question. There is nothing to warrant the objection so far.

A. No co-operation was required up to that time.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Then it is your statement that up to May, 1933, the stores were buying copies? A. I think so.

Q. That is your best recollection?

Examiner Averill: When you say "stores," what stores do you refer to, Mr. Weisman?

11243 By Mr. Weisman:

Q. The member stores of the A.M.C. A. I am quite sure that they were. They could not help it.

Q. Well, wait a minute. A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the terms of the declaration of co-operation, to wit, that the stores will not knowingly purchase a copy of dresses manufactured by members of the F.O.G.A.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know Mr. Ladd? A. George Ladd?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Who is he? A. Merchandise manager of ready-to-wear for Abraham & Straus, Inc., over in Brooklyn.

Q. Is Abraham & Straus, Inc., a member of the A.M.C.? A. Yes, sir.

11244 Q. Do you know Mr. Walter Deiches? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is he? A. He was merchandise manager of Bloomingdale's at the time.

Q. New York? A. Right.

Q. When you say "at the time," what year are you referring to? A. 1933.

Q. '33? A. Right.

Q. 1932 also? A. I think he was also in 1932, but I am not sure about that.

Q. Was that store also a member of the A.M.C.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Right? A. Right.

Q. Do you know whether or not prior to 1933 Abraham & Straus had signed a declaration of co-operation? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know whether or not they had expressed themselves as being in favor of the Guild policy to prevent the copying of styles and originations? A. To the Guild?

Q. Yes. A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know whether or not Abraham & Straus, Inc., on November 1, 1932, said in words or in substance to the F.O.G.A., and by that I mean the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., that they, Abraham & Straus, wished to express themselves in sympathy with, or their sympathy with the efforts of the Guild to prevent the copying of styles? 11246

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. He may answer if he knows.

A. I do not know.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did Abraham & Straus, in or about November, 1932, ever divulge that statement of policy of theirs to you? A. No, sir. 11247

Q. Did they ever tell you that? A. That I do not recall.

Q. You mean they might have said it, but if they did you have now forgotten it? A. That is right.

Q. Did they ever state to you that they had informed the Guild in words or substance that they agreed that the copying evil is costing the retailer—and that they, Abraham & Straus, Inc., would like to see this minimized? A. Well, are you quoting that?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Weisman: I object to the witness interrogating me, your Honor. It is just another evidence of rebellious, contumacious and recalcitrant spirit that this witness is evidencing.

Mr. Martin: Oh, my, my, my.

Examiner Averill: He is asking you if you did; I think you can answer that.

By Mr. Weisman.

A. I do not understand it, and I do not know of any such statement.

11249 Q. Do you recall whether or not— A. What is that?

Q. Do you recall whether or not you became aware of the fact in 1933 that the F.O.G.A. proposed to take in, through some form of membership, the manufacturers of $10.75 merchandise? A. 1933?

Q. 1932, I mean. A. I do not know.

Q. You never heard of that before now? A. About 1932?

Q. Yes. A. That the Guild intended to do so?

Q. Yes. A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever urge upon the Guild in 1932 that the proper— A. What is that?

Q. —in words or in substance, that the proper protection of all of this merchandise that was being carried by your stores would require that the Guild take into its 11250 membership manufacturers of garments costing $10.75? A. Not in those words.

Q. I did not ask you whether you urged in those words. I particularly said not in words, and I said in substance did you urge upon the Guild that they should take into the Guild manufacturers of merchandise costing $10.75, or costing $10.50? A. I cannot answer that by "yes" or "no."

Q. All right. Did you not a moment ago say—or, as a matter of fact, without any regard to what you said a few moments ago, did you not learn in 1932 that the Guild proposed to take into its membership the manufacturers of $10.75 merchandise? A. I do not recall that I learned any such thing.

Q. Or any similar thing? A. No.

Q. Did you learn in or about May, 1933, that the F.O.G.A. was about to admit into some form of membership the $10.50 manufacturers? A. That refers to 1933?

Q. Yes. A. I did not.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 45 for Identification, the same being a photostatic copy of a page of "Women's Wear Daily," and ask you whether or not in August, 1933, you saw that? A. I may have seen it. I do not recall. 11252

Q. You do not recall? A. No.

Q. You remembered very definitely that you saw Commission's Exhibit No. 899 in the "Women's Wear," the same being a small article about 2 inches wide by 4 inches long, and notwithstanding that you cannot say whether you saw an article which covers two-thirds of a page, approximately; is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as argumentative.

Examiner Averill: Let him answer. The objection is overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: He has said he had not. What is the use of all this? 11253

A. I cannot tell you anything more than I have before.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That is your best answer? A. I do not recall it.

Q. Do you deny that you saw it? A. No, sir; I do not deny it.

Q. It was a subject-matter that was not of interest to you? A. No, sir; it was not.

Q. Did you think it was of interest to the members, or member stores of the A.M.C.? A. I think not. I am sure that it was not.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I think that until the paper is in evidence that these questions are not proper in regard to the contents thereof.

By Mr. Weisman.

11255 Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit No. 44 for Identification, the same being a full page advertisement appearing in "Women's Wear" of July 11, and ask you whether or not you saw that at any time?

Mr. Haycraft: What year?

Mr. Weisman: '33.

A. I may have.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, did you not? A. No. I cannot say.

Q. Do you not know? A. You want me to say if I do not recall it? I do not recall having seen that.

Q. If you had seen it, would you remember it?

11256 Mr. Haycraft: I object to any further interrogation along this line as repetitious, and of no value in the record.

Examiner Averill: I do not think until the paper is received in evidence, or is introduced in evidence, that this line of interrogation would be proper.

Mr. Weisman: Then I will go to something else for a moment and return to it later.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not regularly read "Women's Wear"? A. Yes, sir; I do.

Q. Do you think that it is possible that you, who daily read "Women's Wear," would miss a full page advertisement announcing that the dress——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as reading from a document that is not in evidence.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is almost a full page advertisement such as this? 11258

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He said he did not.

Examiner Averill: Sustained. The witness says he does not remember so.

Mr. Weisman: I am trying to refresh his recollection. People who have flexible recollections need to have them stimulated from time to time.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any further interrogation and use of this exhibit.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is it not a fact that the A.M.C. and the F.O.G.A. both regularly have used the "Women's Wear Daily" as a media of getting notices to the trade generally, a policy adopted by both of them? 11259

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Weisman: This is a different question.

Mr. Haycraft: He can answer for the A.M.C., but how can he answer for the F.O.G.A.?

Mr. Feldman: He can answer it as an expert. He certainly was called upon to answer everything else that the F.O.G.A. did, including blowing its nose.

Mr. Weisman: The question is not any good anyway, because it does not say so with any definiteness.

Examiner Averill: He can answer that question. Objection overruled.

A. Yes, sir, I know that.

Mr. Weisman: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, prior to the date appearing on these advertisements, the earlier of which is July 11, 1933, and the later one of which is August 9, 1933, the same being 11261 Respondents' Exhibits Nos. 44 and 45, respectively, did you not at a meeting with the Guild officials urge upon them that they should take into their membership the $10.50 manufacturers? A. No, sir.

Q. You are certain of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I ask you to look at the minutes of a meeting held on and in the Garment Center Capital Club on February 17, 1933, at which were present a number of men who were from resident buying offices, including your offices, and at which there were present a number of people from the F.O.G.A. and at which you were present. A. No, it does not say that and I do not recall that I was present. I wish I had been. It was a good letter. It is good minutes.

Q. In other words, you say that these minutes do not refresh your recollection of having attended such a meet-11262 ing? A. No, they do not.

Q. By the way, during this period—that is, the early part of 1932, or, rather, the latter part of 1932 and the early part of 1933, was Mr. Reilly, your superior, equally active as you in connection with the Guild program? A. In 1932?

Q. The latter part of 1932 and the early part of 1933. A. We were active together. I was active in the market and in the contacts with manufacturers and with the F.O.G.A. I discussed it with him and he frequently passed on information to the store owners as I passed it on to him; but as far as market contacts were concerned, I was the most active.

Q. Referring to Respondents' Exhibit 44, I notice that it is a full page advertisement by the Dress Creators League of America, Inc., and that it is signed by, among others, Baum, Kravat & Baum, 550 Seventh Avenue——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. The witness said he did not see that.

Examiner Averill: I do not know whether he is going to ask him that now, as to whether he saw it, or not. The question has not been finished. The 11264 exhibit is in evidence and we will see what the basis for all of this is.

Mr. Weisman: If you will kindly refrain from interrupting me until my question is completed——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know who Baum, Kravat & Baum of 550 Seventh Avenue were in July, 1933? A. I was familiar with them.

Q. Who were they? A. They were dress manufacturers.

Q. What price dresses did they manufacture and sell, to your knowledge? A. At that time, I think $10, $10 to $12.

Q. Do you know whether or not they had their own 11265 designing staff? A. No, sir.

Q. No? A. No, sir.

Q. When you say "No, sir," do you mean they did not have or you do not know? A. I do not know.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I notice from Respondents' Exhibit No. 44, that the Dress Creators League of America, Inc., advertises in the "Women's Wear Daily", of Tuesday, July 11, and stated the following: "The members of this organization maintain extensive designing facilities and create every model presented by them. In dealing with League concerns, retailers who have signed the Guild's 'Declaration' can have absolute confidence that they are faithful to their pledge." Do you agree with that statement?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.
Examiner Averill: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Noted.

11267 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know who the members of the Dress Creators League were in July, 1933?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Averill: I believe I understand, counsel, that the members are shown thereon, and why do you not ask the witness to take the exhibit and ask him whether he knows whether they are the members?

Mr. Weisman: I shall be most happy to adopt your Honor's suggestion.

11268 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit No. 44 and ask you to look at that, and from looking at it can you tell me, or tell us, who were the members of the Dress Creators League of America, Inc., in July, 1933? A. Every member?

Examiner Averill: As far as you know, are the names on that paper the names of the people who at that time were members of the League—will you say?

The Witness: They were, as far as I know.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The members of this Dress Creators League that consisted of the following: Baum, Kravat & Baum, 550 Seventh Avenue, F. E. D. Dress Co., Inc., 1400 Broadway, Goldman Frock Co., Inc., 1384 Broadway, International Dress Co., Inc., 1400 Broadway, Jomark Dresses, Inc., 1375 Broadway, Parisian Manufacturing Co., Inc., 550 Seventh Avenue, C. H. D. Robbins Co., 1375 Broadway, New York Dress & Costume Co., Inc., 1375 Broadway, 11270
Rosen Brothers Frocks, Inc., 1400 Broadway, Sakin & Levine, Inc., 1400 Broadway, Sheila-Lynn Dresses, Inc., 525 Seventh Avenue. A. Yes.

Q. From your experience in this business, do you know who the F. E. D. Dress Company, Inc., 1400 Broadway, New York, N. Y., were, and what price dresses the F. E. D. Dress Company, Inc., were manufacturing in July, 1933?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Averill: What?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as not proper cross-examination, and incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Averill: I do not know anything about 11271 this thing. We have had some reference by the witness to this particular dress concern.

Mr. Haycraft: No in his direct examination.

Examiner Averil: The witness has spoken of it before. Overruled.

A. As I recall it, they made $10.75 dresses.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. They also made cheaper dresses—they also make cheaper-priced dresses? A. I think not.

Q. Do you know what priced dresses the International Dress Company, Inc., 1400 Broadway, New York, N. Y., made in July, 1933?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Averill: Why not ask him about all of them in one question?

Mr. Weisman: Because some of them did and some of them did not. I just wanted to pick out the ones who did.

11273

Mr. Haycraft: I say that I object to all of this because I think we are going into a cross-examination now that is not based upon the direct testimony of the witness, and is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant for any purpose whatsoever.

Mr. Weisman: It took you four and a half days to get in absolutely nothing, and it is going to only take me a short time to bring out the facts, and I do not see what you are complaining about.

Mr. Haycraft: What is that?

Mr. Weisman: It took you four and a half days to get nowhere. Why, you are the last one to complain.

Mr. Haycraft: Is that so?

11274

Examiner Averill: Proceed and get along, or none of us will get anywhere.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not know that a lot of these dress manufacturers who were members of the Dress Creators League of America, Inc., in July, 1933, or at or about that date, or in the season ensuing shortly thereafter, made dresses that sold at less than $10.50? A. I know that they made $10.50.

Q. Now, look. Do you not know what I asked you?

Examiner Averill: Did he not answer it?

Mr. Weisman: No. He stalled and slid around the corner. I asked him whether he knew that.

Examiner Averill: He answered that he knew they made $10.50.

Mr. Weisman: Quite true, your Honor, but I asked him more than that. That does not exclude him from knowing any other fact.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether any of these people— A. 11276
What?

Q. First, you were divisional merchandise manager of the A.M.C.? A. Yes.

Q. An organization purchasing $50,000,000 worth of women's and misses' ready-to-wear during the year, ladies' ready-to-wear, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you not acquaint yourself with the conditions of the markets? A. Yes.

Q. Did you not? A. I did.

Q. From such experience and acquaintanceship which you gathered in the line of your duty, do you know whether or not any of these firms mentioned in this Respondents' Exhibit No. 44 made, manufactured or sold dresses at less than $10.50? A. I think there was some of them that did. 11277
I am not sure, however.

Q. Why did you not tell us that before? A. You did not ask me.

Q. Tell us who you think did, as indicated by the names set forth on Respondents' Exhibit 44?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as immaterial.

Examiner Averill: I am sorry, but I must sustain the objection. I do not think we can go any further because it is not proper cross-examination. I have allowed it so far, hoping something would develop, but I have not seen it yet.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, there were some of your member stores, Mr. Bergdahl, were there not, who felt that the policy of the Guild tending to curb style piracy was a beneficial one?

Mr. Haycraft: I object unless you make it more definite as to time.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, there appears to have been a certain time when there were certain and substantial members who did coincide with the idea, and it appears that later there was a change in the feeling of some of them. How many, I do not know, but there was, so I think that that is a reasonable request by counsel.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me see, Mr. Bergdahl. A. Yes.

Q. Your A.M.C. has eighteen or twenty members? A. Twenty.

Q. Hutzler Brothers, Baltimore, Md., are one of these members, are they? A. Yes.

11280

Q. In your opinion, are Hutzler Brothers at this date in favor of the style protection as laid down by the Guild? A. I could not answer that "yes" or "no."

Q. Do you not know? A. No.

Q. All right, I will take that as your best answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not Hutzler Brothers, Baltimore, to the best of your knowledge are to-day co-operating with the Guild?

Q. Are they members of the A.M.C.? A. They are.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled.

(Question read.)

A. They are co-operating, as far as I know.

Q. And they are members of the A.M.C.? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know the Horne Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the full name of that company? A. Joseph Horne & Company.

Q. Of where? A. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Q. Are they members of the A.M.C.? A. They are.

Q. Do you know whether or not they are to-day co- 11282 operating with the Guild? A. As far as I know, they are co-operating.

Q. Do you know Bullock's, or is it Bullocks-Wilkshire? A. Both.

Q. One of them is Bullocks-Wilkshire at Los Angeles, and Bullock's is in Los Angeles, too? A. Both of them are. One of them is a branch of the other.

Q. And they are both in Los Angeles, Calif.? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not they are co-operating with the Guild? A. As far as I know, they are co-operating.

Q. They are also members of the A.M.C.? A. Right.

Q. Do you know the L. S. Ayres Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not they are co-operating 11283 with the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Are they members of the A.M.C.? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not the B. Forman & Company are members of the A.M.C.? A. Yes.

Q. Are they? A. They are.

Q. And are they co-operating with the Guild? A. As far as I know, they are.

Q. What about the Reich-Shumler Company? A. As far as I know, they are co-operating.

Q. They are members of the A.M.C.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you discussed this matter with any of the executives of some of the well-known leading department stores of America? A. Yes.

Q. Have you discussed it with the Marshall Field representative, Chicago? A. No, I think not.

Q. Would you say that Marshall Field of Chicago is a department store which handles both high and low-priced merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

11285

Examiner Averill: He may answer that question.

A. Yes, they do, yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. On your direct examination, you gave it as an answer to a hypothetical question, that you felt that a store having a basement shop and a high-priced shop above would be at some disadvantage in co-operating with the Guild program? A. Yes.

Q. If Marshall Field Company, and the executives thereof, had expressed a directly contrary opinion to that, and had stated that their experience showed it was beneficial, would that in the smallest degree change or affect your opinion? A. That would not affect my opinion in the slightest iota.

11286

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the Powers Company, Minneapolis? A. I know of the Powers Company in Minneapolis.

Q. Do you know what business the Powers Mercantile Company is in? A. They are a department store.

Q. Where? A. Minneapolis.

Q. Minneapolis, where? A. Minnesota.

Q. They handle goods of all ranges, expensive and cheap goods, and maintain a basement department? A. I think they do. Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, in or about July, 1933, you, on behalf of the A.M.C., signed a declaration of co-operation, did you not? A. The last week in June, I believe we signed such a declaration.

Q. Well, you say "we," but you did sign it on behalf of the A.M.C.? A. I signed it, yes. 11288

Q. Did you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you sign it on behalf of the A.M.C.? A. I did.

Q. Before you signed it you went over it carefully? A. Yes.

Q. You made sure, did you not, that it contained the full agreement, did you not? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you make any changes in it? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not? Are you sure of that? A. I think not, as I recall it, but I may have.

Q. If it required any changes, would you have made them? A. No, I think not, with the understanding that I had with Mr. Rentner.

Mr. Haycraft: What is that?

Mr. Weisman: I ask this declaration of co- 11289 operation that was signed by the A.M.C., one page, be marked Respondents' Exhibit 88 for Identification.

Examiner Averill: It may be so marked.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I call your attention to Respondents' Exhibit 88 for Identification, and ask you whether or not this is the declaration of co-operation signed by you and transmitted to the Guild, and, furthermore, that when you signed it, you signed it personally, or on behalf of the A.M.C.? A. That is the declaration that I signed on behalf of the A.M.C.

Q. That is your handwriting? A. It is.

Q. Below? A. It is. It states for the New York office only, however.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Is this the paper to which you referred just a moment ago in which you stated, then, you stated, that you 11291 had signed it some time in the last week of June, 1932? A. Yes, sir; this is the one I signed some time in the last week of June, 1932.

Q. The reason I asked you that, the paper bears no date, but bears a stamp on there showing it was received July 5, but it did not give any year. A. Yes, sir.

(Whereupon, at 4 o'clock P. M., November 25, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, N. Y.,
December 1, 1936.

11292

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Averill: You may proceed, gentlemen, whenever you are ready.

H. O. BERGDAHL resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, with regard to your statement, which is, in words or substance, that you felt that a department store handling low-priced and high-priced merchandise was somewhat at a disadvantage by reason of the Guild program, would it change your answer if you were advised that Mr. Perry Schneider, whom we have previously identified, had testified in words or substance that his store, the Powers Mercantile Corporation, found that non-co-operating competitors had no advantage over them in 11294 the sale of low-priced merchandise in the Minneapolis, Minn., market? A. It would not change my testimony.

Mr. Weisman: I think that is the point of the question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I think at your last examination you chose the words, with regard to a similar question, that it would not change your testimony—you mean it would not change your opinion; is that so? A. Yes, I mean it would not change my opinion.

Q. I believe you testified that it would not change your opinion one iota; do you remember that? Do you re- 11295 member using that language? A. Yes.

Q. Would you say the same thing with regard to the lack of change of opinion to the present question, that it would not change, or that the charge would not even be to an iota? A. Well, that is making it kind of technical, but that is the way I feel about it, it would not change my opinion one iota.

Q. That is what I want to know; it would not change your opinion one iota? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, in 1932 in about November, and for some time prior thereto, you had testified, I believe, that you had numerous conversations with officers of the Guild concerning their program; is that so? A. In substance, I think so.

Q. You were then in the same position as you are now? A. Yes.

Q. And to some degree did you not feel that this Guild movement was an important movement in the ladies' ready-to-wear, and one that affected the business of those stores whom you represented? A. I did at that time.

Q. Did you not, with that belief, reasonably seek to in-11297 form yourself as to what was going on with relation to this program? A. I do not know just how to answer you on that.

Q. Answer me as best you can. A. I was working in the ladies' ready-to-wear, and I was interested in the problems incident thereto. I did not seek any outside assistance, however.

Q. I did not ask you that. A. No, but I mean—well—

Q. Did you not think it was part of your duty, as an executive, representing a lot of these stores, to learn all that you reasonably could about what was going on in relation to this program? A. Well, I do not know just how to answer you. I was interested in the program. I have told you that. You mean, did I seek any contact with the Guild to find out what was going on, and so 11298 forth?

Q. No, I do not mean that. I mean, were you not interested in knowing what the Guild was doing, and what it planned to do? A. I was not as interested about the program at that time, as I recall, as I was in 1933 when it became very pertinent and more direct as far as I was concerned.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What I am trying to find out from you is whether or not it had ever come to your attention that in November of 1932, at a meeting which was attended by the following: Mr. C. G. Sheffield, chairman, representing B. Altman & Company; Mr. Philip Le Bouttelier, representing Best & Company; Mr. Charles S. Hobbs, of James McCreery's; Mr. D. I. Nemerov, of Russek's; Mr. L. C. Palmer, of Lord & Taylor; Mr. George Ladd, of Abraham & Straus, over here in Brooklyn; Miss Dorothy Shaver, of Lord & Taylor; Mr. Edward Currier and Mr. E. Burnham, and the Guild executives; and that it was at that time suggested and requested of the Guild that they take 11300 into their membership manufacturers of merchandise wholesaling at the price range $10.50. A. It did not at that time.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you say that it did not come to your attention at that time, did it come to your attention at a subsequent time that such request had been made to the Guild?

Q. You have not heard about it prior thereto? A. Not that I recall, I will say it that way.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike the last four questions and answers as irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial.

Examiner Averill: The motion is denied at the present time. I want to see where this is looking to. 11301

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you this— A. Yes.

Q. —you said that you do not remember having heard about it. Do you know Mr. Ladd? A. Very well.

Q. Mr. Ladd is an executive of Abraham & Straus? A. Yes.

Q. Abraham & Straus is one of the A.M.C. stores? A. Yes.

Q. Abraham & Straus is also a member of the Federated Stores; is that so? A. Yes.

Q. The Federated Stores, how many stores are together in the Federated Stores? A. Six.

Q. Six? A. Six.

Q. Those are what stores, by name? A. John Shillito Company, Cincinnati; F. & R. Lazarus Company, Columbus, Ohio; Bloomingdale Brothers, New York City, N. Y.;
11303 Abraham & Straus Company, Inc., Brooklyn, New York; R. H. White & Company, Boston, Mass. Also, Wm. Filene's Sons Company of Boston, Mass.

Q. In other words, those stores that you have named are all in one ownership; that is, in the Federated Stores? A. They are in a holding company.

Q. Yes, and— A. Which is called the Federated Department Stores.

Q. All of these Federated Department Stores are members of the A.M.C.? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Ladd is an executive of Abraham & Straus, Inc.? A. He is.

Q. Over here in Brooklyn? A. Right.

Q. Do you know from your experience whether or not Mr. Ladd, or other representatives of Abraham & Straus, 11304 from time to time does speak for the other members of the Federated Department Stores? A. I have never heard of it.

Q. You have neard heard of it? A. I have never heard of it, not for a merchandising manager of Mr. Ladd's standing speaking for the other stores.

Q. Would you think that in November, 1933, Mr. Ladd of Abraham & Straus discussed with you, prior to making a request to the Guild, the fact that it was his desire that the Guild take in—and when I say "his," I mean as speaking for his store and for the Federated Department Stores—that the Guild take into its membership the manufacturers of $10.50 dresses? A. I do not believe that Mr. Ladd made such a request even if he was present at the meeting, from conversations I have had with him at that time and subsequently.

Q. You do not remember Mr. Ladd ever discussing that with you? A. He discussed the subject of whether or not the $10 and lower-priced manufacturers should be in the Guild, but it was always from a negative point of view, or, rather, from the point of view of the impossibility or difficulties of doing such a thing.

Q. You mean, the impossibilities of getting them in? A. Well, the difficulties involved in connection with getting them in, the impossibility as far as the retailer enforcing it rather than getting the manufacturers in.

Q. Did Mr. Ladd, in these conversations, ever say to you in words or substance that it would be a good thing if we could get all of the legitimate manufacturers of $10.50 dresses into the Guild? A. No, I do not recall that he ever said that in words or substance that way.

Q. Did he ever say it in substantially that way if he did not say it that way? A. No, not even substantially.

Q. Did he ever express to you the belief that it would be a good thing if we could get into the Guild all of the $10.50 manufacturers? A. I do not recall that he ever did; no.

Q. Do you deny that he ever did? A. No, I do not deny it, but I am quite positive that he did not.

Q. In or about November, 1933, now you did have, you have testified, certain conversations with Mr. Ladd; did you not? A. Yes. As I recall it, I did.

Q. You recall that you had such conversations? A. Oh, I saw him quite often. I do not recall any particular conversations.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that you saw Mr. Ladd quite often, and notwithstanding the fact that you had certain conversations with him, you have no recollection of his ever stating to you, either in words or substance, that at the meeting which I have just referred to this idea of taking into the Guild the $10.50 manufacturers, that this was suggested by those members at that meeting, to the Guild? A. I cannot recall that that was ever said.

By Mr. Weïsman.

Q. I understood you to testify a few moments ago that 11309 it was not until 1935 that you learned of the intention of the Guild to take in $10.50 manufacturers; that is, manufacturers who sold their garments at $10.50; that is correct? A. No, I do not say so. I do not say that.

Q. What did you say? A. My testimony had reference to the request made by the—whether I knew that the request had been made by the New York retailers, and I told you that I had not learned of it until this case had started. I had not learned of the request that you say was made.

Q. You did learn, however, that the Guild in its program was seeking to protect merchandise all the way down? You learned that at some time or another, did you not? A. Yes.

11310 Q. When did you say you first learned that? A. Why, I would say I first learned that around the first part of 1935, that they wanted to go further into the low-priced brackets than they had previously.

Q. Did you not really learn that in 1933? A. Yes, I did learn it in 1933 with the qualification I have made that there were exemptions for certain stores; that is, for our groups of stores, and for the members of the A.B.O. I knew that the Guild was planning at that time to protect their merchandise down in the low brackets, low-priced brackets, but they did give us an exemption, the exemption that I have mentioned.

Q. So that away back in 1933 you knew that it was the policy of the Guild to protect Guild merchandise all the way down to whatever cost price the copy might be made; is that a fact? A. Yes, with the definite understanding—

Q. Yes, we have heard your understanding as set forth in your previous testimony.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the witness being interrupted. I think the witness has a right to complete his answer.

Examiner Averill: I think he is entitled to 11312 qualify his answer to that.

A. —with the definite understanding that we had arrived at in public meetings, joint meetings with Mr. Rentner.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That they would extend leniency? A. And for that reason we did not consider the statements there on paper very important when they made these exemptions to us, and we did not consider these very seriously; in fact, we did not consider them so very serious about their own program in the lower-priced brackets until 1935, and then we did, and——

11313

Q. Did you ever— A. —we consider them seriously.

Q. Did you ever advise, in writing, any one of your member stores of this claimed exemption? A. I did—I am not sure—I do not think I did—I am not sure but Mr. Rentner said he wanted——

Q. No, no, no. That is the answer to the question. You say you do not think that you did. A. Yes.

Q. There is no question that from 1933 the Guild was almost constantly communicating with your members, and by way of these communications advising your members in words or in substance that it, the Guild, was protecting the merchandise of its members down into all prices in the lower brackets; that is a fact, is it; down to and including all price ranges? A. I know they wrote to members, but I do not know the contents of all of the letters.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Of course, you do not know the contents of all the letters, and I did not ask you for that, but you know the contents of those letters which you saw, do you not? A.
11315 Yes.

Q. As to those letters that you saw between the Guild and your members, did not the Guild in those letters that you saw advise your members that it, the Guild, intended to protect the merchandise of its members into all price ranges?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained. I do not see how he can characterize what the Guild said in its letters.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You saw a lot of letters that were sent by the Guild to the members of your organization; namely, the A.M.C.?
11316 A. No, I cannot say that I saw very many before 1935.

Q. You saw some. I did not ask you whether you saw very many. You saw some? A. I do not deny that I did. I do not recall what I saw, and what I did not see at this moment sitting here.

Q. Did you see any? A. I am not sure I did, but I do not know. I cannot recall any specific letter right now in evidence.

Examiner Averill: He did not say that. Just say "yes" or "no," and you are through with it. Do not try to enlarge the answers because it does not help very much.

The Witness: I answered that I am not sure I did.

Examiner Averill: Do not enlarge the answer if you can avoid it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. From these letters which you saw, did you not at that time receive in your mind the mental belief that the Guild intended to protect all merchandise irrespective of 11318 prices if the copy was of originations made by one of the members of the Guild? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. You did testify, did you not, that you saw Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E, a letter dated June 16, 1933, did you not? A. I recall that such a letter was sent, but I do not recall seeing it at the time, I think.

Q. Did you not testify on direct examination that you saw it?

Mr. Haycraft: No, he testified just to the contrary.

Mr. Weisman: Very kind of you to prompt the witness. It is a good thing you are not in our Supreme Court, because they do not permit that 11319 type of practice there.

Examiner Averill: He does not deny that he saw it.

Mr. Haycraft: He said just see——

Mr. Weisman: Why not let the witness testify, if Mr. Haycraft is going to testify, let him be sworn.

Examiner Averill: Proceed with your questions, Mr. Weisman.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you not testify on your direct examination that you saw that letter on or about June, 1933?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as contrary to the testimony.

Mr. Weisman: Let the witness answer the question.

By Mr. Weisman.

11321

Q. Did you not so testify? A. I am not sure whether I did or not.

Q. And if you did so testify, do you deny that it was correct that you saw it at that time?

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E. A. Yes.

Q. What is your present recollection of the time when you first saw this? A. Well, I am not sure. I may have seen that letter in 1903——

Q. 1903? A. 1933, and I may not have.

Q. What? A. I may have not.

Q. No? A. I know the subject-matter of the letter so thoroughly—I know the subject-matter of the letter was thoroughly discussed at our joint meetings.

Q. When? A. June, 1933.

Q. Will you deny in June, 1933, you knew in substance the subject-matter of Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E? A. Yes, I did know in substance everything in the letter here; that is, I knew the things that are referred to in here.

Q. Is it a fact that this letter, Commission's Exhibits 99-A to E, was sent out by the Guild representatives at your conferences with representatives of the stores, and at which conferences you were present? A. Yes.

Q. In this letter we have this statement: "This convinced the managements of those large stores that by the same method of refusing to purchase low-price copies from $10 down they would eliminate copying in these price ranges as well and encourage original designing of popular priced goods so that they would find a sufficient and plentiful market of original designs in all price lines." A. It does contain that statement.

Q. Did not that statement, contained in this letter and sent out by the Guild to your members, convey to them, or, rather, convey to your mind the idea that the Guild 11324 at that time in 1933 was desirous, as part of its program, of protecting priced merchandise of its members all the way through, from copying in all price ranges? A. No.

Q. All right. A. Definitely, no.

Q. Would you say positively? A. Definitely, no, because of the understanding we had with the Guild, and I want to put that in because that is the crux of this whole thing, at least as far as our agreement is concerned.

Q. This letter goes on further and says: "The feasibility of our plan, as a means of combatting destructive practices, has been clearly shown by the fact that the National Administration, in its Industrial Recovery Act, has sponsored procedure similar in character to that outlined by the Guild. It is evident from the Government's action that other industries, as well as ours, are suffering from 11325 what might be termed 'racketeering methods of business conduct.'" You knew that the letter contained that statement, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. You knew that the racketeering methods of business conduct therein referred to was the piracy of members of the Guild's originations? A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not know that that was what that letter referred to? A. No, I did not.

Q. You knew, did you not, that that letter, sent out on June 2, 1933, contained the memorandum of the Guild's resolution, and the statement that that was the Guild's resolution and referred to it as follows: "Memorandum of the Guild's resolution and its significance." You knew that, did you not? A. Well, I knew there were attachments, but I never read them. I never read that attachment.

Q. You never read this statement? A. No.

Q. The letter referred to the attachment, did it not? A. I did not know. Read it, and if it did, it did.

Q. You did not read it? A. I have testified that the 11327 letter contained——

Q. The letter says as follows: "Our action is expressed in the enclosed resolution, which provides that: 'All retailers who wish to have access to our showrooms and purchase our merchandise shall sign a "Declaration of Good Faith," a copy of which we are submitting herewith.'" A. I have seen that copy and that is not attached to that.

Q. As a part of the letter, there was a statement, or a copy of a Guild resolution, and the explanation of that and of its significance is attached to it, referring to "d." You did not expect to stop and read that, or, at least, you say now that you did not spend the time to read that; is that it? A. No, not that I recall, Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you know that 99-E, the communication from the Guild, says: "You will note that this resolution 11328 plainly stipulates, in order for a retailer to have access to any Guild house he must consent to abide by the conditions set forth." The conditions set forth being in the resolution; did you read that? A. I have read it since then.

Q. No, did you read it then? A. I am quite sure I did not.

Q. This letter went, not alone to you, but went to each of your accounts, or to the stores that you represented? A. I do not think it went to me or to the A.M.C., but I think it went to our accounts.

Q. You think it went to your accounts? A. Yes.

Q. To each of them? A. Yes.

Q. And they sent it to you? A. I think so, although I am not sure, because none of the copies that I saw had any stores names on them, on which it appeared that it went to anyone.

Q. Do you not know who they came from? A. I do not know. I do not. No. They may have been furnished by the Guild, they may have sent blank copies, they may have, subsequently. I am not sure how I got them because I have none addressed to the A.M.C., and I have none that have the stores' names on them.

Q. Let me ask you, when this came to your attention in 11330
1933, did you not think that it was an important piece of communication?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. The witness has said that he did not know how it came to him.

Examiner Averill: He said it did come to him, and I think he can answer that question as to whether he deemed it important in the light of his knowledge at that time, whether he deemed the paper, himself, important.

A. I was so positive that we had an understanding, a workable understanding with Mr. Rentner, that this letter did not make any difference to me. I was told that it should not make any difference; that, I think, they recog- 11331 nized our problem, and not only was I told that, but others were told that, and I think they had the same idea that I had about this. It definitely would not make any difference about the letter because we were told that we might more or less ignore it, and that they would work this problem out with us, so it would not be a handicap to us.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. So you now state the letter was unimportant? A. No, I do not say that.

Examiner Averill: He says its importance t him was governed by an arrangement which h states he had with the Guild which covered the le ter and its contents. He did not say it was, per s unimportant. It may have been important.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Was it important to you? A. Not to me, Mr. Wei
11333 man, for the reasons I have given.

Q. Have you ever seen John Gielgud's "Hamlet"? A. No.

Q. Did it ever strike you that you are protesting ver freely your innocence in this regard?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to dragging Hamlet int this case.

Mr. Weisman: You do not like his shad standing at your side?

Examiner Averill: I do not think it has any pa ticular bearing on the case, gentlemen. Proceed t something else.

Mr. Weisman: Very well, but I am sure you Honor sees the point.

11334 Mr. Haycraft: Undoubtedly.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What did you do when this came to your attention nothing? A. No, I did not do anything. I had a thoroug understanding with Mr. Rentner that there was nothin to do.

Q. Then, your answer is that you did do nothing?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. The witness shbuld be allowed to answer the question.

Examiner Averill: All right, he said he did nothing, and he told the counsel why.

Mr. Haycraft: He is entitled to make an explanation.

Mr. Weisman: He is entitled to tell the story of his life, but I hope not here.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, you got a copy of this letter, and in so far as you were concerned, or in so far as the A.M.C. was concerned, as represented by you, you remained silent? 11336
A. Yes.

Q. Let me now read your testimony appearing at page 6137 of the record with regard to this exhibit.

Mr. Haycraft: What page?

Mr. Weisman: Page 6137.

Mr. Feldman: That is the direct testimony of the witness.

Q. Did you know that in or about June, 1933, the garment merchandise managers of the A.M.C. had a meeting with reference to the Guild program? A. We had.

Q. Or is that one of the things which you do not remember?

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike the last part of 11337
the question.

The Witness: No.

Examiner Averill: The motion is granted. There is no reason for putting a question that way. Put the question and let us see from his answers whether he did. There is no sense in putting a question that way. The latter part of that question is different.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

A. As I recall it, we had a meeting on or about that time, a regular meeting at which undoubtedly the F.O.G.A. was discussed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. And at that meeting the complete agreement, or the declaration of co-operation, was before the merchandise managers? A. Eh, um——

Q. Well, the "oh, oh" and the "eh, um," does that mean you do not remember? A. It does not mean anything.

Q. Then do not do it. I am trying to find out what it means. A. It does not mean anything. You asked me if 11339 the complete minutes and what not of the F.O.G.A.——

Q. No, I did not ask you that. A. What did you say? What did you ask?

Mr. Weisman: Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. You mean all the pamphlets you have shown me here, and attachments?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. No, no. A. Is that what you mean?

Q. No, no. I mean, you had before them, did you not, the declaration of co-operation which was being sought by the Guild from the stores? A. I would say that we did,
11340 yes.

Q. And that declaration had in it the one—the one that was before you was the one in evidence——

Mr. Weisman: What is its number, do you remember?

The Witness: 88.

Mr. Albert: 88.

Examiner Averill: Commission's?

Mr. Weisman: It is——

Examiner Averill: Or respondents'? Both have that number.

Mr. Weisman: This is respondents'.

Examiner Averill: Respondents' Exhibit 88.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. This is in form, Respondents' Exhibit 80; is that not so?

Examiner Averill: No, Respondents' Exhibit 88.

By Mr. Weisman.

11342

Q. Respondents' Exhibit 88? A. I am quite sure we had that.

Q. Yes. In that exhibit there is no exemption set forth, is there? A. That is right.

Q. At that meeting, I show you a photostatic copy of Commission's Exhibit 697, and ask you whether or not you recall that resolution being passed at that meeting by the A.M.C. executives—not executives—A.M.C. merchandise managers? A. Yes, I recall that. I dictated it myself, so I recall.

Examiner Averill: Let me see it.

(Mr. Weisman hands exhibit to the Trial Examiner.)

Examiner Averill: All right.

11343

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Before that meeting was held, Col. Phillip J. Reilly wrote a letter to these divisional—to all the garment merchandise managers of the A.M.C. stores, did he not? A. I think not.

Q. Well, did he write a letter to all the executives of the stores? A. I think he wrote to the general merchandise managers.

Q. He wrote to the general merchandise managers? A. Yes.

Q. Well, they are executives, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. Yes. A. There are quite a few executives in the store.

Q. Before he wrote that letter he had some conferences with you, did he not? A. Yes, he did.

Q. And, as a result of these conferences between him and you, it was decided by him and you, or by you and him—pardon me—that Mr. Reilly, your superior, should send out a letter to the merchandise managers of all of the A.M.C. stores; is that not so? A. I think so, yes, some-11345 thing like that.

Q. Well— A. Whether I decided it, or he decided it, he sent the letter; he must have made the decision.

Q. Did you see the letter before it went out? A. I am not sure that I did, no; I am sure I saw it afterwards but I am not sure that I saw it before.

Q. And you have no doubt that Mr. Reilly was your superior, have you? A. None whatsoever.

Q. And what he did superseded anything that you could do in the same matter, did it not? A. Well, he is my superior, he can change anything, he can do anything he liked in that respect about giving me instructions, if that is what you mean, or——

Q. That is your best answer to that question?

11346 Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Averill: No, he may state it is his best, if he wants to, or it is not, if he wants to change it. I do not know. It is easy enough to answer one way or the other.

The Witness: I think the answer stands.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. All right. A. The answer is specific.

Q. In this letter, Commission's Exhibit 696, which we have been talking about, Mr. Reilly wrote it on the letterhead—excuse me—make that Col. Reilly of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, Retail Research Association, Phillip J. Reilly, director—agreement with Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.—that referred to the agreement, Respondents' Exhibit 88; is that not so? A. Yes.

Q. And he wrote "At yesterday's meeting of their garment merchandising managers, consideration was given to the attached agreement prepared by the Fashion Originators Guild of America, which they are requesting the 11348 important department stores and women's ready-to-wear specialty stores to sign." That referred to Respondents' Exhibit 88; is that not so? A. I am quite sure it did.

Q. He further goes on and says in this letter: "Although all these garment merchandise managers were in sympathy with the objectives of the F.O.G.A. in principle"—is that true? A. I think that is——.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that unless it is a complete sentence, Mr. Examiner.

The Witness: I think that is——

Mr. Weisman: It is a comma there, I am going on further; I cannot—that is a complete thought.

Examiner Averill: Well, he says that is so.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, that was true. 11349

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. So that in 1933 it was true that the garment merchandise managers of all of your stores were in sympathy with the objectives of the F.O.G.A. in principle? A. As I recall it.

Q. Yes. A. That is true.

Q. The letter goes on further and says: "Some of them felt that unless their competitors all agreed to sign this contract it would result in the signing stores excluding themselves from many important houses who are non-Guild members, many of whom are important in the lower-price lines, including basement." A. Yes, it reads that way.

Q. Yes. A. As I recall it.

Q. Now, that was also true at that time? A. What do you mean? Let me read it.

Q. It is this paragraph here (showing paper to witness).

(Witness examines exhibit.)

11351 Examiner Averill: Have you not been over that time and time again, that same letter, same matter?

Mr. Weisman: No, this is the first time I have been on this letter, Judge.

Examiner Averill: It is the same matter.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That was true, was it not? A. It does read that way; yes, sir.

Q. Not only does it read that way, but Mr. Reilly was setting forth the fact when he wrote that, was he not? A. That was his opinion, yes.

Q. Well—— A. That was——

Q. —did you differ from him? A. No, I did not.

11352 Q. All right. A. What do you want me to have, his opinions? Those are his opinions. They are not mine; they are his.

Q. Well, I want to know whether your opinions are different from his opinions, and you have said they were not. A. No, I did not say that.

Q. Now, Mr. Reilly— A. No, I did not say that.

Q. Well— A. I may have different opinions from Mr. Reilly.

Q. Have you, or have you not, on this matter? A. On many things, I have.

Q. No, on this matter—on this matter, did you have the same or a different opinion? A. I think we concurred.

Q. That is all, then; say so. A. Then you should ask that way.

Q. The letter further goes on and says: "It is agreed, however, that the A.M.C. stores and the New York offices would gain tremendous prestige in the market if they were willing to be the first as a group to sign the F.O.G.A. agreement." A. That is right.

Q. "The group therefore passed the attached resolution and asked that the matter be definitely decided one way or another at the executive meetings scheduled for next Wednesday, June 28." 11354

Mr. Haycraft: You left out the word "committee."

Mr. Weisman: "—executive committee meetings"; thank you.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. "—scheduled for next Wednesday, June 28," A. Yes.

Q. That meeting of June 28 was held, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. And it resulted in the passage of a resolution to sign Exhibit 88-A——

Mr. Albert: 88. 11355

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. —Respondents' Exhibit 88. A. At the executive committee meeting I think they resolved that this should be an individual store matter, but that they agreed that we should go along with the program, as I had explained it to them, and as it was understood, the exemptions, and all, included, and so forth.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that there was nothing in Mr. Reilly's letter about any of these exemptions? A. That is right, that is right, by——

Q. And notwithstanding the fact that you say you never wrote a single paper to any of your members advising them of this claimed exemption you are now telling us about? A. I think some of your exhibits show that there was an exemption.

Examiner Averill: But is not this resolution that you refer to the same resolution that is contained in Commission's Exhibit—or set forth—at least not contained, set forth in Commission's Exhibit 697, which I now see attached——

11357

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: —to a letter, Commission's Exhibit 696?

Mr. Haycraft: No, that is not it.

The Witness: No, that is not it.

Mr. Haycraft: That is something that——

The Witness: Those were prior. This resolution was prior to Mr. Reilly's letter, I believe, and subsequently the executive committee decided that this was to be an individual store matter, since a store would probably have to decide every consideration of its local conditions, whether or not it would sign up, whether its competitors equally decided, and so forth, all of those things came into it, and it was decided it was not an A.M.C. matter.

11358

Mr. Weisman: I would like to have Commission's Exhibits 696 and 697 and 698.

Examiner Averill: I think they are there.

Mr. Martin: Do you want the originals?

Mr. Haycraft: 698 is not here; 696 and 697 are here.

Mr. Weisman: What is 696?

Mr. Keller: 696 is——

Mr. Haycraft: Here it is.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, have you got it there?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes (handing paper to Mr. Weisman).

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, as a matter of fact, you signed a declaration of co-operation personally, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you signed it personally, that is, Respondents' Exhibit 88, you thought it important to put in your own handwriting the word "knowingly"? A. That is right. 11360

Q. Was that also by an agreement with Mr. Rentner? A. I do not recall.

Q. But it was important? A. I think it was discussed at the time.

Q. Notwithstanding that, you did not think it was necessary to put in here any reference to an exemption? A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. Did you have any idea in 1933 how many retailers were co-operating with the Guild? A. We were told from time to time by Mr. Rentner, and by members of the Guild, as I recall it.

Q. I am now referring to about June, 1933. A. We were told from time to time what the membership was of the Guild. I can't—I can't recall what it was in 1933. 11361 I believe that it at that time consisted—the membership consisted mostly of local Guild members, and that no declaration was signed until after this letter went out in June, 1933.

Q. Well, let me ask you this: Did you have any idea in 1933, June, about how many retailers had manifested a willingness to co-operate with the Guild in its program? A. Did I have an idea?

Q. Yes. A. I do not think that I did. I do not recall that I had an idea.

Q. Was that not ever told you? A. I don't recall any figures being set of any number of retailers, no. I recall that—I do not recall that any number was set at that time.

Q. The Guild was just starting then, was it not? A. No, it had not been—it had been in effect for some time.

Q. About a year and a half? A. Yes.

Q. It did not have its present strength, did it, in membership? A. No.

Q. No, and it did not have, at that time, the number of co-operating retailers that you now believe it to have; is 11363 that not so? A. No, it did not.

Q. Let us see—in June, 1933, you were in more or less frequent communication with the members of the Guild or their executives, were you not? A. Yes, from time to time.

Q. And they discussed with you what they believed to be their problems, did they not, with regard to the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. And, as a matter of fact, that was the time at which there were certain negotiations pending for you to become director of the Guild, instead of assistant director, or whatever you are, of the A.M.C., is that not so? A. Prior to June, yes.

Q. Yes. So, and before—and those negotiations culminated in the drawing of a proposed contract, is that not 11364 so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And before the contract was drawn you sought to advise yourself concerning the status of the Guild, did you not? A. Not particularly, no.

Q. Well, did you not seek to find out how many members they had? A. I do not recall that I was interested in how many retail members they had.

Q. No, I say— A. Manufacturing members.

Q. I say, manufacturing members. A. We have no retail members.

Q. You have no retail members. A. All right.

Q. When I say "members," I always mean manufacturing members. A. No, no. Maybe I can clean this all up. Did you have reference to the number of the manufacturing members the Guild had before?

Q. No. A. When you started this question?

Q. No, I said retailers; I said retailers had manifested a desire to co-operate. A. I see. I did not know how many retail members they had.

Q. No, no, that is not what I asked you. A. I do not recall that I sought to find out beyond what was on their 11366 stationery, how many members they had, manufacturing members.

Q. And in all these discussions with Rentner and the other people with regard to you taking an agreement to work with or for the Guild for a period of years, you never asked them, in words or in substance, "Gentlemen, how many retailers have manifested a willingness to co-operate with you?" A. I don't recall that I did, Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you this— A. I do not recall it.

Q. The position of the Guild was a matter of common discussion in the dress markets, was it not, at that time? A. Yes.

Q. And its number of members, and its co-operating retailers, the number thereof, was more or less in this mar- 11367 ket, bandied about, spoken of, was it not? A. The number of manufacturers were, but not the number of retailers at that time. The retail membership at that time did not come up for discussion at all, as I recall it.

Q. Would you say that the retail membership at that time was very slim? A. I would say it was rather small, yes.

Q. Would you say— A. The retailers who had signed any kind of agreements with the Guild.

Q. Yes. A. Was small in number, yes.

Q. Yes. And you, on the other hand, your A.M.C., you have testified, they represented 1700 stores, did they not?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

A. The A.M.C. represented twenty stores.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Who represented the 1700 stores you told us about? A. The A.B.O., which was formed later in the year, was not yet formed at that time.

Q. Well, did you not tell us that this exemption was 11369 also to apply to the A.B.O. stores? A. Yes, I did.

Q. In other words, is it your statement—when was the A.B.O. formed? A. I think August of 1933.

Q. August of 1933? A. Yes.

Q. Then when the A.B.O. organization was formed, with nearly 1700 members, and your twenty-two—I will withdraw that question. By the way, what is your opinion as to the volume of retail purchases in the ladies' ready-to-wear, represented by the A.B.O.? A. I do not know.

Q. Well, you have given it as your opinion that your retail purchases in the ladies' ready-to-wear—when I say "your," I mean the A.M.C.—was about $50,000,000 per annum, have you not? A. Total ready-to-wear, yes.

Q. Yes. Would you say that the A.B.O., with its 1700
11370 stores, has a like volume of about fifty to sixty million? A. I would not know, but it might be much greater than that.

Q. Much greater. Would you say at least that? A. I would not know.

Q. I had gathered the impression from you, perhaps erroneously, that you had stated on your direct testimony, that the exemption applied not alone to the A.M.C. stores but to the A.B.O. stores also? A. I did so state, as I recall it.

Q. Oh, then, I am—I wanted to know—I thought that you did, but I wanted to clear that up. So we then have this situation: You stated that all of your stores, your twenty stores, had this claimed exemption, and the 1700 stores of the A.B.O., if, as, and when they joined the Guild, they would have a like exemption; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know in June, or in August, rather, I will make that, instead of June, how many of these A.B.O. were already members of the Guild—were already co-operating with the Guild? A. Very few of them were.

Q. Do you know whether or not, thereafter, substantially all of them were co-operating with the Guild? A. 11372
Yes.

Q. You know that they all did co-operate with the Guild? A. They all signed declarations.

Q. Of co-operation. And did they all sign declarations of co-operation, to your knowledge, or of those that came to your knowledge, were they substantially in the same form as Respondents' Exhibit 88? A. I believe so, yes.

Examiner Averill: Let me see that.

(Mr. Weisman hands Respondents' Exhibit 88 to the Trial Examiner.)

Examiner Averill: Do not wait on me; go ahead.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Averill: I am just reading this.

11373

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you got this exemption, did you tell it to your members? A. Yes, I did.

Q. It was not secret, from stores like Filene's, or White's? A. No, it was not.

Q. They knew all about it? A. Yes, they did.

Q. As a matter of fact, do you not know that in 1933, 1934 and 1935, R. H. White & Company and Filene's were returning merchandise costing $3.75 and $4.75 and $7.75, do you not know that? A. No, I do not; I know they may have done so.

Q. I see. A. But it was not a general practice.

Q. If they did that it comes as a surprise to you? A. No, it does not, not at all.

Q. In other words, they had this exemption but they waived it? A. That is entirely possible. There was a desire——

Q. Yes. A. —to co-operate with the Guild.

Q. Yes. A. There was that definite desire.

Q. Desire. And, as a result of that desire, this secret
11375 exemption concerning which you never wrote a letter to them, was waived by them? A. Not always, no.

Q. Frequently? A. Up to 1935, there were very few returns, if any, and that was one reason why we went along so smoothly up to that time; it was after that that we got into trouble.

Q. You mean, as soon as you were asked to live up to the declaration, then you no longer wanted to co-operate? A. No, sir; then we wanted to exercise our original agreement.

Q. I see. A. As soon as we were asked to go along below $10.

Q. Well, let us see. This secret reservation concerning which you have testified— A. It was not secret. I said it was publicly arrived at. I do not say it was secret. Mr.
11376 Rentner wanted us to keep it.

Q. If it was not secret, why was it not put into writing, some place? Why did you not put it in your own declaration, if it was not secret? A. I couldn't tell you. I wish I had known that, what I now know, and it would be in there, I can tell you that for a fact. It will never happen again——

Q. Let us see— A. —any such trusting of people that I should not have any business of trusting, and it will never happen again.

Q. You say the A.M.C. is a trustful organization? A. I trusted Mr. Rentner, and I know other gentlemen that did, too.

Q. You did tell R. H. White of Boston about that, did you not? A. I am quite sure that I did; yes, sir.

Q. When? A. I am quite sure I told all of our stores about it. You mean about the exemption, is that what you mean?

Q. About your private arrangement. A. Yes.

Q. Extra signatories, and whatever you call it. A. Yes, I am quite sure we did.

Q. Now, you know, do you not, that in 1933 White returned merchandise costing $3.75? A. That is entirely 11378 possible, but I do not know it.

Q. I say, you knew that J. L. Hudson returned merchandise below—at $4.75, not below—just at $4.75? A. It is entirely possible, but I am not aware of it.

Q. You know, do you not, that Horn—that these stores that I am mentioning are all members of your A.M.C., are they not? A. Yes, they are.

Q. You know that Horn returned merchandise below $10.75 cost, do you not? A. No, I do not. It would not surprise me, if they had.

Q. Well, do you know that Strawbridge & Clothier did? A. No, I did not.

Q. Do you know Mr. Taylor of Strawbridge & Clothier? A. Quite well.

Q. Did not Mr. Taylor repeatedly write you prior to 11379
December, 1935, advising you that he was returning merchandise below $10.75? A. Prior to 1935?

Q. Yes. A. I believe the returns were so minimum that they did not come to my attention.

Q. I do not ask you whether they were minimum or maximum. A. I do not recall that that came to my attention before 1935.

Q. Do you know that Filene's in the years 1933 to December, 1935, returned merchandise costing below $10.75? A. The same answer. I do not know, but it would not surprise me if they had. They were interested in furthering this program.

Q. Well, in other words, if these people returned merchandise all the way down to $3.75 cost, your explanation thereof would be that they did it because they were interested in furthering the program of the Fashion Originators Guild; is that not so? A. I would say they were interested in co-operating.

Q. Yes. A. And furthering the program.

11381 Q. Well, they were going further than co-operating, they were doing something that co-operation in itself did not require; is that not so?

Examiner Averill: Now——

A. No.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How?

Examiner Averill: There is a question there—I understood the declaration of co-operation was in writing.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, but he says— Do not take this on the record.

11382 (There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. These stores, by the way, are all stock companies, are they not? A. I do not—I could not tell you.

Q. Well, none of them are privately owned, are they? You know that. A. Yes, some of them are. You mean the ones you have mentioned?

Q. The ones I have mentioned here as returning merchandise. A. Well, I am not sure about Horn's. I think the others are stock companies.

Q. Did the A.M.C. keep minutes of their meetings with reference to any executive action? A. Not the way minutes are kept here, for example, no.

Q. No, but did they keep any written record? A. No, I would not say so, not of——

Q. Well, let us see. A. —minutes were summarized by myself, as I have summarized to some extent by——

Q. And what happened to those summaries? A. Why, you have one of them.

Q. Which one do you say that I have? A. Oh, just—we were talking about one here (witness refers to an exhibit); you had it in your hand here. 11384

Q. You mean the Reilly letter? A. No, the resolution that was attached to it.

Examiner Averill: The resolution?

Mr. Weisman: The resolution.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, I do not mean that. A. Well, no other minutes were kept than just a resolution, or something like that.

Q. When you had a meeting with your various store executives, and a policy was determined upon, were there minutes kept of that? A. No, I cannot say that it was; resolutions were kept when they were passed. 11385

Q. Well, aside from the resolution that has been produced here, were there any other resolutions passed by the executive of the A.M.C., or those represented by the A.M.C., with regard to this situation? A. I have looked through and I cannot find any, any resolution——

Q. Well— A. —other than the ones that you have—this one here (referring to paper).

Q. In other words, it is your opinion that during the three years—or, rather, four years, from 1932 to 1936, the sole and only resolution of the A.M.C. that you have been able to find, has been the one introduced here in evidence as Exhibit No.——

Mr. Albert: 695.

Mr. Weisman: —695.

Mr. Albert: Or 7.

Mr. Weisman: We better get it straight.

Examiner Averill: I thought it was 6, but maybe it is not. I think it is 697.

Mr. Weisman: 697.

11387

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that your statement? A. Well, no, there may be others, but I looked through, and I have not found them now; in the last year there may be some resolutions, in 1935, I think, there might have been.

Q. Well, look—where did you look? A. Well, in my own file.

Q. Is there not a record somewhere in the A.M.C. where these papers are kept?

Examiner Averill: What you want to know—does he have a regular book?

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

11388

Examiner Averill: Which is called a minute book?

The Witness: No, we do not.

Examiner Averill: In which he puts down——

The Witness: No, we do not; I said we do not.

Examiner Averill: All right, that is all.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you have anything, other than the minute book, that you keep these records some place, loose-leaf, on papers—have you got a record of what happens, or a transcript of what you mark down as happening in 1932, I would say? A. No, I have not.

Q. In 1933? A. I have put in evidence letters that I wrote to the stores, and those are the ones that I have. I have not any others.

Q. Well, was any kept, irrespective of whether— A. No, not that I know of—I really—I am not trying to get around your question. I do not know of any that were kept. I did not keep any.

Q. When you had——

Examiner Averill: We have been all over this.

Mr. Weisman: All right. 11390

Examiner Averill: And I must state that we cannot go over this again. It has been in here twice. Counsel for the Commission went into it, and you went into it in the early stages of this cross-examination, about these minutes, and he agreed to look, and he did, and he came back and he told you.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is the name of the recording secretary of the A.M.C.? A. They haven't any recording secretary.

Q. Well, have you a girl, or a secretary, whose duty it is to keep records of action arrived at? A. We have a secretary, yes, of the corporation, Miss Brooks. 11391

Q. Miss Brooks. Did you ask Miss Brooks whether she had any? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what did she say to you? A. Well, I haven't gotten any from her.

Q. I did not ask you that. What did she say to you? A. She said she would look. I have not had a reply from her. I asked her to look carefully to see if there were any resolutions, or any of these things, at the beginning, or any other minutes, that she could find for me, and she has not found any for the months of— This was garment merchandise manager's discussion, not store discussion, and the garment merchandise managers' minutes I personally dictated, and they are not in the minutes, because I understand it—mine was the contact with the Guild for the most part, and I had what I thought was an understanding, and there are no minutes to substantiate that, except the letters which I had put in evidence, which cover my understanding as I explained it to our stores.

Q. You have constantly referred to merchandise managers. Who is the merchandise manager of Filenes that 11393 you referred to when you say "merchandise manager"? A. I have referred to garment and general merchandise managers.

Q. Now, who is the garment manager, or garment merchandise manager, of Wm. Filene's & Son? A. Well, they have several, but Jess Drew is one who has been the most active, I think, in dresses, and items pertaining to this department, to this field of activity.

Q. Well, was he, Mr. Jess Drew, the one that was present at this meeting when you told them about this? A. I would not know. I am quite sure that he was. He generally is present at our garment merchandise meetings. I could not tell you without going to look it up to see whether he was actually there that day.

Q. Where would you look it up? A. To see if I could—11394 when this resolution was passed, there was a copy of attendance attached to that, see?——

Q. Will you look? A. —of who was present.

Q. Why did you not give that complete copy to the Commission, then, if you have it? A. I think I did. I think he looked through everything I have. I am not sure.

Q. Have you got the list of attendance at the meeting where this resolution was passed?

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think——

Mr. Weisman: What?

Mr. Haycraft: No, I have not got it.

Mr. Weisman: How?

Mr. Haycraft: Our investigator went in there and got everything, I suppose, that he thought was important.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Will you look up and see who was at that meeting? A. I will.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, you testified, did you not, that you had already communicated this exemption to the merchandise 11396 managers, or the garment merchandise managers, of your member stores? A. Yes.

Q. Did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I want to know from you as to each store, the name of the man to whom you communicated the information? A. Yes.

Q. To the best of your recollection? A. Yes.

Examiner Averill: Now, wait a moment.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Mr. Bergdahl, when this information was communicated, it was not necessarily communicated at one meeting, because, as I understood, all of your members were not present at one meeting? 11397

The Witness: That is right, conversations——

Examiner Averill: As I understand it, at various meetings you communicated and told these people orally your understanding as to this exemption——

The Witness: That is right.

Examiner Averill: —which you had with officials of the F.O.G.A.?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: But I did not understand you to testify that all of these managers were present at any one meeting?

The Witness: No, I did not mean to convey that; if I did, and I——

Examiner Averill: I understand.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Averill: Now, it would be almost impossible for him to answer that question and say who was present at the different times.

Mr. Weisman: No, I do not ask him who was 11399 present. I asked him to whom he communicated.

Examiner Averill: —or to whom he communicated.

Mr. Weisman: But I am——

The Witness: I said to you, Judge, our stores, the garment merchandise men of all of our stores.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: And in some cases the general merchandise men.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In Filenes, you said your recollection was that you communicated it to Mr. Drew? A. Yes.

Q. Yes. A. And I think Mr. Wright, but Mr. Drew 11400 primarily.

Q. And to Mr. Wright? A. Yes.

Q. Did you communicate it to Mr. Wright, or did you not? A. I told you "I think," "I think."

Q. All right. Now, as to R. H. White, who do you say that you communicated it to? A. I do not recall who is the general merchandise manager at White's at that time. They have had three or four in the last four years, and I am not sure whether it was—whether it was a Mr.——

11401

Examiner Averill: He is not going to any particular time. He is going down through the whole period from the time the so-called reservations were made.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Down to the end of the chapter; so that you have no specific meeting——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): Wait a moment. Wait a moment. I thought we had fixed some dates, but any time.

Examiner Averill: You cannot fix dates for those kind of things. That is my point. Unless you have papers.

11402

Weisman.

hese declarations of co-operations, by your member were all signed, were they not, in 1933? A. Yes, I hey were.

ow, prior to the signature—I will withdraw that. prior to their signing or after their signing that nmunicated the exemption to them? A. Prior.

rior. So that in 1933 you communicated to the ndise managers, or the managers of your member the exemption that you believed you had obtained?

ow, as to Abraham & Straus, Inc., who did you com- te that to? A. I think George Ladd, I am not sure.

11403

ow, as to L. S. Ayres & Company, who did you com- te that to? A. I believe Cle Herman was the man- ere at the time.

s to Bloomingdale's, who did you communicate that Walter Deiches.

s to Bullocks, Los Angeles? A. I think O. B.

s to H. C. Capwell Company? A. Probably Mr. , I am not sure of that.

Q. As to the Dayton Company? A. Mr. Donovan and Mr. Phillips, I believe.

Q. As to the Emporium? A. Mr. Millburn.

Q. As to B. Forman? A. Mr. B. Forman and Eddie Forman, I think.

Q. As to Joseph Horn Company? A. Mr. Gutsche.

Q. As to J. L. Hudson Company? A. Mr. Sappington.

Q. As to Hutzler Brothers Company? A. Charlie Hutzler.

Q. As to F. & R. Lazarus Company? A. Lee Davis.

Q. As to the Reich-Cumler Company? A. I believe Paul Lundgren was there at the time; I am not sure now 11405 whether he was or not.

Q. As to the John Shillito Company? A. That—I do not—I have forgotten his name.

Q. But you could easily ascertain, could you not? A. Yes, I think I could.

Q. As to Stix, Baer & Fuller? A. That was Lieberman.

Q. As to Strawbridge & Clothier? A. I think that was Mr. Alderfoer at the time.

Q. As to William Taylor & Sons? A. Earl Miller, I believe, and probably Mr. Roth.

Q. As to the Boston Store? A. They were not members at the time, as I recall it.

Q. So you did not tell them? A. I am not sure whether they came in that year or not; I cannot recall exactly.

Q. Yes. Now, before you testified, did you speak with 11406 the examiner that the Commission sent to interview you? A. Why, yes, we spoke to them, members of the Commission.

Q. Did you tell him that you had conveyed this information to these people you have just mentioned? A. No, I do not recall that they asked me that.

Q. And you did not volunteer it? A. No.

Q. Before you saw him, did you speak to—before you saw this examiner, did you speak to Mr. Fox? A. Before I saw this examiner?

Q. You did testify that you aided and assisted in the proposed resolution that was to go into the code of fair competition for the dress industry with regard to style piracy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know, do you not, that that resolution was ultimately framed? A. It was.

Q. And as so ultimately framed it had no price differential or exclusions or exemptions in it, had it not? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, do you know whether or not, or, have you any recollection on the subject of whether or not under the proposed resolution which was to become a part of the code of fair competition for the dress industry, such 11408 provision was in words or in substance, "style piracy is declared to be an unfair trade practice"? A. I think that was the intent of the wording to that effect that was to be in there. The intent was to make it an unfair trade practice by and if that clause was to be adopted, it would then be unfair.

Q. You think it was not unfair before then? A. Well, no, before, no laws or anything that I know of that made it unfair.

Q. Well, that is certainly a surprise. What about the ethics of it? What do you think about that? A. I do not think that such ethics as the industry originated in, and had grown from the beginning, when you consider that I do not think it could be considered entirely unfair when 11409 they all theretofore had done so.

Q. In other words, you think it is a proper thing for this industry to continue the stealing, theft, and immoral seizure of original designs from others which we know by the term "style piracy"? A. Well, I think that——

Q. "Yes" or "no." Do you think it is proper? A. I cannot answer that "yes" or "no."

Q. All right.

Examiner Averill: Is that the question complete?

Mr. Weisman: Well, I will make it complete.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, you think it is a proper thing for this industry to continue the rampant practice of style piracy, as you understand it to be? A. As to that, I think——

Q. As to that you can certainly answer that "yes" or "no" do you think it is proper. A. No, I cannot answer that "yes" or "no."

11411

Examiner Averill: I do not think he can answer that "yes" or "no" with the word "rampant" in it. That might mean one thing to him and one thing to you.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Judge is holding with you so you had better try to carry along under his wing as far as you can before you get out in the open.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Weisman: Undoubtedly.

11412 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you got different ideas on the subject of style piracy now from what you had in 1933? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, I take it that in 1933 you felt that style piracy was wrong and unethical and just plain ordinary stealing? A. I felt that copying, and if you want to call it "style piracy," was—I felt that it had its bad points.

Q. And it had its good points? A. I did not say so.

Q. Well, it had no good points?

Examiner Averill: Let the witness tell what he thinks about it.

Mr. Weisman: He does not seem very anxious to do so.

A. I felt that there were disadvantages, I thought, and at the time I felt they were there, and I sincerely tried to overcome those by my attitude and by my efforts at that time.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. And it is your opinion, then, to-day, I take it that 11414 no effort should be made in this industry to curb style piracy, or to eliminate it? A. Well, I have come to some very definite—I have come to have some very definite ideas that are quite contrary to what I had at that time, though they do not differ entirely with those, but they are quite to the contrary.

Q. Now, Mr. Bergdahl, you went along in 1933, 1934, and co-operated with the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at that time, that is, in 1933 and 1934 and the early part of 1935, there were few, if any, $10.75 and below wholesale cost, manufacturers in the Guild? A. With the exception of the sportswear group.

Q. Did you not feel that that was, at any time, a short- 11415 coming of the Guild that ought to be remedied? A. From the Guild's point of view I did.

Q. Look, did you not at one time in 1935, in the early part, either by letter or by word of mouth, say in words or in substance to Mr. Rentner that you felt that, representing your stores, that the Guild should extend its program by taking into its membership manufacturers at $10.50 or $10.75 dresses? A. I did not say that, no. I had conversations about this thing with Mr. Post and Mr. Rentner.

Q. Did you ever write any letters on the subject? A. I do not think I ever did except those letters that are in evidence here.

Q. No, I am not referring to them. I mean, aside from those letters? A. No, I do not think I did, Mr. Rentner.

Q. I am Mr. Weisman.—A. I said Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever say or write to Mr. Rentner, or to Mr. Post in or about the end of 1935, in the early part of that year: "This program may be all right for Adam Gimbel, but for our stores, if you want to make it fair you ought to take in $10.75 dress manufacturers." Does that cause you any glimmer of recollection? A. No, not in that sub-11417 stance, no.

Q. Do you remember the conversation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Wherein you said or referred to one "Adam Gimbel"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When your referred to one "Adam Gimbel," you were not referring to a person but you were referring to the executive head of Saks, Fifth Avenue Store? A. To the type of store, yes.

Q. To the type of store rather than to him as an individual? A. Yes.

Q. And the type of store, such as it was? A. Yes.

Examiner Averill: That is Saks, Fifth Avenue?

Mr. Weisman: Yes. For your Honor's information, Gimbel's own Saks.

11418 Examiner Averill: Proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That conversation, when was it, according to your recollection, that it was held now that we have identified in this record? A. In the spring of 1935.

Q. In the spring of 1935? A. Yes.

Q. Did you not in that conversation, say in words or in substance that the Guild program, as it then was with the manufacturers' membership where it had appeared to be all right for Adam Gimbel, and the business of the Saks Fifth Avenue Store, and stores of that category—A. Yes, I said that as it was then constituted with the manufacturers then members of it, that it appeared to be all right for Adam Gimbel and the business that he was conducting at the Saks Fifth Avenue.

Q. Now, we have that pinned down. Did you not also say, in words or substance, that in order that it should not be unfairly all right for them as against your stores which had a wider price range, that the Guild ought to, or should, take into its membership manufacturers at or below $10.50? A. Of what? 11420

Q. Merchandise. A. That is not what I recall what I said to him, it was not what I said to him as I recollect it.

Q. Tell us to the best of your recollection what you said. A. One day in Mr. Post's office discussing this subject, I said to Mr. Post after he had—after—I believe—I believe it was after the time when I saw that little announcement in the paper, I thought if you were to take in $10.75, why did you not return the original declarations to all of your members, and send them new agreements which would cover this group of manufacturers and Mr. Post or Mr. Rentner also told me subsequently that that—that they did not want to do that, since their retailers or many retailers in the membership were not questioning the original contract, or what it pertained to, and that they could take in other manufacturers and price lines without consulting those original signers. 11421

Q. Look, Mr. Bergdahl— A. Yes.

Q. No, no, will you please not look at me? A. Yes, sure.

Q. Is it your statement here now, and please consider this carefully, that you did not discuss with Mr. Rentner or Mr. Post, before any announcement with regard thereto appeared in the paper, the taking into membership of the Guild of manufacturers at $10.50 or $10.75, making merchandise in those wholesale price lines? A. Yes, we did, and I think subsequently it is in the minutes of the meeting of May 4, the May 4 meeting, and it is also in the minutes that you wanted the $10.75 manufacturers taken in. Those letters are in evidence. I did not answer your old question before regarding Adam Gimbel, and if you want me to say further about that, I can, or if you want to stop, O.K.

Q. I want to get this plain because you gave me a contrary impression a moment ago. A. O.K.

Q. Is it not a fact that before the $10.75 or the $10.50
11423 manufacturers were admitted to the Guild, the matter of their admission, or non-admission, was fully discussed with you, and with Mr. Block of Kirby, Block & Fischer, who, I think, was then president of the A.B.O.? A. It was fully discussed but we did not ask the Guild, and I do not recall that I asked the Guild to take in the $10.75 manufacturers, but the subject was discussed.

Q. It was full discussed? A. Yes, it was fully discussed.

Q. After it was fully discussed, and after the Guild had made up its mind to take in these $10.50 or $10.75 manufacturers, that determination was conveyed to you by the Guild officers, was it not? A. It was; yes, sir.

Q. After it was conveyed to you by the Guild officers, 11424 you sought to lend your aid to the Guild in getting these manufacturers to join the Guild? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I think this is a good place to adjourn.

The Witness: No, you are speaking about $10.75 manufacturers.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. $10.50. A. My answer was I did not.

(Whereupon, at 1.10 o'clock P. M., December 1, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, N. Y.,
December 3, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M. E.S.T. 11426

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(SAME APPEARANCES:)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When we last adjourned, Mr. Bergdahl, I believe that I had asked you, in words or substance, whether or not prior to the admission in 1935 into membership of the Guild by certain $10.50 or $10.75 manufacturers, you had lent your aid in bringing about the admission of such members to the Guild, and I believe that you had said "no." A. That is right. 11427

Q. Well, tell me at that time, not to-day, or at any time subsequent, but at or about that time, of the admission of those members—was that matter not discussed with you and other representatives of retailers in your presence, by members of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. And without seeking to give the exact words or substance—I will withdraw that. Without seeking to give the exact words, but in an effort to paint for us the substance of what was then going on, would you not say that at that time it was generally felt that it would be for the benefit of all parties to bring into the Guild the $10.75 members?

Mr. Haycraft: By whom?

Mr. Weisman: By all those who were there present. I think that is fairly understood in the question.

The Witness: No, it was not, just in that—in the way you have stated it.

By Mr. Weisman.

11429 Q. Well, I did not—let me try to get it to you in a different way: We will first come to you. Had you not, for some time prior thereto, felt that for the benefit of your stores getting, shall we say equal, or the ultimate protection out of this program of the Guild, that it might be well to take in the $10.75 members? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you not feel at any time that something ought to be done to protect lower-priced goods—that is, goods lower than $16.75? A. Not prior to the fall of 1935.

Q. I see. Well, let me see, did you not feel that where—generally, I mean, I am not trying to give your exact position—did you not feel prior to the fall of 1935 that where a store of yours—when I say "of yours," I mean that you represented—had originals in $16.75 cost, and competing 11430 stores were showing copies of that $16.75 and $5.75 merchandise, or $4.75, or $6.75, or $10.75, that the Guild ought to do something about that situation? A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not? A. I did not think the Guild should, prior to the fall of 1935.

Q. You are giving us your best recollection? A. Certainly.

Q. I show you this paper and ask you whether or not that is your signature (handing paper to witness)? A. It is.

Q. Now, I ask you whether or not on October 19, 1934, you wrote that letter to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I did.

Q. And I ask you whether or not this was the advertisement contained, referred to in that letter, which you enclosed? A. That is right.

Examiner Averill: No, no, you have not identified the exhibit.

Mr. Weisman: Excuse me; thank you.

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 89.)

Examiner Averill: You will save a lot of time 11432
by doing so.

Mr. Weisman: I now offer the letter of October 19, 1934, on the letterhead of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, signed by H. O. Bergdahl, this witness, in evidence, as Respondents' Exhibit 89.

Examiner Averill: Show it to Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

(Mr. Weisman hands paper marked Respondents' Exhibit 89 to Mr. Haycraft.)

Mr. Haycraft: Where is the advertisement?

Mr. Weisman: Here it is.

Examiner Averill: Go on and show it to him.

Mr. Weisman: You may see it, no secret about 11433 anything in this case.

Examiner Averill: No, especially not an advertisement.

(Mr. Weisman hands newspaper advertisement to Mr. Haycraft.)

Mr. Haycraft: No objection.

Examiner Averill: The paper heretofore shown the witness, which he identified as being the letter written by himself to Mr. J. M. Golby, F.O.G.A., New York City; bearing date October 19, 1934, will be received in evidence and marked Respondents' Exhibit 89, with leave to substitute a photostatic copy in lieu thereof.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 89, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(A newspaper was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 90.)

By Mr. Weisman.

11435 Q. Now, I show you Respondents' Exhibit 90 for Identification and ask you whether or not when you referred to the attached advertisement in Respondents' Exhibit 89, this is the attached advertisement which was attached by you to that letter? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Weisman: I now offer this in evidence. I have already shown it to Mr. Haycraft, and he says he has no objection.

Examiner Averill: There being no objection, gentlemen, the paper heretofore marked Respondents' Exhibit 90, the same being an advertisement from the San Francisco "Shopping News," bearing date October 15, 1934, will be received in evidence, 11436 with leave to substitute a photostatic copy in lieu thereof.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 90, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In this letter, Respondents' Exhibit 89, which was written on October 19, 1934, you enclosed the advertisement, Respondents' Exhibit 90, and you say there, "The attached is the advertisement to which I referred to in my conversation with you over the telephone this morning." Now, I take it that you meant so much of this advertisement as refers to new fall dresses, $6, all copies of higher-priced dresses? A. That is right.

Q. Is that so? A. Yes.

Q. And in that letter which was written on October 19, 1934, you wrote, did you not, at that time: "However, the Guild must do something to correct this situation." A. That is right.

Q. And the situation that you were therein referring to was that at prices therein shown at $6, there were being 11438 offered copies of merchandise of $16.50 or $16.75, and up; is that not so? A. Something like that.

Q. Yes. A. I recall that the word "copies" is what aggravated our store particularly.

Q. Yes. All right. A. I think the letter also shows——

Mr. Weisman: Now, just a moment. I have no further questions.

The Witness (continuing): —that there was not any exemption——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment, just a moment.

Examiner Averill: The letter is there.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, the letter is there.

The Witness: O.K.

By Mr. Weisman. 11439

Q. In 1935, in or about July, there was admitted into membership of the Guild a number of $10.50 manufacturers? A. As I recall; yes, sir.

Q. Subsequently, there were taken into the Guild, I understand, even lower-priced manufacturers; is that true? A. Yes

Q. As to these lower-priced manufacturers, before the were taken into the Guild, the advisability of their admi sion into the Guild was discussed with you, as a repr sentative of various retailers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And before these members were taken into the Guil you took it upon yourself, in good faith, to appear befo a large and representative body of such manufacturer and urged them to join the Guild, did you not?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the que tion.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled.

11441 A. Yes. I think you can put it that way.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Not the way I want to put it—is that true? A. Tha is true.

Q. And before you did that there was, was there not, mutual understanding arrived at, to which understandin you were a party, that after the admission of these $6.7 manufacturing members into the Guild the co-operatio that would be desired from the retail stores would be more careful or more stringent one; is that so? A. Ye sir.

Q. Thereafter, these $6.75 members were admitted int the Guild?. A. Yes.

11442 Q. And I understood you to say on your direct examina tion that after the admission of these $6.75 members th Guild did require a more strict compliance with their de laration of co-operation? A. In substance.

Q. And, as a matter of fact, you felt that that did n work out so well? A. I did.

Q. Then, I understood you to testify that you spoke t some of the executives of the Guild, giving them you opinion? A. At what time?

Q. After the admission of the $6.75 manufacturing members into the Guild? A. Yes. We had talks.

Q. And they then told you in words or substance that as time went on they would expect this program of co-operation to become more and more literal; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they not at that time tell you that it was their opinion, whether it was a fact or not, that only by a more and more literal adherence to this program could design piracy ultimately be stamped out? A. Yes.

Q. And did they not, as a matter of fact, say to you in words or substance that unless this design piracy were stopped, or overcome, that they would have to go out of 11444 business themselves, or, to use your own words, that they would have to shut down? A. To use my words?

Q. I think those are your words that you used. Well, never mind, whether they are your words or not, is that not the substance of it? A. I think that is the substance, if they did not include the lower-priced lines that it would work poorly; that it would not work so well.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, in or about this time—that is, the latter part of 1935, and I think it was in or about November, or thereabouts, or earlier—you suggested to the Guild that the Guild adopt a different method of adjudging style piracy; did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you suggested to the Guild that the Guild, instead of having its members take a hand in the adjudging 11445 of style piracy, that the Guild permit that whether or not a dress shall be admitted and deemed a copy of an origination should be determined by representatives of retailers rather than by representatives of manufacturers? A. I did.

Q. And the Guild adopted your suggestion? A. They did.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, in connection with that suggestion, do you know whether or not— A. What is that?

Q. I will drop that for the moment. Did you not know that the Guild, in an effort to make such adjudgments impartial, chose a panel of retailers that were to sit on a certain day one week in advance of the day that they were to sit? A. I did not know that.

Q. Let us see whether or not we can refresh your recollection. A. O.K.

Q. You served on some of these panels? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you not always obtain notice a week in advance that on a certain day you were to be asked about—or, rather, to be exact, you were asked to serve on the retail committee? A. I do not recall that.

11447 Q. Were you not ever told, in words or substance, or did you not ever learn that the Guild in an effort to erradicate any charge of favoritism, or lack of impartiality in such judging, adopted the program as you suggested, but added thereto the following: "That the committee that is to sit on a certain day shall be and is to be designated one week in advance and at a time when it is not yet known what shall come before that committee"? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the question.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. He has answered that he does not know.

A. I do not recall that I learned any such thing.

11448 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Were you ever told, in words or substance, or did you learn in any other way, that the Guild, further in its efforts to comply with your suggestion and to render this procedure free from any claimed favoritism, or lack of impartiality, passed a resolution by which it provided that none of the Guild members might appeal from such rulings as should be made by such retail committee, but that any person or manufacturer, not a member of the Guild, had a right of appeal?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the question as to what was in the mind of the Guild. How can he possibly know what was in the mind of the Guild.

Mr. Weisman: I asked him if he learned that. I am only asking him for what he learned.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled.

By Mr. Weisman. 11450

Q. Can you answer the question? A. The question is so long I do not really recall it now.

Q. I will ask that it be read to you. A. Thank you.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the question be read.

Examiner Averill: The question may be read.

Q. (Question again read.) A. I did not learn that, and I do not believe it worked out in practice if they did pass such a resolution.

Mr. Weisman: May I have the latter part of the answer be stricken out as not responsive.

Mr. Haycraft: I think it is properly a part of the answer. 11451

Examiner Averill: No, no, motion granted. The part of the answer which is allowed to remain is, "I did not learn that." The remainder is stricken out.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you not further learn that in connection with the hearings that were to be held by this retail committee which was to judge whether a dress was a pirated copy or not, the Guild resolution provided that if the manufacturer was a Guild manufacturer he had to be content with the personnel of the committee, but if the manufacturer was not a Guild manufacturer, was called before the committee, he had a right, with or without cause, to object to the personnel of the committee in which event an entirely new and subsequent committee which had been appointed for the following day would sit? A. I heard something to that effect.

Q. Did you further hear that the Guild further provided that if the subsequent committee with or without cause was unsatisfactory to the non-Guild manufacturer, 11453 that then the non-Guild manufacturer could ask that the matter proceed to arbitration pursuant to the laws of the State of New York, to wit: That the Guild manufacturer would appoint one representative or arbiter; the non-Guild manufacturer would appoint one, and the two would appoint a third, and the three would, the three so designated, would constitute the board of arbitration, whose decision would be binding? A. I did not know that.

Q. You did not know that? A. No.

Q. If you had known that, or if you had known of the entire procedure as I have now outlined it, commencing with my first question with regard thereto, do you not think that that was as reasonably fair as human endeavor could devise to adjudge this situation? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, on your direct examination you were 11454 asked in words or substance whether or not you ever knew of a decision on design piracy being subsequently changed, and I believe you said you know of one such instance. A. I recall it—as I recall it, I said so.

Q. You did not tell us through what mechanics that decision was changed? A. No.

Q. Do you know how it was changed, or through what mechanics it was changed? A. I have a version of it.

Q. Let us see. You remember on one occasion that a dress was adjudged a copy. Will this refresh your recollection that the initial committee adjudging a copy in connection with the dress that was made by the Puritan Dress Company—does that bring any recollection to you? A. I do have some recollection of the Boston case.

Q. Yes, Boston was where the Puritan Dress Company was located? A. Yes.

Q. As I understand it, you called up and you told Mr. Golby, or Goldston, of the Guild, that you thought the decision of the committee was unfair; did you not say that in words or in substance? A. Well, yes, but I want to make it clear that I did not testify about the Puritan 11456 case in my direct testimony. There is no reference to that in my direct testimony, as I recall it. It was not——

Q. But what case did you have reference to? A. I think I had reference to the case of Emanuel versus somebody else, I forget who it was, Emanuel Gowns, before they were members of the Guild.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, there is no desire on my part to have you make a mistake. I say to you that I am quite certain that there was no change of decision at any time with regard to Emanuel Gowns, and the records will so show. Now, I want to see if that will not refresh your recollection. There was a change after a conversation between you and Mr. Goldston with regard to a firm in Boston. As a matter of fact, Emanuel Gowns, as you must know, 11457 are not in Boston, so they could not have been the concern you have in mind, could they? A. Mr. Weisman, I said Emanuel Gowns, and that is what I mean. I think that that Puritan case was another case in which there was some dispute, but there definitely also was one at the Guild offices in connection with the Emanuel Gowns, I believe, and somebody else.

Q. I am not talking— (Mr. Weisman confers with Mr. Post) Look, we will have to start at the beginning. I want to clear this up. On your direct examination, Mr. Haycraft asked you whether or not you knew of a case where a decision of the piracy committee was subsequently changed, and you said you only had heard of one such case. Is that correct? A. I recall of one such case.

Q. Yes. Now, what was the one such case that you recall? A. I had reference to a piracy committee action in connection with Emanuel Gowns copying somebody in the Guild.

Q. And the original piracy committee determined that Emanuel Gowns had copied. A. The decision of the piracy committee was that the dress was not a copy.

11459 Q. Yes. A. Then as a result of conference, or as a result of some discussion with officials of the Guild, including Mr. Post, I believe, and possibly the manufacturer in the Guild, the committee changed its decision to one that it was a copy. At first the same committee——

Q. How do you know about that? A. My buyer was on the committee and so judged—so reported to me——

Q. Let me read your testimony. A. —and subsequently I talked to Mr. Goldston about it.

Q. Let me read your testimony and see whether or not you were not in error when you testified as follows, or whether or not you are in error now.

Mr. Haycraft: What page?

Mr. Weisman: 6740. Will your Honor follow this testimony, listen to what was said on the direct testimony of this witness?

11460

Mr. Martin: Where?

Mr. Weisman: At the bottom of the page. Are you following me?

Mr. Martin: No.

Mr. Weisman: I will read it carefully. (Reading.) "Q. In what instance was that? A. It was in connection with some dress company versus somebody else; I do not think of the name just now. This particular Guild member—that was before they became members of the Guild, and it was a case in which a given committee went the other way and in which one of our buyers was a member, and the committee made the decision that the dress was a copy."

A. That is right. The second time they did.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a moment, now. Wait a moment.

Examiner Averill: Hold on.

Mr. Weisman: That is the point, you said the 11462 second time, and a minute ago it was the first.

The Witness: I——

Mr. Weisman (reading): "The manufacturer brought it to my attention, or, at least, it came to my attention, and I called up Jack Goldston, and I said, 'Jack, in your own honest opinion, is that a copy of the dress in question?' And he said, 'Well, frankly, I do not think it is.' I said, 'Very well, why do you send it out as a copy, then?' He said, 'Well, I do not know, but that is the decision of the committee.' I said, 'Well, you had better see that that is changed because obviously this is unfair, and I am going to make an issue of it because it is not right.' I think as the result of that there 11463 was some change in the decision. However, prior to that when the committee was in action they made two different decisions on that particular dress, which was subsequently brought to my attention."

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

The Witness: So it is in there.

Mr. Weisman: I mean, the two versions can stand one against the other.

Examiner Averill: There isn't any contradiction.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, I think in my brief, your Honor, I will point out clearly that there is a contradiction.

Examiner Averill: Let us go ahead.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, now, do you not know that after 11465 you spoke to Mr. Goldston, and as a result of your conversation with Mr. Goldston, he said to you that if any retailer, or any manufacturer, were dissatisfied with the finding of this committee, an appeal could be taken, and that appeal was taken because of your expressed dissatisfaction, and a separate committee appointed, and then the change of decision came through the appellate committee? A. Do I recall all that?

Q. Do you not know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Substantially? A. No, sir; I do not substantially or otherwise.

Q. All right. Did you ever hear of a meeting between members of executives of the Fashion Originators Guild, Mr. Reilly, Mr. Schapp, and others, in the early part of 11466 February, 1936, at the Union League Club? A. Yes.

Q. And that was before anybody was red carded, was it not? A. I am not sure.

Q. Well— A. I think some had been red carded at that time, four or five stores.

Q. Well, you only think so. A. No, I am quite sure about it.

Q. When did you first find out of the A.M.C.'s being—certain of the stores of the A.M.C. being red carded? A. On or about February 10, I believe.

Examiner Averill: 1933, 1934?
The Witness: 1936.
Examiner Averill: 1936?
Mr. Weisman: 1936.
The Witness: February 10, 1936.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did Mr. Reilly, your superior, tell you that he had a meeting at the Union League Club at which Mr. Post was present? A. Yes.

Q. And that at that meeting among others who were present was Mr. Schapp, of Bloomingdale's, Mr. Reardon, of Stern's Department Store, Mr. Petrie of James 11468
McCreery, and others; do you remember that? A. He told me of such a meeting.

Q. That meeting was in the early part of February, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. There is no doubt, now, in your mind that that meeting was prior to the time that Bloomingdale's was red carded? A. I am not sure about that; I am not sure about it. It seems to me that Bloomingdale's were red carded at the time of that meeting, and Mr. Reilly said that there was some discussion about Bloomingdale's red carding at that meeting. However, I may be wrong.

Q. Let me see. As a matter of fact, did not Mr. Reilly advise you that at that meeting of the Union League Club, he said, in words or substance, that speaking—that he and 11469
Mr. Schapp said that speaking for the A.M.C. stores, or speaking for the A.M.C. stores, that they would not cooperate under any circumstances? A. No, he did not tell me that.

Q. Let us see. A. He had just issued a letter in which he said—or, no, that is right.

Q. Let us see whether this will refresh your recollection, now. You remember the letter— What is the number of that letter that went out, that came to us?

The Witness: February 14.

Mr. Weisman: I want to get the exhibit number, the letter of February 14.

Examiner Averill: Who from, too?

Mr. Weisman: It is a letter from the A.M.C. to the——

The Witness: To the Guild.

Mr. Weisman: —to the Guild.

The Witness: Fashion Originators Guild.

Mr. Weisman: Advising us that their members would not co-operate, or something to that effect. I do not know what it was.

11471 The Witness: That is not what they advised you, and you know it.

Mr. Weisman: Listen. I know if you do not keep still when I am addressing the Court, I am going to move to have you cited for contempt, that I know.

The Witness: You are not going to quote me otherwise than what I have said.

Mr. Weisman: I am not quoting you.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen——

Mr. Weisman: All I want you to do is to keep still.

Examiner Averill: Stop this, now.

Mr. Weisman: I mean, the witness has no right —it is bad enough if counsel constantly interrupts.

11472 Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I am not going to listen to any more of this. This is nonsense. Please, Mr. Bergdahl, do not make remarks of that sort. It does not do any good, and that ought not to go on the record, and the witness and counsel should not argue at all.

Mr. Feldman: Certainly does not help your testimony any; it hurts it.

Examiner Averill: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

The Witness: Your Honor, may I ask for information, something off the record?

Examiner Averill: Off the record, yes.

(There was further discussion off the record.)

Examiner Averill: On the record.

Mr. Haycraft: Here is the letter, Respondents' Exhibit 37.

Examiner Averill: All right.

Mr. Weisman: Let me see it.

Examiner Averill: I will read it. Not for the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.) 11474

Examiner Averill: On the record.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You remember, do you not, that you knew that prior to Mr. Reilly's attendance at that Union Club meeting Respondents' Exhibit 37 had not been sent? A. I think it had not been sent, but I am not positive about the date.

Q. I do not ask you—at the Union meeting— A. I am not exactly positive, Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not know as a matter of fact, and did not Mr. Reilly tell you, that he took with him to that Union League meeting a copy of this letter? A. I do not recall that he told me, no.

Q. Did he never tell you that at that Union League 11475 meeting he advised, in words or substance, Mr. Post that they would not co-operate with the Guild on its program as it then was? A. I think that he did say that, yes.

Q. And— A. —as it then was.

Q. Yes. And did not he tell you that at that time he said to Mr. Post, "I have already drawn a letter that I am going to write you"? A. I do not know that he said that to Mr. Post.

Q. And when Mr. Reilly came back from that meeting prior to the sending of the letter of February 14, did he not tell you that at that meeting, after his statement made to Mr. Post, Mr. Post said, "Well, if you fellows are not going to co-operate, we will have to call our board together and see if we want to do business any further with you"? A. He did not tell me that.

Q. He did not tell you that? A. No.

Q. And if that was said, that he kept secret from you? A. He did not tell it to me. He did not tell me everything that was said at the meeting. I am quite sure of that.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, do you know Mr. David Moeser? A.
11477 From Boston?

Q. No, not Mr. Moeser from Boston; Mr. Moeser from Boston is not Mr. David Moeser. A. I do not know him personally, no.

Q. Well, do you know who Mr. David Moeser, M-o-e-s-e-r, is? A. I am not sure, no.

Q. Who is the president now of the N.R.D.G.A.? A. Well, Mr. Moeser is the president, yes; that is why I asked. I think he is from Boston.

Q. Oh, you think he is from Boston? A. I am not sure. I think he is.

Q. Do you know what store he is connected with? A. Well, I am not sure.

Q. Did you ever hear of Conrad & Company? A. Yes.

Q. Is he president of Conrad & Company? A. I think 11478 that is correct, yes.

Q. And he is a working retail executive? A. Yes, he is——

Q. Well informed— A. —as far as I know.

Q. As far as you know, would you say he is well informed and well qualified in the retail problem? A. In some retail problems.

Q. Well, do you think that some of the retail problems in which he is well informed and well qualified by reason of being president of Conrad & Company and by reason of being president of the N.R.D.G.A. is upon the problem of style piracy, or do you think that is one of the cases or matters concerning which he is not well informed? A. If you will define what you mean by "well informed," I will answer you.

Q. Well, what do you understand by "well informed"?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, you remember Respondents' Exhibit 37, the Reilly letter of February 14? It was just referred to? A. Yes; yes, I do.

Q. You know that that letter was received by the Guild, 11480 do you not? A. I learned that it was, yes, sir.

Q. Did you also learn that immediately upon its receipt the Guild, in an effort to ascertain whether or not the A.M.C. was authorized to make that statement, sent a wire which is in evidence here—and I will give you the number in a moment—to each and every member store of the A.M.C.? A. I heard that was the procedure.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit 89—

Mr. Weisman: You mean Respondents', do you not?

Mr. Haycraft: Respondents'. 11481

Examiner Averill: Respondents'.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —Respondents' Exhibit 89, the following language: "The White House may be privileged under its agreement with you to buy and sell copies at this price line, and to advertise in this manner." What is the White House referred to there? A. That is a store in San Francisco.

Q. Now, the language following that I have just read to you: "However, the Guild must do something to correct this situation, or other stores may be forced not to refrain from handling copies." I will ask you what you had in mind when you made that statement?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. Here is a witness writes a perfectly plain letter. Now, he is asking him what he had in mind.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I do not want any further argument in connection with this matter. The reporter will read what the witness said 11483 up to this point.

(Answer read as follows: "A. Well, it had been our intention—")

Examiner Averill: Go ahead.

A. —from the beginning to co-operate progressively—

Examiner Averill: Yes.

A. (Continuing) The exemption that we had was not intended to give us any right to just indiscriminately seek copies. It was merely a protection for us so that it would be an understanding about how much we should co-operate, and we took it for granted, as I did here, and I think the conversation that preceded this letter probably cov-11484 ered some of that, that there may be other stores that had similar exemptions to ours, undoubtedly did, but that if stores were to persist in advertising, not only having copies in their store, but if they were to persist in advertising, as this store did, and put it in words, see——

Examiner Averill: Yes.

A. —that we did not construe as co-operating progressively. That seemed a negative form of co-operation to me—and that I thought something ought to be done, and I am quite sure I recall saying to Mr. Post that that ought to be—that that kind of vicious unco-operation, if you could put it that way, should be eliminated, or other retailers would have to be like vicious.

Examiner Averill: Now, wait. Hand me that exhibit you are referring to.

(Witness hands paper to Trial Examiner.)

Examiner Averill: Now, in connection with Respondents' Exhibit 90, which is the exhibit, the advertisement which you had before you at this moment——

The Witness: Yes. 11486

Examiner Averill: —is the language to which you specifically refer, the words "all copies of higher-priced dresses"——

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: —referring evidently to the pictures of dresses advertised at $6.

The Witness: Yes, yes.

Examiner Averill: That is what you are referring to?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Those words?

The Witness: Yes, yes, sir. We have a store in that town—we had a store—called the Emporium, and the Emporium ready-to-wear manager said 14487 that it is pretty hard for him to try to co-operate even with our understanding, if this kind of advertising was to be used against him, that he would have to be like—in a like manner, unco-operative—but it was our intention to co-operate, and progressively so, but that, I think, explains my letter.

Examiner Averill: The language you used?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: All right.

Mr. Weisman: Now, I move that the answer be stricken out.

Examiner Averill: Motion denied.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Upon cross-examination you were asked numerous questions with respect to not acquainting members of your organization—that is, the A.M.C.—in writing with the terms then existing, or that you say you had with Mr. Rentner, Mr. Maurice Rentner, as to exemptions? A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you if there is an explanation to that? A.
11489 There is.

Q. What is the explanation as to why you did not acquaint the members of the A.M.C. in writing with the exemption that you say you had? A. I might say that this was a verbal agreement between Mr. Maurice Rentner and myself and some others, and that it would be better for the Guild, and for the work it was trying to do if it would not be generally broadcast that such exemptions existed, and so I agreed and did follow that understanding and not broadcast it and write it—not broadcast it in writing. I agreed to keep it verbal, and I think I did succeed in doing that.

By Examiner Averill.

11490 Q. When you say "verbal," you mean oral? A. Yes, orally; yes, orally.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Your attention was directed to the fact that certain members of the A.M.C. had co-operated and continued to co-operate with the Guild. Hutzler Brothers was one of the members that was called to your attention? A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you know why Hutzler Brothers agreed to co-operate and did co-operate?

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, if you know, tell us if you know why they continued to co-operate after the red carding of certain other A.M.C. stores? A. Because—for two reasons—because they handled better merchandise to a larger degree in their store than the average department store does, and they felt that they could not get along without the Guild.

Mr. Weisman: I object to that.

Examiner Averill: Oh, no, that is all right. He can give the reasons and then we will consider them all at one time. 11492

A. Secondarily, Mr. Charles Hutzler was, I believe, chairman or president of the local guild and felt that he understood the Guild and probably could get along with him. For those two reasons they felt, but above everything else and particularly because they had this merchandise, they had to have this merchandise of the better class, they felt that they had to go along with the Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You were also asked with respect to Horn & Company.

Examiner Averill: He told us that before.

11493

Q. Were the reasons you have assigned for Hutzler Brothers continuing to co-operate with the Guild the same reasons that applied to the others, or were there different reasons, and if so what were they? A. Slightly different. Yes, slightly different. Can I take them up as a group and sort of cite the thing as a whole?

Q. Yes, go ahead and give us the differences. A. The Guild red carded B. Forman and Reich-Cumler Company along with the other A.M.C. stores on February 17, or thereabouts.

Q. What happened then? A. Those stores remained red carded until they had to have the merchandise which they had been accustomed to having, and therefore signed up with the Guild.

Q. Do you know the approximate date of that?

By Examiner Averill.

Q. When you say "signed up with the Guild," they had theretofore been signed up, and you mean that thereupon renewed because they had already been signed up and had 11495 signed declarations of co-operation, but they renewed these former declarations?

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think so.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Not former declarations, but they signed up new ones, did they not? A. They signed declarations of some kind with the Guild.

Mr. Weisman: That answer shows us now very definitely just where we are not, rather than where we are. "They signed declarations of some kind with the Guild." Now, we know just what they did sign. It makes a fog look like a bright sunny day.

11496 Mr. Haycraft: Maybe to you.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, you can penetrate it?

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen. In other words, they then made satisfactory arrangements?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: By which they could now buy Guild merchandise?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And do they now buy Guild merchandise? A. They
).

Q. I call your attention to Respondents' Exhibit No. 86, eing the letter from B. Forman to Mr. Rentner under ate of December 29, 1932, which you identified on your oss-examination. Do you recall that? A. Yes, I recall at.

Q. Do you know anything about the firm of Sibley, indsay & Curr Company mentioned in that letter? A.
es.

Q. What is that firm? A. Oh, they are a large depart-ent store that handles a wide range of merchandise, both 11498
w and better-priced lines.

Q. What is the nature of the business of B. Forman in at respect? A. They are a specialty shop and they han-le relatively a large percentage, for their business, of tter merchandise.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the latter part of the answer be stricken out as being obviously not within the witness' personal knowledge as to the percentage that they handle.

Examiner Averill: I think he could know as to what class of merchandise is handled in his member stores.

Mr. Weisman: But I referred to the percentage. He is going into percentages now. Pretty soon 11499 he will tell us what the president thinks when he gets up on a rainy morning.

Examiner Averill: I suspect we all know that.

Mr. Weisman: On second thought I will withdraw the objection because the probative value to be given this witness' testimony is all the better evidenced by his readiness to answer almost any kind of a question, and his eagerness to put in something wherever he can, to be witness and advocate at the same time.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike that out.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, I think it is a very proper observation and certainly justified by the action of the witness.

Examiner Averill: Proceed. That will not benefit us very much, I am afraid.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit No. 874.

11501

Examiner Averill: Is it not Commission's Exhibit 874?

Mr. Haycraft: So it is.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Question read as follows: "Q. Are the rules indicated in this letter representing to be part of the by-laws those provisions which you had in your mind, or which you made reference to in your testimony; when reference was made to trade practice rules?") A. Yes, those were the trade practices, and along with others that I have had reference to in my testimony.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl, you mentioned when you first came down this morning that there were certain changes which you desired to make in your testimony. Are you prepared to indicate those at the present time?

11502

Examiner Averill: Is he referring to corrections or is he referring to typographical errors, or to changes?

Mr. Haycraft: I do not know just exactly what it is, your Honor, and I would prefer the witness to state.

Examiner Averill: Go ahead.

The Witness: On page 7034, Mr. Weisman asked if it had ever come to my attention that there was a meeting in November, 1932, that was attended by the following people, and named the people.

Examiner Averill: I think you have stated that sufficiently. Just state the line on the page.

The Witness: Line 11, and a list of names that he started to read on line 15, and then that was the question to which my answer appears on page 7035.

Mr. Haycraft: Line 25 at the bottom of the 11504 page?

The Witness: Line 25. I said it did not at that time. I have refreshed my memory and find that I did know about those meetings—this meeting in particular, and others at that time.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: I suppose you now refer to page 7039, commencing with the question at line 17, "Did Mr. Ladd in these conversations ever say to you," and do you desire to make a statement about that?

The Witness: It begins on page 7039, and there is only one thing that I wish to change there——

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: —and that is in connection with 11505 where I had stated that I had learned about it since this case began.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. Learned what? A. I made a statement that I had learned that since this case had begun, and by that I inferred that I had learned through testimony that had been given here that the New York retailers did ask that the $10.50 manufacturers came into the Guild. That was my impression I had received, and then I reviewed what I had read—that is the impression that I thought I had gotten out of the evidence contained in exhibits for the Commission, I believe, being Commission's Exhibit 18 in which one when I read it I thought I noticed that, but now that I have read it again I find that they did not attempt—that they did not ask that the $10.75 manufacturers become members of the Guild, and therefore I want to call the Commission's attention and the Examiner's attention to the second page of Exhibit 18, and to point out——

11507 Mr. Weisman: This is not a correction, this is argument with the Court, and I do not want this to go on the record. He says he wants to correct his testimony and his testimony was when did you learn about it. He testified that he learned about it during this trial. I submit that if he wants to correct it he should say that it is not correct, or in what respects it is not correct, and not try to argue the case with the Commission as he seems only too anxious to do.

Examiner Averill: I think that is a fair objection to the testimony. Just state the correction you desire to make.

11508 The Witness: I thought I had learned from my reading of the exhibits here when this case was in New York earlier in this proceeding, when these exhibits were introduced, that the New York retailers had asked the $10.75—did ask the Guild to take in the $10.75 manufacturers, but I find on refreshing my memory that I had not learned any such thing, in fact, that they did not.

Mr. Weisman: I object to that, because now he is trying to argue the A.M.C.'s side of the case.

Examiner Averill: He said that he learned differently.

The Witness: I learned just the opposite, or differently.

Mr. Weisman: I think that is enough on that.

Mr. Haycraft: Except, Mr. Examiner, I do want to ask counsel for the respondents if he has finished with the exhibits which were marked for identification during the testimony, with respect to the estimated volume of business.

Mr. Weisman: We find in the first place that we have not been able to fully complete our own check against it, and in the second place we find it is completely erroneous in so far as our figures are concerned so far.

Examiner Averill: I remember that exhibit quite well. It was a tabulation. If it is found necessary later on when you gentlemen get together on the figures in order to meet any difference that you may have had in connection with the same, why, we are right here in New York and you can go over this matter with Mr. Bergdahl, we can call him over and we can ask Mr. Bergdahl to come up here and explain any discrepancy, if there be any, and then he can testify further in that regard only, if it is necessary to do so, to see whether it is admissible or not.

Mr. Weisman: We have all come to the conclusion heretofore that it was not admissible. The thing would have to be introduced over objection, if at all.

11511

Examiner Averill: Then it can be settled without that difficulty when we come to it. We will not attempt to meet anything until we come to it.

Mr. Weisman: I want this to appear at this point on the record: I respectfully again move to strike out all of this witness' opinion testimony with regard to the reasons why the various enumeraled persons continued to do business with us after the red carding of certain other A.M.C. stores. In that connection, I particularly call to the Court's attention, and to the Commission's attention, to whom I believe this record will ultimately go, that the fact that Hutzler Brothers and Horn Stores, the Commission has had before them, and that the attorney for the Commission knew at the time that he had them before him that these people were co-operating with the Guild right down to the date of the trial; that, therefore, his studied avoidance of asking them the question directly as 11513 to their reasons, and, rather, seeking to rely upon an obviously hostile witness' statement of opinion, being certainly opinion evidence with regard thereto is highly improper and prejudicial to the substantive rights of the respondent.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, if anything in the issues could be materially related, altered, or affected, or changed by any of this testimony in connection with the specific people co-operating at the time, it might be another thing, but it is so clearly evident that it is immaterial for any worth while purpose in connection with this case, and on the further ground that I could not attempt to strike all of the evidence in there that might be 11514 hearsay without going over it line by line, and, further, that we also have to consider the thousands of exceptions to the hearsay rule that are in use to-day, as it may be brought out by consideration, for instance, of our good friend Mr. Wigmore, who has very successfully brought in so many exceptions to the hearsay rule which we should not have dreamed of except for his learned treatises on the subject, and I think for the last forty years the tendency has been to disregard the hearsay rule almost entirely.

Mr. Weisman: I think that we may have been whittling it away.

Mr. Feldman: By a sort of tweedle-dee, tweedle-dum process.

Examiner Averill: That I am compelled to deny the motion.

Mr. Haycraft: Nothing further.

Recross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. On your redirect examination, you gave us an explanation as to what was in your mind when in response to Exhibit 89 you said, "If the Guild"——

11516

Examiner Averill: Referring to both of them? They are both tied together.

Mr. Weisman: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Averill: Referring to Respondents' Exhibits 89 and 90? They are so intimately connected that you cannot separate them.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You said two things: "If the Guild must do something to correct this situation," and you said two things further—you said first that you understood that retailers were to co-operate progressively; do you remember using the word "progressively"? A. Yes.

Q. When you said "progressively co-operate," I take it you meant that the co-operation as time went on was to be given closer and closer adherence to; closer and closer adherence to the declaration of co-operation, as written; is that what you mean when you said "progressively"? A. With the exceptions and explanations that I have already given.

Q. Yes, I understand. You now also state that when you read this letter, Respondents' Exhibit 89, and which includes Respondents' Exhibit 90, and which was dated 1934, you used the words that the advertising of copies unco-operating. Do you remember using that word? Yes.

Q. I understand, correctly, do I, that by the term "co-operating" you meant something that goes beyond lack of co-operation, and something that was definit detrimental and harmful and affirmatively so; is that y idea, and was your idea when you said "unco-operativ A. It was not within the understanding that we had,

Q. That understanding which you had, and which have described as "progressively" was for all of y

11519 A.M.C. stores? A. Yes.

Q. Let me show you this little advertisement——

Mr. Weisman: First, I will ask to have t marked for identification.

(An advertisement was marked for identificat Respondents' Exhibit 91.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 91, which was advertisement on March 10, 1935, by Abraham & Stra Brooklyn, N. Y. and ask you if that was ever called to y attention?

Examiner Averill: "Yes" or "no."

11520 The Witness: Yes, the subject matter was, ye

Mr. Weisman: I offer the paper in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: I object as incompetent, imm rial and irrelevant and not a proper part of recr examination.

(The advertisement heretofore marked for id tification Respondents' Exhibit 91, was marked an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. I call your attention to the fact that Respondents' Exhibit 91, of Abraham & Straus, refers to dresses—in fact, it is the direct advertisement of dresses, and it says, "Both these dresses were outstanding successes at Miami this year. They sold from $18 to $25. These are identical copies at $5.98." In your opinion, was that also uncooperative? A. I have so testified, I think.

Q. Was it? A. It was.

Q. This was called to your attention? A. Yes.

Q. Was the subject matter of this transaction taken up and explained to you? A. I have so testified.

Q. I do not care whether you have so testified or not. 11522
Was it or was it not?

Examiner Averill: Just answer "yes" or "no."

A. Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever have any occasion in March, 1935, when—or do you remember the occasion, I will put it that way—do you remember the occasion in March, 1935, when the substance of this advertisement was called to your attention by the Guild officers? A. Yes.

Q. At that time did you make a thorough investigation into this concern, or into the facts, rather, concerning the placing of this advertisement? 11523

Examiner Averill: "Yes" or "no."

A. No.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Did you pay any attention to it? A. To the placing of the order for that advertisement?

Q. The order for the goods. A. No.

Q. Did you take any step to remedy this situation? A. Yes.

Q. What did you do? A. I told my buyers that in so far as they were one of those which—this merchandise being in Abraham & Straus in so far as they were—I do not know to what extent they were guilty of anything, but if they were that this practice should be avoided since we were trying to do along with the Guild.

Q. What did you do about this when it was called to your attention? A. I called Mr. Post.

Q. Mr. Post was in the Guild, not in Abraham & Straus.

Examiner Averill: Oh, no. He may have called 11525 up and asked him something about it. I do not know. But he is entitled to say that.

Mr. Haycraft: I object and insist that he be allowed to finish his answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you finished your answer? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: I think we ought to confine it first as to who called it to his attention and then we can go into the question in an orderly way if we are going into it.

By Mr. Weisman.

11526 Q. Go ahead. A. When it was called to my attention I called up Mr. Post and I talked to him about that.

Q. Is that all you did? A. And I told my buyers that I did not want them to buy goods—to buy copies whenever possible.

Examiner Averill: To buy copies?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: You mean at any time that they had been copied?

The Witness: No, to buy—I did not want them to buy copies wherever possible.

Examiner Averill: I do not understand.

The Witness: He asked me what I did. I called Mr. Post and I talked to Mr. Post and I called my buyers and instructed my buyers—this is my recollection of the matter—I told them in so far as they had bought copies, I did not know that they had, but I gave them instructions that I did not want them intentionally to try to buy copies.

Examiner Averill: I do not understand yet. You mean to say that when the advertisement of any concern comes out in the paper that your buyers go to that place and look at the garments and buy copies of them? 11528

The Witness: No. This advertisement has reference to copies of dresses. This is the advertisement in which it says that these are copies of some other dresses.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: I gave my buyers instructions that they would not intentionally buy copies; that it was our intent to progressively co-operate with the Guild, and in so far as possible they should avoid any attempt to buy copies of dresses which were copies of Guild merchandise sold—do you see?

Examiner Averill: No, I do not see. I do not see what the effect of that can possibly have upon this advertisement. 11529

The Witness: I agree with you, Judge. I do not, either.

Examiner Averill: You say that you felt that this is an advertisement which you thought indicated that they were not co-operating?

The Witness: He asked me what I did when I saw the advertisement and I told him what I did.

Examiner Averill: Apparently you did not have anything to do in connection with the advertisement.

The Witness: No, sir; it is not. I did not. It was called to my attention.

Examiner Averill: Because your buyer had to buy copies does not mean that she had anything to do with this advertisement?

(There was a discussion off the record.)

11531 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever tell Abraham & Straus that in order to co-operate that in your opinion they should withdraw this merchandise from sale? A. No, I do not recall that I did.

Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Post in words or substance that if the Guild took any action against Abraham & Straus by reason of this advertisement that the A.M.C. stores as a body would refuse to purchase merchandise from the Guild houses? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever, when you spoke to your buyers, talk to Miss Dean about this situation? A. I did.

Q. What did you tell Miss Dean about this? A. I have just finished telling you that I have told my buyers, which is Miss Dean in this case, to avoid buying copies whenever she knew the dress was a copy.

11532 Q. (Resumed) When this advertisement was called to your attention, was it not first called to your attention by a Mr. Rothschild of Abraham & Straus? A. No.

Q. Did not Mr. Rothschild of Abraham & Straus call you up and tell you, in words or substance, that the Guild had complained to it, or to him, or to his department store, Abraham & Straus, concerning the subject matter of this ad? A. No.

Q. Did not Mr. Rothschild, or anyone else, of Abraham & Straus, state to you, in words or substance, that the purchase of this merchandise, and its offer for sale by A. & S., was due to some activity of Miss Dean of your A.M.C.? A. It is two questions in there.

Mr. Haycraft: Double question, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Averill: Ask it singly, then, please.

Mr. Feldman: He understands it.

Examiner Averill: Just cut it in two, if necessary.

Mr. Weisman: We will have it read.

(Question read.)

11534

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did not Mr. Rothschild, or anyone else, of Abraham & Straus, say to you, in words or substance, that the purchase of this merchandise by A. & S. was due to some activity of Miss Dean of your A.M.C.?

Examiner Averill: I do not understand—all of you are guilty, not guilty, but afflicted, but really I do not see what difference it makes. Let us get at it, whether the buyers, to his knowledge, bought these dresses advertised in this advertisement, Respondents' Exhibit 91.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman. 11535

Q. Will you give us an answer to that question as propounded by the Court? A. To my knowledge, they did not.

Examiner Averill: Now, you may ask about this other matter.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you, when you say "to your knowledge, they did not," did you answer that question in that fashion because it is your practice, or Miss Dean's practice, to get the merchandise aside, show it to A. & S., and then have A. & S. place an order on merchandise that she has collected? Is that the reason you answered the Court in that studied fashion? A. No.

Q. Well, now, let me ask you——

Examiner Averill: Let him ask what the transaction was.

11537 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Tell us just what the transaction was in connection with the acquisition by Abraham & Straus of the dresses shown on Respondents' Exhibit 91?

Examiner Averill: If he knows.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. If you know. A. I don't know the exact details of the acquisition.

Q. I do not want the exact details. I want to know what you know, without hiding behind your lack of knowledge of exact details.

11538 Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question, to the form of it, Mr. Examiner. The last part of that question has no place there.

Examiner Averill: I think it has. I think that question is perfectly proper, Mr. Haycraft.

A. I know that Abraham & Straus purchased the dresses, and advertised them, and that the subject matter was brought to my attention after Mr. Post had called Abraham & Straus on this ad.

Examiner Averill: But do you not know one way or another what all this is about Miss Dean, prior to the insertion of the advertisement, do you know whether Miss Dean, or any buyer of the A.M.C., induced Abraham & Straus to buy the copies which are advertised in that advertisement, Respondents' Exhibit 91?

The Witness: No, I do not know.

Examiner Averill: You do not know?

The Witness: That she did.

By Mr. Weisman.

11540 Q. Did Mr. George Ladd, of Abraham & Straus, ever tell you that she did? A. No.

Q. Did anybody from Abraham & Straus ever tell you that Miss Dean was responsible for Abraham & Straus getting these copies of originals? A. I——

Examiner Averill: Did anyone tell you now, he is asking you? He is not asking you whether that is a fact or not. He is asking you whether anyone ever told you.

The Witness: I was told that she assisted.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

Mr. Feldman: That is the answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

11541 Q. Who told you she assisted? A. Miss Carpel, I believe.

Q. And who is Miss Carpel? A. She was divisional merchandise manager of the store at the time.

Q. At A. & S.'s? A. Yes.

Q. When Miss Carpel told you that, did you ask Miss Dean as to what part she had played in this? A. Not at that time.

Q. When you say "not at that time," what do you mean by the words "that time"? A. Well, later.

Q. How much later? A. Oh, within the week.

Q. What did you tell Miss Dean about this within the week? A. I told her that if she was responsible for this merchandise being in Abraham & Straus's in any way, in copies, that is, in this form, copied dresses of some other dresses, and that she knowingly did this, that she should stop it.

Q. Well, did you ask her whether she knowingly did it? A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. And did she not tell you, as a matter of fact, that 11543 not only did she knowingly buy them, but she had them knowingly made up? That is, she ordered, or caused some one to order the merchandise, to copy somebody else's dresses? A. No, sir; she did not.

Q. She never said that to you? A. No.

Q. Did you ever say, in words or substance, to Mr. Post, that you would not cause or aid in the withdrawal of this merchandise from sale by reason of the fact that Miss Dean had placed orders for the linen with the houses, and had ordered, and that the linen was a special kind of linen and had been made up specially for the making of these copies, and, therefore, it would be too great a loss? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear anything about that? A. No.

Q. Concerning special linen? A. Mr. Post has told 11544 me subsequently that that was his idea of the transaction, I believe, and I told him, I think, that it was not.

Q. Did you ever ask Miss Dean whether that was? A. Yes.

Q. Did she ever tell you? A. She said no.

Q. What did she tell you about this transaction? A. Well, she said that she did not buy the linen, or the piece goods, or we did not buy them. I know that we did not buy the linen.

Q. No, that is not— A. And——

Q. I do not want to know what she told you she did not do. I want to know what she told you she did do, her entire connection with this transaction.

Q. Now, just tell us in your own words what she told you? I assume you spoke with her within a week after this came to your attention, and I want to know at that time what she told you she had to do with regard to the dresses shown on Respondents' Exhibit 91? A. As I recall it, she told me if two buyers bought those—the Abraham & Straus buyer, and herself, worked together, and when these dresses were purchased—as to the details I do not recall that she told me anything they did about 11546 the linens, or anything else.

Examiner Averill: Not talking about that, not interested in the linens, but what I am interested in really is knowing what Miss Dean knew in regard to those copies, if she told you. Of course, unless she told you you would not know—in regard to those dresses which Abraham & Straus advertised in that Respondents' Exhibit 91—what she told you was her connection with that matter. She evidently had some connection. Just tell us what it was.

The Witness: I have told your Honor that they bought the dresses together, as I recall it.

Examiner Averill: What do you mean, bought 11547 them together.

The Witness: The two buyers, I think, worked together; they consult each other over the telephone, and they work——

Examiner Averill: What were the dresses?

The Witness: I do not know, your Honor, I think they bought them in the manufacturers' room.

Examiner Averill: In the showroom?

The Witness: In the manufacturers' showrooms.

Examiner Averill: In the manufacturers' showrooms?

The Witness: I think so. They may have bought them in our office, but I do not know.

Examiner Averill: Did Miss Dean, in the course of her conversation with you, ever tell you as to her knowledge of the fact that the dresses she was cooperating with the other buyer in obtaining were dresses which she knew were copies of dresses which, according to this advertisement, were outstanding successes at Miami this year, and were 11549 sold from $18 to $25, "our identical copies $5.98"? Did she tell you anything about that? Do you have any knowledge of that state of affairs?

The Witness: No.

Examiner Averill: That is what I want to know.

The Witness: I do not recall that she did.

Examiner Averill: Do you not see that is the point in this thing?

The Witness: Yes, I know, but I do not recall that we had any conversation about the origin of these styles.

Examiner Averill: You see, it is evident from the advertisement that certainly Abraham & Straus had some idea of it.

11550 The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Because they could not have imagined it.

The Witness: Yes, yes, but I did not write the ad, and I did not discuss how it was written, or anything else.

Examiner Averill: I did not ask you that. I asked you whether Miss Dean told you anything about that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you whether or not this is a fact: Shortly before March 10, 1935, do you remember that Miss Dean took a holiday and went down to Miami? A. I do not recall.

Q. Do you not know that she did? A. I do not recall if she did.

Q. Look— A. I know she has had holidays, but whether she——

Q. I direct your attention, my good friend, to this ad. Now, directing your attention to that ad, and trying to conjure up all the memory you have, see whether or not you cannot remember now that shortly before that time 11552
Miss Dean—who works under you, by the way, does she not? A. Yes.

Q. —was on a vacation in Miami Beach, Florida? A. I know that she took a boat ride down to Bermuda, or some place, but I am not sure that she went to Miami Beach.

Q. Well, what makes you think it was Bermuda? A. Because I know that she took a boat ride.

Q. About this time? A. It was about two years ago; I am not sure of the exact date.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, let us see whether you recall any of these copies at $5.95, identical copies at $5.95, of dresses which were outstanding successes in Miami, and sold from $18 to $25, were any of these dresses at that 11553 time—that is, any of the copies purchased by other members of the A.M.C.? A. Yes, I think they were.

Q. Now, now, who purchased them for the other members of the A.M.C. at about that time? A. I believe, for the most part, the buyers purchased them themselves, but I think also Miss Dean may have placed some of the orders.

Q. Well, did Miss Dean tell you that? A. I found it out subsequently.

Q. Why did you not tell us about it of your own volition, a few moments ago? A. You did not ask me——

Q. I see. A. —whether we placed orders for our other stores.

Q. I see. A. I am not——

Q. I see. It is all right. I am asking you now——

Examiner Averill: The great question, and that is all he ought to be directed to now——

Mr. Weisman: What is that?

Examiner Averill: The great question now is whether at the time of this transaction, when he said other buyers did place orders—they knew that 11555 they were copies.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Averill: That is the only thing that I am trying to find out.

Mr. Feldman: That is right.

Examiner Averill: As to whether Miss Dean, or any other A.M.C. buyer, knew that the dresses which they were buying outright for their account, for the account of other stores—whether it was all done by the co-operation of the buyers of other stores, that assisted in buying—whether they knew at the time that they were copies. I am not trying to find out what the other buyer for the store may have known, but what Miss Dean knew. That is all 11556 that I would like to know.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Look, Mr. Bergdahl, when Miss Dean—Miss Dean is a well-informed person, is she not, in the general ready-to-wear market? A. In the low end.

Q. And she was such in the fall of 1935? A. I should say so, yes.

Q. When you spoke to Miss Dean, did you tell her that she must not buy copies of higher-priced merchandise just as was shown in this ad? A. I told—in substance—yes.

Q. Yes. Did you ask her, in substance, whether or not when she purchased the dresses shown by Respondents' Exhibit 91, she knew they were copies of higher-priced merchandise? A. I may have.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, do you not know that they were purchased because they were copies? A. No, I do not.

Q. Did she not ever tell you that? A. I cannot say that she did, no.

Q. From your experience in this business, from your 11558 knowledge that you have gained as merchandise manager for the A.M.C., do you not now know that the buyer purchasing these dresses, in the line of the buyer's duty, bought them so they could be sold as copies of the dresses of which they were copies? Do you not know that? A. I think that is right, yes, definitely so.

Q. So that, in effect—I mean, now, there is no quarrel about this: That when Miss Dean bought those dresses, she, of course, knew they were copies? A. Well, if you want to say so, go ahead.

Q. Yes. A. But do not put it in my mouth.

Q. But do you not know that, also? A. No, I do not know it.

Examiner Averill: I am going to ask this—gen- 11559 tlemen, you have heard all of this, and here is the only thing that is involved: Ask the witness if he can explain why in 1934 he objected to the Guild to an advertisement of White's store in San Francisco, Respondents' Exhibit 90.

Mr. Feldman: 89.

Examiner Averill: 90, Respondents' Exhibit 90, in a letter which is Respondents' Exhibit 89, and which advertisement refers to, and specifically states, that the dresses advertised are copies of higher-priced dresses, and whether in 1935 when practically the same thing occurs in an advertisement of a member store, why he did not take some action, and if he did take any action, what was the action. He has told us about that, but I want to see why there was no objection made by them about 1935 when they did object about 1934, that is all—style of advertising.

The Witness: Shall I answer that?

Examiner Averill: Yes, sir; please.

11561 The Witness: As I recall it, the Guild was not able to do very much in connection with stopping the practice of the White House in San Francisco.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

The Witness: And I think Mr. Post wrote letters out there in which he said that not much could be done without shoppers.

Examiner Averill: Yes, that is all in.

The Witness: And that there were towns where there were no shoppers, and this practice went on. At least the suggestion that I had made in a letter was not accomplished, that is, effectively; other retailers were not being stopped from handling copies. So, when in March of 1935, one of our own stores

11562 did this, and I think the management did not like it, and said so, and I told Mr. Post at the time that I thought it was unfortunate, but, nevertheless, it was done, and it could not be helped. We had the money invested in the merchandise, and we did have exemptions in emergencies, to handle the merchandise. It had never been revoked, so we would handle it. And he said at the time that in that case—I never protested or said or condoned the practice when our store did it, I did not. I said it was unfortunate, but that the Guild was not yet controlling low end merchandise, and he said in that case, as I have testified previously, in that case I will return your declaration. It was that precipitate action that I objected to, and not the fact that the ad was run as it was.

Examiner Averill: All right.

The Witness: I think the ad was wrong, and I think the store said it was wrong, and they did not like it, and we did not like it.

Examiner Averill: I now understand; thank you.

By Mr. Weisman: 11564

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, was it not that the store called up and said that it was wrong, and the store wanted to return the goods, because they felt that they were not properly co-operating, and it was you that prevented them, and said no, you would not let them return the goods? A. That is not right.

Q. We will have Mr. Ladd here. A. You can have him here.

Q. To see whether it is right. A. He is the wrong man to get, though, because he was not in the transaction.

Examiner Averill: Now, now, just do not——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In an effort to justify yourself in your explanation 11565 to the Court, you said that nothing was done, or was able to be done, about the San Francisco transaction, and that the Guild could accomplish nothing because it did not have shoppers at that time.

Examiner Averill: He said it could accomplish little.

Mr. Weisman: Little.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I ask you whether or not you remember receiving this letter from the Guild in reference to your letter, Respondents' Exhibit 89? A. Yes, I recall getting that letter.

(The paper heretofore marked for Identification Respondents' Exhibit 92, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. By Respondents' Exhibit 89, you wrote to the Fashion Originators Guild——

11567 Examiner Averill: Now, gentlemen, the papers speak for themselves.

Mr. Weisman: I just have one question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. —that the Guild must do something to correct the situation. The Guild did write you that the offending store had thanked the Guild for calling the transaction to their attention, did they not? A. Yes, as I recall it.

Q. And the Guild, further, advised you that they had received assurances that such a thing would never happen again, did they not?

Mr. Haycraft: I object, the exhibit is there, it is purely argumentative.

11568 Examiner Averill: It is all in the letter, it is just arguing over again.

Mr. Weisman: Because he said to your Honor that they did very little.

Examiner Averill: There is the letter.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Those things are your ideas of being able to do very little to correct such abuse? A. That does not mean that it was an accomplished fact.

Q. No, no, that is your opinion? A. Yes.

Q. You volunteered the information to me that if I got Mr. George Ladd of Abraham & Straus to testify concerning this transaction, I would have the wrong man. Who is the right man? A. I told you Miss Carpel, I think, handled this transaction.

Q. Do you know whether Miss Carpel is still with Abraham & Straus? A. I think she is not, in the same capacity, but I think she is there.

Q. All right. A. Unless she has retired.

11570

AFTERNOON SESSION—3 P. M.

JOHN BLOCK was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your name? A. John Block.

Q. Where do you live? A. 187 Fifth Avenue, New Rochelle, New York.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Resident buyer.

Q. In what industry? A. We buy for out-of-town department stores and specialty stores throughout the country, all lines of merchandise. 11571

Q. All lines of merchandise? A. Yes, all lines of merchandise handled by department stores.

Q. What is the name of the firm you are associated with? A. Kirby, Block & Company.

Q. What position do you hold in that firm? A. General manager.

Q. Where does it have its place of business? A. 128 West 31st Street, New York City, New York.

Q. Will you briefly describe, for the record, the service that you render for the stores, the outlying departmen stores that you buy for? A. We represent these stores i the New York market and help to fill their orders fo merchandise; sometimes, when their buyers, when the buy ers for those stores are in the city and when the buyer are not here, we go out and fill their requests, we also kee our stores posted as to market trends, style changes, and so forth. We also give them space where they can inspec samples, receive visiting salesmen and so forth. O course, there are other incidental duties, but those, I think are the salient features of our work.

11573 Q. Do you have buyers of your own employed by you own organization? A. Yes, sir, we have.

Q. Approximately, how many? A. I should judge abou seventy-five or eighty buyers, including the assistan buyers.

Q. How long have you been in this business? A. Per sonally, I have been in this business since 1907.

Q. In New York City all of the time? A. In New Yor City all of the time, yes, sir. My firm has been in exist ence since 1916, the winter of 1916.

Q. Have you kept and occupied somewhat the same po sition in that period of time, since 1916, that you occup to-day, or has there been a change? A. Well, the positio has been the same, except when the firm was smaller I di actual buying in addition to looking after those affairs o 11574 the company in a general way, whereas, to-day there ar others who have supplanted me in the buying of merchan dise.

Q. Approximately how many accounts, or how many re tail stores, do you buy for? A. Oh, I should say, betwee 125 and 150.

Q. They are located all over the United States? A. Al over the country, from coast to coast.

Q. And you buy for any particular chains or groups of department stores or are they all individual stores? A. As far as I know they are individual stores, although sometimes a store will have a branch—they will have a main store in a larger city and some branches in smaller cities, but I would not call them a chain, because usually——

Mr. Albert (interposing): If your Honor please, I object and move to strike out the latter part of the answer. As to what the witness will not call a chain, if he will not call it a chain, we are satisfied with the answer. We are not interested in his reasons for not wanting to call anything anything or not. 11576

Examiner Averill: Yes, just say in your opinion it is a chain or it is not. That is what he is asking you.

A. Well, may I say this, that in my opinion a chain of stores is one where the merchandise in all stores is of a like nature, but where the stores differ as to quality and grade of merchandise handled and where some of the stores have departments and others have not, then it hardly fits in as a "chain."

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Among other articles of merchandise does your organization buy ladies' ready-to-wear apparel for the stores it represents? A. It does. 11577

Q. Has that been true all through these years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first learn of the existence of that organization? A. Well, I cannot say as to the exact date, but I think it was some time in 1933. We had some meetings and there were some letters sent out, but I do no recall the exact dates right now.

Q. Do you recall how the Guild came to your attention the circumstances under which it came to your attentio Mr. Block? A. We had a meeting with Mr. Rentner an some other gentlemen in the manufacturing business whos I do not recall now, whether or not—that is, I do no recall now whether or not that meeting was prior to general notice that was sent out concerning the aims o the F.O.G.A. or after that notice was sent out.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 14, which a the minutes of the meeting held at the Garment Cente 11579 Capital Club, on February 17, 1933, attended by repre sentatives of a number of resident buying offices, inclu ing Kirby, Block & Company—was that the name of you firm at that time or did your firm then go under the nam of Kirby, Block & Company? A. Well, I do not kno whether it was 1933 or 1932 that the style of the nam was changed.

Q. Do you recall attending a meeting on or about tha date which was attended by members of the Fashio Originators Guild of America? A. Can I see that?

Q. Yes.

(Commission's Exhibit 14 was handed to the wi ness.)

Mr. Albert: What was the question?

11580 (The question was read by the reporter.)

A. I am not sure that I was present. Somebody prob ably from our firm was there.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the latter part of the a swer be stricken out. The question is a very simpl one and it can be answered directly.

Examiner Averill: And I think the answer i also simple. The motion is denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.
Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Calling your attention to the last paragraph of these minutes, Commission's Exhibit No. 14-B, as it says here, it says that: "On motion made by Mr. Felix Lilienthal and seconded by Mr. Weill that a committee be appointed from the resident buying offices to meet with a committee of the Fashion Originators Guild to propose plans whereby the buying offices and manufacturers could co-ordinate their efforts in fighting piracy, and that after this committee had a policy formulated, to call another meeting of 11582 the resident buyers. The motion was carried and the following committee of resident buyers was appointed." Then there appears a list of names and on this list of names appears, among others, Mr. John Block, of Kirby, Block & Fischer. Does that refresh your recollection as to a joint meeting of resident office buyers and members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America shortly after February 17, 1933? A. No. That does not refresh my recollection. I am not sure whether I was there or whether it was one of my associates. I know somebody was present, but I am not sure.

Q. All right. Subsequent, now, to February, 1933, when did you next hear, or did you hear anything further from the Fashion Originators Guild of America, or of its 11583 activities? A. Yes, sir, we read articles in the trade papers and also saw some letters that had been transmitted to our retailers. We also had a meeting, I recall, at Miss Glemby's office, Miss Rose Glemby of the Mutual Buying Syndicate.

Q. Who is she? A. She is the head of the Mutual Buying Syndicate or association—Mutual Buying, I think it is Association.

Q. Is that another buying office? A. That is a buying office similar to our own.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 99-A to E, both inclusive, over the signature of Maurice Rentner, with certain attachments, memoranda and Guild resolutions, and also a copy of the declaration in regard to anti-piracy, and ask you if you have seen this paper or papers comparable to that exhibit which letter is dated June 16, 1933? A. I recall such a letter. Whether this is an exact copy of it, or, whether this is the exact letter or not, it would be hard for me to say, but I recall a letter being sent to retailers to which was attached the F.O.G.A. declaration of acceptance—the declaration of co-operation.

Q. Well, at the meeting that you refer to, later on, in Miss Glemby's office, do you recall who, besides yourself, was present at that meeting?

Mr. Albert: May I ask that you fix a time?

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And when it was? A. The meeting was held some time just about the time when we first started to hear about the Fashion Originators Guild of America, but I do not recall the exact date except to say that it was in the earlier part of 1933. Whether it was in April, May or June, I do not know. I do not remember at this time.

11586

Q. Was it before or after you have or had seen this letter that I have now called your attention to, dated June 16, 1933? A. I will say that it was a little before, but I cannot swear to it. My recollection was that it was slightly before.

Q. Who was present at that meeting besides yourself? A. There was present for the manufacturers Mr. Maurice Rentner and Mr. Herbert Sondheim, and Mr. Golby was present and Mr. Louis Brenner, and perhaps one or two ther manufacturers, I do not remember their names. And for the buying offices there was present Miss Glemby at whose office the meeting was held, Mr. Bergdahl, Mr. Greenebaum and, I am not sure but I think, Mr. Lilienthal, Mr. Greenebaum's associate, was also there and somebody was present from Wile & Hartmann, I am not sure whether it was Mr. Wile or Mr. Gaynor, and Mr. Swinney, I believe, was there and I think Mr. Arthur Lippmann was there and perhaps one or two others that I do not recall now.

Q. Do you know who called the meeting? A. Why, I do not remember whether the meeting was called at the instigation of Mr. Rentner, or at the instigation of Mr. 11588
Bergdahl, or at the instigation of myself, I am not sure. It was called by agreement between the two groups, however.

Q. What was the subject-matter of discussion at this meeting? A. The matter under discussion was the question of co-operation of buying offices with the plan of the Fashion Originators Guild of America. Mr. Rentner, also, gave us an outline of the Fashion Originators Guild of America and what it stood for and what it meant to accomplish.

Q. What did he say with respect to that? A. Well, he told us the hardships suffered by the manufacturers of better dresses through the copying of their styles promiscuously and the selling of such styles throughout the country and he said that they meant to—the Fashion 11589
Originators Guild of America meant to curb that evil and that they hoped to get the co-operation of retailers throughout the country and the buying offices representing such retailers, as well. Briefly, that was the theme.

Q. Did he say anything about what he expected the retailers to do in that co-operation? A. Yes, sir. He expected that they would refrain from buying copies of original models.

Q. Anything else? A. Well, as I said, that is briefly, I do not know what other——

Q. Well, to refresh your recollection——

Mr. Albert (interposing): Well, if it please the Court, I object to Mr. Haycraft refreshing the witness' recollection through Mr. Haycraft's statements of anything he thinks may have occurred. I think the witness is perfectly capable of telling us what he remembers of what occurred there.

Examiner Averill: All right, I do not think there is any objection to him seeking to refresh——

11591 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was there anything said about the retail dealer returning to manufacturers copies of merchandise of Guild garments, of garments manufactured by Guild members? A. Well, as part of the program, it was stated that retailers would be expected to return such copies, not to buy copies, and if they were discovered to be copies then they were expected to return them to the manufacturers of those copies.

Q. Did anyone speak for the retail dealers present with respect to this program? A. Yes, I believe a number of us spoke, including myself. We asked Mr. Rentner how he would protect the retailers who were sympathetic with the F.O.G.A. idea, as regards to lower-price garments 11592 that were copies, were handled by chain stores, who might not be signatories to the F.O.G.A. agreement, and who would sell these garments by the thousands, where the other type of retailer, our type of retailer, for instance, was proscribed from selling that same merchandise, and then followed a long discussion in which some of the manufacturers, as well as Mr. Rentner, took part, and representatives of buying offices, and, oh, it must have been after, about two or three hours, we finally came to this agreement that——

Mr. Albert (interposing): I object to any conclusion of the witness, if it please the Court, as to what agreement there was, and ask that the witness be restricted to telling us what was said.

A. Mr. Rentner said any dress or dresses costing $6.75 and under would not be considered a copy of a Guild—of any Guild design. The buyers present agreed that that would be satisfactory. That is the agreement I refer to.

Mr. Feldman: This was in 1933, Mr. Block?
The Witness: Yes, sir. 11594

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At that time, now, what price lines were the members of the Guild manufacturing, cost price lines? A. Well, at that time, the Guild members were making dresses costing $22.75 and upwards; a few were selling as low as $16.75; not many.

Q. After this meeting, did you communicate the understanding that you had arrived at with Mr. Rentner to the store that you represented, or did you make any recommendation to the stores? A. I believe we did get out a circular type of a letter, but I have no copy of it, because we do not save those; after a few months we destroy them. We get out so much of this mimeographed literature we cannot save it. 11595

Q. Were you asked by the stores that you represented for an opinion or a recommendation as to their signing the so-called "Declaration of Co-operation" to which I directed your attention and which you referred to in your testimony a moment ago, Commission's Exhibit 99? A. We were asked by a good many stores, and we recommended that they sign, and where they asked us what would happen on lower-priced dresses we assured them that they would have no trouble, and we thought that the principle as a whole was good, and that they should sign, and, in fact, we obtained such signatures right in our place on the blanks furnished to us by the F.O.G.A., and then we would send on those signed acceptances of declarations to the F.O.G.A.

Q. Did you as a buying office sign any such declaration of co-operation? A. Yes, sir; we did.

Q. Subsequent to June, 1933, did you co-operate with the F.O.G.A. in its program as you understood it at that time? A. Yes, sir.

11597 Q. Did you ever learn, or was your attention directed to an occasion when the membership of the F.O.G.A. was to be expanded or enlarged to include $10.75 cost manufacturers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first learn of that? A. I do not know the date, but I remember the occasion. There was such an occasion.

Q. I now show you Commission's Exhibit 862, which is a letter from H. I. Kleinhaus, executive secretary of the Association of Buying Offices, Inc., addressed to Maurice Rentner, chairman, Fashion Originators Guild of America, dated March 30, 1935, and ask if that will refresh your recollection as to when you first learned that the $10.75 manufacturers were to become members of the Guild? A. I remember that; yes, sir.

11598 Q. Does this letter refresh your recollection as to the time when you first learned that the $10.75 group of manufacturers— A. Yes, I believe it was about that time.

Q. —were to go in the Guild? A. Yes, it was about that time, I believe.

Q. Would you say it was around or about March, 1935? A. Judging from the date of that letter; yes, sir.

Q. This letter, the Association of Buying Offices, Inc.—do you hold any position in that organization, or have you held any position in that organization? A. I was president of it until recently.

Q. How long a period were you president of it? A. Three years—that is, from its inception until, I think, October of this year.

Q. When was it organized? A. It was organized in the fall of 1933.

Q. Will you briefly describe, just briefly, the nature of that organization, what it consists of?

Mr. Albert: Are you talking of the A.B.O.?

Mr. Haycraft: A.B.O., yes.

A. This organization was formed about the time that so 11600 many questions arose as to what was right and what was wrong under the N.R.A. rulings, and we thought rather than have spasmodic meetings at luncheon tables and so on, that it would be a good thing to form this organization and go along with the N.R.A., because we felt that sooner or later we would be called upon to draft our own rules of fair trade practices, and so on. So we thought that was the opportune time to form this organization, and exchange views and ideas, so on and so forth. Now, the purposes of the organization—although that was the cause of its organizing, I would say that the purposes are mainly for an exchange of ideas and views, concerning matters having to do with buying office activities.

Q. Who belonged to it? A. About twenty-five buying 11601 offices of New York City.

Q. Are they the leading ones, would you say? A. I would say that they compose practically all the leading offices.

Q. The Associated Merchandising Corporation with which Col. Reilly and Mr. Bergdahl are associated, did they ever join your organization? A. They joined, but they told us that it must be understood that full membership would be subject to the approval of their board. They contributed to the cause, which was a hundred dollars per annum, for the upkeep and running of the organization, and I do not believe that up until now they have had that board consent, but in spirit they are with us.

Q. They have never taken any formal action? A. No, but they were very active at all our meetings. They were attended by either Mr. Bergdahl, or Mr. Chambers, sometimes by Mr. Kelly, when it had to do with other lines of merchandise, sometimes by Mr. Reilly.

Q. This exhibit that I have called your attention to, referred to Mr. Kleinhaus. Who was H. I. Kleinhaus? What firm was he connected with? A. Mr. Kleinhaus 11603 acted as executive secretary for the Association of Buying Offices.

Examiner Averill: What is the number of the exhibit you speak of, please?

Mr. Haycraft: 862.

Examiner Averill: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did Mr. Kleinhaus discuss with you, or show you this letter before or after it was written to Mr. Post (handing witness Commission's Exhibit 862)? A. Let me see, March 30, 1934. Yes, that was discused at a meeting of the Association of Buying Offices.

11604 Q. Was this letter authorized by that meeting? A. Yes, that was authorized.

Q. I call your attention to Comission's Exhibit 862: "We take it for granted that 'invitation' to style registration on the basis offered to $10.75 manufacturers is not synonymous with membership in the F.O.G.A. and, therefore, is only optional or binding on retailers who have signed agreements with you. In connection with this subject also we should like to call to your attention that the agreement now in effect with retailers is not binding below $7.75 cost either by a stipulation so written in the original contracts with many retailers or by a verbal understanding between the A.B.O. and the F.O.G.A. to which you openly agreed at one of our joint meetings. This mutual agreement has never been changed.

"We do not wish to be misunderstood. We are and have always been in sympathy with your purpose of style protection. As a practical matter, however, we feel it is unwise for you to attempt, at this time, to assure style protection to signatory retailers or to your members against merchandise costing below $7.75 cost since there are many retailers dealing almost exclusively in low end goods who 11606 have not signed with you and over whose purchases you have as yet devised no means of control. We refer particularly to mail orders concerns and specialty apparel chain stores." I call your attention to the $7.75 cost mentioned in that quotation. A. Does it say below $7.75?

Q. Yes. A. Well, that would mean $6.75 and under, because there is no cost in between the two.

Q. Well, at the time that—in June, you see this was in 1935. A. Yes.

Q. In June, 1933, were there any $7.75 cost manufacturers, to any extent, in this market? A. As I recall, the price line would jump from $6.75 wholesale to $6.75. If there were any made at $7.75 or $8.75, they must have been mighty few at that time.

Q. Did they come in more numerous later? A. Yes, 11607 to-day there are a great many of them.

Q. Yes. Were meetings held, joint meetings with the A.B.O. and representatives of the Fashion Originators Guild subsequent to March 30, 1935, to your knowledge? A. I believe so; yes, sir.

Q. Did you attend any of those meetings? A. I attended some, and others were taken care of by a committee that was appointed to deal with F.O.G.A. matters.

Q. Who constituted that committee—that is, who made it up? A. There was Mr. Bergdahl, Mr. Greenebaum, and I think Mr. Sweeney. I believe that was all.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind repeating those, Mr. Block?

The Witness: Mr. Bergdahl, Mr. Greenebaum and Mr. Sweeney.

Mr. Albert: They represented the A.B.O.?

The Witness: They represented the A.B.O.

Mr. Feldman: A committee appointed to deal with F.O.G.A. matters.

11609 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was Mr. Kleinhaus also on that committee? A. He might have been ex officio.

Q. That was on account of his office as secretary— A. Yes, that is, to taking records, and so on.

Q. I now show you Commission's Exhibit 866, which is a carbon copy of a letter from Mr. Kleinhaus, as executive secretary, to the Association of Buying Offices, Inc., addressed to Mr. Maurice Rentner, chairman of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, dated April 27, 1935, and ask if you can identify that in any way, or whether you have seen it or known anything about it (handing exhibit to witness)?. A. Yes, that seems to be in line with what was being discussed at those meetings.

11610 Q. Did you see the original of this letter before it was mailed? A. Possibly, I am not sure. Sometimes he would send me the letters for my O.K. and sometimes he would just tell me what was in it, briefly.

Q. Do you have an independent recollection of the subject-matter of the letter? A. Oh, yes, yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: Is that Exhibit 861?

Mr. Albert: 866.

Mr. Haycraft: Commission's Exhibit 866.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I now show you Commission's Exhibit 871, which is a carbon copy of a letter from Mr. Kleinhaus, executive secretary of the Association of Buying Offices, Inc., addressed to Mr. Bertram Reinitz?— A. R-e-i-n-i-t-z.

Q. —151 West Fortieth Street, dated May 13, 1935 and ask you if you can identify that in any way? A. Yes, I know that that subject was discussed and that seems to be in line with the discussion.

Q. You mean that is— A. That had to do with some period of leniency, mostly.

Q. Mr. Block, I call your attention to this statement appearing in Commission's Exhibit No. 862, to which I 11612 directed your attention a moment ago, being the letter of March 30, 1935: "In connection with this subject also we should like to call to your attention that the agreement now in effect with retailers is not binding below $7.75 cost either by a stipulation so written in the original contracts with many retailers, or by a verbal understanding between the A.B.O. and the F.O.G.A. to which you openly agreed at one of our joint meetings. This mutual agreement has never been changed." Now, I ask you, Mr. Block, whether there was any change in the agreement or understanding as a result of the discussions which you had, or your representatives had with this F.O.G.A. committee and A.B.O. and officers of the Guild subsequent to March, 1935?

Mr. Albert: Same objection. 11613

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

The Witness: You say subsequent to March, 1935?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes.

Examiner Averill: Was there any change subsequent to that time?

The Witness: Was there any change of what?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In the agreement or the terms of the agreement.

Mr. Feldman: He has never testified that that was an agreement. How can he testify that it was changed?

Examiner Averill: This is in the letter which is clearly before us and which he has read and now he is testifying as to whether there was any change in it.

Mr. Feldman: He has not stated that they arrived at any agreement.

Examiner Averill: He read it.

11615

The Witness: There was no change as far as the —as far as the price limit was concerned; that is $6.75 or any other, except that some time after Mr. Post was made managing director of the Fashion Originators Guild the question came up as to modifying the understanding that we had had up to then as to copies, and so forth, in the lower priced ranges. The A.B.O. and particularly Mr. Bergdahl, as I recall, was willing to work along the F.O.G.A. provided that in doing so some solution might be arrived at whereby neither the retailer nor the manufacturers—that is, neither the retailers who signed with the F.O.G.A., nor the manufacturers of the F.O.G.A., or their affiliates in the

11616

$10.75 group, would suffer. It was a very difficult problem, I will admit, and I think everybody else will, and we have not solved the question yet.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was there— A. What?

Q. When did the $10.75 manufacturers become members of the Guild, if you recall? A. Well, I do not know as they became members of the Guild proper. I think that their Association affiliated, as an association, with the Guild. In other words, the $10.75 manufacturers, as I understand it, the single manufacturer, is not an out and out member of the F.O.G.A. as an individual manufacturer.

Q. That is, they are members of the Dress Creators' League? A. They are members of the Dress Creators' League.

Q. When they became associated with the Guild in any way, that is the only time— A. I did not understand you.

Q. When did they become associated with the Guild—that is, when did they set up, as far as registration was concerned of their garments— A. Well—— 11618

Q. If you recall. A. I do not understand just what you mean.

Q. Some time subsequent to this date. A. The records would show for themselves. There are records, newspaper records, and so forth. I do not know. I believe it was in 1935 some time, if I understand your question.

Mr. Albert: I do not understand the question at all.

Examiner Averill: I do not, either, but apparently the witness does.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring again to Commission's Exhibit No. 871, to the paragraph reading as follows: "We should like to have 11619 you, as representing the $10.75 dress manufacturers, and Mr. Post of the Fashion Originators Guild, approve the following slightly amended understanding as drafted from the minutes of the May 4 meeting, and acted upon by our members at their meeting on Friday, May 10, 1935:

"The Guild's plan to extend style piracy protection to the $10.75 dress manufacturers was discussed with the aim of developing a practical procedure.

"It was agreed that it could hardly be expected, for some months at least, that the low priced market would be able to adjust itself to style origination. For this reason, it was decided that during the period which would be required to develop the production of a sufficient volume of goods in the lower price field made from original designs, and so long as non-signers were still buying copies in considerable volume, the Guild would be lenient with respect to their requirements, that copied merchandise be returned." My first question is: What price was included in this group of lower-priced manufacturers, or in the lower-priced field? A. $6.75 and under at wholesale.

11621 Q. My second question is: What was the contemplated period of leniency? A. This expression "period of leniency" really was originated between Mr. Bergdahl and Mr. Post, and I did not know how long a period that would be. It would only be a guess on my part.

Examiner Averill: Do not venture a guess.

The Witness: I could not state.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The last part of this letter that you suggested be sent reads as follows: "Accordingly, the committee agreed that the Guild should extend protection to the $10.75 dress manufacturers, and that the conclusions contained in the minutes shall be put forth in a letter to be sent by the 11622 Guild to all retailers." Do you recall the particular phrase that I have just called your attention to? A. I recall that that happened and we agreed to it.

Q. Going back just for a moment to 1933, Mr. Block, did your buyers contact regularly the manufacturers in this area that were members of the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In June, the latter part of June, 1933, did they make any reports to you with respect to their ability to be allowed in the showrooms of the Guild manufacturers? A.

Well, they told me that the buyers of the cheap merchandise—that is, merchandise costing $10.75 and under that was known at that time as the "cheaper merchandise," would not be permitted in the Guild showrooms. Whether that was a permanent thing or not I do not know, but that was the report that no buyers whose firms had not signed with the Guild would be permitted in the F.O.G.A. showrooms, and I assured them that they had nothing to worry about, that we would go along with whatever our retailers wanted to do, and that if the large majority of our retailers wanted to follow along with the Guild, why, I would go along, which we did. So, after these discussions, and so forth, we signed with the Guild and the buyers bought 11624 the merchandise then, and thereafter at the Fashion Originators Guild of America showrooms.

Q. To your knowledge, have any of the stores for which you buy in this market been red carded by the F.O.G.A.? A. Not—any of our stores?

Q. Yes. A. To my best knowledge, none of them have been red carded, none of our stores.

Q. Have any of them been shopped by shoppers of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes, sir; lots of them.

Q. Do you know, just in a general way, which ones, by city, say? A. Oh, Baltimore, Washington, Houston, Texas; some in the Middle West, some out as far as the Pacific Coast; I do not recall all the names; I would say that 11625 in the medium and larger cities they were pretty well shopped.

Q. Do any of your stores have what is known as basement stores? A. Yes, sir; quite a few of them.

Q. Approximately how many would you say? A. Well, I would say approximately fifty.

Q. Do you know whether or not those basements are being shopped by Guild shoppers? A. Those basements are shopped, and upstairs' stores are shopped also.

Q. What is the general division in a group of stores as to price line of garments sold in basements as compared with upstairs' stores?

Mr. Albert: What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. There is no general division as to cost. The better store may sell dresses retailing at $10.95 and under in the basement; the cheaper store might not sell dresses retailing over $4.95 in the basement, maybe $3.95 and under. It all depends on the type of store. Some department stores will sell $5.95 dresses on their main floors; some of them have budget shops on their main 11627 floors, which they term "budget shops," which sell popular priced dresses, and some of them have on their main floors shops which they call college shops, or campus shops, and so forth. It all depends on the type of store as to what price marks the beginning of the basement dresses.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do your stores which operate basement stores, and which have been shopped by shoppers of the Guild, been required to return garments cost price below $6.75 to the manufacturers when adjudged copies? A. Sometimes yes, sir; sometimes.

Examiner Averill: Proceed.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Block, if you will resume the stand.

JOHN BLOCK resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

11631

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any recollection, Mr. Block, of discussing with officials of the F.O.G.A. the matter of certain trade practices that they had agreed to discontinue during the year 1935? A. There were some discussions with some of the officials of the Guild on account of the propriety of trade practices entering into the Guild activities.

There seemed to be doubt as to whether or not fair trade practices had anything to do with the Guild which many of these buyers believed had been formed in the interest of style protection only.

Q. Do you have a recollection of when these discussions took place? A. I think it was in the summer of 1935.

Q. Do you have any recollection of who attended the meetings that you referred to, and the discussions? A. No, I do not know that I can say exactly now unless I saw some minutes or something of that kind.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit 34, minutes of the meeting which took place on Friday, June 21, 1935, I 11633 will ask you whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to when the meeting was held, and who attended it? A. Yes, I remember the meeting. This seems to be approximately correct. This is a report of the meeting.

Q. Does that coincide with the list of manufacturers—A. As far as I remember, yes.

Q. —and their representatives who were present? A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any recollection as to who—do you have any recollection as to what were the so-called unfair trade practices that were discussed at that meeting? A. Well, the question of discounts, the question of submitting merchandise to group showings and some other items that I do not remember were discussed, and Mr. Rentner tried to 11634 point out to us that what they had in contemplation was for the good of the industry, and at the same time, I believe, he assured us that nothing would be done without giving the retailers a chance to state—to sit in at the open hearings when any further trade practices were under discussion, fair trade practices.

Q. To refresh your recollection on this matter, of what constituted unfair trade practices from the Guild's standpoint, I will ask you whether or not the practice of selling— A. What?

Q. —of selling garments on consignment was mentioned or discussed? A. Probably.

Q. Do you have any recollection of it? A. I think it was. This seems to be—that is one of the subjects that come up regularly when fair trade practices were discussed with them, or any other organization.

Q. I will also call to your attention the practice of making exchanges of merchandise and/or returns? A. Well, I mentioned returns before, or intended to. I think the showing of garments by manufacturers at retail functions—that is, at retail stores, or in retail offices, particularly New York, was also discussed.

Q. What was that practice? A. What? 11636

Q. What was that practice? A. Well, for many years some manufacturers would send out merchandise to retail stores enabling them to gather their customers at a so-called fashion store. This would help retailers to sell more merchandise from the samples shown on live manikins.

Mr. Feldman: What is the date of these meetings?

A. And incidentally, would create a certain amount of prestige for the store by reason of the fashion side of the show. That is one of the trade practices that were discussed as to the Guild which they wanted discontinued, and had passed a ruling to the effect that that should be discontinued. And the other fair trade practice regarding 11637 showings of merchandise to retailers' representatives—that was a subject which was discussed, another subject which was discussed. At such a showing usually a number of out-of-town retail buyers gathered to get a bird's eye view of the new fashions on the market. They could get a good cross-section as to what is being shown with the least possible loss of time. Manufacturers of the Guild argued that that did not help their business, but rather retarded it, and so forth, and that was another so-called fair trade practice that was included in the program for discontinuance.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the indulgence of the Court to ask that the answer be read back, because it was given so jerkily and so rapidly that it was rather difficult to follow it.

Examiner Averill: Read the answer back.

(Answer read.)

Examiner Averill: I notice that the witness said "another so-called fair trade practice." Did you mean that?

Mr. Albert: That is what he said, as I recall it.

11639 The Witness: Yes, but that was my error, it should be unfair trade practice, I meant that it was something that was to be the subject of fair trade practice regulation.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the position of the retailers with respect to these so-called unfair trade practices that you have just referred to? A. Well, the representatives of the retailers present at that meeting seemed to be of the opinion that those matters, or at least a great many of them, were not unfair trade practices, but were fair trade practices that could very well be continued without detriment to the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

11640 Mr. Albert: I ask the answer be stricken out as not responsive and it being a conclusion rather than a recitation what was said by the various people there.

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was any expression made as to whether or not these practices were advantageous to the retail dealers? A. I thought I answered that.

Examiner Averill: Is that not included in the answer already given?

The Witness: That is just what I said. I said they thought that it was a fair trade practice.

Examiner Averill: No, no.

The Witness: Excuse me.

By Mr. Haycraft. 11642

Q. Subsequent to that meeting, did the Guild submit to the retail dealers various resolutions that had been passed by the F.O.G.A. with respect to so-called unfair trade practices discussed at that meeting? A. I believe so; yes, sir.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 540-A and 540-B, a two page letter from Mr. Post, this is numbered, to Mr. Ralph T. Friedman, being a mimeographed letter dated July 1, 1935, and ask if this is such a letter as you have in mind? A. Yes, I think I remember that.

Q. Since that time, since July 1, 1935, have you had any further discussions with the officials of the Guild with respect to the enforcement of these rules and regulations with respect to so-called unfair trade practices?

Mr. Albert: I did not hear the question. 11643

Examiner Averill: Read it.

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Answer the question. A. Now, just what is the question?

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that the question be read.
Examiner Averill: Read it.

Q. (Question read.) A. I do not know as I had, personally, any discussions with the Guild, but these matters were in the hands of the committee acting for the Association of Buying Offices. This committee was the F.O.G.A. trade relations committee which we spoke of at yesterday's hearing.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Of which Mr. Bergdahl was chairman? A. He was 11645 chairman, yes.

Q. Did the committee report to you from time to time as to the discussions that they had with the Guild on these matters? A. Yes, sir; but as to the dates and the exact items I do not remember at this time.

Q. Do you know, as a matter of fact, whether or not these rules and regulations have been enforced by the Guild since that time? A. I would like to have them again—I would like to see them again if I might.

Q. Here they are. A. I think substantially they have been enforced; possibly in some instances they might not have been.

Q. Has there been any discussion, to your knowledge, of the enforcement of these rules and regulations between 11646 this committee, that you referred to, and officials of the Guild, or has the enforcement of these rules been a matter of discussion between the committee and members of the Guild? A. There has been discussions, as I said before, but I am a little hazy as to the dates and items discussed.

Q. In your testimony yesterday, you referred to the extension of the Guild program to include the $10.75 cost manufacturers. A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you recall any further extension of the Guild program to include the $6.75 and the $7.75 and the $8.75 cost manufacturers, respectively? A. Yes, that did happen.

Q. It did happen? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall when that took place? A. Subsequent to the time that the $10.75 affiliates was joined up with the Guild.

Q. Can you give us any better date than that? I am afraid not unless I have some records to go by.

Mr. Albert: We will probably furnish them for you, Mr. Block, for your convenience.

The Witness: That will be nice.

By Mr. Haycraft. 11648

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 528-A and B, being a letter from Mr. Post to Mandel Brothers, Chicago—no, New York City, dated November 6, 1935, and ask if that will refresh your recollection as to the date of the inclusion of the $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 manufacturers in the Guild program in or under the general title of Protective Affiliates? A. That is probably about the time, November 6, 1935, as I recall it, Mr. Haycraft.

Q. About the first of November, 1935? A. I believe so; yes, sir.

Q. Or immediately prior thereto? A. That is probably correct.

Q. To your knowledge, was the F.O.G.A. committee of the Association of Buying Offices consulted with respect to 11649 this expansion of the Guild program to include the $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 manufacturers? A. I believe they did have some conversations on that subject; I do not know whether or not they consulted them before they decided on this move or not, but there was some conversation on it.

Q. Do you recall at or about that same time that there was also an attempt made by the Guild to take in the $4.75 garment manufacturers? A. I believe there was, later on.

Q. Later on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that attempt successful—that is, did the $4.75 manufacturers affiliate themselves with the Guild? A. I believe not.

Q. Do you have any recollection of any discussions that you personally had in the fall of 1935, as representing your firm and the organizations that you buy for, with officials of the Guild, with respect to the policy of the Guild in requiring returns on the part of retail dealers whom you represented, of garments that were judged to be copies of Guild merchandise? A. I don't remember any particular discussion. We always maintained that the retailer who had signed up with the Guild and was trying to live up to 11651 his agreements and obligations under that agreement, was at a handicap, because of the fact that stores that had not signed up, particularly the popular-priced chain stores, had on outlet for thousands of dollars, probably millions of dollars of merchandise, which the retailers who had signed with the Guild were proscribed from receiving or selling.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, you say you maintained that. Did you mean you maintained that to the officials of the Guild? Did you tell them about that? A. Well, we always maintained that our retailers who had signed had not—I would say were not in a favorable position as far as the selling of the 11652 cheaper merchandise was concerned, in spite of the fact that we, representing our retailers, and we know that most of our retailers were in sympathy with the Guild plan, in principle, if it could be worked out equitably, as far as the retailer is concerned.

Q. Well, now, after the $6.75, $7.75 and the $8.75 cost manufacturers became affiliated with the Guild, and participated in their program, was there any modification made, or change made, in the understanding and/or agree-ent that you referred to yesterday in your testimony as exemption for $6.75 merchandise from the returned—om the requirement to be returned?

Examiner Averill: From the requirement?

Mr. Haycraft: From the requirement on the part of the Guild.

Examiner Averill: From the requirement of returns?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

A. There was some modification, but I do not know whether that letter had any bearing on modification, or whether that letter caused the modification. There was 11654 ome modification later.

Examiner Averill: When the witness says "that letter," he refers to Commission's Exhibit 525?

Mr. Albert: 528.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the modification? A. Well, the question rose as to whether some retailers were not suffering too severely by reason of returns being ordered by Mr. Post, or his assistant, Mr. Goldston, and two or three of us alled on Mr. Post one day on that subject, and he told us hat it would be agreeable in the case of retailers who were 11655 ubjected to unusually large returns, thereby hurting their usiness to a great extent, to limit those returns so that hey would not go beyond a fixed percentage of the total umber of garments carried in their dress departments.

Q. What was that fixed percentage that he mentioned? A. As I remember it, the percentage of returns need not xceed 3 per cent. of the entire dress department; that is, he higher and lower price, or not to exceed 5 per cent. of he popular priced department.

Q. By "popular priced," you mean lower brackets? A. Lower brackets. Well, I believe we agreed also not to make this public, the reason being given by Mr. Post that lower-priced manufacturers should not take undue advantage of the situation, and also that retailers should not take too much advantage of it; but it was sort of a gentleman's understanding, and we treated it as such.

Q. Was anything said at that conference with respect to the formal agreement, or understanding, that you had with Mr. Rentner as to— A. Well, we always referred to that agreement right along, but, of course, as far as Mr. Post was concerned, he disclaimed all knowledge of that be-11657 cause he was not connected with the institution at that time, and was not present at that meeting—that is, the meeting that I referred to in 1933 at yesterday's hearing.

Q. Did Mr. Rentner ever repudiate the agreement or understanding that you had with him in that respect? A. He never did, so far as I know.

Q. How long a period of time did this last gentleman's arrangement or agreement that is referred to that you had with Mr. Post continue? A. I do not know exactly how long, but I do remember that some time afterwards, it might have been a matter of months, in recalling to Mr. Goldston this 3 and 5 per cent. agreement, or understanding, that we had with Mr. Post, he told me that was off.

Examiner Averill: Who told you that?

11658 The Witness: Mr. Goldston.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Goldston.

Examiner Averill: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. It is not in effect, then, at the present time? A. As far as I know, it is not.

Q. Have you had any——

Examiner Averill: One moment, please, first, let us find out, if you do not mind, whether this conversation with—Mr. Goldston?

The Witness: Mr. Goldston, Jack Goldston.

Examiner Averill: Whether that was prior to the red carding of the A.M.C. stores, which has already been testified to, or if it was subsequent to that.

Mr. Haycraft: I will be glad to have that question asked.

Examiner Averill: I want to fix the time, and he did not give it. This conversation that you speak of with Mr. Goldston? 11660

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

Examiner Averill: You have heard of the red carding of certain A.M.C. stores, have you not?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Averill: And you know approximately what that time was? If not, I can have your recollection refreshed as to that date.

The Witness: I would like to know the date.

Examiner Averill: Let me see those exhibits.

Mr. Haycraft: February 17.

Mr. Martin: February 17, 1936.

Mr. Haycraft: That is when the formal notice went out. There were a couple before that.

Examiner Averill: Now, then, was this conversation with Mr. Goldston prior to that, or after that? 11661

The Witness: After.

Examiner Averill: After that red carding?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Block, have you had any discussion with either Mr. Post or Mr. Goldston since November, 1935, aside from the one that you have referred to a moment ago, with respect to the returns that the stores that you represent are required to make under the rules, in co-operating with the Guild? A. As far as I recall in the last several months, that is during 1936, I have had very few discussions, except where we received notices of a general nature, the regular bulletins, asking us to inquire of our buyers if certain alleged copies had been purchased from certain manufacturers, and, if so, to advise the Guild, and 11663 also to notify our retailers to return those copies immediately. That was generally the type of discussion on matters pertaining to these bulletins. If there were any others, I do not recall them at this time.

Q. Have you received any instructions from officials of the Guild with respect to certain manufacturers you have designated as confirmed copyists? A. Yes.

Q. When did you receive such instructions? A. We received these bulletins from time to time. They were in the shape of illustrations, description of garments, names of the manufacturer who was the alleged copyist, the name of the manufacturer that originated the style, and usually accompanied by a letter advising us what to do.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I move 11664 that the answer of the witness be stricken out as not responsive to the question. The question was a very simple one, "When was the time you received them?" The answer would have been, since he cannot give a specific time, "From time to time." Then I could have make an objection to the next question of Mr. Haycraft, which Mr. Haycraft might have put, as to the substance of that, and the bulletins would have been the best evidence of what was received by this man. He is volunteering this information without even a question put by Mr. Haycraft, precluding me from objecting to the question on the ground that the information is not the best evidence. I move that everything be stricken out after the answer "From time to time."

Examiner Averill: Read the question and the answer.

(Last question and answer read.)

Examiner Averill: The objection is overruled; exception noted.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

11666

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you ever receive any instructions from officials of the Guild referring to certain manufacturers that were not to be bought from because they were confirmed copyists?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, as a result of this witness volunteering information not in response to a question, I have got to object to preliminary questions which are forming the foundation for what Mr. Haycraft wants to get at.

Examiner Averill: All right.

Mr. Albert: I must object to the question on the ground it calls for a conclusion of the witness as to whether or not certain instructions given him 11667 were instructions; further, on the ground the best evidence is the person giving it, or, if it is in writing, the instruments bearing the instructions, or the information, whatever it is that Mr. Haycraft wants. I do not know, but I cannot take any chances any further that this witness is going to give proper answers to questions, and answer "yes" or "no" to foundation questions, and I am going to have to object to everything Mr. Haycraft asks.

Examiner Averill: All right, if you do just make your objections and then we will make a ruling and go on; but so far as this question here is concerned I have so little notion in my mind as to the word "instructions" that I would like to ask the witness to state if these—whatever he received—if it was in the form of instructions, or was it just in the form of information, or was it reporting actions that had been officially taken by the Guild, or its representatives. That is what I am trying to find out.

11669 A. Well, I suppose the right word would be "requests," requests. We were asked to do it that way.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. That would be the general form in which these things, whatever they were, took? A. Yes, sir. That would be the general form in which these things took.

Q. They stated certain people had done certain things, and then you were requested to do certain things, or not to do certain things? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the general nature of these things? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or policies? A. Yes, sir.

11670 Examiner Averill: With that understanding as to what the witness means as to the word, I think we can proceed.

Mr. Albert: I renew my motion to strike the answer on the ground that it calls for the conclusion of the witness and the proper basis has not been laid for that.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Averill: I think the witness can answer that question with the modification.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask, with the modification, that the witness answer the question.

A. I would say that they received such requests—that we received such requests from Mr. Goldston at times.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have any recollection as to the names of the manufacturers? A. No, I do not remember them at this time. 11672

Q. Did you comply with the requests that Mr. Goldston made in that respect? A. I would call my buyers into the office and read the letter to them and ask them as near as possible to comply. There were times when it was not within their jurisdiction because some of the store buyers would go in themselves and buy these goods without asking us.

Q. So far as your buyers were concerned, I mean? A. We tried very hard to hold to the Guild so far as it was signed by us, the policy.

Q. Did you also comply with their request with respect to buying from manufacturers that were designated or referred to as confirmed copyists and were attested to thereby by members of the Guild? A. I just answered that, I believe. 11673

Q. Would your answer be "yes," as you explained so far as you know your buyers—so far as your own buyers were concerned, I mean? A. So far as our own buyers are concerned; yes, sir.

Q. To refresh your recollection, I will ask you whether or not you were ever asked by Mr. Goldston, or requested by Mr. Goldston, to not buy from Harris Dress Company because they were presumed to be copyists? A. I could not say definitely as to the Harris Dress Company.

Q. I will ask you the same question with reference to Feinberg & Weisen? A. Any one particular—in one particular instance, yes, I remember now.

Q. What is that? A. In one particular instance, yes.

Q. Do you remember when that was? A. A short time ago one of our retailers was requested to make return of a number of garments to Feinberg & Weisen on the ground that they were copies. The retailer did so. The manufacturer refused to accept the garments. The retailer notified 11675 the Guild asking the Guild what to do with the merchandise. The manufacturer would not receive it and the retailer could not sell it, and what was to be done. It was finally agreed that the retailer could sell this merchandise on condition that he would refrain from buying any more of this merchandise—any more merchandise from this manufacturer. This one time that I remember that this manufacturer's name was brought in in connection with this subject—this is one time.

Q. This is Feinberg & Weisen—they were a manufacturer, you said? A. Oh, yes, they were. Of course, we have had other complaints about the same manufacturer, Weinberg & Weisen—Feinberg & Weisen, in times past by the Guild, but I mean as to where one of my retailers was buying and now will not buy from that manufacturer 11676 again, that is the only one that I can recall.

Q. Do your buyers now buy from Feinberg & Weisen? A. I could not say whether they buy now or whether they bought last week or the week before.

Q. What? A. I could not say whether they buy now or whether they bought last week or the week before that.

Q. I mean since before or within the past year, we will say. A. Oh, in the past year I would say they probably did; yes, sir.

Q. You do not know whether they do at the present time, subsequent to this incident to which you refer buy from them? A. No, I do not.

Q. Mr. Block, based upon your experience and knowledge of the industry, and of the retail dealers, and based on the retail dealers I mean in the women's and misses' ready-to-wear garments, and in your experience as a buyer for such retail dealers, and taking into consideration the facts that you have related in this proceeding as to the operations of the F.O.G.A., particularly as to curbing so-called style piracy, please state your opinion of the effect of that program upon retail dealers of women's and misses' ready-to-wear garments from the standpoint of their ability to sell that merchandise in competition with other retailers in the industry—referring in my question to those retailers that are co-operating with the Guild? 11678

Mr. Albert: Are you finished with the question?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please, as no proper foundation has been laid for the conclusion of the witness and asking for an opinion upon matters which I do not think any man in the industry is capable of knowing an opinion upon, if he has any respect not only for his own knowledge but for the knowledge of anybody else in the industry, and certainly in the light of the testimony that has been taken throughout the country with the various figures that have been produced in evidence here, and that have been presented, I say that this is incompetent at the present time, and immaterial and irrelevant and improper. 11679

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Averill: Objection overruled, and the witness may answer the question if he can. If he cannot he can say so.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Exception noted. Answer the question, please.

Mr. Haycraft: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. Those retailers, in my opinion, who have to compete with non-signers—or non-signing re-
11681 tailers, are handicapped. On the other hand, those retailers who handle merchandise only in the higher brackets, of course, they are not concerned with the stores that sell lower-priced ready-to-wear exclusively. They are not in competition with the better type of specialty stores or high type department stores. And I would say——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Block, what have you to say as to why is the dealer that has to compete with non-signers, non-signing retailers, in the lower brackets handicapped? A. They are handicapped because they are prevented from selling good looking garments although they may be copies, but which non-signers with the Guild nevertheless sell in large 11682 quantities.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Block, you have testified with respect to a certain transaction involving the firm of Feinberg & Weisen. Can you tell us something further about that? A. Perhaps.

Q. You stated that that transaction took place a short time ago. A. Yes.

Q. When was that? A. Two or three weeks ago.

Q. In November of 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was the retailer that was involved in that transaction? A. Foley Brothers Dry Goods Company, Houston, Texas.

Q. Did you say that you saw, or have a copy of the communications between Foley Brothers and the F.O.G.A., or did you ever see them? A. What I had was a letter from Foley Brothers on this subject.

Q. Have you that letter? A. No, sir; not with me.

Q. Could you produce it? A. I could if you want it. It 11684 is in the files, I suppose.

Q. Did you discuss the matter in any way with anyone in the F.O.G.A.? A. With Mr. Goldston.

Q. What was the subject or substance of the discussion, rather? A. What is that?

Q. What was the substance of the discussion? A. Why, I related to him that Foley Brothers set forth that they returned the goods in accordance with the instructions of the shopper for the Guild and the manufacturer had refused to accept them and returned them to Foley Brothers. Foley Brothers did not know how to dispose of that merchandise. I said to him, "Now, what are you going to do about it? These people cannot take a loss; they cannot throw these goods away." After some discus- 11685 sion, he finally said, "Well, let them write us a letter that they will not do any more business, and that they will not buy any more goods from that manufacturer and we will make an exception and let them dispose of that goods at retail on their premises." I said, "All right, I will write them that way." And I did so.

Q. What was the reply of Foley Brothers? A. I have not had any reply.

Q. Is that the way the matter stands at the present time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not know what action was taken by Foley Brothers on it? A. I do not.

Q. You are familiar, are you not, with the warranty clause? A. Yes.

Q. In use by the co-operating retailers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I assume that Foley Brothers, as a co-operating retailer, had on its orders this warranty clause? A. I believe so.

Q. Pursuant to that warranty clause, is it a fact that Foley Brothers had the right to insist that Feinberg &
11687 Weisen accept back the goods that had been adjudged copies? A. Retailers generally, I believe, felt that this rubber stamp, or the wording contained in that rubber stamp provided by the F.O.G.A. gave them the right to return goods to the manufacturer of those goods.

Q. As a matter of fact, from your wide knowledge of this industry to which you have testified, do not manufacturers who accept orders with this rubber stamp on them, accept back dresses which have been adjudged copies, and which are returned by retailers?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Averill: Overruled, obviously.

A. To a great extent; yes, sir. Occasionally we have 11688 trouble with some of them that will not take them back.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, is that very seldom, Mr. Block? A. I would say that applies to the minority of the cases, the small minority.

Q. A very small minority? A. A very small minority.

Q. Do Foley Brothers, or had Foley Brothers acquiesced in Feinberg & Weisen's refusal to accept back the dresses which have been adjudged copies? Foley Brothers, if they had taken those goods off sale, would have assumed the entire loss thereof, would they? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in addition to the warranty clause as contained on the order as given by your stores, there are other printed conditions on those order blanks, are there not? A. There usually are other clauses having to do with the shipment of goods, terms, and the basis under which they buy the goods, in general.

Q. Those clauses are placed on their orders by your member stores as a condition precedent to their doing business with the manufacturers; is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. 11690
Examiner Averill: Overruled.

A. Yes, they are usually printed on some part of the order.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Those provisions that are printed on these orders for the most part are things which these retailers believe to be necessary for their protection in doing business with manufacturers; is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.
Examiner Averill: Overruled.

By Mr. Albert. 11691

Q. In connection with this, now, then, is it a fact that what Mr. Goldston told you was that it was up to Foley Brothers to decide whether or not they wanted to continue to do business with the manufacturer who refused to accept the conditions which the retailer thought was necessary for his protection? A. That might be one way of looking at it.

Q. Is that not the only way of looking at it, Mr. Block? A. There are two ways of looking at it.

Q. What is the other way? A. That way is one way, and the other is that the Fashion Originators Guild of America if they were successful in eliminating these copyists, one by one, naturally it would be to the advantage of the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Q. Do you know whether or not your other member stores were requested to cease doing business with Feinberg & Weisen? A. I do not know.

Q. Have you any knowledge of it one way or the other? A. No.

11693 Q. Certainly if such a request had been made it would have come to your knowledge; is that so? A. Well, it might have—it might have been presented to the buyers directly, but the probability is that they would have called my attention to it.

Q. Undoubtedly? A. Probably, I would say.

Q. Probably? A. Probably.

Q. To your knowledge, in all the time that you have been—shall I loosely say, acquainted with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, have the officials of the F.O.G.A. ever met with the buyers of your member stores? A. Do you mean with the buyers who work in the retail stores?

Q. That is right. A. Not connected with our offices, directly?

11694 Q. That is right. A. They might have, I do not know.

Q. Would any relationship between your member stores and the F.O.G.A. be discussed with your knowing of it? A. Possibly.

Q. Are you not the liaison officer between your member stores and the Fashion Originators Guild of America who are all mostly out of towners? A. Right.

Q. When you had this conversation with Mr. Goldston did you thereafter have any conversation with Mr. Post with respect to the matter? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you get any written communication or statement from Mr. Goldston with respect to the matter? A. No, sir.

Q. Is it not a fact that your member stores, when any particular manufacturer refuses to accept an order in the form that it is printed by your member, your member refuses to place an order with such a manufacturer? A. I do not know what the member store, itself, might do. My guess would be that it would refuse to place such an order, but I cannot swear to that because I do not know just what each of them might be.

Q. But in the ordinary course of events, except in the exceptional cases, if a manufacturer refused to accept an order as it was desired to be placed by the member store, 11696 that member store would refuse to place the order with that manufacturer; is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

A. That is correct.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Your office, as distinguished from your member stores, places orders for the member stores; does it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When, in your capacity as a local representative of these stores, the manufacturer refuses to accept the order in the printed and stamped form used by your members, do 11697 you refuse to place such an order with him?

Examiner Averill: That order has already been acted upon, I think you need to reframe the question.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Block, is not the greatest protection that is afforded to a retailer in his attempt to return adjudged copies to a manufacturer, the warranty stamp placed upon the order?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

A. I would say yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, is not that the only manner in which the retailer can insist in the ordinary course of business that the manufacturer accept back adjudged 11699 copies?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

A. I think so.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Block, is it not a fact that what was indicated to you was that it was up to Foley Brothers to decide whether or not they wished to do business with the manufacturer who would refuse to abide by the conditions which were incorporated in the Foley Brothers' orders? A. Yes.

Q. Does Foley Brothers, to your knowledge, Mr. Block,

11700 take over the whole output of Feinberg & Weisen? A. What do you mean by whole output?

Q. Does Foley Brothers take the entire production of Feinberg & Weisen? A. No, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, they probably take a very small part of the production of Feinberg & Weisen? A. That is right.

Q. In order to eliminate Feinberg & Weisen in the light of the remark made by Mr. Haycraft, it would be necessary for a great many retailers to refuse to do business at all with Feinberg & Weisen: is that so? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Block, Foley Brothers is a co-operating retailer; is it not? A. Co-operating with the Guild, yes.

Q. As such co-operating retailer, and in an endeavor to co-operate with the policies of the Guild, it affixes to those orders a warranty clause stamp, does it not? A. No doubt.

Mr. Martin: I object as already having been answered.

Examiner Averill: It has already been answered, but he is undoubtedly leading up to something else, and the question just cannot start right off from nowhere. 11702

By Mr. Albert.

Q. If Foley Brothers did not place this warranty stamp upon its orders, and if a manufacturer sold dresses to Foley Brothers which were adjudged copies, in what manner except by taking the loss on those dresses could Foley Brothers get redress for the sale to it of dresses which were adjudged copies?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as calling for a legal conclusion.

Examiner Averill: Overruled.

A. They could not get any redress unless they could show that there had always been that understanding that the manufacturer was not to ship them copies; unless they could prove that I doubt if they could get any redress unless the manufacturer voluntarily took the dresses back, which is unlikely. 11703

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike the answer as being incompetent. This witness is no lawyer.

Examiner Averill: He is giving the answer from his viewpoint. Motion denied.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was there any such custom, Mr. Block, in the industry prior to the formation of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. No.

Q. No? A. No

Q. Is there any such custom in the industry to-day between retailers and manufacturers that retailers—where retailers do not use the warranty clause, I mean? A. No, without them using the warranty clause.

11705 Q. In other words, if they do not use the warranty clause there is no such custom, is there? A. No.

Examiner Averill: He means retailers who are not affiliated with the Guild in any way, but who order, in the ordinary and in the general course of business, from manufacturers certain types of dresses and things, is there any custom there in connection with the return of copies?

A. Let me get this.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. The retailer who is not affiliated with and is not a signatory to the Fashion Originators Guild of 11706 America plan, I would say he is not concerned very much as to whether they are copies or not.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. There is no custom that you know of that exists for retailers who are not affiliated with the Guild to put any such clause as that in their orders? A. No, sir. That is right.

Examiner Averill: I think that is sufficiently clear.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I think I want to go just one step further, Mr. Block. A. Yes.

Q. In the absence of any such clause is there any custom in the industry by which the manufacturer will accept back dresses which have been adjudged copies? A. I think not.

Q. So that if Foley Brothers desired to co-operate with the Guild in its policy of anti-style piracy, it can only make possible the return of goods, the return of goods of 11708 adjudged copies, by the use of this warranty, is that so? A. I think so.

Q. So that unless Foley Brothers insist that Feinberg & Weisen recognize that warranty clause, it could not be co-operating with the Guild, could it? A. I would say that is a sign of co-operation, yes, sir.

Q. I do not believe that is an answer to the question. Will you please answer the question?

Examiner Averill: Let the question and the answer be read.

(The question and answer were read.)

Examiner Averill: Mr. Block, by your answer you mean that the act of insistence upon, by Foley Brothers, of the manufacturer taking back the ad- 11709 judged copies, that that would be upon Foley Brothers' part, upon their part an act of co-operation as instanced by the taking back of the goods?

A. It would be their act of co-operation, either an act of co-operation or an act of self-preservation, it could be taken either way. Here is a man trying to get his money back for goods he cannot sell. He is taking care of his own interests. The Guild may think he is taking care of the Guild interests.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. They are both taking care of their respective interests? A. They are, both.

Q. Foley Brothers is a member of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. And they would be protecting their respective interests, the interests of Foley Brothers and the interests of the Guild? A. Yes, I have no doubt.

Q. You have no doubt? A. No doubt at all.

11711 Q. Referring to this particular action in connection with Feinberg & Weisen, their refusal to recognize the warranty, it was an act of self-preservation on the part of Foley Brothers to refuse to do business with Feinberg & Weisen, unless they agreed to recognize the warranty stamp, is that not so? A. I think so.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Mr. Block, you are acquainted with these situations from your long and wide experience in the industry and therefore I want to ask you this: In view of that experience and based upon that experience, in the event that Foley Brothers had returned the goods to the manufacturer, the adjudged copies to the manufacturer, and the 11712 manufacturer refused to take them back and the goods had been thrown back on Foley Brothers, and they had paid for them—I am not talking about suing—what action would have been usual and customarily taken on the part of the Guild to assist Foley Brothers? A. That is up to the Guild to answer. I do not know.

Q. I thought maybe you had had instances of that and knew. A. No; when I first talked to Mr. Goldston about it, he said, "It is their problem." I said, "Well, you have got to do something to help them out." So that is what he told me.

Q. I thought perhaps you knew of other instances as to what was done. A. I do not believe so.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What happened in any instances that you are familiar with? A. You are asking me about other instances?

Q. Yes. A. Well, it sometimes happens that there are disputes as to whether a manufacturer should take goods back or not and as a rule we iron them out. We go to the manufacturer and say, "Now, go on, you are only wasting 11714 time and you know very well you are not going to court about this, so pick them up." So he picks them up, as a rule, but sometimes there is a case like this when we run up against a stubborn case and there is nothing to be done.

Q. You do not understand, or do not understand by Mr. Post's statement——

Examiner Averill (interposing): Just one moment please. I want to finish this inquiry.

Mr. Albert: Surely.

Examiner Averill: In such a case as you spoke of, in such a case where they have been clearly adjudged that the dresses in question were copies, then is it so or is it not the custom of the Guild to 11715 advise all of their members and affiliates of the fact that such and such a manufacturer has refused to abide by the warranty clause and take back goods, or that such and such facts are the case so that such members may take such action as they may see fit in connection with dealing with that manufacturer in the future—is not a bulletin sent out, or something?

The Witness: You say members, you mean retail members?

Examiner Averill: Yes, know of any such.

The Witness: I do not know of any such letters.

Mr. Albert: It is not the fact there, Judge. I can explain it fully, if you want.

Examiner Averill: I just wanted to find out about that particular point.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Block, is it not true that nothing concerning the Foley Brothers matter was ever 11717 made the subject of any request to you or instructions to you or advices to you with respect to all of the other stores represented by you? A. That is right. It was an individual case.

Q. A specific, individual case? A. That is right.

Q. When you stated a moment ago that Mr. Post told you that this was your problem— A. Mr. Goldston, not Mr. Post.

Q. When Mr. Goldston told you that that was your problem— A. Yes.

Q. —of course, you used the word "theirs"? A. I meant Foley Brothers' problem.

Q. When Mr. Goldston told you that it was Foley Brothers' problem, did you not understand from your 11718 knowledge of the Guild policy in anti-style piracy that that meant it was up to Foley Brothers to decide whether or not they wished to co-operate with the Guild and do an act of self-preservation by refusing to do business with the manufacturer, Feinberg & Weisen, who had refused to accept their conditions placed upon their order? A. No, I simply understood him to mean that that is something that Foley Brothers had to worry about.

Q. There were no instructions of any kind by the Guild, were there, if such was something to worry about by Foley Brothers only? A. Well, that came later, after he said that—why, we kept on talking about this matter and he finally said, "Well, I will tell you what we will do. We will allow them to sell the dresses, provided he writes us that he will not do any more business with this same manufacturer." I said, "I will write him so" and I did and after that I do not know what happened.

Q. Wrote who? A. Wrote our client, Foley Brothers.

Examiner Averill: Foley Brothers?

The Witness: Foley Brothers.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What did you write Foley Brothers? A. I wrote 11720 them what Mr. Goldston had told me.

Q. Would you mind giving us the substance of the letter that you wrote, as nearly in the exact language as possible? A. I wrote them that they will be permitted to sell the dresses, provided they wrote to the Fashion Originators Guild of America advising them that they will not purchase any more garments from that manufacturer.

Q. Did you write to Foley Brothers the additional phrase, "Unless Feinberg & Weisen were willing to accept and recognize the warranty clause"? A. No, I did not.

Q. Then, as a matter of fact, do you not know that by reason of the relationship between Foley Brothers and the Guild, and your offices to the Guild, that that was a commonly accepted non-co-operation? A. I do not get what 11721 you are driving at.

Q. I will put it this way: As a matter of actual fact, Mr. Block, did you not know that by reason of the relationship which existed between the firm of Foley Brothers and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, and your offices of Kirby, Block & Fischer and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, that that was the commonly accepted and known interpretation of what was meant by what you claimed to be the words of Mr. Goldston?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to anything of that kind as vague and indefinite and unintelligible.

Examiner Averill: We have had this thing in so many times. I do not know whether the witness understands it or not.

The Witness: I understand it. My answer would be "Yes."

Mr. Haycraft: I must insist upon my objection because this is repetitious and the witness has answered this several times already.

Examiner Averill: It is already answered. Let's go to something else.

11723 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Block, is it a fact that Foley Brothers advised that it has ceased doing business with Feinberg & Weisen by reason of Feinberg & Weisen's refusal to adhere to the provisions of the warranty clause; that they had merchandise on hand which they had purchased from Feinberg & Weisen and that unless it was permitted Foley Brothers to sell that merchandise it would suffer the complete loss on that item and Foley Brothers stated that since they were not going to do business with Feinberg & Weisen and in order not to lose money on that transaction they believed that the fair and equitable thing to do would be to permit them in that one case to sell these goods?

11724 Mr. Haycraft: I object to any further questions on this particular matter.

Examiner Averill: I will allow this particular question and answer and I think that should be sufficient.

Mr. Haycraft: That is contrary to the facts in the case.

Mr. Feldman: Mr. Haycraft has not seen the correspondence, I believe. How could he possibly know what the facts are in the case?

Mr. Albert: How does Mr. Haycraft know that it is contrary to the facts? Has he had some access to these papers of which we have no knowledge? If so, he must know it is in accord with the facts.

Examiner Averill: Overruled. Answer the question.

A. No, that is not the way the letter read.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Aside from what is contained in any letter that was written, Mr. Block, is it not a fact, as I have stated it? A. 11726
No.

Q. That is all I want to know. A. All right. You have it.

Q. Mr. Block, I believe you testified that the first contact that you had with the fair trade practice policies of the Guild was in June, 1935, is that correct? A. No. I do not know if that was the first contact. I testified that there was such a meeting.

Q. That is you referred in your testimony to the fact that there was a specific meeting upon that point? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not mean to indicate that that was the first time that you heard about fair trade practice provisions, do you? A. Well, that meeting was called especially for 11727 the discussion of those provisions, and also, I presume, that that was the first time that the matter as a whole had been brought to our attention.

Q. To the best of your recollection, is that the first time that it had come to your attention that the Guild was desirous of extending, let us say, its policy to include certain fair trade practice provisions? A. I believe so.

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

SIDNEY ROSENZWEIG was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you state your name? A. Sidney Rosenzweig.

Q. How do you spell it? A. S-i-d-n-e-y R-o-s-e-n-z-w-e-i-g.

Q. Will you state your residence? A. 3150.

Q. What? A. Rochambeau Avenue.

Q. Where? A. Bronx.

11729 Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. Assistant dress buyer.

Q. With whom, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. A.M.C.

Q. A.M.C.? A. A.M.C.

Q. How long have you been with the A.M.C.? A. Well, I should say I have been with them a little over a year, although I had been connected with them before, but a little over a year this last time.

Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, were you connected with the A.M.C. in March of 1936? A. I was.

Q. In what capacity, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. I was on the A.M.C. payroll assigned to service for John Shillito Company, and F. & R. Lazarus Company service in a minor capacity, I might say.

11730 Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, do you happen to know Mr. Irving Plaut of the John Shillito Company? A. I do.

Q. Do you have any recollection of seeing Mr. Plaut in March of 1936? A. I have.

Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, can you relate, please, just what were the circumstances under which you saw Mr. Plaut at that time? A. Well, on the morning of March, 1936—

Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, on the morning of March of what date? A. March 4th, I am sorry, 1936, I was told by Miss

Simon, Mr. Bergdahl's secretary, that Mr. Plaut would be in the office that morning and that I was to accompany him in the market. Mr. Plaut reported at the office and we left together with Mr. Fishel.

Q. How do you spell Fishel? A. F-i-s-h-e-l.

Q. Who is Mr. Fishel, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. He is a dress buyer for John Shillito Company. We went around the market and visited dress concerns with the object in mind of finding out more or less what was going to be done with our orders that had been placed on order prior to that time.

Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, by that do you mean the orders to the John Shillito Company? A. That is right. 11732

Q. Do you know a firm of manufacturers, Mr. Rosenzweig, in New York City, by the name of C. H. D. Robbins? A. I do.

Q. Have you visited that firm, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. I have.

Q. Did you on that day visit that firm? A. I did.

Q. Whom did you see there? A. Well, I recall that I have a memorandum—I have a memorandum here of what transpired if I am permitted to use it.

Q. Certainly, Mr. Rosenzweig.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, I object to the witness using the memorandum or reading from any memorandum unless he first testifies that he cannot remember the transactions without its aid, 11733 and, furthermore, that testimony in regard to the circumstances under which he made the memorandum.

Examiner Averill: Yes, it is essential first that he give us some idea as to whether or not he can testify without the use of the memorandum, and the circumstances under which the memorandum was made and who made it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you make any memorandum, Mr. Rosenzweig, of the visit to C. H. D. Robbins? A. I did.

Q. When was the memorandum made, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. You mean where was it made?

Q. Well, I will state that, where was it made? A. It was made in the showroom.

Q. When was it reduced to writing? A. That same day.

Q. Is that the memorandum to which you wish to refer to refresh your recollection? A. That is the memorandum.

11735 Q. All right, sir, will you refer to that memorandum—

Mr. Feldman: I did not think that it has been shown that his recollection needs to be refreshed, and I do not think it has been shown that this is, in fact, the memorandum that he made.

Examiner Averill: Let us have a full question and then we will proceed from that.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you tell me this: Whom you saw at C. H. D. Robbins and what transpired there on the occasion of March 4 when you visited them with Mr. Irving Plaut, tell us from your own recollection if you can, and if you 11736 cannot from your own recollection refer to any notes that you may have. A. Well, I recall the names of the gentlemen that were present, but I do not recall the exact conversation verbatim, although I do have it here in the notes.

Q. Which notes were made at that time? A. Which notes were made at that time.

Q. By you, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. And they were made by me and transcribed that night, by me that night.

Q. Is that the notes? A. This is a copy of the notes that were made; in other words, there was——

Q. Did you dictate them? A. I dictated them personally.

Q. This is a copy of what was written by the stenographer? A. This is a copy of the record as it was taken by the stenographer and given to me.

Q. As dictated, and have they been checked by you as correct? A. Yes. From my own recollection; I remember that Mr. Plaut and Mr. Fishel and myself were there, and Mr. Joe—Mr. Joe Lakwitz—I spelled his name that way the first time in my notes, but that is wrong, but on subsequent information I know his name to be Mr. 11738 Lackritz, together with a Mr. Hayman.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. How do you spell that? A. H-a-y-m-a-n.

Q. Proceed. A. Both of whom are connected with the firm of John Shillito & Company at the present time.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. C. H. D. Robbins, that was one of the dress manufacturers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Plaut, I think, is the gentleman who previously testified on the witness stand to that effect? A. I do not know about that.

11739

Mr. Martin: That is correct.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Tell us what you know about the interview with C. H. D. Robbins. You went there? A. I went there with the other two gentlemen, and Mr. Plaut asked Mr. Lackritz about the orders that had been placed, and asked him whether or not they were to be shipped. I cannot recall the exact details of the conversation.

Q. What did Mr. Lackritz say? A. Well, he said that they had not been shipped.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did he say that they would be shipped? A. No, he said they would not be shipped.

Q. Did you make any effort to see any goods in C. H. D. Robbins' place of business? A. Well, as I recall it, a model came over to where we were sitting, and she was told not to show us any merchandise.

Mr. Albert: Do you recall who said that?

11741 The Witness: Mr. Lackritz, if I remember correctly, but I am not certain of that.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was there any request made of C. H. D. Robbins to ship goods on order at that time? A. Well, to the best of my recollection, Mr. Plaut asked him if he was going to ship the merchandise, and he said he was not going to unless Shillito Company complied with the Guild's request to sign a declaration of co-operation, or something of that sort.

Q. Was there any discussion relative to White's store, have you any recollection? A. I do recall mention was made about R. H. White Company to the effect that R. H.

11742 White Company was red carded, and I believe that Mr. Plaut mentioned something to the effect that Shillito Company had nothing to do with R. H. White, that Shillito Company had not been red carded. I do not recall the balance of that conversation very clearly.

Q. Do you recall whether or not anything was said about any other stores in Cincinnati? A. If I remember correctly, there was mention made, or, rather, I should say that Mr. Plaut asked if any of the merchandise that we had bought, or, rather, some types had been shipped to—the same type of merchandise had been shipped to any other Cincinnati stores, and I believe the answer by Mr. Lackritz was that merchandise had been bought and shipped to other stores in Cincinnati.

Q. Was anything said about signing a new declaration?

Examiner Averill: He told you——

A. I believe there was, although I can't remember——

Examiner Averill: He has told us that.

A. —all of those details.

By Mr. Martin. 11744

Q. Was there any discussion as to the effect of the Guild program on Shillito's as compared with chain stores? A. Well, I believe that Mr. Plaut mentioned something in that connection to the effect that were we not to have the cheaper copies, we would be more or less chasing our customers into the chain outfits, who are not subject to the Guild restrictions, and who did feature copies of higher-priced merchandise.

Q. Do you recall what Lakritz' reply was as to that? A. I believe he said something to the effect that Shillito's and the other stores of similar nature were to co-operate with the Guild, they could by their joint action stop the chain outfits from competing with us in that respect. I do not know that those are the exact words, and I do not 11745 know if that is the exact details, but I recall something about it.

Q. Do you have any recollection as to whether anything was said about the fact that the goods in question which you were seeking to get had or had not been ordered prior to red carding? A. Yes, I know definitely that that merchandise had been ordered prior to the red carding——

Examiner Averill: No, wait, wait.

Mr. Martin: Wait a moment.

Examiner Averill: He did not ask you what you thought; he asked you was there anything said about it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was there anything said about it? A. Yes, there was something mentioned.

Q. Do you recall what was mentioned? A. I believe, as I remembered it, Mr. Plaut brought out the fact to Mr. Lackritz that the orders had been placed prior to the red 11747 carding of Shillito by the Guild, and he said that inasmuch as the order had been so placed, that the subsequent red carding should have no effect on those orders.

Q. Did Lackritz say anything about why he was not shipping the goods? A. Well, he mentioned something to the effect that the Guild—inasmuch as the Guild had started to red card the A.M.C. stores, he would not ship any merchandise, inasmuch as he had been so notified, but——

Q. Well, what did you do then? A. I don't remember, I don't remember whether that was the full extent of the conversation or not.

Q. When you left Robbins', did you make any notes? A. No, I made these notes in Robbins' showroom as the 11748 conversation took place.

Q. Do you know whether or not Lackritz is a member of the firm of Robbins, C. H. D. Robbins? A. To the best of my knowledge, he is.

Q. Now, after you left C. H. D. Robbins, did you go to any other manufacturer? A. We did.

Q. Do you know a firm in New York by the name of Witlin & Schneider? A. I do.

Q. Did you go to see them? A. We did.

Q. Do you recall who you saw there? A. If I remember correctly, when we went up there we saw a Mr. Marx —Marx, I believe the name was, in the showroom there.

Q. Did you see anybody else? A. I don't recall.

Q. And who was with you? A. Mr. Fishel and Mr. Plaut.

Q. Well, can you tell me in substance what happened there? A. Why, as I remember it, when we went—called on the showroom there, they were busy waiting on other buyers, and we sat down in one of the booths. Several of the models that were displaying dresses approached our booth, and I believe—no—they were not told not to show to us, but they continued to display these dresses in the 11750 course of their showing, and we took several notations, and I think subsequently Mr. Marx approached Mr. Plaut, and he said something to him aside, and Mr. Plaut told us that we were going to leave, and we walked out, and he mentioned something to the effect that Mr. Witlin was busy, and that he would return that afternoon and speak to Mr. Witlin himself. That was about all I remember of that.

Q. Was any effort made at that meeting to obtain shipment of goods? A. I don't recall.

Q. Can you refer to your notes and refresh your recollection in any way? A. If I would be permitted to refer to the notes I could refresh my recollection.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I think——

Examiner Averill: Let me see the note about the 11751
Witlin & Schneider matter.

(The witness hands paper to the Trial Examiner.)

Mr. Martin: I think it is wholly competent.

Mr. Feldman: Is that the same note?

Mr. Martin: It is an original copy.

Examiner Averill: Now, as I understand from what you have stated, you went there in the morning and had this conversation, or part of the conversation?

The Witness: I believe it was in the morning.

Examiner Averill: Then did you go back again in the afternoon?

The Witness: I did not go back in the afternoon.

Examiner Averill: You did not?

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall whether anybody went back in the afternoon? A. Yes, I recall Mr. Plaut went—that is, he told me he went back.

Q. Did he report to you what transpired when he went 11753 back that afternoon? Answer "yes" or "no."

Examiner Averill: Can you answer that that way?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you make any memorandum of what he told you? A. Yes, yes, I did.

Q. Did you dictate a statement of what he told you to your stenographer, and did she write it up? A. No, Mr. Plaut told me the sum and substance.

Examiner Averill: Do not tell us what Mr. Plaut told you.

11754

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do not tell us what he told you. A. No, I am not going to tell you what he told me, but I do say he told me the sum and substance of what his visit was, and I jotted it down in longhand, and subsequently dictated the entire report.

Q. And the stenographer wrote it up? A. That is right.

Q. Did you then submit that report to Mr. Plaut for his inspection to see whether that was as he related it to you? A. Well, Mr. Plaut and I went over the entire report and we compared not only his recollection, and also mine, to the notes, and at the same time we compared my verbatim notes to the dictated copy to make sure that everything was in order.

Q. And is this dictated copy which you have the result of that collaboration? A. That is right.

Q. And you are satisfied that it is a correct account of what took place on the occasion of these interviews? A. I am.

Q. Do you recall visiting a firm by the name of Louise 11756
Mulligan? A. Yes.

Q. Who did you see there? A. I don't remember the name of the gentleman.

Mr. Albert: I do not have any objection if you suggest the names of them.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you see a Mr. John Irwin there? Do you recall that name? A. I recall a Mr. John Irwin, but I do not recall whether he was connected with that firm or with other firms, inasmuch as I had been to several of the resources, but if my notes state the name Irwin was the gentleman at Louise Mulligan, that is the gentleman that we saw. 11757

Q. Do you recall Louise Mulligan is a New York firm? A. No, I think Louise Mulligan is a Chicago firm, a showroom at the New Yorker Hotel. That is, they use one of the rooms there several times a week, as I remember it.

Q. Was any effort made to obtain goods on order with Louise Mulligan at that time? A. Yes, something—Mr. Plaut asked Mr. Irwin whether or not we were going to get the goods on order.

Q. Well, do you recall what Mr. Irwin said? A. No, I do not recall what Mr. Irwin said.

Examiner Averill: You do not recall?

The Witness: I do not recall that, your Honor. You see, those New York—that is, the firms located in the New Yorker Hotel were a lot of firms I had never been to before, and they are not as clear in my mind as some of the other resources with whom I had come in daily contact, so I cannot even picture the man that we had spoken of.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you saw any goods there? A. I do not remember.

Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Irwin made any statement about shipping goods or not, which were on back order? A. There were two or three firms in the New Yorker Hotel that we visited, and I cannot at the present time, without refreshing my memory a little bit, recall the details of the conversations. I do know that we spoke to most of the men. That is, we spoke to the representatives of these various firms down there, and I knew that one of them mentioned something about having shipped certain orders up until a certain time, but I cannot distinguish which said which, and what they said.

11760 Q. Do you recall whether or not Mr. Irwin made any statement about instructions he might have received?

Examiner Averill: How?

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, I do recall that.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall what? A. I do recall this: In order to clarify what I said before, as I said, we visited several firms there. We spoke to their representatives, and I do know that almost every one of them mentioned something about instructions having been received from Chicago, but I cannot remember the conversation as they gave it to us, because I cannot distinctly pick out each individual man; in other words, I can give you the sum and substance of each one, of each conversation, but I may be getting the firms twisted up a little bit.

Mr. Feldman: Just a little bit? 11762

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, as regards the remainder of the manufacturers whom you visited on March 4, 1936, is it your testimony that you have no concrete specific memory of any particular transaction with any particular manufacturer on that date? A. No, I won't say that. I have a memory as to what took place subsequently, but my memory is not clear with regard to certain things.

Q. So that you cannot isolate your memory and say that a certain thing occurred at a certain manufacturer's? A. No, you see——

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, we understand that. Just say no—— 11763

The Witness: But I want to say——

Examiner Averill: I understand all that, but I am not going to fill up the record with all of this explanation. Just say "yes" or "no."

The Witness: May I hear the question again?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall going to see Joanne Junior? A. I do.

Q. Do you recall who you saw there? A. Mr. Martin Zinn.

Q. To the best of your recollection, tell me what transpired there. A. As I recall it, Mr. Plaut asked Mr. Zinn about the merchandise that he had on order, and Mr. Zinn replied that he could not ship what had been already purchased, inasmuch as the Guild had refused to permit him to do so. In other words, the red carding of the A.M.C. stores automatically prevented him, and, if I remember correctly, Mr. Plaut asked him why he could not ship the 11765 merchandise despite the Guild restrictions, and Mr. Zinn replied to the effect that it was not only the $5,000 fine to which he would be subjected by the Guild if he were to ship this merchandise that bothered him so much, as the fact that the Guild could prevent him from securing silks from the Silk Guild, which would, in sum and substance, put him out of business.

Examiner Averill: I see.

A. (Resumed) While we were there, there was some merchandise displayed around, and Mr. Plaut looked at one of the garments there and mentioned the fact that he would like to purchase about fifty-odd pieces of them, and Mr. Zinn replied that he had no doubt but that he 11766 could book an order for at least 300 pieces from the A.M.C. if he were permitted to show them up there. He also mentioned the fact that he was at his wit's end as to the outcome of this, because of the fact that he had always co-operated with the A.M.C. since the inception of his business, and that he did not know how he was going to meet expenses, and, as I recall it, he mentioned something about going down to see some person down at the Guild, Mr. Gol—or——

Mr. Albert: Golby?

The Witness: —Golby, that is it. He went down to see Mr. Golby, and Mr. Golby had repeatedly stalled him off and never given him any concrete answer as to how to thrash this affair out, and that he wished to have that disposed of, or could be disposed of, inasmuch as he did not know how he could replace the A.M.C. business. That, more or less, was the sum of my recollection. 11767

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know a firm in New York by the name of Junior Guild? A. Junior Guild is not a New York firm, it is a Chicago firm, if I am correct, and their office was one of those in the New Yorker Hotel whom I got—whom I am all hazy about, in connection with the other—Louise Mulligan, also mentioned there. 11768

Well, Mr. Plaut spoke to Mr. Harry Cohn, and asked him about the merchandise that we had on order, and Mr. Cohn mentioned something to the effect that they had shipped all back orders, and also a certain number of subsequent re-orders of merchandise which we had purchased prior to this red carding business, but he said he could no longer do so because of the fact that he received a telegram from Chicago, from a Mr. Gilbert, whom I understand is the head of the Junior Guild organization, to the effect that they could not accept any more business from any so-called red carded stores. 11769

I saw that telegram, and I copied it down verbatim. Mr. Cohn did mention that at the beginning of the controversy between the A.M.C. and the Guild, the Chicago manufacturers had a conference with their attorneys to decide what was to be done in so far as re-orders were concerned.

Examiner Averill: Now, then——

The Witness (resumed): In so far as back orders was concerned, I mean, and that they had decided to continue to ship all back orders despite the red carding.

Examiner Averill: I see.

The Witness: But they were not to accept any future orders, and Mr. Cohn mentioned that they had continued to ship the back orders, but that they had been notified that they were not to do so, and that, therefore, they were not going to ship them anything further, and he also stated the fact that 11771 this general controversy had severely affected the amount of business which they were getting out of their New York showroom, but that he felt it would be settled very shortly thereafter, and, therefore, inasmuch as the Junior Guild operates on the basis of confining the merchandise to one resource in a town, they were not soliciting any further business in the A.M.C. towns with this expectation in mind, and I believe that was about all that was said there.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, do you have any recollection of going to see Frank Starr-Friedlander? A. Yes, I know we went to 11772 Frank Starr-Friedlander.

Q. Yes.

Examiner Averill: Is that S-t-a-r-r?.

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. After refreshing your recollection, tell me who was present there and what transpired. A. Mr. Starr and Mr. Friedlander were present, and they entered into a discussion with Mr. Plaut. Mr. Plaut asked them the usual question; that is, the question we had put—he had put to every manufacturer, about the merchandise we had on back order, and either Mr. Starr or Mr. Friedlander answered to the effect that they were not shipping any merchandise to us, and they stated the reason they were not doing so was because they were subject to a fine or some sort of punishment by the Guild if they were not to abide by its decision red carding A.M.C. stores, and Mr. Plaut mentioned something to the effect that the orders had been placed prior to the inception of this controversy, and either Mr. Starr or Mr. Friedlander stated that that might be the fact, but they could not do a thing.

He also mentioned the fact that in his opinion the one mistake that the Guild made was in not permitting manufacturers to ship all the merchandise that had been bought prior to the inception of this controversy, and then prevented, or advised their manufacturers, not to show or ship any more merchandise, but he did say that as matters stood at the present time—that is, at the time we were there—they were not going to ship any merchandise to us until they were permitted to do so by word from the Guild.

Q. Well, now, after refreshing your recollection, tell me what transpired at Lewis-Cohn's—who you saw there, and what happened. A. We saw a Miss Corelli, at Lewis-Cohn's, and Mr. Plaut asked her about the merchandise on order from her. She said she was sorry, but she 11775 couldn't do a thing about it, and she said the red card prevented her firm from shipping any merchandise to Shillito. She also mentioned something to the effect that it was too bad that they could not ship us any merchandise, because their line was stronger then than a good many seasons prior to that, and, anyhow, she would not show us—she stated she could not show us anything because of the restrictions. And Mr. Plaut stated, or called to her attention the fact the orders had been placed prior to the—to this controversy arising, and he also mentioned that after all a contract is a contract, and it was accepted in good faith. She says, "Yes," but she blamed it more on the A.M.C. for not receiving—for Shillito not receiving the back orders, and she mentioned something to the effect that it had been called to her attention that the A.M.C. had threatened to make a football of the merchandise that was shipped by some of these Guild houses. I don't remember much else that took place there.

Q. All right. Will you refer to your notes and tell me who you saw at Raich & Goldfarb, and what transpired 11777 there?

Examiner Averill: What is the name of these people?

The Witness: Raich-Goldfarb, R-a-i-c-h G-o-l-d-f-a-r-b.

Examiner Averill: Thank you.

A. Mr. Raich and Mr. Goldfarb, and a Mr. Grettinger, were present, together with Mr. Plaut and myself.

Mr. Plaut asked them what about the goods on order, and they said they were sorry, but inasmuch as they had received instructions from the Guild not to ship us any merchandise, they could not very well do so.

They also mentioned the fact that it was not only the 11778 $5,000 fine that they were afraid of, but it was also the fact that they stood a good chance of not being able to secure any piece goods if the Guild saw to it that the Silk Guild would not give them any merchandise.

They also mentioned the fact that they had resigned from the Guild prior to the start of this controversy, and that the speaker very sincerely regretted the fact that he permitted them to talk them back into the organization again.

Mr. Albert: What manufacturer was this, Mr. Rosenzweig?

The Witness: Raich & Goldfarb.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Raich & Goldfarb? A. And that he would be very happy to find some way to get out of the thing. He said he only wished that he had stayed out when he was out.

Q. Did they show you any garments there? A. No, they did not show us any merchandise.

Q. Did you go to see any of the other manufacturers, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. Well, may I be——

Examiner Averill: Do you remember the names 11780 of any more? Oh, you do not recall them?

The Witness: I do not recall.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, after making these interviews in company with Mr. Plaut, what did you do then, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. Well, I went back to my office and waited until Mr. Plaut returned, and after he gave me the results of his afternoon——

Examiner Averill (interposing): You have told us that.

A. —of his conference with Witlin & Schneider—— 11781

Examiner Averill: Wait—do not tell us again about how you prepared the notes; you have told us all that.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. After these——

Examiner Averill: If you had conversation with him about something else that may be pertinent,

I do not know, but let us not go into that other again.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. After these notes were dictated by you to the stenographer, and written up by the stenographer, did you give a copy of them to Mr. Plaut? A. I did.

Q. Did you give a copy of them to——

Mr. Albert (interposing): Mr. Bergdahl.

By Mr. Martin.

11783 Q. —Mr. Bergdahl? A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever discuss this with Mr. Bergdahl in any way? A. I never discussed this with Mr. Bergdahl.

Q. Do you know whether or not any of these goods that were on order with these manufacturers, and concerning which you have been talking, were ever, in fact, shipped?

Examiner Averill: You mean to Shillito?

Mr. Martin: To John Shillito Company.

A. To the best of my knowledge, they were not shipped.

(The paper heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 93 was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

11784 Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, there is no doubt in your mind, is there, that when you were testifying from memory, without having refreshed your recollection from these notes, that what you have told us actually occurred at the various places of business of these manufacturers? A. To the best of my recollection, they are exactly what happened.

Q. And by the same token, the notes that you made at these places of business were also exactly what you heard; is that not so? A. That is right.

Q. Tell me, how did you make these notes? Do you write shorthand? A. I do not.

Q. Would you mind describing briefly the exact mechanics of how these notes were made? A. They were made on a sheet of paper, penciled as the conversation took place.

Q. And it was made in the presence of the various people who were conversing? A. That is right.

Q. What did you do, usually sit at a table, or something? A. I sat right there and took them. 11786

Q. In your lap, or did you sit at a table? A. At a desk, if we were seated at a desk.

Q. At a desk. Did you take down what was said by question and answer? A. I did.

Q. As each question and answer was put? A. Yes.

Q. And you got, I suppose, substantially everything that was said? A. Substantially; I may not have heard every word.

Q. Yes. A. But——

Q. But the substance of each sentence, and the important parts of each sentence you certainly put down; is that not so? A. I did.

Q. Now, coming back to when your left the office with Mr. Plaut. This was a rather unusual thing that he was asking you to do, was it not? A. It was. 11787

Q. Not in the usual course of your business, was it? A. It was not.

Q. Did you make any inquiry of him as to the purpose of what you were required to do? A. I did not. He roughly told me on our way out. It was not unusual for me to accompany one of the buyers around the market.

Q. But you did not take notes every time you went around, did you? A. No. When we left the office he told me what was going to be done.

Q. Did he tell you— A. So that I knew what was going on.

Q. What did he tell you that made you know what was going on? A. Well, he told me we were going to visit the various resources with w om Shillito had placed orders, and we were going to take notes as to the conversations as to why—why these orders were not shipped.

Q. Well, did you ask him what is the necessity for making these notes? A. I was not an executive of Shillito, and inasmuch as I was told to go along by my superior, I went along without asking too many questions. I surmised—— 11789 Q. Well, what were the questions that you did ask? A. What were the questions?

Q. Yes. A. Well, he told me we were going along to take these notes, and I had known of this controversy going on, and so I just went along with him; that is all.

Q. Well, look, Mr. Rosenzweig: Did not Mr. Plaut tell you, or did you not ask him, in words or substance, "Look, what are we going to take these notes for?" A. No, I did not, because Mr. Plaut told me what we were going to take these notes for.

Q. All right, what did he tell you? A. That we were just going to go around to these manufacturers and take notes as to their reasons for refusing to ship merchandise which we had on back order with them.

11790 Q. Well, that was obvious from the mere fact that he asked you to take the notes; is that not so? A. That is so.

Q. Now, I am asking you why—withdraw that. I am asking you what reason he gave you for the taking of those notes, and you said that he gave you a reason? A. No.

Q. I want to know the fact. A. I beg your pardon—I did not say he gave me a reason. It was not within my power to question Mr. Plaut as to why I was to go along with him.

Q. Where is the A.M.C. office? A. 1440 Broadway.

Q. Where is C. H. D. Robbins? A. 1375 Broadway.

Q. About how many blocks is that? A. Two blocks.

Q. Two blocks. While you were walking along with him— A. Yes.

Q. —you know Mr. Plaut very well, do you not? A. I know him quite well.

Q. You are rather friendly with him, are you not? A. Friendly?

Q. Yes, in a business sense. A. Well, certainly, in so far as a business acquaintance would be.

Q. I mean— A. After all, he is an executive and I am not, so we do not usually get too familiar. 11792

Q. No, I do not mean that, familiar in the social sense, but certainly you discuss with him business policies and business principles, did you not? A. No, I won't say that I did. At that time I was in a very minor capacity and Mr. Plaut would have no reason to discuss business principles with me.

Q. Then you were coming along as an errand boy to follow instructions? A. I was coming along——

Q. To follow instructions? A. To follow instructions implicitly, and to record what was taking place, and for no other reason.

Q. And naturally being there to follow instructions, and having no initiative or discretion of your own, you, of course, in taking down these notes, did not exercise any discretion to leave anything out, did you? A. No, I did not. 11793

Q. And you took down every single thing that was said? A. I put down what we considered, or what I considered at that time was the most important and pertinent facts in the conversation.

Q. Then you did use discretion in what you took down? A. I did.

Q. A moment ago— A. As far as that——

Q. —you told me you did not. A. —was concerned.

Q. What is the fact? A. That fact is, that I knew what I was going around for, and if the conversation did not pertain to what we were there for, I did not put it down.

Q. What were you there for? A. We were there to find out why our merchandise had not been shipped, and whether or not it was going to be shipped.

Q. Now, you have been mentioning a controversy that was existent at that time; what was that controversy, do you know? A. Well, it was some sort of an argument, or—some difference between the AM.C. stores and the 11795 Guild.

Q. Do you know what that difference was?

Mr. Martin: Objected to——

A. Oh——

Mr. Martin: —as immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Averill: He can answer the question "yes" or "no." Do not tell us what it was. He asked you if it was—read the question.

(Last question read.)

Examiner Averill: You may answer "yes" or "no" to that question.

A. Well, I——

11796

Examiner Averill: "Yes" or "no."

A: I have a notion as to what it was.

Q. Give us briefly what your notion of it was. A. Well, the Guild claimed that we had not co-operated with their policies, or, in accordance with certain declarations.

Q. Yes. A. And that unless we complied with them, why, we were not going to be shown or shipped any merchandise from their members.

Q. And you have used the term "red card." A. Yes, that is right.

Q. You know what that means, do you not? A. Well, it is a prohibition to their members, so far as shipping merchandise to our stores is concerned.

Q. And at the time that you went out with Mr. Plaut, had Shillito's been red carded? A. Shillito's had been red carded.

Q. And you knew of it? A. Yes, I knew of it.

Q. And, of course, Mr Plaut knew of it, also? A Of course he did.

Q. Now, Mr. Rosenzweig, you testified that in his conversation at C. H. D. Robbins, Mr. Plaut mentioned the 11798 fact and complained because the orders which were not being filled had been placed prior to the red carding; is that not so? A. That is right.

Q. You are quite certain that Mr. Plaut made that remark at C. H. D. Robbins? A. I don't remember whether or not he mentioned, then, orders; I know the implication was there, because the orders had been placed prior to this.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let me understand you perfectly, Mr. Rosenzweig: Do you say now that you cannot recall whether or not Mr. Plaut said that at C, H. D. Robbins? A. I said I don't recall whether that exact question was put at C. H. D. 11799
Robbins.

Q. No, you misunderstand. Let me start over again.

Examiner Averill: Do show him the paper and let him refresh his recollection from it.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor please, may I ask the indulgence of the Court? This is rather an important point, especially in the light of Mr. Plaut's testimony. All I want to know from Mr. Rosenzweig is this:

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Plaut saying at C. H. D. Robbin or complaining, or making a statement, in substance, that the goods which C. H. D. Robbins refused to ship had been placed before the red carding?

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please——

Examiner Averill: One moment.

A. I don't remember whether he said that or not.

11801

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You do not remember that now. Is your memory worse now than it was fifteen minutes ago on direct examination when you affirmatively testified that he did say that? A. I don't know whether he said—he exactly did say that question; I do know this, that every one of the words we were questioning had of necessity been placed before the red carding.

Q. I am not asking you that. A. And therefore had to do——

Q. We all know that. We are trying to find out what happened there. You testified on direct examination that Mr. Plaut said to one of the Robbins that the goods 11802 which had been ordered were ordered prior to the red carding. A. I did not say that Mr. Plaut said that; I said Mr. Plaut asked one of the people up there.

Q. Yes, he asked one of the people what? A. No, I say I did not say it the way you did.

Q. What is it— A. I don't recall whether he mentioned that question or not that you put.

Q. What is it you now recall about that particular language? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember it at all? A. I don't remember whether or not that specific question had been asked at Robbins'.

Q. Did you testify on direct examination while sitting there in response to a question from Mr. Martin, that Mr. Plaut while at C. H. D. Robbins said that the orders which C. H. D. Robbins had accepted had been given prior to the red carding?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You do not recall? A. I don't recall having been asked that.

Q. What you testified to in answer to Mr. Martin's 11804 question? A. I don't recall Mr. Martin's question.

Q. Mr. Witness, will you examine Respondents' Exhibit 93 and point out if there is anything in there to the effect that Mr. Plaut made a statement that the orders which had been placed were placed prior to the red carding?

Mr. Martin: Just a moment, your Honor please, the exhibit is in evidence and will speak for itself. That is the best evidence. There it is in the exhibit.

Examiner Averill: Refer to the record, please, sir, of the interview at C. H. D. Robbins, read over what they say, and then answer his question as to whether you find anything there or not. 11805

The Witness: My answer is "Yes."

Examiner Averill: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Your answer is "Yes"? A. Not only by Mr. Plaut but by Mr. Fishel.

Q. What statement are you referring to?

(Witness refers to Respondents' Exhibit 93.)

A. "Mr. Plaut: 'How are our orders coming along?'" Inasmuch as no orders had been accepted by any firms after the red carding, these orders must of necessity have been placed prior to the red carding. Further on down in the visit Mr. Fishel asks a question, or made a statement that: "Neither we"—meaning Shillito's—"nor you"—meaning C. H. D. Robbins—"knew anything about this matter turning up at the time the purchases were made, so I cannot see how you can make it retroactive to apply to back orders." In other words, the red carding had to take place after the placing of the orders.

Q. Then, let me ask you this: Did Mr. Plaut at any 11807 time while at C. H. D. Robbins make a statement to the effect that Shillito's had not been red carded? A. That Shillito's had not been red carded?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, now——

Mr. Martin: At what time? With reference to what time?

Mr. Albert: At the time that he was there.

A. No, I don't believe so. If I remember correctly, he made some sort of a statement to the effect that—or in response to a question—or in response to a statement that Mr. Lackritz made to the effect that White's had been red carded in connection with mentioning our orders, he made some statement with reference to White's 11808 or Shillito's. I do not recall anything exactly to the effect that Shillito's had not been red carded.

Q. Yes. Reading from Respondents' Exhibit 93, I ask you if Mr. Lackritz said this: "That's right, but you knew at that time that we were not showing or shipping to White's?" Did Mr. Lackritz say that?

Mr. Martin: Hand him the exhibit and let him see.

A. I don't know. He may have—that may have—I know that is the subsequent——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have no recollection? A. Yes, I have an inkling as to the remark he made.

Q. Was that the remark he made? A. It may not be the exact words as given there.

Q. In substance? A. But that in substance is right.

Q. Did Mr. Plaut say this: "What has White got to do with Shillito?" A. Right.

Q. Did he say that? A. In substance?

Q. Did he in substance say this: "We weren't red 11810 carded and the order was placed by us and accepted by you in good faith"? A. Sure, he may have said that.

Q. And— A. But what does that "we weren't red carded" refer to?

Q. What is it referring to? A. It refers to the fact at the time the orders were placed we had not been red carded.

Q. And that is what Mr. Plaut was referring to? A. Well, naturally we were trying to find out if our orders could be shipped.

Q. Yes. A. Mr. Plaut was referring to our orders during all of this conversation. The only orders we could have had placed there were those that were placed before the red carding of Shillito's.

Q. And in explanation of that you say that what Mr. 11811
Plaut meant at that time was not that he was not red carded on March 4, but that he had not been red carded at the time the order was placed? A. That is right.

Q. That is all that I wanted to know. Where are the original memoranda that you made, Mr. Rosenzweig? A. I believe I destroyed them.

Q. Are you not certain whether you destroyed them or not? A. I did destroy them.

Q. Then you mean you destroyed them? A. I destroyed them.

Q. Not that you believe you destroyed them? A. Yes.

Q. In what department are you the assistant buyer? A. Inexpensive dresses.

Q. How long have you been in that position? A. In that department?

Q. Yes. A. In that position or in that department?

Q. In that position of assistant buyer? A. A few months.

Q. Are you familiar with the declaration of co-operation?

11813 Mr. Martin: Objected to——

A. I am not.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, I sustain the objection, and I grant the motion to strike the answer if the witness answered. I did not hear him.

Mr. Martin: I did not hear him either.

Examiner Averill: But if there is a motion to strike it is sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

11814

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Averill: Do not answer it—the objection is sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When you were present at Joanne Junior's, you testified you had a conversation with Mr. Zinn, did you not? A. I did.

Q. You also testified that Mr. Zinn stated that he felt it would be necessary for him to pay a $5,000 fine, if he shipped you goods, did you not?

Examiner Averill: No, he did not.

A. I don't think I testified to that.

Examiner Averill: He did not say it would be necessary for him to do it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you not testify that Martin Zinn stated, in words or substance, that he might be fined $5,000?

11816

Mr. Martin: I object.

A. Well, I did not——

Mr. Martin: That is an entirely different question.

Q. Did you not? A. I testified that Mr. Zinn remarked that he would be subject to a fine of $5,000 together with a possible penalty of not being able to secure silks from the Silk Guild, and I did not say he feared the penalty, because I don't know.

Q. Did you at the time you heard him make those remarks think that this statement of a $5,000 fine was important?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained, and I shall ask Counsel to ask no further questions in connection with the $5,000. It is absolutely immaterial, and nothing is to be gained by it. I think it has been gone into sufficiently now to cover the matter completely as may be necessary.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you look at Respondents' Exhibit 93, at your notes on Joanne Junior, and tell us whether or not you from your present recollection would say that you put down there—from your present recollection what you put down there as having transpired is an accurate transcription of everything that transpired at that time? A. I will not say that these were the only things that were said during the course of our visit there, no.

Q. You notice that there is nothing about any $5,000 there? A. I do not notice anything about it there.

Q. Will you look and see? A. Yes. There is no mention 11819 here of $5,000.

Mr. Martin: That is in connection with the Joanne Junior feature only?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Averill: In Respondents' Exhibit 93: that is what he said just now. I understood him to testify that it is not in there. That is what he said. I have not read it.

Mr. Martin: He is calling attention only to Joanne Junior.

The Witness: He is talking about Joanne Junior. He is not talking about the rest of it, as I understand it.

Mr. Martin: It is important and I want to make 11820 it clear that it is somewhere else in the exhibit.

Examiner Averill: But he was asked about this particular thing. The witness has confined his testimony to that part of it.

Mr. Martin: I understand that, but I just wanted to make certain that what Mr. Albert is referring to.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. Let us get this clear now: You were referring to Joanne Junior in your testimony, were you not? A. That is what I had in mind. There is no mention here of $5,000 in the Joanne Junior interview.

Mr. Albert: That is what I had reference to, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Averill: You say you cannot find anything in the exhibit in connection with the Joanne Junior interview with regard to $5,000?

The Witness: That is correct.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you discuss at all with Mr. Plaut, Mr. Rosenzweig, who it was that asked you to do this, did it come up as a subject of conversation? 11822

Mr. Martin: I object as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When you came back, Mr. Rosenzweig, did you discuss the matter with Mr. Bergdahl? A. No.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl is your immediate superior, is he not? A. Mr. Bergdahl is my superior.

Q. You were gone all day? A. I was gone all day.

Q. When you came back did he ask you where you had been? A. He did not.

Q. Is not part of your duties—or does the type of work that you do permit of you to leave the A.M.C. offices without accounting for the loss of time? 11823

Mr. Martin: I object to that question as not being in conformity with what has already been testified to. He gave full and complete testimony in regard to that matter.

Examiner Averill: I think on cross-examination that would be within its proper purview.

Mr. Martin: I am only objecting to save time. Go ahead.

A. The nature of my job is to be out of the A.M.C. offices all day.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. The nature of your job is to assist in buying, is it? A. At the present time. It was not then.

Q. At that time it was not? A. No.

11825 Q. When you were going around with Mr. Plaut? A. No.

Q. What was it then? A. I said I was on the A.M.C. payroll assigned to F. & R. Lazarus and John Shillito Company in a very minor capacity.

Q. What was that very minor capacity? A. That of following up orders to see to it that they were shipped on time.

Q. And seeing to it that orders were shipped on time necessitated your being out of the office? A. Yes, certainly, I had to see that they shipped the orders, and I had to see that they shipped the orders, and I had to visit the various manufacturers. You do not sit in the office on a job of that kind.

11826 Q. This particular work you did, that was not in the ordinary and usual course of your duties? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. But Mr. Plaut gave you those orders? A. What orders?

Q. To come around with him? A. No, Miss Simone told me.

Q. What? A. Miss Simon.

Q. Who is Miss Simon? A. Miss Simon is the secretary of Mr. Plaut, and as secretary of Mr. Plaut she told me that permission had been given.

Q. Have you—who gave you the permission? A. I do not know and I do not care. I did not ask.

Q. Mr. Rosenzweig, at that time it was your duty to see that orders were shipped out on time; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. In the course of your duties, therefore, it was encumbent upon you to look at the orders; is that so?

Mr. Martin: I object as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and improper cross-examination. This witness was asked one line of questions, and one line of questions only, and that was he was asked if he accompanied Mr. Plaut to see these manufacturers and what took place there, and he has 11828 testified to that, and that is all he has testified to.

Examiner Averill: Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Do you know whether or not the warranty clause was contained in the orders that were placed by the John Shillito Company with these various manufacturers?

Mr. Martin: I object as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and improper cross-examination.

Examiner Averill: Sustained.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, we will adjourn to reconvene on Monday morning, December 7, 1936, at 10 A. M. 11829

(Whereupon, at 3:50 o'clock P. M., December 4, 1936, the hearing was adjourned.)

Room 901, 45 Broadway,
New York, N. Y.,
December 7, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: EDWARD M. AVERILL, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, you may proceed.

11834

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Block, you have testified, I believe, that the A.M.C., while not technically a member of the A.B.O., was present at substantially all its conferences and represented and took an actual part in its activities? A. There was a representative of the A.M.C. present I would say at most of our meetings and conferences.

By Mr. Albert. 11835

Q. Was that representative usually Mr. Bergdahl? A. I would say in most cases, sometimes others.

Q. By reason of Mr. Bergdahl being present at those A.B.O. conferences, or, I might say, at those at which you were also present, was it not true that you had many discussions with him with reference to the activities of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is not that also true particularly from the first time that you heard of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America? A. I do not understand the question.

Q. Is it not also true practically from the first time that you heard of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America? A. That is right.

Q. I believe, Mr. Block, that you testified that you first heard of the inclusion of the $10.75 dress manufacturers, loosely speaking, in the Guild, in June of 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. The witness identified exhibits as early as March.

11837 A. I cannot say as to the dates, but the records will show.

Examiner Averill: The witness' answer clarifies the situation. Proceed.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, in the light of Mr. Haycraft's remark, would you say that the first time that you had heard of the inclusion of the $10.75 manufacturers was in March, 1935? A. I do not know. The first time I heard about it when was the $10.75 dress manufacturers formed the $10.75 dress guild, and announced it either in "Women's Wear," or some similar publication. I believe it was "Women's Wear." And, just around the same time, just about the 11838 same time, it was taken up with us—that is, the A.B.O.—by Mr. Post and Mr. Reinitz at a meeting.

Q. Are you distinguishing, in your remarks, between the time when the $10.75 dress manufacturers were technically admitted to the Guild, and the time when the first inclusion of the $10.75 dress manufacturers was first discussed—do you understand the question? A. Yes, I understand the question. Yes, I believe that is the point you asked me, if I understood when I first heard of this $10.75 guild and its proposed affiliation with the Fashion Originators' Guild of America?

Q. Well, let me put the question this way: When was the inclusion of the $10.75 dress manufacturers first discussed, to your knowledge, or suggested? A. Do you mean as far as the A.B.O. is concerned?

Q. And as far as the Fashion Originators' Guild of America is concerned, rather. A. I do not remember whether my first knowledge came from an advertisement in "Women's Wear," or whether it was brought out at a regular A.B.O. meeting. I do not know which was first.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the suggestion, let me say, of taking in the $10.75 manufacturers? 11840

Mr. Hayeraft: That is objected to. There is no foundation laid for that question. There is nothing to show that there was any suggestion ever made.

Examiner Averill: The witness can say so. Objection overruled.

Mr. Hayeraft: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

A. I would like to hear the question.

Examiner Averill: Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. Whose suggestion? The Guild's suggestion? 11841

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let me put the question this way: Did you at any time advocate the taking into the Guild of the $10.75 manufacturers prior to their actual inclusion? A. Possibly.

Q. In other words, you do not recall? A. I am not certain.

Q. Let me refresh your recollection. A. Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you ever make the following statement in January, 1934: "The Fashion Originators' Guild of America is expected by retailers to broaden the base of membership so that manufacturers of more popular priced lines of dresses and goods be included, and this should be accompanied by taking in various associations down as low as the $10.75 market." A. Yes. Possibly I did.

Q. Well, now, do you not recall as a matter of fact that you did make such a statement, Mr. Block? A. I do not know. How can I definitely recall it? I see you are reading from something. Tell me about it.

11843 Q. This is an interview to a representative of "Women's Wear," and appears in "Women's Wear" for January 17, 1934. That is what I read to you from. A. I would like to see it.

Q. I would be glad to show it to you.

(Counsel shows document to the witness.)

Q. You may recollect that you were shown that before you went on the stand——

Mr. Haycraft: By Counsel for the Respondent?

Mr. Albert: If you will just let me finish.

By Mr. Albert.

11844 Q. —by Counsel for the Respondent. Have you got the place there, Mr. Block? A. I just want to see what the occasion was.

Q. This point here. A. Yes.

Q. And this is another reference here. A. Yes.

Q. All right. A. Yes, but that was not made to a reporter for "Women's Wear." That was at an association of the Retail Dry Goods Association.

Q. But you did make that statement, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was made to a group of representatives of the N.R.D.G.A. A. The N.R.D.G.A., at which Mr——

Q. Did you also at that time make the following statement: "If the above recommendations would be incorporated and carried through in the program of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America, then the Guild would undoubtedly have a still more enthusiastic and active support from every retailer in the country."? A. Read that again, please.

Q. "If the above recommendations would be incorporated and carried through in the program of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America, then the Guild would undoubtedly have a still more enthusiastic and active support from every retailer in the country." A. Possibly. I do not know whether those are my exact words. 11846

Q. Is that not the substance of what you stated? A. I cannot be certain. It is reported that way, and possibly I said exactly that, or possibly it was a little different. I do not remember now.

Q. Did you also say the following— A. Excuse me, but these hearings—at these hearings there was a stenotypist present, and why do you not refer to his records, that would give you the exact words.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Block, is that stenotypic record of what was said given to a "Women's Wear" reporter? A. I do not know whether the "Women's Wear" reporter gets it or not. The "Women's Wear" reporter is there himself. 11847

Q. Yes. A. What I told the "Women's Wear" reporter—that is, whether the "Women's Wear" reporter took it down himself, the "Women's Wear" reporter is there at the meeting and they may take their own notes.

Q. From this, did you ever disavow—that is, from that time down until today—did you ever disavow the statements that appeared in "Women's Wear"? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you also say the following: "There is no question that the ruthless copying of style has been greatly reduced. My guess is that it has been reduced by almost 70 per cent, which is good considering that the Guild agreements for the most part were only signed last season."? A. I probably did.

Q. Did you also say this: "These store executives"—or, rather, referring to a conversation that you had with the store executives which is reported above, but which is not quite material here—"These store executives advise me that the mark-downs in his store"—just let me get this straight now: "This same executive advise me that the 11849 mark-downs in his store on dresses from $16.95 to $39.75 are 25 per cent. less than for the same 5 months' period of the year before—by 25 per cent."? A. That is quite likely.

Q. Mr. Block, in order that we may fully understand each other, and so that it may be apparent for the record what I am going to ask you in my subsequent questions, and why I am going to ask you these subsequent questions, let me ask you this: You have no fault to find, have you, with the F.O.G.A. plan to eliminate style piracy in so far as it applies to the medium priced and better priced dresses, have you? A. No, I believe their aim is a very worthy one, but it has to be made practical in order to be effective, and in order that retailers as a whole agree on its points so as to have an accord——

Q. Will you be good enough, please, to answer my ques-
11850 tion? A. I am trying. I thought you wanted me to tell you what was in my mind.

Q. I will get that out. A. All right.

Q. Is the reason for your acquiescence in the F.O.G.A. plan in the medium priced and lower priced dresses the fact that you believe that style piracy is unethical? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And of course the business and policies of Kirby, Block & Company and its members is predicated on doing an ethical business, is it not? A. Correct.

Q. And the obtaining of a profit unethically is something that Kirby, Block & Company and its members have no interest in at all; is that so? A. I would like to qualify my answer.

Q. Answer it any way you please. A. That answer is yes, providing you do not set up an advantage for the other fellow which will act as a boomerang against yourself; in other words, the retailers want to be ethical, but he does not want a club to be handed to the other retailer to hit him with.

11852

Q. May I interpret, or do I understand your answer as meaning that Kirby, Block & Company and its members are satisfied to resort to what they believe to be unethical practices if they are used by others? A. That is not my answer.

Q. Would you be good enough to clarify it, please? A. Just read my answer.

Q. Does your language mean, or am I to understand if your competitor uses a club, you want to use a club also, do you? A. No, we just do not want—the retailer just does not want to be clubbed and have nothing to say about it.

By Mr. Albert.

11853

Q. I will repeat my question to you: You say in your letter of January 13, 1936, being Commission's Exhibit No. 944: "If the last mentioned group was under complete control there probably would be very little to worry about." In referring to "control," do you mean that "control" attempted to be exercised by the Guild in the medium priced field and the better priced lines?

Examiner Averill: I do not think there is any objection to that.

A. If I might have the letter I probably might be able to tell you better what it means. He is just taking out a little part of it, and I do not know just what it refers to.

Examiner Averill: Show the witness the letter.

(The witness was shown the letter.)

Examiner Averill: The letter to which Counsel has just referred, and from which he is quoting, is a letter in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 944.

A. That is right. I was referring to the chain stores, as the paragraph above shows.

11855 By Mr. Albert.

Q. What did you mean by "control"? What type of control were you referring to, or what mechanics of control were you referring to? A. Chain store control.

Q. What type of control over chain stores did you think would be complete when you wrote that in your letter? A. The Fashion Originators' Guild of America has stated at various times that eventually they would control the chain store buying of popular priced merchandise in so far as copying styles were concerned.

Q. Yes. A. That is the control I referred to.

Q. Well, now, let me see if I can put it in a different way.

Mr. Haycraft: What is the matter with that?

11856 Mr. Albert: Please, Mr. Haycraft.

Examiner Averill: Go ahead.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Since you differentiate in your letter between retailers generally and those who are in the chain store business, is it your testimony that retailers other than those in the chain store business are under control in so far as anti-style piracy is concerned? A. Not exactly.

Q. Are you in favor of the control presently exercised by the Fashion Originators' Guild of America, Inc., over such retailers? A. Which retailers?

Q. Other than chain stores. A. Provided they also get in the chains, yes.

Q. What investigation have you made, Mr. Block, of the number of copies of F.O.G.A. members' originals sold by these chain stores, if any, to warrant that opinion?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "originals"; has not been defined in this case.

Examiner Averill: I think it is clear. Objection overruled if the witness knows.

11858

A. One does not have to make any special or specific investigations if one just goes around to the manufacturers' showrooms—I refer to those that are generally known as copyists, and he will find that a great number of their best garments are sold to and a great part of their business comes from chain stores; that is exactly what the chain store is selling.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that there is practically only one large chain store organization whose competition you are referring to? A. No.

Q. What are the others? Name some of them. A. Yes, I will name some of them.

Q. All right. A. In addition to Lerner's shops.

Q. That is one that I was referring to mentally, and you were able to answer it without my saying it? A. I presume. I do not know. You should have been. 11859

Q. Quite right, and I was, yes. A. In addition to the Lerner's shops, there are Grayson's, Wilbur Rogers, Zucca's Stores, Sally Shops, Darling Shops and many others that I can mention the names of if you want me to, but I do not recall them.

Q. Would you be surprised to learn, Mr. Block, that these chain stores sell a very small percentage of copies in your stores with comparison to the total stock of their stores? A. I would.

Q. You would? A. Indeed.

Q. Do I understand you correctly to state that you have made no actual investigation of the number of copies sold in chain stores? A. Right.

Q. Speaking of the functions of Kirby, Block & Company, one of the functions of Kirby, Block & Company is to increase the potential profits of its member stores; is that so? A. Well, maintain or increase them as the 11861 case might be.

Q. In the performance of its duties, Kirby, Block & Company signed the declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, did they not? A. It did.

Q. No one of the members of Kirby, Block & Company that signed a declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild of America have withdrawn that co-operation at any time, have they? A. So far as I know, no.

Q. Are not the advantages obtained by a retailer in handling originals purchased by him protected greater than any claimed disadvantage testified to by you in the competition of chain stores in the lower-priced brackets?
A. It all depends on the type of retailer and the type 11862 of store that he has. In the case of a store like Bergdoff-Goodman and Sachs Fifth Avenue, the answer would be yes. In the case of a store like Macy's or Gimbel's, or Arnold Constable, the answer will be no.

Q. Will you be good enough to answer my question in the light of your experience with Kirby, Block & Fischer, and not in an assumed criticism of Bergdoff-Goodman's and Sachs Fifth Avenue and Macy's, Gimbel's, or Arnold

Constable's with whose businesses you cannot know from the inside as you know your own in the light of your contact with them in the industry?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. That is improper.

Examiner Averill: Obviously sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Averill: Noted.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Directing your attention specifically to the members of Kirby, Block & Company, will you be good enough to answer the question? A. The answer will be no, taken as an average, taking the stores as an average. 11864

Q. In the medium and be ter-priced dress lines, are your stores, your member stores, under any disadvantage in co-operating with the Guild? Referring to and leaving aside for the moment the question of the low-end dresses? A. No.

Q. Is not the program of anti-style piracy a benefit to your member stores in the medium and better-priced dresses? Again leaving aside for the moment the question of low-end dresses. A. Yes.

Q. You said that in broadening the base, using language, of the Guild plan against anti-style piracy, the co-operating dealers are at a disadvantage in the low-end merchandise with their chain store competition; is that so? A. Right. 11865

Q. Does not the benefit received by your co-operating retailers exceed the disadvantages, if any, that you say they are under in the low-priced end?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as already having been answered.

The Witness: I would like to answer the question.

Examiner Averill: I will let the witness answer it. The witness says he wants to.

A. In the large majority of cases, no; in a few cases, yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Upon what do you predicate that opinion? A. It depends upon the type of store. If a store handles only fine merchandise, the answer is yes; if they handle medium and lower grade merchandise, the answer is no.

Q. If they handle only fine and better class merchandise,
11867 there is no problem for them in so far as low-end merchandise is concerned; is that so? A. There is, too, because occasionally they have budget shops and so forth even though it is a fine store, and those budget shops, while it may be a small part of the business as a whole, it is essential, nevertheless.

Q. Earlier in the morning, I called, and in fact quoted to you a statement that the percentage of mark-downs in a particular store of dresses $16.95 had decreased in the first five months of the Guild's plan approximately 25 per cent. A. Yes.

Q. I believe, if I am not wrong, and if I am in error correct me, I believe that you stated that that was correct? A. I stated that I was so told.

11868 Q. From your experience in Kirby, Block & Company, and with your member stores, have you found that the percentage of mark-downs has substantially decreased in your medium-priced and better-priced dresses since the inception of the Fashion Originators Guild of America plan against the style piracy? A. I believe it has decreased somewhat, how substantially, I do not know.

Q. Have you compiled any statistics whatsoever to show how much that decrease has been? A. I have not.

Q. Have any of your member stores done so? A. Possibly.

Q. Have you received a report on it? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you any records whatsoever in your offices showing the amount of the decrease? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you compiled any statistics whatsoever to show the amount of loss, if any, sustained by co-operating retailers in being not permitted to sell a copy of a dress in the low-end price lines? A. I have no statistics on that subject.

Q. You, of course, recognize, Mr. Block, that the curbing of style piracy in the low-end field would be a benefit to the industry, do you not? A. Only providing that it applied to all stores and not to any special groups.

Q. Yes. So that if the Guild program of anti-style 11870 piracy could be extended to and applied in the low-end field in the same way as it is in the medium-priced and popular-priced—in the medium and better-priced field, you would be in hearty accord therewith? A. Do you refer to retailers or manufacturers when you speak of fields?

Q. Both. A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Block, I think, in giving the list of chain stores from whose competition your members suffered from the fact that they were not co-operating, you mentioned Wilbur Rogers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mentioned the Sally Shops? A. Yes.

Q. You mentioned the Darling Shops? A. Yes.

Q. What others did you mention? A. It is on the 11871 record.

Q. Would you mind mentioning one or two others, if you can. A. Read my answer. That will give you the names. Why should I tax my memory?

Q. Has your memory been severely taxed thus far?

Examiner Averill: Gentlemen, let us go on. The state of his memory will be shown by his answers.

11872 John Block—For Commission—Resumed—Cross.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Block, did you not as a matter of fact say, or do you not as a matter of fact, know, rather— A. What is that?

Q. Mr. Block, do you not as a matter of fact know that the Sally Stores are co-operating retailers? A. I do not.

Q. Do you not know, as a matter of fact, that the Darling Stores are co-operating retailers?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as not being a fact of record.

Examiner Averill: He is asking him if he knows, and if he does not know he can say so.

11873

A. I do not know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yet, despite the fact that you obviously, since you do not know that the Sally Stores and the Darling Stores are co-operating retailers, that you obviously have made, Mr. Block, have made no investigation of what chain stores are or are not co-operating retailers of whom you say you are hampered by their competition in the low-end field? A. When we speak on that subject you must remember that there are thousands of stores that handle cheaper merchandise who are not in chains, and who do not sign up or have not signed up with the Guild, and who do not handle the better type of dresses, and those stores are also in competition with our stores.

Q. Those stores cannot get better-priced merchandise, can they? A. No.

Q. They cannot get medium-priced merchandise, can they? A. I do not know what you mean by medium-priced. Do you mean $10 and $16?

Q. Yes. A. They can get some.

Q. But not enough to warrant them being considered as real competitors? A. For their needs, they can, because that is the smaller part of their business.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. When you say they cannot get that merchandise, was that because they cannot get the merchandise, or because of the range of their business? A. No, I presume the attorney means that these manufacturers being members of the $10.75 or $16.75 Guilds, these retailers cannot get that merchandise, but there are some who are not in the guilds and they can get some.

Q. I thought you were talking about those who are not 11876 in the Guild. A. Yes. Retailers that handled popular-priced merchandise.

Q. They cannot get the higher-priced goods? A. No, not from Guild members.

Examiner Averill: The way the answer read, it was not clear.

Mr. Haycraft: That is just the point, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Averill: I want to know why they cannot.

Mr. Haycraft: He answered that they were not members of the Guild and therefore could not get it.

11877

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Block, you have particularly enumerated, previously, certain chain stores and specialty shops—in answer to a question of mine—who were not bound by the rules of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, and whose competition you found to be a disadvantage to your member stores, and to further identify those stores they are the ones to which you said you did not wish to further tax your memory, or why should you tax your memory; now, have you made any specific investigation whatsoever to determine whether or not these named stores are or are not co-operating with the Guild? A. These main stores?

Q. No, these named stores are or are not co-operating with the Guild?

Examiner Averill: Now, to just what stores do you refer in that question?

Mr. Albert: The ones that he specifically named before.

Examiner Averill: I know that, but I wanted to 11879 show that they are chain stores because this is too far back. That is all I wanted to do, establish the nature of the stores that he is referring to, whether they are chain stores, specialty shops, or what not?

A. If you are asking me not to mention names, I will tell you generally that is the opinion in the market—the opinion in the market is that they are not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Aside from the opinion in the market, you have no other knowledge of whether or not they are co-operating with the Guild? A. Correct.

Q. Based upon that type of research and investigation,
11880 it is that you predicate your opinion that their competition is disadvantage to you in the lower-priced market? A. It is upon that type of testimony; namely, what I got from the wholesale market, plus the testimony that I got from retailers that I am contact with.

Q. Mr. Block, in your capacity with Kirby, Block & Company, have you any knowledge, roughly speaking—I am not seeking to impugn any specific, technical knowledge to you—have you any rough knowledge of the percentage of profit that the low-end manufacturers make upon their dresses? A. It depends on the year, they have some bad years and some good years, sometimes.

Q. Now, you have testified, Mr. Block, that for a certain period of time it was understood that in the low-end merchandise, in the enforcement of the Guild plan of anti-style piracy, retail co-operating stores were under conditions to return not more than 3 per cent. of the copies found in their basements and under certain conditions not more than 5 per cent.; is that correct? A. Not exactly. I said, I spoke of 5 per cent. for the basement or 3 per cent. for the dress department, as a whole.

Q. From your knowledge of the industry, would you not 11882 say that if in addition to the normal returns for other reasons that the manufacturer gets for the dresses that he sells, there are in addition to that 5 per cent. of his total sales returned to him than that return of 5 per cent. would mean the difference to him of a profit or a loss upon his sales? A. It would undoubtedly affect his profits, but I am not prepared to state right now to what extent.

Q. Very well, Mr. Block. State the fact, Mr. Block, as to when you first learned of the Fashion Originators Guild of America and first had your conferences with Mr. Rentner, and specifically calling your attention to the discussions that then arose as to the inclusion or non-inclusion of the low-end merchandise in the Guild plan? Will you be good enough to tell us what it is in substance with Mr. Rentner said? A. Well, the discussion took some time. 11883

Q. I believe you said two or three hours? A. Probably two or three hours. At the conclusion of the meeting, and, in fact, the statement made by Mr. Rentner was the statement that brought the conclusion was substantially this —that we will not regard dresses costing $6.75 and under as copies.

Q. Well, can you more particularly, rather than giving us the conclusion, tell us what was said by Mr. Rentner?

Do you understand the difference that I am trying to make? A. Yes. You want to know what?

Q. You have told us just what your conclusion is from what Mr. Rentner said. Now, can you tell us what it was that Mr. Rentner said? A. Well, he said a lot.

Q. Yes. A. I do not remember just all the things he said, but the whole meeting seemed to revolve around or on the question as to what the position the average retailer, the average independently owned store would be in if the lower-priced dresses—namely, $6.75 and under—and they were so-called copies—would be available only to chains and cheaper stores and not to those who subscribed 11885 to the Guild plan. That was the entire argument of the afternoon.

Q. Well, at that time there were not as many manufacturing members of the Guild as there are to-day, were there? A. That is correct.

Q. At that time when the Guild was first formed, most of the members of the Guild manufactured dresses at $22.75 and up, perhaps a few at $16.75; is that so? A. That is correct.

Q. At that time the bulk of the copying of the Guild dresses was done at a price range from $10.75 to $16.75 retail price; is that so? A. Well, to be exact, I would say $16.95 to—well, beginning at $10.95 and going up to $16.95.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

11886 Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Block, at that stage in the development of the Guild plan, and at that stage in the consideration of the problem of eliminating style piracy, was it not the expressed thought that a dress at that time selling for less than $10.75—a price list at that time below $10.75 and the price list, I might say at that time, below $10.75 immediately dropped, I believe, to below $6.75—was not considered a copy of a dress selling for $22.75 and above; is that the fact? A. I would say $16.75 and above.

Q. Is it not in that sense at that stage of the development of the Guild plan that you referred to as the agreement that dresses costing $6.75 and under were not to be within the purview of the Guild plan? A. What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. I cannot say as to whether that was the sense or not. I only know what was said.

Q. Is that not what was said and is that not the point upon which you predicated that statement that dresses $6.75 and under were not to be within the purview of the Guild plan? A. I know what was said. I do not understand the question.

Q. Did not Mr. Rentner and the discussion itself, for 11888 that matter, concern itself with the fact that at that stage of the Guild development, at that embryonic stage of the development of the theory of eliminating style piracy, it was considered by all present that the spread between the price wholesale of $16.75 and above, and you have stated that there were only a few manufacturers at $16.75 and above, and most of them ranged from $22 up, that a dress selling below $6.75 at that period under the Guild plan would not be considered a copy of a dress of the manufacturers who were then members of the Guild? A. Nothing was said as to any stage or stages.

Q. What was the sense of the statement? A. We are all living to-day. We are not concerned with yesterday or to-morrow. We are talking about to-day's affairs.

Q. You will not deny that that was the topic of conversation of those three hours, of this three-hour meeting as I have roughly included it in my question? A. What was the topic? 11889

Q. Have you not been listening to the questions? A. I certainly have.

Q. Let me refresh it for the third time.

Examiner Averill: Please, just tell him what the topic was and go on from that.

The Witness: I am talking of one topic and he is speaking of another topic.

Examiner Averill: That is what I want you to do, I want to get you together on that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was not the topic of discussion at that original inception, practically, of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, the following: That most of the members of the Guild, manufacturers, with few exceptions at that time, manufactured wholesale price $22.75 dresses and above, thought that the spread at retail of the wholesale price of 11891 dresses which would sell below $6.75, $6.75 and below, and the price that the $22.75 wholesale dress would sell for at that time was so great that it would not be considered at that time that a copy of a $22.75 wholesale dress being sold at below $6.75 would be within the purview of the Guild plan; is that clear? A. Very clear.

Q. What is the answer? A. That might have been the conclusion, but it was not the topic.

Q. Then you would not deny that it was the conclusion, let me put it that way. A. I have told you what Mr. Rentner, at the conclusion of that meeting, said.

Q. Well, you just made the statement that that might have been the conclusion, but that was not the topic. A. Yes.

11892 Q. Will you then say that you will not deny that that might have been the conclusion of what was said at that time? A. It might have been.

Q. Now, Mr. Block, one further question. A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Block, was Mr. Bergdahl present at that conference? A. I believe he was, yes.

Q. That was freely discussed, was it not? A. Very freely discussed.

Q. Was there anything secret about it? A. No.

Q. There was nothing secret about it, was there? A. Not a thing; no, sir; nothing was secret.

Q. And the provision of not considering anything below $6.75 a copy was applicable to everybody in the industry at that time who were retailing co-operators; is that so? A. Yes—you mean $6.75 and anything that was below $6.75?

Q. Yes. A. In other words, $6.75 and under?

Q. Yes. A. I cannot swear as to that. We had these meetings there, and I am not sure that the result of the meetings were made public.

Q. But the conclusions and the provisions with respect to the non-inclusion of $6.75 and under copies was considered to be applicable to all of those who were present at 11894 that meeting; is that so? A. That is right.

Q. And at least in the beginning of the Guild plan, none of your member stores who co-operated returned anything under $6.75; is that so? A. What is the question?

Q. At least in the beginning of the Guild plan, Mr. Block, no one of your member stores who co-operated returned anything in the way of a dress or other garment under $6.75 wholesale; is that true? A. Returned anything costing $6.75 or under? I believe so.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Block, you have testified that a change occurred in the Guild plan with respect to the inclusion of dresses under $6.75 in the Guild plan against style piracy, have you not? A. I mean $6.75 and under.

Q. And when I say $6.75 I mean "and under." A. 11895
When you say "under $6.75," they made them also $3.75, you see at that time there was not much below $6.75 until it hit the $3.75 level.

Q. Yes. A. Now, what is your question?

Q. Let me phrase it this way, originally $6.75 and under were not within the purview of the Guild plan, according to your testimony? A. Yes.

Q. Subsequently, it was decided that $6.75 and under were to be included within the Guild plan; that is so, is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You also testified that when $6.75 and under were to be considered within the Guild plan, there was to be leniency in the enforcement of that provision; is that so? A. That is so.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to hear the question read.

(Question and answer read.)

By Mr. Albert.

11897

Q. Did you discuss that with Mr. Bergdahl? A. I believe it was discussed at a meeting of the A.B.O. generally, and Mr. Bergdahl was present at that meeting.

Q. Was it the general consensus of opinion that leniency should be exercised in the enforcement of this plan including $6.75 and under? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, this leniency was discussed and advocated by both Mr. Bergdahl and Mr. Post; is that so? A. Yes, that is so.

Q. And was not the purpose of this leniency in order to permit the market to adjust itself? A. The purpose of this leniency was in order to permit the market to adjust itself, and also in order to give the Fashion Originators Guild of America an opportunity to bring in the non-11898 signatory stores.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was there any specific limit, time limit, put upon the leniency you just referred to? A. No, not that I remember.

Q. Was there any time limit put on the statement made by Mr. Rentner as to the inclusion of $6.75 cost garments, and under, at the time of the general meeting in 1933? A. No time limit.

Q. No time limit? A. No time limit.

Q. You were asked the question "That was freely discussed"; referring to that June, 1933, meeting. What was freely discussed? What did you mean in your answer? A. The question as to the inclusion of dresses costing $6.75 and under, and the anti-piracy plan of the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Q. Was there anything said by Mr. Rentner at that meeting, as to the— A. What? 11900

Q. I will withdraw that. A. Yes.

Q. In your answer a few moments in referring to the disadvantage to the department stores having basement stores and economy shops selling dresses in the lower brackets, you said that in addition to the chain stores referred to in your testimony there were thousands of shops throughout the country that were selling cheap merchandise that were not co-operating with the Guild. Do you remember that? A. That is right. I remember right.

Q. Then you were asked by counsel for the respondent as to whether those shops could get Guild merchandise. A. That is right.

Q. I will ask you to state for the record whether or not these shops that you referred to were and are a substantial factor in the merchandising of ladies' and women's— 11901 ladies' and misses' ready-to-wear garments?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as improper redirect examination, and no foundation whatsoever has been laid showing the ability of Mr. Block to give an opinion upon that matter, and he has not even attempted to justify that; he has not even attempted, in fact, to testify that he knew about it.

Examiner Averill: I will overrule the objection; exception for counsel.

The Witness: What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. Are you referring to independently owned specialty stores that are non-signatories?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes. A. I would say that they are a substantial part of the retailing industry and ladies' and misses' ready-to-wear in the popular-priced lines.

Q. In popular-priced lines, what price ranges would you 11903 include? A. Well, I would say from $16.95 retail, down all the way down to maybe $2.88.

Q. $16.95 retail would be about $10.75 wholesale? A. Yes, women's and misses', most of the goods in the range from $7.95 retail down.

Q. What, in your opinion, and based upon your experience, would be the percentage of the total number of garments sold by retail dealers throughout the United States that would be sold in those lower brackets which you have indicated as compared to your total?

Mr. Feldman: In those specialty shops?

Mr. Martin: No, go ahead.

A. I believe it was shown during the N.R.A.

11904

Mr. Albert: That is objected to. The witness was asked as to his opinion and not what was done by anyone else.

Examiner Averill: You can give us your opinion, but do not quote what somebody else said.

Mr. Albert: If the witness knows what his opinion—if the witness has an opinion on that—

The Witness: He will give you his opinion.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Proceed and answer the question. A. I will say between 80 per cent. and 85 per cent. of the number of dresses sold throughout the country are in the group costing $6.75 at wholesale, and under.

Examiner Averill: How much, costing how much?

The Witness: $6.75 wholesale.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, and I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Mr. Haycraft: It certainly is responsive.

Mr. Albert: It certainly is not responsive.

11906

Examiner Averill: I think it was. I think it absolutely was responsive.

Mr. Albert: May we have the question again?

(Question read.)

Examiner Averill: My ruling is the same. Exception noted to counsel.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your estimate, in your opinion, of the proportion of that volume of $6.75 and under that is sold by retail shops including chain stores and the small shops that you have referred to that are not signatories to the Guild program?

Mr. Feldman: I do not think the question is intelligible. 11907

Mr. Albert: I object on the ground the question is not intelligible.

Examiner Averill: I do not think that I understand it, either, but if the witness can answer it, he may.

A. I would not care to venture a figure, but I would say a very substantial proportion, if I understand the question.

Mr. Feldman: "Substantial" is a word whi may mean anything from 2 per cen. to 70 per cen

Examiner Averill: When you say "very substa tial"—can you give us a little better idea of that?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you give us a little better estimate of that, Mr

Examiner Averill: I would like to know if you can give us any figure that would indicate what you think by "very substantial"; that is what I am trying to get at.

11909 The Witness: No, I would not care to hazard a guess as to the exact percentages of the volume of $6.75 and under dresses that is sold by retail shops, including chain stores and the smaller shops non-signatories to the Guild program, that I referred to a moment ago.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would you care to say whether it was more or less —that is, more dresses sold by non-signatories than sold by signatories of the Guild program? A. It would be very difficult to say offhand.

Q. Now, when you said that these independent shops and non-chain stores, but non-signatory shops, could not 11910 get these higher-priced merchandise—that is, $16.95 cost and up—what did you have in mind, and what did you mean by that? A. Well, I meant that they could not get it from any of the Guild manufacturers.

Q. What about other available sources of supply at $16.95 and up. A. They could get it from non-Guild members.

Q. From your experience, is there a substantial group of manufacturers in those higher brackets? A. Large manufacturers? Which manufacturers do you refer to?

Q. $16.95, outside of the Guild. A. No, no——

Examiner Averill: Do you mean——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What percentage, in your opinion, of the manufacturers from $16.95 and up are members of the Guild?

Mr. Feldman: If you know.

A. Almost all the well-known houses.

Q. What percentage, in your opinion, of the manufacturers of dresses $10.75 and up are members of the Guild? A. I do not know as to the percentage, but I would say 11912 that the large majority of the very important—the large majority of the more important resources in that price group.

Q. Are members of the Guild? A. Yes. That is the Guild affiliate of $10.75—the $10.75 Guild.

Q. You mean the Dress Creators' League? A. Yes, the Dress Creators' League.

By Examiner Averill.

Q. From your understanding—let me understand one thing, please, Mr. Block. A. Yes.
